BIG MIAMI DISASTER

JOIN COURT AS EQUAL, LEAGUE STATES BID U. S.

[Copyright: 1926: By The Chicago Tribune.]

GENEVA, Sept. 18.—Drafts of the wave of response and the protocol accepting the United States' reservation of adherence to the world court were adopted by the subcommittee of jurists representatives of league of nations members after three hours of discussion this afternoon.

The documents will be submitted at a plenary session of forty-eight representatives of the states that are members of the world court Monday or Tuesday for final approval.

The terms of the reply, it is believed, will insure the satisfaction of Washington and will not require President Coolidge to refer them to the senate for ratification. The interpretation of the fifth American reservation is expected in such conciliatory and friendly terms it is believed the United States will consider that all its rights and interests are safeguarded.

Spain Wins Demurrage Protocol.

The subcommittee decision that a two-thirds majority of the members of the world court are necessary to denounce the statute governing the American reservation is taken to show that the United States is enjoying special privileges or that the constitution of the United States' policy is detrimental to the efficacy of the Hague organization.

The United States will be assured that an advisory opinion will be asked from The Hague on any case involving America or its interests without the approval of Washington.

Uncle Sam to Sit in Council.

America will be asked to have a representative sit in any council meeting when a subject likely to be of interest to the United States comes up, so as to be fully informed on all developments of questions liable to develop into requests for advisory opinions. The United States will be asked to have interest in any case—and its assertion of interest will be accepted.

According to the Geneva correspondent of the Associated Press, "the United States will be informed that its notice signatory to the world court do not know whether requests for advisory opinions require a unanimous or a majority vote of the league council. The text of the fifth American reservation seems to indicate that the United States had proceeded on the theory that unanimity is required. The primary conference will point out to the United States that in any event, whether unanimity or a majority vote is found to be the procedure, the United States will have the same rights as members of the league council. This means that the conference would find unable to give practical satisfaction to the United States if it is found that advisory opinions can be requested by a majority vote of the council, when in that case an opinion could be asked of the court regardless of an American vote."

Put U. S. on Equal Basis.

Regarding the fifth reservation, the explanatory letters, which will be sent shortly, will put the matter squarely up to Washington, saying that the league do not believe America wishes to enjoy a preferential position but prefer to be on the same footing as the other members and enjoy all the privileges of the council members.

The letters will comprise nineteen notes identical in substance, but differently couched in different words by the various nations. The protocol, which the member nations of the court will sign after the ratification, contains only nine articles.

Although all the governments were asked to send their answers of acceptance to Washington immediately, it is believed six months will elapse before the forty-eight will reply.

Contract for Signs Around North Pole

BATH, Me., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Existence of a contract to erect signs at the north pole has been given to E. R. Hedrick, a Tacoma man representing a national advertising agency, by Lieut. Com. R. E. Byrd, naval aviator who discovered the pole. The contract specifies that the annual consideration shall be $1,000, payable immediately after the first signs are erected.

EVERY POSTMAN A DRY SPY, NEW ANDREWS PLAN

Seeks Huge Army of U. S. Employes.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Lincoln C. Andrews, commander in chief of the dry army, is planning to call the last reservists to the colors in the war with liquor.

A report issued by a news service here says the chief enforcement official will call out the postal employés, steamboat inspectors, the lighthouse service personnel, and employés of the federal farm aid bureau to help keep, or make the country dry. According to this report, he also will call on all state, county, city, and village officials to help.

Mr. Andrews is said to have the indorsement of President Coolidge on this program, which will be outlined before the conference of regional prohibition administrators, to be held here on Monday.

Will Provide Goodly Army.

This program, it is said, will not seek to make all the various federal employés actual deputies, but will use them as sources of information for the enforcers. They will be ordered to report any violation of the law which may come under their observation.

If this plan is actually put into effect, Mr. Andrews' dry sleuths will have an army of informers to help them ferret out the iniquitous cellar or hip pocket. To watch, the city man, there will be 48,645 mail carriers and 67,898 clerks.

To protect the farmer from the rum evil there are about 4,900 federal farm aid agents, including directors, assistant directors, county agents and their assistants, state leaders, specialists, farm management demonstrators and extension foresters.

For those who go down to the sea in ships, the guardians will include 5,700 men connected with light house stations, vessels and depots and 365 men in the steamboat inspection service.

Plan May Not Be Legal.

The reported plan of Andrews has several points which cause its supporters to look on it with favor. One of these is that the vast new army of enforcers will cost the government nothing for salaries as the members already are on the payrolls.

But the plan has one large drawback. It is doubtful that it could be enforced without the violation or a number of federal laws. Congress specifically provided that enforcement of the Volstead act is the duty of the treasury department. Under the federal statutes it is doubtful that the treasury could call on the postoffice department to extend the duties of the mail men, or on the department of agriculture to lend the services of the farm aid bureau men, or the department of commerce to order the lighthouse men and steamboat inspectors for help keep the country dry.

In fact, there has been one decision in an almost similar case. The prohibition forces sought to use United States navy vessels to battle rum row. It was held that it would be illegal.

Rely on Executive Order.

In spite of this legal barrier, the report circulated here says the prohibition men hope for success. The President will be asked to issue an executive order requesting his cabinet officers to designate sections of their departments to cooperate with the treasury enforcement machine.

When Mr. Andrews meets the administrators he will explain several changes he seeks in the prohibition forces. One concerns the creation of three mobile squads, one intrusted with the duty of preventing the diversion of alcohol to illicit channels, a second assigned to the task of watching out for illegal breweries, and a third that deals exclusively with vendors of wine.

Will Propose New Laws.

Mr. Andrews has outlined a program of behavior which he will tell the administrators to pass on to the dry agents. This program will endeavor to instruct the agents in politeness and when to shoot or not shoot.

He also will explain the new law which he will seek to get from congress. The bill he has prepared would strengthen the Volstead act by allowing judges to issue search warrants for private dwellings.

When this task is completed Andrews will be ready to retire. He plans now to resign his office some time between Christmas and spring.

Ormiston Asks Immunity to Tell on Aimee

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Direct charges linking the names of Aimee Semple McPherson, evangelist, and her former radio operator, Kenneth G. Ormiston, were made here today by S. S. Hahn, attorney, in demanding immunity for Ormiston if he comes forward with the facts in connection with the evangelist's recent mysterious disappearance.

Hahn declared that "actions between herself (Mrs. McPherson) and Ormiston take it out of the class of private delinquency."

The attorney gave out a statement apparently containing an admission that Ormiston was ready to testify that the evangelist occupied the cottage at Carmel-by-the-Sea, which Ormiston rented a few days before her disappearance, and which has figured so much in the case.

Public Entitle to Facts.

"The public," Hahn asserted, "was entitled to know the truth concerning the activities of the evangelist and the radio operator while the two were away from Los Angeles for more than a month early this summer.

"It is my opinion that immunity should be granted to Ormiston and I will surrender him," the attorney said.

"My opinion is that the public is entitled to be acquainted with the facts concerning Mrs. McPherson and Mr. Ormiston's activities during the period of their absence and from the time they left Carmel-by-the-Sea, until the time Mrs. McPherson reappeared at Douglas, Ariz.

Poses as Religious Leader.

"By virtue of the fact that Mrs. McPherson poses as a religious leader in the community, as a pretended guardian of chastity and campaigner against sin the actions between herself and Ormiston take it out of the class of private delinquency."

Hahn's statement was made after it was reported at the district attorney's office that Ormiston "had ducked from sight." In filing criminal conspiracy charge against Ormiston yesterday, along with similar charges against Mrs. McPherson, her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, and others, District Attorney Asa Keyes declared no promises would be made the radio operator.

Claim of the State.

The district attorney's office alleges Mrs. McPherson was the mysterious beggoled woman whom Ormiston brought to the Carmel cottage at 3 o'clock in the morning thirteen hours after the evangelist disappeared from the beach near here, May 18.

The woman is known to have spent ten days in the cottage, and it was alleged attempts to produce a "Miss X" to appear as having been that woman that led to the charges against Mrs. McPherson and seven others.

WILL PREACH TODAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Relieved from facing a court until Sept. 27, the Rev. Aimee McPherson today made a rapid recovery at her home and announced that she would preach tomorrow. Her plan to appear in the pulpit of Angelus temple is against the order of Dr. Charles Warner, her physician.

The arraignment of Mrs. McPherson's mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, for preliminary hearing yesterday and the technical arrest imposed upon the woman evangelist relieved the tense feeling among McPherson's 45,000 devotees. Instead of thousands who jostled about Angelus temple yesterday, scores came and went today. Small groups read the bulletins in the temple lobby which told of the evangelist's recovery.

The meeting in Angelus temple tomorrow is expected to rival in its pro-

Death Takes Funkhouser at Lunch Table

Maj. M. L. C. Funkhouser, formerly second deputy superintendent of police in Chicago, died yesterday afternoon while eating lunch at the Atlantic hotel. Since he left the police department he had been an insurance broker and lived at 807 Judson avenue, Evanston. He was 62 years old.

Maj. Funkhouser was known as the censor of the city's morals while he was civilian deputy superintendent of police. He was given complete charge of the police drive against vice and he had charge of the censorship of moving pictures and as such was constantly in litigation because of the movies he refused permits.

His appointment came as the result of the police investigation scandals of 1911 and 1912.

Stormy Five Years.

He held the post of second deputy for five stormy years and was eventually suspended and taken before the civil service board for trial on numerous charges. Mayor Thompson had decreed that Funkhouser must go, and after a trial that lasted throughout the month of July, 1913, he was ordered discharged.

He appealed to the courts and the Supreme court ruled that he had been illegally ousted. His reinstatement was ordered, but in the meantime the Thompson administration had abolished the office of second deputy. Maj. Funkhouser sued the city then and obtained judgment for over $12,000 in back salary.

Vindicated of Charges.

When the present administration recreated two posts of deputy superintendents Maj. Funkhouser was reinstated and immediately resigned. He had been vindicated of all the charges made against him, which were proved to have been designed to fit the necessity of his removal.

Maj. Funkhouser was born in St. Louis in 1863. He served in the Spanish-American war and continued in his rank in the state militia. He is survived by the widow, Mrs. Eugenia Funkhouser; four daughters, Mrs. William Mellin, Mrs. Kenneth Colegrove, Mrs. Thomas Douglas, and Miss Mary Funkhouser.

With him at the time of his death was Miss L. G. Baker, 1140 Columbia avenue, who had been his secretary for 19 years. She said he was suddenly stricken after eating a hearty meal. Dr. L. G. Light, who was hastily summoned, said death was due to heart failure, accentuated by acute indigestion.

75 DEAD IN HURRICANE; $100,000,000 DAMAGE

2,000 Buildings in Ruins, All Boats in Harbor Sunk, Radio Report Says; City Is Cut Off by Wire.

BULLETIN.

Mobile, Ala., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Seventy-five known dead, property loss of $100,000,000 in the city, and every boat in the harbor sunk was the toll of the hurricane which struck Miami today, according to fragmentary messages picked up by the Tropical Radio Telegraph company station here tonight.

The station is working the American Steamship Siboney, which has established communication with a makeshift transmiting plant at Hialeah. Every vestige of the city docks system was swept away and 2,000 buildings ruined, said the messages, which added that troops, food, and medical supplies are needed urgently.

BULLETIN.

New Orleans, La., Sept. 19.—(AP)—The following message was received here early this morning by the Tropical Radio station from Miami:

"Miami is in ruins after worst hurricane in history of country. Seventy-five known dead. Property damage $100,000,000. More than 2,000 buildings destroyed, including bank buildings and Miami Tribune.

"City docks completely destroyed and all boats in harbor sunk, including steamship Nohab, formerly owned by ex-kaiser of Germany. Food, medical supplies, and troops needed."

The message was sent from a makeshift radio station in Miami after the six 450 foot towers of the Tropical Radio station there had been blown down. The message was intended for the steamship Siboney, the closest vessel to Miami, but was picked up by the Tropical station at Mobile and relayed to New Orleans. The Siboney was requested to broadcast the news of the disaster.

The local station said that the message was received at Mobile about 11:30 last night. Officials at the station are of the opinion that the blow hit Miami Friday night or early yesterday morning, since they have been unable to establish connection with their station there since Friday midnight, when Miami was cut off from all communication with the outside world.

The Miami Tribune building, reported in a wireless message to the Tropical Radio station at New Orleans as having been destroyed by the hurricane was a cement structure reinforced by steel, and regarded as one of the more substantial of the buildings in downtown Miami. The building was located on Southeast First street, three blocks from the water front and a half block from the Florida East Coast railway station.

Reports that a bank building had been destroyed disclosed that tremendous damage was done in the heart of the business and financial district. The two largest banks in Miami are located on Flagler street, several blocks from the water front and protected by other buildings.

BULLETIN.

[BY THE UNITED PRESS.]

New York, Sept. 19.—(3 a. m.)—Word has been received here that the Western Union cable office at Miami Beach cabled to Havana tonight reporting that Miami Beach was not damaged. The beach is connected with Miami proper by two causeways which cross Biscayne bay.

No communication had yet been established with Miami the office reported, despite every effort. The main causeway was completely under water, the message said, and from the beach appeared wrecked.

According to the Western Union operator, streets of the city of Miami beach were covered with three feet of water, which was hurled through windows on the ground floors of homes and buildings as the high wind lashed the sea into immense breakers which inundated sections of the city. During the afternoon the wind reached a velocity of 90 miles an hour, but was decreasing at midnight tonight, the message said.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Seventy-five reported dead in Miami and property loss that probably will run into the hundreds of millions was the toll of the storm that lashed the east coast of Florida on Friday and swept across the lower half of the state Saturday.

All lines of direct communication with the storm stricken portion of the state are down and no direct word has been received since about noon Saturday when passengers on trains from West Palm Beach brought stories of terrific destruction there and further south.

Trains from the stricken area are delayed hours and only brief wireless communications with Miami through a makeshift arrangement late last night told of the destruction wrought to the largest city in south Florida.

Immense Seas Sweep In.

All south Florida shipping is suffering from the ravage of the 100 mile an hour winds that swept many small boats upon the coast and beached them.

At Miami the one wireless report said that every boat in the harbor was sunk.

Last direct communication with hurricane area reported immense seas sweeping in from the Atlantic, with the causeway between Miami and Miami Beach three feet beneath the crest of breakers.

The Postal Telegraph company reported 30 miles of telegraph poles down and their service paralyzed.

The hurricane sweeping across the peninsula in the vicinity of Tampa unroofed houses and leveled trees. Unusually high tides swept many craft in the Tampa harbor inland, leaving them stranded.

Many Towns Hard Hit.

Bradentown, Sarasota, Fort Myers, and small villages in the vicinity were hard hit, but extent of the damage will be unknown until communication is reestablished.

The Mississippi and Louisiana coasts, but a few weeks ago swept by a lashing hurricane, are preparing for another blow today, as the Florida hurricane is sweeping that way, weather bureau advices say.

All shipping in the gulf has been warned and smaller vessels are seeking shelter in bays and inlets. Larger vessels were still sailing on schedule yesterday.

Battered hull of a schooner the "Gamon of Nassau, N. P." found on beaches on Talbot Island. No sign of life was aboard.

Steamship Nohab, formerly owned by ex-kaiser of Germany, reported sunk in Miami harbor.

Miami Tribune building reported destroyed when hurricane force hit the structure.

Tropical Radio station's six 450-foot towers at Miami blown down.

Terse wireless message received at Mobile and New Orleans from makeshift radio station in Miami appealed for food, medical supplies and troops.

Governor to Act at Once.

Tallahassee, Fla., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Gov. John W. Martin was advised today by the Associated Press that radio messages had been received from Miami to the effect that the city was badly in need of troops, medical supplies, and food as the result of devastation wrought by the West Indian hurricane.

"I will immediately send a representative to Miami to ascertain the condition and will take every needed step to alleviate conditions," the governor said.

"If it is necessary I will call out the militia to patrol the streets of the city."

Like Desolated Venice.

Key West, Fla., Sept. 18.—(AP)—The devastating fury of the tropical storm which swept the south Florida coast this morning has transformed Miami Beach and Miami into a desolated Venice, with streets inundated, buildings wrecked, light and power gone, and untold property damage.

The entire city of Miami Beach is flooded with three feet of water. Many buildings were blown down by the ninety miles an hour gale which paralyzed all the light and power systems. Miami proper is believed to have suffered considerable damage also. The causeway connecting the two cities was covered by the inrushing waters during the storm.

Tracks Washed Out.

Railroads were hard hit. A washout of the tracks at Jewfish, at the extreme southern end of the mainland, was reported, and it is believe this will cause a long delay in the operation of trains.

The radio station at Jupiter received a message, relayed to the coast guard from the steamer Westerwald, reporting the rescue of the crew of the schooner San Pierre Miquilon, which was said to be afire and sinking slowly. The sea gale was accompanied by a 100 mile wind, the radio message stated. At Key West the wind reached a velocity of fifty-five miles an hour, but no damage was done.

100 Mile an Hour Wind.

Jacksonville, Fla., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Attaining in some instances a velocity of 100 miles an hour and hiding its damage toll behind wrecked lines of communications, the West Indian hurricane, which last night crossed from Nassau in the Bahamas to the lower coast of Florida, swept tonight over the Everglades and the lower peninsula into the Gulf of Mexico.

Miami and Palm Beach, for the second time within two months, were isolated from the outside world. Partial communication with the stricken area was maintained during the forenoon.

West Palm Beach Cut Off.

The Western Union Telegraph company received reports of the storm at Miami Beach through a single cable, and Avon Park obtained meager advices from West Palm Beach over a railway telephone line. This failed late today, and West Palm Beach was cut off except for train service.

Storm passenger who reached Avon Park late today from West Palm Beach on the first train to emerge from the hurricane district described the storm as the worst in the history of the Palm Beaches. The train left West Palm Beach early today, and the passengers could give little detail of the damage there, but united in saying it had been a terrible blow.

Shipping Runs to Ports.

Shipping generally hurried into port along the east coast last night when hurricane warnings were hoisted from Titusville along the southern tip of Florida. Storm warnings which were extended farther north along the coast kept vessels in port today.

Weather reports late today warned Tampa and communities of the west coast of approaching gales of 60 to 100 miles an hour. Throughout the central portion of the state the proximity of the storm was indicated by rising winds and driving rains throughout the day.

Clearwater and St. Petersburg reported rising winds throughout the afternoon.

No trains had come through to Jacksonville from the storm area this afternoon. Jacksonville authorities have been unable to communicate with that region, the dispatcher's office at St. Augustine reported.

Tampa Hit by Gale.

Tampa, Fla., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Several pedestrians were reported injured by flying glass and other debris when winds of gale force swept over Tampa early tonight, unroofing buildings and causing considerable damage. Street car, telephone, telegraph and electric light services were crippled.

The wind forced out the tide in Tampa bay leaving many boats high and dry along the shore. Traffic was ordered suspended across the Manatee river bridge, which stopped communication between Tampa, Sarasota and Bradenton.

The Peninsular Telephone company reported that the tropical storm hit Fort Myers this afternoon with terrific force and turned northwestward up the gulf coast, striking Sarasota, where the wind reached a velocity of 75 miles an hour. Twenty houses were reported unroofed at Sarasota and considerable other damage caused.

Early tonight reports to the local telephone company indicated the storm was headed toward the open gulf.

Bodies of Yank's Killers in Trees Warn Mexican Bandits

BULLETIN.

Mexico City, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Federal forces have defeated and dispersed rebellious Yaquis in an engagement near Campamento Del Oro, Sonora, says a report from Gen. Francisco Manzo given out tonight by President Calles' office.

Gen. Manzo's report asserted: "Numerous Yaqui dead and wounded were left on the field of the encounter. The federal troops also suffered several casualties among their chiefs, officers, and privates."

Mexico City, Sept. 18.—(AP)—As a warning against banditry, executed prisoners have been strung to trees along the road to Cuernavaca, near the spot where Jacob Rosenthal, American tourist, was kidnaped and murdered.

This grewsome sight is designed as an object lesson to the natives of that mountainous region that the national government will suppress banditry with ruthlessness.

Six men known to have been of the bandit gang guilty of the outrage have been executed, and seven bandit suspects have been killed resisting the soldiers who are searching the country. Many believe there has been a larger number of "unofficial" executions, because there is little doubt that troops and the federal police are filling to the letter positive orders to exterminate bandits from the region near the national capital.

Take Body to New York.

Mr. Rosenthal's body will be taken to New York by Joseph Ruff, his son-in-law, and Lucian Ruff as soon as the necessary arrangements can be made.

F. L. Clark, an American undertaker here, denied the report that the present laws prevented religious ceremonies being held here for Rosenthal.

"No religious ceremonies were planned here by the relatives," he said. "The ceremonies will be in New York. Such ceremonies are usually held at the cemetery, and if the burial were here ceremonies would have been held as usual."

Secretary Lane of the United States embassy, who narrowly escaped the bandits who captured Mr. Rosenthal, has received cablegrams of congratulations from friends in the diplomatic services from nearly all the capitals of the world.

Mexico Asks Redress.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 18.—(AP)—While Mexican troops are scouring the country about Cuernavaca to clean up bandits, following the murder of Jacob Rosenthal, New York banker, by brigands, the Mexican government today formally requested the American government to punish those it says broke into the jail at Raymondsville, Tex., several months ago, and killed Thomas Nunes and his two sons, Mexican citizens.

Ambassador Telles was instructed to make the representations in the case before the murder of Mr. Rosenthal occurred, and the fact that he made them at a time when the American government was pressing for punishment of the Mexican bandits was not considered in official circles as significant of a counter move by Mexico.

Say Mob Beheaded Mexican.

Following the usual course, the state department is expected to ask the governor of Texas for information on the case complained of. It has been asserted by those seeking redress that a mob tortured and shot the Mexicans and beheaded the elder Nunez.

Charge d'Affaires Schoenfeld at Mexico City reported to the state department today that 500 Mexican federal troops were pursuing the bandits who were involved in the Rosenthal murder.

Troops already had killed a number of them, he said, including Bonifacio Hinojosa, mayor of Huitzilac, a small town near the scene of the kidnaping. Another reported to have been killed was Miguel Garcia, chief of police at Huitzilac.

Tells of Battle.

Mr. Schoenfeld's report said the Mexican soldiers who first encountered the bandits were led in person by Gen. Lopez. The description of the engagement between Gen. Lopez and the "five or six soldiers" he led and the bandits, was given by Mr. Schoenfeld as follows:

"They saw a group of men on a nearby hill about 9:30 on the night of Sept. 15. Challenged by a sentry, the bandit party replied with rifle shots. The bandits fled, but were pursued by the Lopez party, who killed all three of the bandits accompanying Mr. Rosenthal. Mr. Rosenthal apparently had been stabbed twice and shot twice through the head. He walked about ten metres before falling dead."

The report said that three of the bandits captured by troops had been identified by Mr. Rosenthal's son-in-law, who picked them out of a large group of men.

Shipping Runs to Ports.

Shipping generally hurried into port along the east coast last night when hurricane warnings were hoisted from Titusville along the southern tip of Florida. Storm warnings which were extended farther north along the coast kept vessels in port today.

Weather reports late today warned Tampa and communities of the west coast of approaching gales of 60 to 100 miles an hour. Throughout the central portion of the state the proximity of the storm was indicated by rising winds and driving rains throughout the day.

Clearwater and St. Petersburg reported rising winds throughout the afternoon.

No trains had come through to Jacksonville from the storm area this afternoon. Jacksonville authorities have been unable to communicate with that region, the dispatcher's office at St. Augustine reported.

Tampa Hit by Gale.

Tampa, Fla., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Several pedestrians were reported injured by flying glass and other debris when winds of gale force swept over Tampa early tonight, unroofing buildings and causing considerable damage. Street car, telephone, telegraph and electric light services were crippled.

The wind forced out the tide in Tampa bay leaving many boats high and dry along the shore. Traffic was ordered suspended across the Manatee river bridge, which stopped communication between Tampa, Sarasota and Bradenton.

The Peninsular Telephone company reported that the tropical storm hit Fort Myers this afternoon with terrific force and turned northwestward up the gulf coast, striking Sarasota, where the wind reached a velocity of 75 miles an hour. Twenty houses were reported unroofed at Sarasota and considerable other damage caused.

Early tonight reports to the local telephone company indicated the storm was headed toward the open gulf.

REPORT 9 DEAD IN IOWA

Sioux City, Ia., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Although nine persons are reported to have been drowned in the flooded areas north of Sioux City, the names of only four had been learned late tonight. They are Nina Brunsting, schoolgirl, Hull, Ia.; ——— Pertstich, and 4 year old son, Hospers, Ia.; Dirk Devries, farm hand, Ireton, Ia.

In the case of the Pertstichs witnesses told of heroism on the part of the father. The father and son were driving near Hospers and tried to force a passage through a small sea, in which the road was lost. The car was stalled and the water rose swiftly. When necessary, the father placed his boy on top of the sedan and climbed out also. The water continued to rise, and the father held the child as high as possible.

Swept Away by Torrent.

People on dry land a few hundred yards distant watched for hours but were powerless to go to their rescue. Finally the father sat the boy on his shoulders, holding the child's head above water, but at last the flood engulfed them and the watchers saw father and son swept away after one last despairing call for help.

Flood waters from the Floyd and Big Sioux rivers, which inundated more than 80,000 acres of northwestern Iowa farm land today, causing heavy damage to crops and property, were slowly receding.

An accurate check of deaths and damage from the flood awaits reestablishement of direct communication with the devastated area.

May Be Rural Death.

C. M. Fleshman, retired business man, met death at Hawarden when he stepped from a curb into deep water and drowned, and Nina Brusing, 11, was swept to her death when a bridge gave way northwest of A report that eight persons were drowned at Hawarden was found to be erroneous. Nothing is known, however, of the fate of many families in rural communities where water was reported flowing through the upper stories of farm homes.

Business buildings at Hawarden were collapsing from the flood tide, the water today reaching a depth of 4 to 8 feet. In the Floyd river valley, at Merrill, water reached the 14 foot stage, the highest in 35 years. No attempt to estimate the damage has been made, but the total is expected to run into millions of dollars.

The flood water descended last night, after cloudbursts in that part of the states. The Sioux river at Akron rose 15 feet in 12 hours. Rainfall of 7.03 inches was recorded at Sheldon and 2.55 inches at Merrill.

Water rose so rapidly that families and workmen had little chance to flee to safety. Trainmen at Sheldon last night worked half an hour in a terrific rainstorm to save Engineer Ole Tiegum from drowning after he was thrown into a pool of water when freight train number 17 on the Illinois Central was derailed on tracks undermined by the torrent. Tiegum, who lives at St. James, Minn., was caught by his foot under the engine and was barely able to keep his head above water.

Railroad service north of Sioux City was at a standstill today, but it was hoped to have some lines reopened by Sunday. The Illinois Central track for 1,200 feet was washed away east of Merrill. The Northwestern's 125-foot trestle south of Hawarden was carried away, and other railroads reported that the flood had twisted bridges from their foundations, torn away culverts, and washed out great lengths of track.

Other towns in the flood area are Dalton, Lemars, Hull, Akron, Sheldon, Matlock, Merrill and Cherokee. The flood area extended two miles wide for about twenty miles south of Hawarden.

Reaches Sioux City.

The flood waters were sweeping into the outskirts of Sioux City tonight.

Fearing a flood disaster, residents of the lowlands were moving their valuables and families to places of safety.

Police detachments armed with ropes, ladders and rowboats were stationed at danger points ready to offer assistance in case serious emergency should arise.

Illinois Peril Fades.

Beardstown, Ill., Sept. 18.—(AP)—The Illinois river, which has caused anxiety and fear of inundation here for three days, ceased its upward surge today and the threatened inundation of the city is believed to have been averted.

Rising only a small fraction of an inch during the entire day, the river was passive and more than 100 men working on the mile long levee were allowed to ease up on their labors of watching and sandbagging the barrier.

Wisconsin Town Menaced.

Ashland, Wis., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Danger threatened Odanah, a town of 1,200 inhabitants, from another direction tonight as the Bad river continued to rise.

Earlier in the day and Friday night the town was threatened by the White river, which joins the Bad river at Odanah. By dynamiting the White river dam the danger was alleviated.

Plans were being made to take the inhabitants out of Odanah tonight if weather conditions and the rising waters warrant. Five crews struggled against the flood water today, while during the night a special train left here with help and returned with about 150 residents of Odanah.

21 YANKS, PENNED BY CHINESE ARMY, FACE STARVATION

SHANGHAI, Sept., 18.—(AP)—Starvation threatens twenty-one Americans and five Europeans hemmed in with the Chinese populace of Wuchang by the besieging armies of the bolshevik Cantonese government.

Two weeks' bombardment and assault having failed to wrest the city from its northern army defenders, the Cantonese have blockaded it to starve it into submission.

Unless relief comes within one week, it is believed Wuchang must fall. Marshal Sun Chuan-fang, ruler of eastern China, may be able to push troops past the Cantonese forces 150 miles down the Yangtze river from Wuchang. He has entered into an alliance with Marshal Wu Pei-fu, central China leader, whose troops are defending Wuchang. Or it is barely possible that Wu Pei-fu himself may bring aid. Forced out of Hankow, across the Yangtze from Wuchang, Wu is receiving reinforcements at his headquarters, seventy miles north.

GRILL RONGETTI OVER OPERATION FATAL TO BOY

Insists He and Not Rein Performed It.

Dr. Amante Rongetti, proprietor of the Ashland Boulevard hospital, and his nurse, Margaret Matthews, appeared before S. L. Antonow, assistant director of the department of registration and education, yesterday to tell their versions of the operation on Joseph Prestianni, which Joseph J. Rein, an unlicensed practitioner, is alleged to have performed on July 6, resulting in the boy's death. The pair were accompanied by Z. A. Kadow, attorney for both Rongetti and Rein.

Rongetti refused repeatedly to admit that Rein did the operating in the Prestianni case. Mr. Antonow, however, confronted him with the state's evidence showing that Rongetti was not at the hospital during the operation and neither had he made an examination of the boy on his entrance to the hospital the night before. Rongetti persisted in his statement that he performed the operation.

Same Attorney for Both.

In spite of the fact that Rongetti filed a suit for $100,000 against Rein on Friday for damage done to the business of the hospital because of the exposé of Rein, he insisted that Kadow be retained as his attorney as well as Rein's. Mr. Antonow told Rongetti that his good faith was questioned by the department because of his apparent association with Rein. John W. Follmer, chief inspector for the department, yesterday also said he had discovered that Rein had changed his name from Joseph J. Haack to Rein.

Rongetti claimed that he accepted Rein as his chief of staff because he believed him a licensed physician and surgeon. He was not able to explain to Mr. Antonow, however, why Rein should have inspired this confidence.

"He would run away every time there was an operation," Rongetti said of his chief of staff.

In Charge of Liquor.

Rongetti admitted that Rein had charge of the hospital liquor records, but said he never saw him dispense liquor. He also disclaimed knowledge of Rein's bickerings with the Prestianni parents for a $500 fee before the operation was performed.

Rongetti said that he omitted to give his customary lecture to the student nurses during the Prestianni operation, because it was an emergency case. However, he did not explain to Mr. Antonow why the operation was not performed the night before if there was such immediate danger. Neither did he tell why it was delayed for six hours in the morning.

He could not explain, he said, why Rein announced to Mr. Prestianni at 10 o'clock in the morning that the boy had just died when hospital records show that he did not expire till after twelve.

Was Official of Towns.

Further investigations of Rein by the inspectors showed that he was health commissioner for River Grove, Elmwood Park, and Franklin Park.

William Spillard of the federal narcotic squad, searched for Rein in the afternoon on the charge of violating the Harrison drug act. He will be taken to the federal building if found and remain in jail over the week end. One of the most flagrant violations was reported by the narcotic squad to be a prescription for a teaspoonful of cocaine and morphine every hour, made out and signed by Rein.

The next step, Mr. Antonow announced yesterday, would be an autopsy on the body of young Prestianni. Mr. Antonow said that if it is found that the mastoidal infection did not exist and that the operation was unnecessary, that Rongetti might change his version of who performed the operation.

ABBE GIVES OLD CHATEAU FOR U. S. GIRL SINGERS

(Copyright, 1926, by the New York Times Co.)

PARIS, Sept. 18.—A token of admiration for America, to whose troops he ministered during the war, Abbé Loubiere, priest of the Sacred Heart church on the summit of Montmartre, has given his only earthly property, a fifteenth century chateau in the south of France, to be used as a school for American singers.

Down in the Aveyron department, the home of Emma Calvé, there is to be founded a school to which American girls of moderate means can come to study.

"For the last four years," Abbé Loubiere said today, "I had been wondering what I would do with the chateau, which is not of any use to me. It is a big building, with two massive towers built for defense in the days of the Saracens and religious wars. It has been besieged and has resisted attack. Some time ago I had a chance to sell it to a cinema firm, which wished to make a realistic film in which the chateau was to be partly burned. I did not want that and so decided to give it to some charitable work or for the encouragement of art, but I did not know exactly how to go about it."

An American singer who visited him one day to have a rosary blessed suggested the singing school, which he has adopted. The Abbé Loubiere has long desired to visit America.

ARCHE PRESIDENT FIGHTS OUSTER; BOARD BACKS HER

Mrs. Headburg's Expulsion Called Illegal.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.

Mrs. Albion L. Headburg maintained yesterday that she was still the lawful president of the Arché club, an organization prominent for 38 years in the annals of Chicago's women's clubs. She characterized the action of the special meeting Friday, at which less than 100 of the club's 600 members voted her out of the presidency and of membership, as "illegal and the vote work of disgruntled candidates."

Ten of Mrs. Headburg's twelve board members assembled at her home, 5007 Dorchester avenue, within an hour after her return from New York yesterday, unanimously passed the following resolution, directed specifically at the Friday meeting:

"Resolved—That according to the by-laws of the Arché club, any meetings held in the name of the Arché club are illegal unless called in the manner specified in Article 10, section 4, in the by-laws of the Arché club."

Vice Presidents Make Motion.

Strangely enough, the woman who made this motion was Mrs. W. Montgomery Kelly, first vice president and the woman to whom Mrs. Headburg's presidential gavel would go should the latter vote be held valid. Mrs. Thomas J. Scott, second vice president, seconded the motion.

Following is the section to which the resolution refers:

"Special meetings of the club may be held at any time upon a resolution of the board of directors, and on not less than three days' notice, stating the time, place, and general object of the meeting."

But there is also a section 3 to article 10, and it is upon this paragraph that the proponents of the expulsion resolution rest their case:

"Fifty members shall constitute a quorum at all meetings of the club where business is transacted."

Both Sides Consult Attorneys.

The committee of investigation, which acted prior to the special meeting Friday, point out that notices of the meeting were sent to the entire membership and to the board, that 48 more than the necessary quorum of 50 were present, and that more than the necessary two-thirds vote was cast in favor of the move to oust Mrs. Headburg from the presidency.

Mrs. Headburg's friends agree that it is a quorum, but maintain that those 50 must be gathered legally by a summons of either the president or the board of directors.

Both sides, for it is now fast becoming a question of sides, have consulted attorneys. Mrs. Clarence N. Goodwin, past president of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs, and now the parliamentarian for the Arché club, said yesterday that she had refused to attend any of the five meetings held by the "insurgents," for so the board calls them, because she believed them illegal.

But Mrs. Sanderson, of the committee of five, declared last night that Mrs. Goodwin, at the club's last social meeting of last spring, had made this statement to three of the members:

"O, don't do anything about things now. If you feel that you must, the proper way is to have a special meeting at the request of at least 50."

Mrs. Sanderson, while declining to give the names of the three at present, said they would testify to it, if court action developed.

Denies Accusing Treasurer.

Mrs. Headburg's second point of contradiction was a personal, not a legal one.

"I deny absolutely," said Mrs. Headburg, "that I ever accused Mrs. William A. Thirlwall, the treasurer, of any money discrepancy. She kept her treasury books in such confusion that her own husband said it would take a Philadelphia lawyer to straighten them out.

"So, at that annual business meeting last March, when I discovered that she had made a mistake in her way of recording $2,000, which had been allocated to a sinking fund, I, in order to help her, asked where the entry was."

The third point considered by Mrs. Headburg was the charge at the special meeting that she was keeping Mrs. Thirlwall's books.

"As a matter of fact," asserted Mrs. Headburg, "Mrs. Thirlwall has all the canceled checks, the books and records, except that one cash book. I had it one day. But it is Mrs. Thirlwall who is holding up our finances. By not turning over the books to the new treasurer, Mrs. Charles Neal, she is causing the club to lose credit.

"Checks made out last February to the Art Institute and the Allied Arts association have not yet been sent."

Mrs. David MacLean, president of the second district of the Federation of Women's clubs, the district in which the Arché club is located, was present at yesterday's board meeting.

"Our district," said Mrs. MacLean, "has not yet received word from this group who voted Friday. Until we do I cannot comment on that action. But I can say that we all have great confidence in Mrs. Headburg. She has done great things for the restoration of the Fine Arts building; she is president of the South Side Artists' association, with a membership of 7,000; she is a widely known civic leader and a tireless worker. Until we have positive proof of anything she has done, we shall continue to hold her in that high regard."

Others attending the meeting at Mrs. Headburg's home were Mrs. C. I. Alward, Mrs. Charles A. Neal, Mrs. James A. Ostrom, Mrs. Willis Graham, Mrs. Archibald Corken, Mrs. Guy D. Child, Mrs. George E. Cole, Mrs. William L. Simonton, Mrs. Charles Goodwin, Mrs. Frank A. Dow, and Mrs John S. Maurer.

The real test of the various resolutions will come Oct. 1, when the club inaugurates its year's work with a reception to Mrs. Walter S. Seymour, president of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs, and a member of the Arché club, and to Mrs. David MacLean, president of the second district.

ENGINEER SMITH OF C. & N. W. PUT IN COUNTY JAIL

Louis J. Smith, engineer of the train which caused the fatal smashup on the Chicago and North Western railway Sept. 6, was put in the county jail yesterday to await action by the grand jury. Smith was ordered held by a coroner's jury Friday on five charges of manslaughter.

Despite the fact that Smith has been a railroad engineer for years and has no criminal record, the police insisted that he be put through the regular routine of being taken to the bureau of identification for photographing and finger prints. Because of this he was not confined in the jail until late yesterday afternoon.

Unless bond is supplied for Smith, he will have to wait in jail for probably a month. The grand jury will not reach his case for consideration until the next term of court, according to Assistant State's Attorney F. Leroy Fairbank.

Vincent McErlane and Charles George, arrested Friday in front of the Commonwealth hotel, Diversey parkway and Pine Grove avenue, were arraigned yesterday and granted a continuance until Oct. 5, on charges of carrying concealed weapons. Judge J. L. McCarthy released them on bonds of $1,000 each.

56 "Peaches," When Found, Are to Share in $20,000

Twenty thousand dollars for peaches!

These peaches are somewhere in the states of Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, and Wisconsin. THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE has started a search for them. To the most marvelous peach of all, when she is found, will be paid $10,000.

Who is this peach? Where is she?

She may be a stenographer, a clerk, a nurse, a home girl, a school girl, a factory girl. She may live next door.

There will be fifty-six winners of prizes when THE TRIBUNE search comes to a close. This means that the friends of every girl thought worthy of consideration in the search should see that she receives a nomination. The search will be conducted by the aid of photographs, and now is the time to make entries. It costs nothing to enter a nominee for the prizes.

No Professional Beauties.

The offer of the $20,000 is open to every girl—unmarried or widow—residing anywhere in the states of Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan and Wisconsin, excepting professional beauties such as stage girls or artist's models and excepting employés of THE TRIBUNE and members of their families.

A peach may be nominated by any relative or friend. To nominate a peach, simply send in her name and address. A nomination coupon will be found elsewhere in this issue of THE TRIBUNE. Send a photograph of your peach nominee if you can. Otherwise THE TRIBUNE will endeavor to obtain one by writing your nominee direct.

Any girl wishing to enter this peach search personally may send in her photograph. Any kind of a photograph will do—a small snapshot, a cabinet photo, or a postcard picture.

First, there will be the grand prize of $10,000, which will be paid to the most marvelous peach in Chicago and the states of Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, and Wisconsin.

But the distribution of prizes will by no means end with the grand prize. There are fifty-five other chances. There are the sectional prizes.

Chicago girls, for instance, aside from their chance at the grand prize, will have ten other possibilities. To the most marvelous peach in Chicago will be awarded $1,000; to the second Chicago peach, $250; to the third Chicago peach, $100; to the next seven Chicago peaches, $50 each.

Illinois girls, outside of Chicago, also have ten prizes, aside from the grand prize, to be taken into consideration. To the most marvelous peach in Illinois, outside of Chicago, goes $1,000; to the second Illinois peach, outside of Chicago, $250; to the third Illinois peach, outside of Chicago $100; to the next seven Illinois peaches, outside of Chicago, $50 each.

Indiana girls have their chance at the grand prize and the state has prizes of its own. The most marvelous peach in Indiana will be warded $1,000; the second Indiana peach, $250; the third Indiana peach, $100; the next six Indiana peaches, $50 each.

$1,650 to Iowa Beauties.

Aside from their chance at the grand prize, Iowa girls—at least nine of them—will share $1,650. To the most marvelous peach in Iowa goes $1,000; to the second Iowa peach, $250; to the third Iowa peach, $100; to the next six Iowa peaches, $50 each.

At least nine girls in Michigan will win prizes, and one of them may win the grand prize. To the most marvelous peach in Michigan will be awarded $1,000; to the second Michigan peach, $250; to the third Michigan peach, $100; to the next six Michigan peaches, $50 each.

Wisconsin is sure to furnish nine winners. Aside from their chance at the grand prize, Wisconsin girls—nine of them—will share in the state awards. One thousand dollars will be given to the most marvelous peach in Wisconsin; $250 to the second peach; $100 to the third peach, and the next six Wisconsin peaches will receive $50 each.

Nominations Important.

But the thing to do at this time is to see that your peach is nominated. All entries should be addressed "Peaches," THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Postoffice Box 1539, Chicago, Ill. THE TRIBUNE cannot be responsible for photographs, but will do its best to return photos if they are accompanied by sufficient return postage.

Peaches should be nominated at once. No entries will be accepted after midnight, Dec. 7.

Judges will be three well known and reputable artists and writers.

GEORGE BEBAN

Enthusiastic About His Colonial Glasses

George Beban, the famous Italian impersonator, was fitted with a pair of the popular Schulte Colonial Glasses during his visit to Chicago last month. The Schulte Optical Co. received a very interesting letter from him last week, the text of the letter, which follows, will interest every Chicagoan—read it:

Gentlemen:
I will be in Chicago next week to appear personally with my latest feature, "Loves of Ricardo," and I certainly intend to get another pair of your Colonial glasses as a safeguard in case I should lose the pair you fitted for me on my way East.
These Colonial shaped glasses have created more favorable comment than anything I have ever worn; my friends and associates all admire their attractive, neat appearance and inquired where I got them, and I was proud to tell them at Schulte's in Chicago. Please arrange an appointment for me next Tuesday afternoon for another fitting.
Very sincerely yours,
George Beban

"I don't see why you advertise" says one society leader

"Long before I came to live here, I knew of Hotel Sovereign. I had given dinner dances there and had been a guest at social functions. When I gave up housekeeping and its cares, and moved to Hotel Sovereign, I came without solicitation or the urge of an advertisement. The only advertising that ever influenced me or my many friends who make their homes here, was the recognized Sovereign prestige and the recommendation of one person to another.

"Never in my experience has any institution been as well liked and generally approved as Hotel Sovereign. Your cuisine, your service, the accommodations you offer, equal anything I have known in this country or abroad. Everybody knows it. I don't see why you advertise!"

WHY? Sovereign is more than a hotel. It is an institution. With traditions, and policies, and international recognition. And like all progressive institutions we believe in keeping our name before the public.

Further, it is but natural that each season should bring slight changes in our roster of guests. Therefore, from time to time other desirable guests must be informed that there are a few apartments, suites or rooms available.

We advertise, that those who appreciate the art of living ... and a better hotel-home ... will visit hotel Sovereign to see what we offer, before they look elsewhere; or presume that there are no accommodations here.

And yet despite its evident luxury, Sovereign rentals are surprisingly low.

Single rooms—spacious—furnished in good taste, with every nicety of appointment—$90 per month and up. Suites—some with private dining room and kitchen—with beautiful two-room suites as low as $150 per month.

Among other unusual features is the 60-foot white-tiled swimming pool—free to resident guests. Turkish Baths for ladies exclusively. One of America's famous restaurants, with the atmosphere of a smart European cafe, with a fine cuisine—a la carte or table d'hote. The Salle Royale, the Prince of Wales Room and other private dining rooms for large or small social gatherings, weddings, banquets, luncheons.

With polite, dignified, unobtrusive service—genuine Sovereign service—you will find greater happiness here. Visit us, then decide.

"For a stay of a day ... or a home for the year Hotel Sovereign offers more than any other hotel"

BIG ARMY BLIMP DODGES CHICAGO TO AVOID STORMS

RS-1 Ordered to Station Near Belleville, Ill.

Brewing thunder and rain storms, forecast yesterday, caused air service officials to cut Chicago out of the scheduled flight of the dirigible RS-1 and to send that big bag, after a brief visit to Selfridge field and Detroit, flying back to its moorings at Scott field, near Belleville, Ill.

Weather officials predicted possible violent thunderstorms over the Sixth corps area between midnight and sunrise, and it was this forecast that caused Col. C. B. Hall, chief of the area air force, to communicate with Col. John A. Paegelow, commander of the RS-1, and advise an immediate and direct return from Detroit to Belleville early yesterday afternoon.

Expects Little Danger.

The RS-1 took to the air at Selfridge field at 2:20 o'clock in the afternoon. It was to be due at Scott field, near Belleville, Ill., around midnight. According to Col. Hall, there was little danger in the return flight, for it was calculated to beat the storms.

"We believe there is no danger because we took forehanded action to avoid it," Col. Hall said. "We were advised the storms would be due in Chicago around midnight and probably at Detroit and St. Louis at sunrise. The RS-1 is due near midnight at Scott Field, which is 14 or 15 miles from St. Louis.

"It was a mistake to have tried to combine the trip to Detroit and Chicago in one cruise," Col. Hall continued, adding that he would endeavor soon to have the big bag brought here soon.

Planned Celebration Here.

It had been planned to land the RS-1 on the Municipal field here sometime this afternoon and to take aloft for a time a group of officials, including Vice President Charles G. Dawes, Mayor Dever, and others.

The crew of the RS-1 numbers 18 officers and men. During its brief stay in Michigan it flew over the business sections of Detroit. Earlier it had hovered for more than two hours in a dense fog.

So confident was Col. Hall that there was no danger, he said, that the RS-1, capable of doing 75 miles an hour or more, was flying only about 40 to 45, on the return to Scott Field. It was flying the slower rate, he added, because of recent repairs to its nose.

2 Firemen Killed, 4 Hurt in Fighting Bakery Fire

BAD WEATHER AGAIN DELAYS ATTEMPT TO FLY OVER ATLANTIC

New York, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Definite postponement until Tuesday of the hop-off of the Sikorsky biplane S-35 for a nonstop flight from New York to Paris was announced this afternoon.

Capt. Rene Fonck, commander, and Lieut. Lawrence William Curtin, U. S. N., the navigator, said it was likely the start could not be made until even later than Tuesday on account of weather.

A report from the bureau of aeronautics in Washington this afternoon said conditions, on the whole, were unfavorable and it would require two or three days for the storm area to clear, with conditions beyond that period remaining uncertain, due to the advance of a new tropical hurricane.

INFANTRY STILL SUPREME, SHAM BATTLES PROVE

ALDERSHOT, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Predictions that the next war will be almost entirely in the air were not borne out by the recent British army maneuvers in Hampshire. The effectiveness of infantry above all other arms was proved to the satisfaction of most military experts.

Rain and fogs upset the plans of the air force in the maneuvers as they often do in real warfare, and the infantry had to carry on while the flyers waited for conditions which would enable them to "destroy the enemy."

Many situations showed the necessity for more effective means of using infantry. Experts are suggesting small tanks which can be operated by two men to lead larger tanks into action.

MOFFETT VISIONS CHICAGO - PARIS AIR LEVIATHANS

Huge dirigible airships, three times the size of the wrecked Shenandoah, sailing direct from Chicago to Berlin or Paris in sixty hours' flying time, were predicted by Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, head of the aviation section of the navy, during a few hours' stopover here yesterday, en route to the Pacific coast.

The development of commercial aviation will bring that spectacle about, said Admiral Moffet, a strong advocate of the rigid airship. Time, he believes, will see the three functions of commercial service, the carrying of passengers, mail, and express, in active operation on one ship.

Those observations and the prediction that the United States Naval Training station at Great Lakes, Ill., soon may have a naval landing field, were expressed by the wartime commander of that station at the offices of the American Citizenship foundation, an organization for the promotion of national sentiment among young men, in the Bell building.

Admiral Moffett is director general of the organization, and spent several hours conferring with its president, Joseph B. Strauss, before leaving for San Francisco. He will spend two weeks cruising with the Pacific fleet in their aviation maneuvers up the coast to Seattle.

Returning east he will stop here for a few days to look over sites for the proposed landing field at Great Lakes. At present a tract north of the station proper, where Camp John Paul Jones stood during the training period, is most prominently considered.

For Grant Park Landing Field.

The proposed landing field for air mail planes on an island just east of the Field museum was given the admiral's strong approval. "The closer a field is to the business district, the more valuable it becomes," he said.

Discussing plans for navy planes to use that as a mooring point for naval planes during the coming Army-Navy football game, Admiral Moffett saw little chance of sea planes being flown here because of the long distances over land they must fly to reach this region. "The Army has it on us in that respect," he said, "they can fly here in a few hours, while our planes would necessarily have to follow water lanes on their route west."

Mundelein to Officiate at St. Basil's Dedication

Cardinal Mundelein will officiate at 10 o'clock next Sunday morning at the dedication of the new St. Basil's church at Garfield boulevard and Honore street. A procession in honor of the cardinal will form at Racine avenue and Garfield boulevard, and will include members of the Holy Name society and other Catholic organizations in a march to the church. Art lovers of Chicago are manifesting great interest in the recently completed church, which is in the Byzantine style of architecture. The main dome over the transept follows the outstanding feature of Saint Sophia in Constantinople, which is designated as the original example of this architecture.

testations of faith in the woman preacher the giant gathering of Wednesday night, when Mrs. McPherson's followers became so vocally and physically faithful that a riot call was needed to quiet them and prevent injury to those caught in the crush.

Counsel today got a stay of the arrest of Mrs. Lorraine Wiseman, who received the latest inquiry which resulted in the warrants when she told the district attorney that Mrs. Kennedy and Mrs. McPherson promised to pay her $5,000 to impersonate a "nonexistent double" of Mrs. McPherson. This double was to explain the presence in a cottage at Carmel-by-the-Sea of a woman resembling Mrs. McPherson and a man resembling Ormiston during part of the six weeks the evangelist was supposed to be the captive of kidnapers in Mexico.

When Mrs. Wiseman promised to appear as a witness for the state the prosecutor agreed to delay her arraignment until Sept. 27.

R. R. Woolley, Mrs. McPherson's former chief counsel, retired from the case today. He is to be called as a witness. Mrs. Wiseman charges that Woolley gave her instructions concerning the campaign in which she was expected to "vindicate" Mrs. McPherson.

Mr. Keyes today issued the following statement regarding the charge he is "persecuting" Mrs. McPherson:

"Mrs. McPherson is not and never has been made a victim of persecution in so far as the law enforcement agencies of this city and county are concerned. Every act of my office concerning her kidnaping story was weighed carefully and thoughtfully. We went over every shred of evidence before issuing complaints against Mrs. McPherson and her mother in order that we would not be guilty of hasty and ill-considered conclusion.

"Mrs. McPherson returned home after a month's absence with a story that she was kidnaped and held a prisoner in a shack by a 'disciple' 'Rose' we now know to be purely mythical. She never brought forward an iota of evidence to back her sensational charging, but went instead to the county grand jury and attempted to make that body a plaything by asking indictments for kidnapers that did not exist.

Is Sorry for Aimee.

"This office has its duty to perform and must do it regardless of whom it hurt.

"I am sorry for Mrs. McPherson, but that cannot influence my sworn duty."

Recent transfer of a $25,000 piece of property from Mrs. McPherson to her mother was revealed. It was a 50 foot lot near the ocean in Venice. Transfer of the entire Angelus Temple property also was revealed. The property was deeded by Mrs. McPherson and Mrs. Kennedy to the Ascension Park Evangelistic association, an evangelistic association has Mrs. Kennedy's house records disclosed. The Rose and Mrs. McPherson as two of its directors.

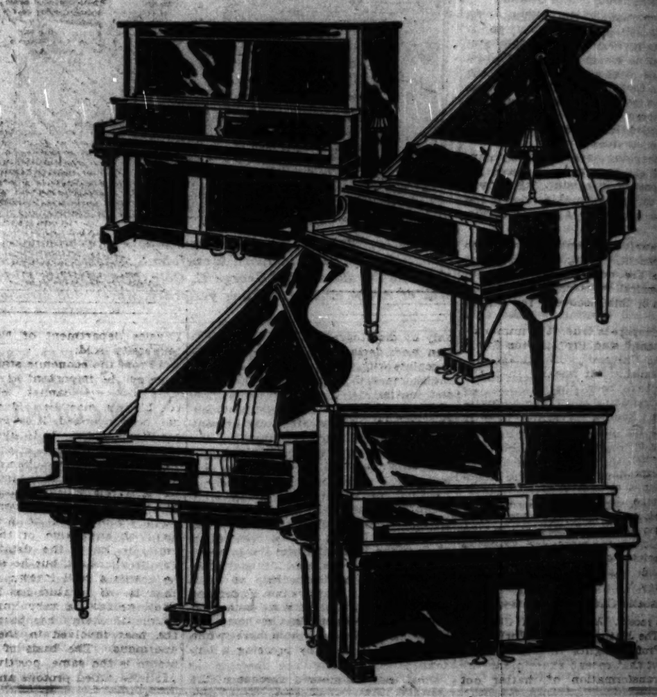
Wonderful Values in LYON & HEALY'S Basement Store



Double All Sales Records

HERE you will find the greatest values in worth-while pianos. Quality and price. One week ago the opening of the Basement Store was announced. A great number of piano buyers visited it. They came expecting much—pianos of excellent tone and construction, wide selections, low prices, convenient terms. They found more than they expected. They were surprised. Such values!

Already therefore a large number of good pianos purchased in the Basement Store are in Chicago homes—even though this new store—the first of its kind in the world—is but a few days old.

Remember that though the Basement Piano Store is new, it is now an integral part of the Lyon & Healy organization—an organization Chicago has known for 62 years. Every piano sold in it possesses the unqualified Lyon & Healy guarantee. All pianos, new or used, represent unrivaled values—at prices the very lowest at which such good, home-worthy pianos [the only kind sold here] can possibly be offered.

Come expecting a remarkable bargain. You will get it. Tomorrow see how easy it is to own a piano backed and guaranteed by Lyon & Healy. The new Basement Piano Store is easily reached—the stairway is just inside the Wabash Avenue Entrance.

The FINAL WEEK of the Annual SEPTEMBER SALE of Used Pianos and Player Pianos

This is the second and final week of the famous annual September Sale, conducted this year for the first time in the new Basement Piano Store. Here you are offered a remarkable opportunity to buy pianos at bargain prices.

In this great sale of the year Lyon & Healy offer the pianos that have been taken from Chicago's finest homes as part payment for Steinways, Lyon & Healys, Duo-Arts and other excellent pianos.

It is important to recognize that there is a great difference in the quality of used pianos. The character of the home from which a used piano comes and the care it has been given in that home are vital factors. Inasmuch as Lyon & Healy has enjoyed for more than 62 years the patronage of Chicago's most prominent homes, you are assured of an instrument of high musical worth, in excellent playing condition.

When you think of the wonderful care that has been given these pianos in these fine Chicago homes ever since the instruments were new, you realize that a used piano bought at Lyon & Healy's in the new Basement Store, is a far better permanent investment than a new piano of inferior grade.

You will find a great number of instruments, all plainly price-marked, at bargain prices.

MAN-MADE ATOM MAY RUN WORLD, SCIENTISTS SAY

Berlin Discovery Called an Epochal Event.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

The synthetic atom, the latest advance in chemical research announced in Germany two days ago, has excited the interest of Chicago scientists, who declare that if the report is authenticated it will be one of the most important theoretical discoveries of the century and may open the way to the release of energy stores which will make our present power sources insignificant.

Profs. Paneth and Peters of Berlin have announced to the German Chemical society that they have succeeded in making helium from hydrogen. As both of these gases have been listed heretofore among the unchangeable elements, the discovery brings out new evidence of the fundamental unity of all matter.

Hunting Supply of Helium.

The purpose of the experiments, according to Berlin dispatches, was to supply the world with the noninflammable helium gas, the bulk of which now comes from one small well in America. The professors declare that they know well that the myth that gold had been made from quicksilver, which startled the world two years ago, will make scientists doubt the possibility of changing one element into another. Their system, they have reported, consists in raising the atomic number instead of breaking down the atom, and they claim a practical success.

While awaiting scientific reports on the experiment, Chicago chemists and physicists are not inclined to doubt it, as chemical research has been on the verge of this discovery for a long time.

"If the report is true, it is immensely important," said Prof. Julius Stieglitz of the University of Chicago, famous chemist. "It means that the elements have been changed for the first time, releasing enormous amounts of energy. Such a release of energy, controlled for practical uses, would make our present sources of power—water, electricity, etc.—insignificant.

"The experiment would involve the building up of elements from the foundation stone, hydrogen. If actually performed, it is one of the most important discoveries mankind has ever known. It serves, moreover, to prove certain points of the Einstein theory, which holds that mass is convertible into energy."

Synthetic Changes Forecast.

In the recent University of Chicago book, "The Nature of the World and Man," Prof. Stieglitz in his chapter points out that recent experiments in China's transformation of matter not only by disintegration but by aggregation and declares that this problem is replete with possibilities of the greatest moment in our control of energy and matter.

Prof. Harvey Brace Lemon, in his chapter on atomic structure, states that "recently there are indications that nitrogen has been disintegrated, the results of the transmutation being hydrogen, helium, and neon.

"The contemplation of what use civilization may make of such stores of energy as may be placed in its hands by the results of the soaring ambitions of the sons of Prometheus should make us pause and consider," he continues, "whether in other fields of human activity we have progressed far enough to be intrusted with such powers." He intimates that we may not know how to use our leisure when everything is done by pressing a button.

Prof. Bartholomew J. Spence of the physics department of Northwestern university said:

"From the economic standpoint this may not be important at the present time, but we cannot tell how far reaching it may be. If one element has been changed, it is probable that another will be. It is likely to liberate enormous sources of energy, which we may need in that far future when the coal supply disappears."

Prof. William Draper Harkins, physical chemist at the University of Chicago, would make no positive statement on the value of the discovery until he knew the details of Prof. Paneth's method, but he said that Paneth was a well known and reliable chemist. If an atom has been synthesized, he said, a very important new source of energy has been found, for the heat involved in the process is enormous. The basis of all the elements is the same, positively charged particles called protons and negatively charged electrons, scientists say. The differences in the elements are in the number and arrangement of the protons and electrons within the atom. There is rythm and order here comparable only with the solar systems.

Firemen Who Saved Church Will Be Honored Today

In order to express publicly the appreciation of the congregation for the efforts of the firemen, insurance patrolmen and workmen who extinguished flames that threatened to destroy the Third Presbyterian church last June 8, a special committee has invited these men to attend the first services in the rebuilt church, which will be held this morning at Ashland boulevard and Ogden avenue. Fire Chief Arthur F. Seyferlich will attend and make a brief address. Dr. Wilbur O. Carrier, a former pastor, will preach the sermon.

DICTATOR FACES NEW REVOLT BY SPANISH ARMY

Censored Reports Call Infantry Restless.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 17.—According to reports received in Paris, the situation in Spain is very grave. Although a strict censorship has been imposed, information comes through the Spanish border which indicates the directorate of Primo de Rivera has but a short lease on life. It is reported, but not confirmed, that infantry regiments which were loyal to Dictator de Rivera during the recent trouble with the artillery officers' smouldering revolt have been ordered to keep to their barracks.

Hold Council of State.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Sept. 17.—Dictator Primo de Rivera and other members of the cabinet took the train tonight for San Sebastian, where tomorrow and Monday they will hold a council of state, with King Alfonso presiding. Momentous questions which may decide the future fate of the régime will be decided.

Hint King May Abdicate.

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Sept. 18.—[Copyright, 1926, by United Press.]—The political situation in Spain was acute tonight. The coming week will be vital, and appeared tonight as likely to determine the fate of Premier Primo de Rivera's dictatorship or King Alfonso's future.

Attention in Madrid tonight centered on the meeting of the cabinet, scheduled for Monday morning at San Sebastian, at which it is planned to effectuate the decree proclaiming the new limited parliament.

King Alfonso's abdication might result from the impending week's events, according to the opinion in Madrid tonight. In this connection, it was rumored that Alfonso might reside in the United States if he relinquished his throne.

6,989,043 Vote for De Rivera.

MADRID, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Official figures were given out today on the results of the recent plebiscite to determine the popularity of the Primo de Rivera régime. The total population of the country is given as 21,333,842, of which 13,195,838 persons are over 18, the qualified voting age in the plebiscite. The number of votes cast was 6,989,043.

[The above figures indicate that about half the eligible voters expressed approval of the Primo de Rivera government. The prime condition of the plebiscite was that all cast favored the government; disapproval was to be shown by remaining away from the polls.]

Boy, 17, Vanishes with Mother's $400 Savings

Chicago avenue police are searching for Francis Dontonakel, 17, who left home Friday with $400 belonging to his widowed mother, Gertrude. The police said the money had been saved by Mrs. Dontonakel to send to her mother, an invalid, in Minneapolis.

RADIO FAIR SALES ARE 100 MILLION; 220,000 ATTEND

New York, Sept. 18.—(AP)—The third annual radio world's fair, which opened at Madison Square Garden Monday, closed tonight with an attendance of 220,000 for the week and business transactions estimated at $100,000,000.

G. Clayton Irwin Jr., general manager, said the attendance broke all records for exhibitions. The fair cost $200,000 and the exhibits represented a value of more than $1,500,000, he said.

Mrs. Lotta Harrauff of Princeton, Ill., the queen of radio, was received this afternoon at the Biltmore hotel by Gov. Smith, to whom she presented a letter from Gov. Small. She will be the guest of honor at the dedication of the Illinois building at the sesquicentennial exposition in Philadelphia on Tuesday.

"Positive Agitation" Means 100% Efficiency

"Positive Agitation," as accomplished in the NEW HOOVER is beating—the time-tested requirement of thorough rug cleaning—reduced to an exact scientific process. Such beating, instead of being concentrated in a few violent strokes as with the carpet beater or broom, is modified by the HOOVER into a series of swiftly repeated taps. This is achieved by a totally new appliance—the exclusive and patented HOOVER Agitator. Suction lifts the rug from the floor and floats it on a cushion of air while the Agitator gently flutters out all the embedded grit as the strong suction draws all the dirt into the dust-tight bag.

Let Us Demonstrate This Marvelous Cleaner

IT BEATS While it Sweeps While it Cleans

Far Better Than the Previous "Beats"

Though you've rightly thought previous Hoovers were the best cleaners, you'll quickly see that The NEW and GREATER HOOVER is superior, due to the new principle of "Positive Agitation." By actual test, in the ordinary cleaning time, it beats dirt and sweeps up from carpetage an average of 131% more dirt. And the cleaner a carpet is cleaned with the NEW HOOVER the longer the carpet will last. It is virtually moth-proof, every part, including the new suction, requiring no oiling. Its exclusive dust-and-germ-proof bag is washable.

SPEEDING DRIVER KILLS AGED MAN; STEPS ON GAS

Six Otiher Deaths Make County Toll 587.

While police yesterday searched for the driver of an automobile which struck and killed Martin Hayden, 78 years old, 7326 Woodlawn avenue, at 74th street and South Chicago avenue, seven other deaths by automobiles were reported.

MARTIN HAYDEN.

The seven fatalities raised the Cook county toll for the year to 587.

Hayden was struck by an automobile while he was standing at 74th street and South Chicago avenue waiting for a street car to carry him to his work at the By-Products Coke company at 112th street and Torrence avenue. According to witnesses, the auto was going about sixty miles an hour and increased its speed in fleeing after it struck the aged man.

Taris Neidorf, 59 years old, 4920 North Avers avenue, died at the Austin hospital of injuries sustained on Thursday, when he was crushed between an automobile and a surface car that collided at 16th street and Clifton Park avenue.

Killed When Thrown from Truck.

Philip Warner, 65, 10018 Avenue N, a carpenter, was killed when thrown from a truck driven by George McCald of Downers Grove on West 59th street last night. McCald tried to pass another truck, when a street car struck him. Both trucks were wrecked and both McCald and Sam Marcella, 4249 Joliet road, Lyons, driver of the other truck, were held.

Joseph Rozanska, 60, owner of a rooming house at 1244 South Michigan avenue, was killed late in the afternoon when two automobiles collided at Wabansia avenue and Paulina street. Rozanska was struck by one of the cars, that driven by Paul Abraham, 5222 Melrose street, as he was crossing in their path.

T. P. Royce, 55, a farmer living near Naperville, Ill., died an hour after he was run over by a truck loaded with cattle on the Lincoln highway outside Chicago Heights. Royce was riding on the first of two trucks taking the cattle home from the Crown Point fair. He fell off and was run over by the second Dies After Crash Into Pole.

John Mockus Jr., 21 years old, 3848 South Francisco avenue, was killed early this morning when an automobile in which he was being rushed to a hospital after having been stabbed in a fight, crashed into an electric light pole at Ashland avenue and Taylor street. The machine belonged to Joseph Ryka, 1901 South Throop street, and was driven by Frank Zak, 1901 Blue Island avenue. As they passed the National hall at 18th street and Racine avenue they were asked to take Mockus to a hospital. With them were Joseph Kazda, 933 West 18th street, and an unidentified man. Both these were injured in the crash, the latter so seriously that physicians said he cannot live.

Taxi Driver Killed.

Michael Tuero, 24 years old, 1346 South Racine avenue, a Yellow cab driver, was fatally injured early this morning when his machine collided with a stolen car in which Stanley Serwatka, 16, 2742 Palmer street, and Kenneth Turner, 1130 North Mozart street, were driving at Jefferson and Harrison street. Tuero died a few hours later in the County hospital. Serwatka and Turner were held.

ROUTS BANDIT

Frances Burns, 16 years old, 4434 Maplewood avenue, schoolgirl who Friday night knocked a revolver from the hand of a robber who accosted her in front of her home, thus saving her $100 diamond ring and cash. The robber fled.

GUAM, ISLE OF DO NOTHING, EXISTS ON U. S. BOUNTY

Natives Work a Bit for Navy; Neglect Soil.

BY PARKE BROWN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1926: By The Chicago Tribune.]

AGANA, Guam, Sept. 18.—If Col. Carmi Thompson had carried out President Coolidge's original plan and come to Guam after completing his survey of the Philippine islands, he would have been forced to report the economic outlook of the tiny island a gloomy one.

The colonel dropped Guam and Samoa from his itinerary because of the difficulties of transportation, but for a solid week THE TRIBUNE correspondent, who accompanied Col. Thompson on his land and water trips in the Philippines, has been ransacking Guam for a ray of hope indicating a possibility of it becoming self supporting.

He has found life extremely pleasant, but has discovered no reason materially moderating the severe official verdict of Gov. G. L. Dyer in his report to the secretary of the navy in 1904 that it "has neither present nor prospective economic value."

Living on Navy Funds.

An organized scientific study of the situation would show Guam is living on navy funds. In addition to the strictly naval station the maintenance of the three main cities is advanced by naval aid and public works to an incalculable degree and almost the entire native population benefits from the pay rolls, either directly from receipts on the civilian rolls or by sharing in the expenditures of the American officers and enlisted men, many of whom have families here.

Guam in every sense of the word is a dependency. The much discussed paternalism really amounts to maternalism. The United States has mothered the islanders to such an extent that they really are slipping backward commercially instead of progressing, as experts say they would have under the harsher British, Japanese, or German colonial methods.

Rice Fields in Weeds.

Agriculture, particularly the raising of cocoanuts, is pronounced the one chance for Guam to pay its own way. But the production of copra, or dried cocoanut meat, universally is condemned as ridiculously low.

Wide stretches of former rice fields now are covered with lush grasses. Garden vegetables and fruits of untold varieties grow with almost no attention, but the naval establishment is forced ot maintain its own gardens in order to obtain a sufficient supply of such produce for its own needs.

From the standpoint of social advancement, the record is different. Education, public health, housing, and transportation is going ahead steadily, even if slowly. Guam is one of the cleanest and healthiest and most attractive islands in the Pacific, and taken as a whole conditions are better than on any island seen in the Philippine archipelago. But it is the opinion of impartial observers that this progress would cease and the many gains would be undone if the American influence, control and help were withdrawn.

Race Once Tall, Now Small.

The responsibility for the whole situation is placed not only on the general characteristics of the tropical peoples, but on the traits peculiar to the Chamorros, as the natives are called, as a result of their ethnological history during the last three and even four centuries.

They are of ancient Malay stock, since mixed with their Spanish conquerors, their Mexican and Filipino soldiery, English and American whalers, and Chinese and Japanese traders. Many of these influences followed the probable complete extinction of the pure blooded Chamorro during the Spanish conquest, which, coupled with epidemics, lowered the population of 40,000 or 50,000 to 4,000 half a century ago. Years of inbreeding brought further complications.

The native stature dropped from an extreme height to below average, and a concomitant mental retrogression left him minus not only racial unity but lacking in standards of thought and conduct.

Islander Lacks Initiative.

The apparent effect is a complete absence of initiative enterprise. The islander today, as a century ago, is satisfied with a little farm, raising enough to feed him and his family, living in town and walking back and forth to what he calls his ranch, no matter how small the plot of ground.

With this outlook on life, they do not see the necessity of raising crops, either for domestic or export use. They do not cultivate the coconanut groves, permitting the undergrowth to reduce tremendously the yield.

How Americans thoroughly intimate with the facts view the situation is shown by a paper read at a recent meeting of the Guam chamber of commerce by Lieut. N. A. Disbrow, naval officer, who is controller and cashier of the famous Bank of Guam, the capital stock of which is owned by the naval government of the island, and which is phenomenally successful because there is no overhead expense, all of which is borne by the navy.

Supported Self Under Spain.

"During the year you imported approximately $650,000 worth of merchandise, and exports were valued at $80,000," Lieut. Disbrow said. "Suppose the federal government reduced its activities in Guam? How would you get money to maintain your present standard of living? Would you like to go back to the living conditions of fifty years ago? The merchants of Guam have on the books unpaid bills of $300,000. You are paying a yearly interest of $25,000 on unpaid bills. If this were divided, it would mean that each man, woman, and child would be in debt $20.

"When Guam was under Spanish rule you grew enough rice, coffee, cocoa, etc., to meet the requirements and had a balance for export, but today you import tons of these items. You have 600,000 cocoanut trees and produced in the last year 1,500 tons of copra. American Samoa, about one-fifth the size of Guam, produces a larger crop of superior quality than you."

Paul Boteler, agent for one of the biggest American trading concerns in the Pacific, said that while the only hope of the island lies in agriculture, it could not even feed itself, importing $150,000 worth of rice, wheat and flour last year. He said because of the antiquated methods, even working for the government for $1.04 a day is more profitable than farming.

The annual report of Gov. L. S. Shapley, captain, U. S. N., just completed, shows that Guam's imports for the year ending June 30 were $565,212, while exports totaled $105,026, with a balance of trade against the island of $460,185.

ORDERS PROBE OF CARAWAY CHARGE ON YANKS' GRAVES

PARIS, Sept. 18.—(U. P.)—Gen. J. W. Van Duyne, chief of the American graves registration service, has ordered a complete investigation of all graves, following charges by United States Senator T. H. Caraway that American soldiers' graves in France have been desecrated by Frenchmen.

"Senator Caraway's report interests us," Col. Van Duyne said. "This service wishes to state unqualifiedly, however, that no act of desecration at any grave in the six American military cemeteries which we care for has yet come to our notice.

"The cemeteries are permanently under the guard of tried and proven ex-service men from the American army. All of them fought in France during the war, and if any act of desecration had occurred we believe it would have been reported immediately. No such reports have been received

HOOVER PREDICTS BILLION A YEAR WATERWAY GAINS

Secretary, Here, Is Also an Airplane Optimist.

Reports on three matters of outstanding national importance—development of water resources in all its aspects, advance of commercial aviation, and increase in America's foreign trade—were crowded into a busy three hour stopover in Chicago yesterday by Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover.

Highlights in his latest report on a sizeable portion of the nation's business included these statements:

1 That development of the seven great national water projects, one of the greatest programs ever undertaken in American history, the realization of which is certain to come, will mean at least one billion dollars a year in economic value to the nation.

2 That the next six months will see a tremendous growth in commercial aviation, particularly in the far west, where Pacific coastal and Rocky mountain air lines will cut 32 hours off the transportation time between Chicago and Pacific coast points.

3 That we are the only combatant nation whose foreign trade is greater than it was before the war and that one of the great powers of Europe now has a delegation on the way to America to see how we did it. Our foreign trade is 42 per cent larger than it was in 1914.

Secretary to Go on Stump.

Secretary Hoover was on his return to Washington from a survey of the Columbia river basin water projects and a short vacation in California. He will take the stump in the Republican senatorial and congressional campaign, winding up on Nov. 2 in California, where he will vote.

"The Republican party has never undertaken anything greater than the development of the seven great national water resources for the improvement of transportation, drainage, reclamation and power," Secretary Hoover said.

Seven Projects Described.

He outlined the seven great projects as follows:

1. The Mississippi system and all of its branches, including the lakes to gulf waterway; a transportation, drainage and water power project.
2. The lakes to Atlantic seaway, for both transportation and drainage.
3. The Columbia basin projects, for reclamation, irrigation and power.
4. The California projects in the Sacramento and San Joachin valleys, for reclamation, transportation, water power, and flood control.
5. The Colorado river system, for flood control, reclamation and irrigation.
6. The intercoastal waterways.
7. The group of minor drainage projects, including the Cumberland, Tennessee, Rio Grande and Snake.

Projects Will Take 15 Years.

"If we started the development of all these projects today we couldn't complete them in 15 years," Secretary Hoover said. "It will mean eventually $1,000,000,000 a year in economic value to the nation.

"We can build a water transportation system of 25,000 miles. We have developed only about 7,000 miles up to modern standards. We have a potential horsepower of 55,000,000, of which we have developed about 11,000,000.

"The immediate problem for the Mississippi valley, of course, is the rivers and harbors bill now before the senate. I hope and think it will get through."

The next six months, Secretary Hoover, said, will see air lines established between Denver, Cheyenne, Los Angeles, San Francisco, and Puget Sound, and a rapid advance in commercial aviation in all parts of the country.

"Ten hours from Denver or Cheyenne to Los Angeles, San Francisco or Puget Sound means a net saving of 32 hours between Chicago and the Pacific coast," he said.

KELLOGG AWAITS WORD OF ATTACK ON ROME CONSUL

Asks Embassy to Report on Fascisti Outrage.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Immediately upon receipt of newspaper reports that Earl Brennan, United States consul at Rome had been beaten by Fascist militia, Secretary of State Kellogg today dispatched a cable to the American embassy at Rome asking for particulars.

Secretary Kellogg denied any previous knowledge of an attack on the American consul, which it is reported occurred on the same day an assassin hurled a bomb at Premier Mussolini.

Would Have Heard.

Other officials were of the opinion that the department certainly would have been informed if such an attack had been made.

No answer to the query sent by Secretary Kellogg had been received late tonight. A reply is expected Monday.

Should Warren D. Robbins, American chargé d'affaires at Rome, confirm the story of the attack, the matter undoubtedly will be brought to the attention of President Coolidge.

Dispatch from Paris.

The only information which state department officials had of the incident was gained through the CHICAGO TRIBUNE cable dispatch from Paris which appeared on the front page of the Washington Post this morning.

At the Italian embassy it was stated that no information had been received there regarding the incident.

HOME OF SLAIN FRANKS BOY IS SOLD 2D TIME

With its purchase yesterday by Harry Manaster, president of Manaster & Bros., packers, the former home of Jacob Franks at 5052 Ellis avenue, changed hands for the second time since it figured in the Loeb-Leopold case two years ago.

Shortly after his son, Robert, was murdered, Mr. Franks sold the big brick home to the late Joseph Trinz. Mr. Trinz, then head of the board of directors of Lubliner & Trinz, theaters, paid $60,000 for the place, and used it until his death on July 24.

Mr. Manaster bought it from the Joseph Trinz estate, it was learned yesterday, for $75,000. Mr. Manaster, who now lives with his wife and five children at 6917 Ogiesby avenue, said he will move into the former Franks home in the next few days.

CONGREGATIONS FILL SYNAGOGUES ON YOM KIPPUR

Yom Kippur, the day of atonement, most solemn feast in the ancient ritual of Judaism, was celebrated throughout Chicago yesterday by overflow congregations in many of the synagogues, and with capacity attendance at all.

Following a custom of several years, the Temple Sholem congregation held services at the Medinah temple, where Dr. Abram Hirschberg officiated, and which one of the largest crowds attended.

Attention of the Jewish world is now centered on the approaching feast of the tabernacles, or Succoth, which unlike the doleful Yom Kippur, manifests a spirit of rejoicing. Succoth will be observed on Thursday, Sept. 23.

CARAWAY BACKS UP ON HIS INTERVIEW ABOUT A. E. F. GRAVES

Washington, D. C., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Senator Caraway of Arkansas, in a cablegram tonight to the Paris post of the American Legion, denied personal knowledge of the reported desecration of the graves of American war dead in France.

The senator, who, in a pronouncement after a recent trip abroad, said such inscriptions as "To Hell with America" had been written on the white crosses that mark the graves, cabled that the "statement rested upon no personal information of mine."

"I was careful to make it plain that I had not been in that part of France," he added.

Senator Caraway quoted Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania, who is a member of the American battle monuments commission, as having told of the desecration of the monuments at a meting of the senate military affairs committee last spring.

STUDENT FLIVS AT LAKE FOREST ORDERED JUNKED

Students at Lake Forest college will be prohibited from driving or keeping automobiles during the present school year, it was announced yesterday.

"We don't feel that the cars cause any immorality," said President Herbert M. Moore. "But they are expensive, and many of them are unsightly. The ordinary student car is a dilapidated flivver painted in peculiar designs. We have a beautiful campus and don't want it cluttered up with junk."

President Moore said the disclosures of alleged undergraduate misbehavior by W. O. Cross was in no way responsible for the order, asserting that Lake Forest students were carefully supervised and well behaved.

NEXT OBSERVANCE OF CONSTITUTION DAY IS PLANNED

Plans for an extensive campaign in the city to further interest in national Constitution day, Sept. 17, were being made yesterday by Albert R. Brunker, trustee of the University of Pennsylvania, an executive of the local alumni.

"When next Sept. 17 comes," Brunker said, "the whole city will join in the observance, which is of as much importance as the Fourth of July or other patriotic holidays. We have just begun to awaken interest in the constitution. In another year we will have succeeded in making it a word to be respected, a word whose meaning will be known by all."

The observance in the schools and by a few organizations here of Constitution day was successful, Mr. Brunker said, but represented only a few persons.

Mr. Brunker will take an active part in furthering a campaign of education during the year in preparation for a city-wide observance next year. His alma mater, founded by Benjamin Franklin, one of the signers of the constitution, is sponsoring the movement throughout the country.

BOTH PARTIES IN N. Y. SET SNARE TO CATCH DRYS

Leaders Try to Shoulder Rum and Water.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 18.—[Special.]—The old political feat of carrying water on both shoulders was easy compared with the present day trick of carrying water on one shoulder and liquor on the other, which the leaders of the Republican and Democratic parties in New York are trying to get the hang of.

The Republicans have set out to nominate a ticket that will be wet, but not too wet, and to write a platform that will be dry, but not too dry. Up to date they have been unable to frame a ticket that will fill the bill or to hit upon a platform phraseology that will sound wet to the wets and dry to the drys.

They have succeeded, however, in splitting the party on the prohibition issue and presenting the Democrats with the most favorable prospect of victory in many years.

Leaders Counsel Caution.

But it is not the Republicans alone who are trying to perform this difficult political balancing feature. There are many Democratic leaders who are counseling caution on the platform declaration on prohibition which the Democratic state convention is to write the last week of this month.

But now that Al Smith is believed by his followers to have a gilt edged chance to be nominated for president in 1928, they are advising him to soft pedal on the prohibition modification to conciliate the drys, many of whom he will need for success in the national convention.

At least they would devise a platform declaration that would not make the drys any madder.

The Republican leaders have been convinced for some time that they could not hope to win state elections as an adjunct of the Anti-Saloon league. The dry stand of the G. O. P. was only driving wet Republicans to support wet Democratic candidates. Then came the pronounced reaction against bone dry prohibition this year which the Republican leaders recognized as the handwriting on the wall.

Senator James W. Wadsworth Jr., announcing his candidacy for renomination went the limit to the wet extreme.

The drys at once retaliated by bringing out former State Senator Franklin W. Cristman as an Independent Republican candidate for the nomination for senator, insuring a three cornered race in the election. Still the Wadsworth Republicans were not worried by this bolt.

To the great disappointment of the Wadsworth leaders, however, the Democrats decided to put up a strong candidate for senator and make the most of the opportunity offered by the Republican split. They agreed on Justice Wagner, who is wet, popular with Tammany, and can be relied upon to poll pretty close to the solid Democratic vote of New York City.

At the same time Gov. Smith consented to be a candidate to succeed himself. There upon the field of potential candidates for the Republican nomination for governor, including Nicholas Murray Butler, Charles D. Hilles and Representative Ogden Mills, all wet, took to the woods with one accord.

These events changed the picture completely from the Republican point of view. They could not hope to elect their candidate for governor, be he dry or wet, and they set out to find a man willing to be sacrificed on the Al Smith altar.

Justice Cropsey was at once brought forward to meet the new requirements for the candidate for governor. The judge was willing, but only on certain conditions. Among them was the stipulation that the Republican platform should declare for the passage of a state enforcement law. That was too much for Wadsworth. He was against making any such declaration. He opined that the party should content itself with a platform declaration that it would abide by the outcome of the referendum on modification of the Volstead act.

Justice Cropsey stood to his terms, however, and therefore was eliminated from consideration. Since then Wadsworth has continued his hunt for a moderate dry candidate for governor. Also since then the drys have served another ultimatum on Wadsworth.

They demand a platform declaration in favor of a state enforcement law to replace the one repealed with Gov. Smith's approval, and they assert that if this pronouncement be not forthcoming they will put up an independent candidate for governor and carry their bolt all along the line.

All of these chickens will come home to roost when the Republican state convention meets in this city on Sept. 27 to nominate candidates for senator, governor, and other state offices and to write the platform. It promises to be the most exciting conclave of New York Republicans in many years.

PLOWING CONTEST WINNERS—1876 AND 1926

Two Fight Over Taxi Fare; Killed by Auto in Street

New York, Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Two men, quarreling over who should pay a taxi fare, engaged in a rough and tumble fight at Forest Hills, Queens, early today, and then, while wrestling in the street, were killed by a speeding automobile. The two were Bernard O'Neill, 29, and Edward McCabe, 37. O'Neill was killed instantly. McCabe died soon after being taken into a hospital in Jamaica. The driver of the auto fled.

Ex-Chief of Legion Ends 10,000 Mi. Europe Air Tour

GENEVA, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Henry D. Lindsley, past national commander of the American Legion, has arrived here after covering 10,000 miles by airplane in fifteen countries. Col. Lindsley has been studying the development of commercial aviation in Europe at the direction of Secretary Hoover, with a view of promoting commercial aviation in the United States.

10,000 SEE BOY WIN PRIZE IN PLOWING CONTEST

In a tournament growing out of those held in New England more than 100 years ago, Illinois' champion plowmen competed at skill yesterday in Wheatland, near Aurora, while 10,000 looked on.

First honors went to 10 year old Paul Stiefbold of Wheatland, winner in the class for boys under 17 years old. He was congratulated by George Boardman, who piloted a plow in similar contests held fifty years ago.

Edward Reese of Big Rock won the horse drawn contest over Thomas Quantook and Homer Lapp of Wheatland, both former champions. William Bermer of Wheatland was the winner of the tractor class over Walter Erickson of Wheatland and Samuel Graver of Wheatland and several others. Forest George of Wheatland and Arthur Stark were other winners of the day.

U. S. Brings Doctor from Afar on Dry Law Charge

Norfolk, Va., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Dr. R. H. Chilton has been brought back to Norfolk from the other side of the world to face a liquor charge. A former practicing physician at Princess Anne courthouse, Chilton was indicted last May for illegal disposal of whisky prescriptions. He was found serving as pharmacist's mate in the Asiatic fleet and was returned here on the transport Chaumont.

TRIPE DEALERS ATTACK FRENCH ECONOMY EDICT

PARIS, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Provincial restaurant keepers as well as tripe dealers are of the opinion that the French government is on the wrong track in its economy program in limiting bills of fare to only two meat dishes. The regulation has not caused trouble in Paris, but smaller cities object to it and dealers in the cheaper cuts of meats and in tripe, liver, and kidneys in Paris declare their business has fallen off. The tripe dealers say that any one able to have only two dishes of meat will not take tripe as one of them. These dealers point out that the same number of animals are being killed to provide beef steaks and roasts, but that the heads and the hearts and other edible entrails are now wasted, and that, therefore, this is false economy.

AUTHOR'S WIDOW SAYS PUBLISHER PIRATES STORY

Gets Writ on Claim It Is Emerson Hough Yarn.

Acting on charges by Mrs. Charlotte Amelia Hough, widow of Emerson Hough, novelist, that Will H. Dilg, ousted president of the Izaak Walton League of America, had published without permission parts of an unprinted novel by Hough, Circuit Judge John A. Swanson yesterday issued an injunction restraining Dilg from publishing any more of the novel until a court hearing.

Says Dilg Had Manuscript.

Mrs. Hough charged that shortly before her husband's death on April 30, 1923, he sent a manuscript of a novel to Dilg for publication in the "Outdoor America" magazine. After Mr. Hough died, his widow corresponded with Dilg, who agreed to return the manuscript to her, she said. However, Dilg made a copy of the novel, she charges, and on Sept. 1 she found a long excerpt from the story printed in the magazine.

After Dilg was ousted as president of the Walton league last April, he founded another magazine, The Waltonians. Another excerpt from the Hough novel was printed in this paper, the widow charged.

Issues Temporary Writ.

The injunction issued by Judge Swanson will remain in force temporarily until there is a court hearing to determine the truth of Mrs. Hough's charges.

Shortly after his removal as head of the Izaak Walton league Dilg was defendant in divorce proceedings before Judge Joseph Sabath. Mrs. Marguerite Ives Dilg finally obtained a decree on grounds of cruelty.

You have always looked to Lyon & Healy—and always will—for "Everything Known in Music"

Now it's also Lyon & Healy for CAMERAS

Questions and Answers

Question: What do you really want when you buy a piano?

Answer: You want the pleasure that comes from truly and fully expressing your personality and your art—and you want a piano that is capable of doing that—for years.

Question: What is a good rule to follow in buying a piano?

Answer: Choose the piano house first—then choose the piano.

Question: Why is that?

Answer: Because you can't see how well a piano is made—so a piano must be bought largely on faith and confidence in the house that sells it.

Question: How long has Lyon & Healy been Chicago's outstanding piano house—and music store?

Answer: For 62 years.

Question: What is the largest music store in the world?

Answer: Lyon & Healy.

Question: What other outstanding features are there about Lyon & Healy?

Answer: Space permits us to mention only a few of them:

[1] More Steinway pianos are sold here than in any other store in the world except, of course, in the New York Steinway wareroom itself—and you know the Steinway piano is the best there is.

[2] Here are headquarters for the justly famous Lyon & Healy pianos, known for years for their excellence.

[3] Here is the largest sheet music department in the world.

[4] Here are headquarters for band and stringed instruments in almost endless variety, the finest of which we produce in our own factories.

[5] Here is a complete selection of the three outstanding phonographs—Victrola, Brunswick and Columbia—you can hear all three, compare them and choose your favorite.

[6] A newly equipped phonograph record department on the street floor gives excellent and most efficient service.

This is No. 2 of a Series—of advertisements telling of great Lyon & Healy Events for the Fall, 1926.

No. 1 told about the opening of the New Basement Piano Store—the only store of its kind in the world. Here you can buy at bargain prices—and with Lyon & Healy backing—pianos returned from Chicago's finest homes in exchange for Steinways, Duo-Arts, Lyon & Healy and other great instruments. The used pianos here have had real care ever since they were new. Almost as good as new now!

No. 3—Next Sunday—will tell of a very different and very important event. Watch for it.

It's Easy Now to Own and Operate Your Own

MOVIES

THIS is the twentieth century photography—making a living, moving record of the people and the events you want to remember!

Mothers and fathers of babies and small children are realizing the inestimable value of recording their pictures on motion picture films. Babies change so quickly! And what wouldn't any mother give to capture for all time the cunning actions, the smiles, the poutings of her baby! Next year will be too late!

Here are the leading makes of motion picture cameras and projectors—on sale in the new Camera Department. All can be purchased on terms—$10 a month. The purchase price of motion picture films 16 m/m includes developing at Lyon & Healy's.

Filmo Movie Camera

$180 With Case

Just look through the finder—and when you see what you want to "shoot" press the button. Filmo cameras are built to professional standards. You can even adjust speed to suit the light. Small, light, easy to carry.

Ready to operate at the touch of the starting button! The film automatically adjusts itself in frame; focusing is easy; a child can operate it. You can show pictures moving, still, or in reverse—which is great fun. Electrically operated—just plug in and start! Shows a picture 42x53 in. at 25 ft.

Cine-Kodaks Model "B"

A spring motor operates this Eastman Movie Camera—no cranking necessary while taking piccures. Carries either 100 or 50 feet of films. No focusing required. Notripod needed. Anyone can operate it. Weight, loaded, 5 pounds.

Eastman projector for films taken with the Cine-Kodak. Projects a brilliantly illuminated picture 30 x 40 inches. Electrically operated. Shows "still" pictures, too. Weighs only 9 pounds. Dimensions 8 x 5½ x 7 inches.

Eyemo Movie Camera

$357 With Case

Built by Bell & Howell, who supply 95% of the professional cameras to studios all over the world. Takes movies and single exposures—no tripod necessary. Spring motor operates it—no cranking while taking pictures. Has the exclusive Bell & Howell sighting finder. For professional as well as individual use.

It weighs only 4½ pounds; needs no tripod. Uses the new, standard 16 millimeter safety Cine film in 100 foot rolls. A dial records the footage as it runs off—no cranking while taking pictures.

IT is surprising news, isn't it, to know that this store, which you have known to have "Everything known in Music" for 62 years, is now opening a complete Camera Department, where it offers just about "Everything known in Photography"! Surprising? No, because our customers look to Lyon & Healy to furnish all forms of home entertainment—such as radios, phonographs and cameras.

Music is the finest means of artistic self-expression; and there is a great deal of similarity between music and photography, another excellent means of artistic self-expression. The two arts, music and photography, are alike, too, in that everyone can share in them. And this new Camera Department is so comprehensive as to make it possible for everyone to share in photography.

A Complete Camera Department Conveniently Located on the Street Floor

In this new department are not only cameras, but everything you might want in connection with photography: kodaks, moving picture cameras, moving picture projectors, films, developing and printing, moving picture films, movie camera renting service.

And, of course, everything of a standard, worthy of the full satisfaction guarantee of Lyon & Healy—the same full satisfaction guarantee that goes for everything here from band instruments to pianos, from sheet music to rare violins.

Movies of Your Family!

Lyon & Healy now offer four ways that make it easy to own and operate your own Motion Picture Camera and Projector

As you know, anyone can now take excellent movies—of practically anything—and show them right at home. Baby, playing with chubby toes . . . little Betty with her dolls . . . . Junior, with his first baseball outfit . . . . the dear "Awkward Age" . . . . College Days . . . the Wedding . . . the Honeymoon; Dad and Mother; trips, picnics, sports, priceless records that move and fairly live. Next year will be too late.

I. Terms—only $10 per month

You can purchase any motion picture camera or projector sold here, on simple, easy terms, with payments of only $10 a month. In this way you can be taking pictures while you are purchasing your camera, and the payments are so small you can easily afford them.

II. Outright Purchase for Cash

A permanent record of your children, relatives and friends is worth far more than the moderate prices of these motion picture cameras and projectors. Come in tomorrow and let us explain how easy they are to operate. Anyone can do it.

III. Rent a Movie Camera or Projector

Any motion picture camera or projector [or Graflex Camera] sold here may be rented at $10 a Week

Rent paid will be applied against the purchase of a motion picture camera or Graflex. An easy way to make a trial!

IV. The Lyon & Healy Club Plan

This is a plan to make it easy for a number of people to own a motion picture outfit between them. This is the way it works: Organize a club of a group of five or ten of your friends and own a movie outfit together. You buy the camera or projector for cash or on the $10 a month convenient payment basis, and then every member of your club pays you his share. In this way, a group of ten people buying on terms would each be paying only $1 a month to own the $180 Filmo camera pictured. Our transaction would be with you alone, but under the Club Plan you and your friends would divide the expense among you.

Not only will individuals want to organize clubs to own their movie outfits, but already established clubs, societies, churches, boy scout troops, college classes, fraternities, or sororities, employees' associations, etc., will want to take advantage of the easy Lyon & Healy Club Plan.

All merchandise bought in the new Camera Department will carry the full Lyon & Healy guarantee against factory or other defects. Guaranteed satisfaction

THE LEGION AND DEFENSE.

The address of the national commander of the American Legion at the Illinois convention was as timely as it was forceful in its rebuke of pacifism. Commander McQuigg reminded the nation, for his hearers needed no such reminder, that thousands of our untrained men were driven like sheep to slaughter in the world war" because of the unpreparedness which organizations of pacifists are still trying to perpetuate as our national policy.

The Legion has testimony on this subject of unpreparedness which no one can ignore or contradict, and the Legion is needed to keep that lesson before our government and our people. The opponents of competent and adequate defense are organized, persistent and, with the sentimental, persuasive in times of peace. They borrow the prestige of the ministry and the influence of the churches to make their mistaken and mischievous propaganda effective. They clothe their opposition in the robes of morality and religion and, ignoring experience, offer their pacifist fallacies as a foundation for national policy. Organized and asserting championship of peace when their policy invites and threatens disaster, they bully legislators and presidents.

The unorganized protests of citizenship is not enough to defeat them so long as peace seems secure. Our national optimism and hatred of war works powerfully with them so long as the threat of attack is below the horizon of public thought. Organized defense sentiment is required to offset organized pacifist influence, and there is no organization so fitted to create that sentiment and bolster up weak congresses and party leadership as the American Legion. Here already are nearly 1,000,000 men who have reason to know what defense involved and what it means to the nation. Their voice will be heard by the government, by the press, by the people. They should use every ounce of their great and growing influence to defeat the efforts of organized pacifism to make a joke of the national defense act, to abolish military training in the schools, and colleges, and camps, and to cut the army and navy below the level of our needs.

Organized pacifism is always at work, and so should be those patriotic organizations which do not propose that our country shall be stripped of defense amidst a world in arms. Of these patriotic organizations the American Legion is by far the most formidable and the natural leader.

BRITISH PROBLEMS.

The British labor ministry's report on the working of the dole system ought to be a warning to every future government which may be tempted in time of stress to repeat the blunder. The dole is an invitation to fraud and to indolence. Of 2,000,000 applications for doles, 400,000 were disallowed, and 140,000 claimants were not trying to get work, while 40,000 actually refused it.

The dole puts the slacker and the fraud upon the back of the worker. That the system is persisted in is a sorry commentary on the common sense of British labor and the courage of British domestic policy. It is an extreme example of the fallacy of British labor which imagines it can prosper by taxing the productive energy of the nation and taxing the reserves of capital which are essential to modern industrial and commercial vigor and progress.

One would think that bitter experience and the example of wiser policies in other countries would by this time have brought both British labor and British management to a realization of their ruinous policies. These policies are destroying British wealth and strength, and the world is beginning to suspect that the morale of the British people, so famous in past time for dogged energy, has been fatally sapped, and replaced by the notion that somehow the world owes them a living.

The British government's determination to pay its debt to the United States won the respect of the American people and greatly added to British credit and prestige, but now we find a widespread disposition to repudiate in the British public that more expressive of the disposition to shirk difficulties than to grapple with them.

The British have made heavy sacrifices to overcome the German menace and they stagger under heavy burdens, but they certainly cannot recover their former prosperity and power on the path they are now treading. The conservation of their remaining capital resources, the adoption of progressive methods and the increasing of labor efficiency are essential to the production of wealth, which is essential to the prosperity and progress of the British people. Under present policies they are headed toward bankruptcy and the complete repudiation of the American debt could not stay their descent.

The attitude of the American people toward further cancellation or revision of the debt settlement cannot but be unfavorable while the British people persist in the unwisdom of their course. Nation is hard at work on sound lines, and prospering accordingly and its people cannot see any reason in morals or expediency why they should contribute to the maintenance of a situation radically wrong.

DENIZENS OF THE RURAL SLUMS.

The Ku Klux Klan has held its biennial convention in Washington and has reelected Hiram W. Evans as its president. Mr. Evans is called "imperial wizard"; he used to be a dentist in Texas. He was reelected by acclamation after he had delivered a tirade against "anti-Americanism of all kinds."

"The ideas for which we of the klan stand," he shouted, "have become the dominating thing in America; our power is recognised . . . . We are today an organized army, ready to go over the top."

That pretty accurately described the klan's appraisal of itself. The appraisal so thoroughly satisfied the delegates that they carried Evans in triumph about the convention hall to the strains of "Onward, Christian Soldiers." The members enjoyed being told they were the intellectual leaders of a great nation. No doubt they really think they are.

The rest of the country thinks differently. The fact is that the klan draws most of its recruits from the more backward of our rural sections. It flourishes in small, self-centered communities. It draws strength from villages hidden in remote mountain valleys. Its members are out of touch with the currents of modern life. They live and die in communities which are as impoverished intellectually as they are materially. Much of their leadership comes from embittered clergymen whose lack of education and culture has barred them from ministering to more advanced congregations. The klan, in short, speaks for our rural slums. Its tactics and its ideology reflect its origin. Its pretension to leadership in American thought will not be taken seriously outside the narrow circle of its own membership.

WHITE ELEPHANTS OF THE SEA.

The appraised value of the five ships of the United States lines today is $17,000,000 less than they cost the government. The Leviathan, captured from Germany, cost the government $11,000,000 to put in commission, but is said to be worth only $6,000,000. The President Roosevelt, like the President Harding, was built by the government at a cost of $6,000,000, but today is valued at only $1,287,000.

The publication of the appraisals will incline some citizens to oppose the sale of the ships, because of the loss which the government inevitably will have to bear. Business men will not share that view. The ships are now losing money. The taxpayers have to make up the annual deficit which amounts approximately to $25,000,000 for the entire fleet of the shipping board. There is no reason to hope that the ships will increase in value in the future. On the contrary, the divergence between the cost of the ships and their current value will increase as they grow older. The business maxim that the first loss is the best loss applies here. The sooner the ships are placed in private hands, the better for the taxpayers.

The nation has been slow to recognise the truth that the expenditure of hundreds of millions of dollars on ships during the war was a war time and not a peace time measure. The ships we built were intended to meet an emergency. Many of them are as useless today as secondhand uniforms. Like the uniforms they had their day of glory. We proved we could build ships faster than the Germans could sink them and that meant we could transport our millions of men and their supplies to France without serious interruption. When, in addition, we called the last of our men of military age to the colors, the enemy realised the futility of resistance. The ships were worth all they cost. We can write off the loss with no regrets.

The desirability of disposing of all the government owned ships is clear. The desirability of operating the passenger fleet under the American flag is an entirely different matter. The sale of the ships to private owners need not imply their sale to foreign owners.

Editorial of the Day

THE EMBATTLED LADY ASTOR.

[St. Louis Post-Dispatch.]

With all deference to the lovely, charming and able Lady Astor, we beg leave to make this criticism of her speech in New York before the League of Women Voters: It draws the sex line to a point hardly this side of the absurd.

We do not think there is any sense in Lady Astor's intense profeminism and antimasculine. A visitor from Mars who should chance to come upon her speech would get the impression that the men and women of the earth are engaged in fierce and deadly rivalry. That is not true. That is a species of Pankhurstism which has been outgrown, even by most of the Pankhurstites.

When Lady Astor cites the woman in Rhode Island who ate several men under the table in a clam eating contest, thus proving the superiority of feminine digestive ability, she is of course simply employing a bit of post-prandial persiflage. It would not be worth mentioning were it not for the fact that this remark, coupled with others, illustrates Lady Astor's combative attitude against men in general on behalf of women in general.

Such an attitude implies that women think and act as a sex unit, whereas they do nothing of the kind. As a whole, and the results of woman suffrage bear this out abundantly, women married and related to Democrats vote the Democratic ticket; women married and related to Republicans vote the Republican ticket, and so on. In the United States the feminine vote is not cast as a bloc, and never will be. It has been analyzed and its effect, as political analysts have been pointing out since 1920, except here and there, has not been felt as a separate and unified force.

Again making a bow to Lady Astor, there is no general sex line in American politics and there is no general sex line in British politics. Nor will there ever be such a distortion of human nature. Lady Astor is carrying on a war of her own imagination and improvisation.

NEW JAIL WARDEN.

[Danville (Ill.) Commercial-News.

Failing to find a man in Chicago whom he could trust, Sheriff Peter M. Hoffman crossed over into Indiana to get a warden for his jail. Edward J. Fogarty is the Hoosier's name, and reports have it that he has been tried and found fit for the task. He has been warden of the Indiana state penitentiary at Michigan City fourteen years, and mayor of Michigan City two terms. He ought to know how to handle criminals, but in all of his experience he has never tackled anything quite so tough as the motley aggregation of desperate outlaws that will become his worry in the Chicago jail. There probably is no other collection of the kind in all the world. And his troubles will not all be within the prison walls—he will be beset on all hands by crooks and politicians, by lawyers and judges, and public officials who will demand favors for jailbirds. Crime is Chicago's biggest industry.

A MOVEMENT TO ENGAGE MIND IN CHARACTER BUILDING

BY PROF. JOSEPH A. ARTMAN.

[General secretary of the Religious Education association and recently professor of religious education at the University of Chicago.]

A not uncommon statement made in pulpits today is that a true evangelical conversion by which Christ spiritually enters the heart and life will settle all the problems of society. It is meant by this that the heart element alone is needed for good character. It is assumed that given a good heart in labor leaders and capitalists all labor problems will thereby be settled. In other words, it asserts that all moral questions are simply questions of the heart.

A fair facing of the facts shows this is not true. There were, for instance, before the civil war some southern slave owners whose hearts went out to their slaves, as shown by the care and kindness given them. These slave owners were men who prayed, gave to religious work, and lived exemplary lives. There were slaves also who loved their masters and were loyal to them. Yet thorough analysis has shown slavery to be inherently wrong, even though the system held many good hearted people in its grasp. Likewise today there are capitalists who have good hearts and desire the welfare of their employes, but whose ideas concerning mutual rights and duties of employer and employe are essentially pagan. It also may be said many labor policies are lacking in character values because the persons promoting them, although having good intentions and good hearts, fail in insight or knowledge of the results they seek.

A good heart, expressed in the great principle of love to God and man, is the basis of all right relations, but is not sufficient in itself to settle the intricate difficulties of social relations. The light of the intellect must function through the warmth of the heart.

There is, on the other hand, the equally mistaken notion that intellect alone is sufficient to solve all of life's problems. Knowledge, it is said, is power. To know is to do. This, too, is a fallacy. A person who has a keen intellect, but lacks the warmth of the heart and the spirit of reverence for things eternal, may be as sharp as a knife, but also as narrow. Intellect or a knowledge of the facts does not alone insure good character.

A desire to integrate real thinking in the good heart and the good heart into thinking was what led to the organization of the Religious Education association in Chicago twenty-three years ago (February, 1903) and has kept it expanding until it has become nation-wide and international and has enlisted in its ranks many of our greatest religious educators and laymen of far seeing vision from all sects and denominations.

The movement very early defined its purpose in the motto: "To inspire the educational forces of our country with the religious ideal and to keep before the public mind the ideal of religious education and the sense of its need and value."

Under the leadership of Dr. Henry F. Cope, the general secretary from its beginning to his death in 1923, the movement has powerfully influenced the character and religious education movements of the world. It was the chief agent in bringing about the adoption of graded lessons in the Sunday schools. It demanded respect for the Bible as a body of historical documents worthy of historical study both in the Sunday school and in church colleges. It struggled for the now generally accepted idea that religion is a fit subject for college instruction until now most colleges have such departments. It demonstrated the necessity for technically trained leaders for character and religious education, and hence the necessity for colleges and universities providing for such training. It criticised the prevailing hortatory and memoriter methods of teaching children and advocated the adoption of methods suited to their varying capacities. It attacked much of the published material in church periodicals and text books in the Sunday schools as unworthy of educational use and urged the recognition of the facts brought out by psychology and pedagogy in framing courses in character and religious education. It has emphasised with constant reiteration the necessity of research as a basis of adequate efforts in character development and has promoted an extensive field survey in week day religious education.

The Religious Education association is not an organization of other organizations, but provides for the voluntary organization of groups of workers who have a common interest in furthering the cause of character and religious education. Pioneering spirits of all faiths, Catholics, Jews, and Protestants, form its committees and are represented on its governing board. Any one who desires to further the character and religious education movements of the world is welcome to speak on its platform or print in its publications, provided he is willing to have his contribution squared by the friendly analysis and criticism of his associates in the movement.

Some may ask, "How can these things be?" Can people of different faiths and points of view work together in a search for and promotion of the highest ways of character growth? The answer is that they have done so and are doing so now.

The Religious Education association is in a sense an expression of the Chicago educational spirit, although it has found a hearty welcome elsewhere. Sir Robert A. Falconer, president of the University of Toronto, is now the president of the association, and the last international convention was held in the hospitable city of Toronto.

It was William Rainey Harper, first president of the University of Chicago on its present foundation, who was the moving spirit in the organization of the movement. While a technical scholar of the highest order, President Harper believed that learning was not something to be kept in cold storage. Hence along with his many tasks as president of the university, member of the Chicago board of education, developer of the use of research laboratories as an aid to efficiency in commercial and manufacturing administration, he conceived the idea of the development of religious education through the scientific study of the factors involved.

The Religious Education association is just now passing through a new phase of its growth. After the death of Dr. Cope the directors questioned whether the movement had not served its day. In order to be convinced they asked the Institute of Social and Religious Research to survey the movement and the field and report back to the board its findings. After a thorough study this scientific research organization declared that not only the movement should continue but should more actively than ever promote its work, especially in the field of research. To secure these ends the writer was elected general secretary, Dr. Laird T. Hites was elected editorial secretary, and Dr. Ruth Shonle assistant to the general secretary. Dr. Donald J. Cowling, president of Carleton college, Minnesota, is chairman of the board of trustees, Prof. W. D. Schermerhorn, Evanston, is recording secretary, and David R. Forgan of Chicago is treasurer.

Our library of religious education, numbering several thousand volumes and believed to be the most complete library in its line to be found anywhere, is open daily for consultation. The office staff answers thousands of letters giving information and aid in bettering religious education. The magazine, "Religious Education," goes to all members of the association. The next international convention will be held in Chicago, April 27-29.

How to Keep Well. By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Questions pertinent to hygiene, sanitation, and prevention of disease, in matters of general interest, will be answered in this column. Where space will not permit or the subject is not suitable, letters will be personally answered, subject to proper limitations and where a stamped, addressed envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases. Requests for such service cannot be answered.

DIETS FOR ANEMIA.

We are accustomed to telling people with simple anemias and secondary anemias that a proper diet will aid materially in a cure. On the other hand, we have frequently told persons with pernicious anemia that diet would not cure them.

In a recent number of the Journal of the American Medical Association two groups of physicians gave diets which they have found of great service in treating all forms of anemia, including pernicious anemia. It will be several years before the last word can be said as to the permanence of the improvement in pernicious anemia.

The following is a diet used by Drs. Minot and Murphy:

From 3 to 6 ounces of cooked calf's liver; occasionally, an equal quantity of lamb's kidney was substituted.

Four ounces lean beef or mutton. (Not less than 10 ounces of vegetables containing 1 to 10 per cent carbohydrate—especially lettuce and spinach.

Eight to 16 ounces of fruit, especially peaches, apricots, strawberries, pineapple, oranges and grapefruit.

About 1 1-3 ounces of fat derived from butter and cream. However, animal fats and oils were excluded as much as possible.

If desired, 1 egg and 3 ounces of milk.

Breads, potato and cereal enough to make a daily allowance of 2,000 to 3,000 calories composed of about 11 ounces carbohydrates, 4½ ounces good proteins and not more than 2 1-3 ounces of fat.

Grossly sweet foods were not given, but sugar was allowed very sparingly.

Drs. Koessler and Maurer and Miss Laughlin used a very different diet in the treatment of pernicious and secondary anemias.

Koessler's diet:

Cod liver oil, about 1 teaspoonful four times a day—two thirds of an ounce a day; butter, 2 ounces a day; milk, 6 glasses a day—about 3 pints; cream, 2 ounces a day; 2 or 3 eggs, or a total of 5 ounces; 2 ounces orange juice; 3 ounces of raw or canned tomatoes; 3 ounces of lettuce or raw cabbage; 3 ounces spinach or carrots; 3 ounces meat [liver, kidney, sweetbreads or brains]; 2 ounces bread [whole wheat bread made with milk].

The central idea in the Koessler diet is to supply plenty of vitamins. Cod liver oil, butter, and cream supply vitamin A especially, whole wheat bread made with milk is rich in vitamins A and B. Milk and cream contain A, B and C. Eggs are rich in A and B. The vegetables contain B and C and some A. Spinach contains A and B; lettuce A, B and C; fresh, raw cabbage A, B and C; Swiss chard A and B; string beans A, B and C; carrots A, B and C; cauliflower A, B and C; endives A and C; pears A and B; sweet potatoes A and B; squash A; fruits A and some B; liver and kidney A and B and some C.

In addition, diluted hydrochloric acid in fruit juice is given during the meal.

BLISTERS ON THE FEET.

Mrs. R. T. S. writes: Will you please give me a remedy for blisters on foot, as they are spreading? They have clear water in them. I am using a salve but it does not seem to help them. It is always worse at night. I open the blisters because if I don't the water in them smarts and pains.

REPLY:

There is a condition of the feet which develops in hot weather and which is characterized by itching and the formation of blisters.

To cure this condition, empty the blisters by piercing the skin with a clean needle, stick the needle through the skin on a plant, and well to one side. Let the water out, but try to keep the dead skin on as long as possible.

Keep the feet clean. Apply kerosene.

Come as near to going barefoot as the conventions will allow.

To prevent: Keep the feet cool, go barefooted, or wear sandals or light, airy shoes and cool socks. Keep the feet clean.

There is a similar condition, which is more apt to appear at any season, or to be continuously in evidence. It is a form of ringworm. Whitfield's paste is used for that.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

Letters to this department must be signed with names and addresses of writers.

FALL CLEANING.

Chicago, Sept. 8.—[Friend of the People.]—What can be done in regard to cleaning a lot at the northwest corner of 48th and Carpenter streets? It seems as though the tenants in that territory consider the lot as a dumping ground. Would suggest that a sign be placed warning tenants against throwing garbage, tin cans, glass, etc., in this lot which has not been cleaned in six months that I know of.

The weeds project six feet above the sidewalk on both sides of Carpenter street, which make conditions very dangerous to any person walking. W. C. B.

Conditions complained of have been remedied and notices served on offenders to stop further dumping on vacant lot. Weeds have also been cut on parkways on both sides of Carpenter street, as requested by writer.

THOMAS H. BYRNE,
Superintendent of Streets.

THE WHY OF IT.

Chicago, Sept. 8.—[Friend of the People.]—Last spring Wilson avenue was paved from Marmora west to Austin avenue. At present it is being paved from Central avenue west to Major, leaving an unpaved stretch between Major and Marmora: Why so? S. S.

Wilson avenue from Major avenue to Menard avenue is included in the Leland avenue system of streets, for which the assessment is now pending in court. It will no doubt be paved next year. J. J. SLOAN, President Board of Local Improvements.

FENCE IS DAMAGED.

Chicago, Sept. 11.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—The house next door to me was remodeled and in doing so the contractor pulled my fence posts out, damaging the sections and pickets of the fence so that it cannot be used again. This was all done without my permission. About six weeks has elapsed and nothing has been done as yet. Will you kindly tell me what can be done to have them replace this fence and if there is a law to compel them to? M. A.

Notify them that if they do not restore your property you will hire the work done and sue them for the cost.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

SEPTEMBER 19, 1861.

CINCINNATI.—A train on the Ohio and Mississippi railroad, containing a portion of Col. Turchin's 19th Illinois regiment (the favorite corps from Chicago, especially among our native born citizens), while passing over a bridge near Huron, Ind., 140 miles west of Cincinnati, fell through, killing and wounding more than 100 soldiers. Four passenger cars went into the creek and a box car and a baggage car fell on top of them. Capt. Bushrod B. Howard of Company I of Galena was killed. Up to noon today 30 bodies had been taken out and more are under the wreck. Indications are that the bridge had been weakened by malicious or traitorous persons. One hundred and fifteen of the injured were brought to the Marine hospital here.

WASHINGTON.—It is rumored that Gen. Johnston with a rebel column 40,000 to 50,000 strong is moving toward assailable points in the Union lines and that he went up the Potomac as if with a design of crossing. The rebels are heavily fortifying several hills south of Munson's.

ST. LOUIS. — Several regiments have received marching orders and are probably bound for Washington. The removal of so large a force from Missouri at this time when we need all the troops we have got excites a great deal of comment and indignation.

WASHINGTON.—The following order was issued through the postoffice departments: "Ordered that the Louisville Courier, found to be an advocate of treason and hostility to the government and authority of the United States, be excluded from the mails and postoffices of the United States until further orders."

ST. LOUIS.—A special to the Republican says that 18,000 rebels are marching on Paducah, Ky., under Johnston, who has superseded Pillow. An attack seems inevitable.

25 YEARS AGO TODAY

SEPTEMBER 19, 1901.

CANTON, O.—Into his old home town, over which hangs a pall of mourning never known in all its history before, the body of President McKinley was borne at noon today through streets black with crêpe and through lanes of sorrow stricken faces down which tears were streaming, with little effort made to conceal or restrain them. All afternoon upon a shrouded catafalque in the corridor of the courthouse lay all that is mortal of the man they loved—comrade, neighbor, friend, leader of the nation. For more than seven hours a stream of men, women, and children passed the bier. Tomorrow the funeral services will begin at 1:30 p. m., at the First Methodist church, of which the martyred President was a communicant and trustee. An imposing procession will follow the remains to Westlawn cemetery, where they will be placed in a receiving vault, awaiting the time when they will be laid in the grave beside the two children who were buried years ago.

CHICAGO.—Greater than any demonstration of love and respect accorded to William McKinley by the people of Chicago while he lived will be the testimonial to be given to his memory today. The executive committee in charge of arrangements for the memorial parade announced that not less than 25,000 persons might be expected in the column that will march through the sorrowing city's streets. For five minutes, beginning at 1:30, as the cortège of the dead President starts on its final journey toward the tomb at Canton, the wheels of commerce will stop, the noise of traffic will cease, furnaces will smolder, steam, cable, and electric railways will suspend all movement, and the city will be silent, save for the tolling bells. At 10 a. m. religious services will be held in all churches in the city. The parade will start at 2 p. m. and move until the time for silence, after which it will resume. Gen. Joseph Stockton will be chief marshal.

BUFFALO.—The Pan-American exposition will be closed tomorrow as a tribute of respect to the assassinated President.

10 YEARS AGO TODAY

SEPTEMBER 19, 1916.

CHICAGO.—Joseph Tuma, a private banker, shot himself through the head and tumbled into the lake at the foot of Wrightwood avenue. A half hour later the pitiful line of old women and young children in front of the Tuma Savings bank, 4613 West 12th street, were told by the police that the bank was closed. It was the fiftieth private, unsupervised institution in Illinois to close since 1911. Police disarmed Mrs. Tuma when they questioned her. They believe they prevented a second suicide. She attributed the closing of the bank to a credit in the name of J. J. Brittain, contractor for public buildings.

LONDON.—Official reports from the Somme battle front show that British and French troops are making steady but sure advances on both sides of the river. Gen. Haig reported that the British have captured the strongly fortified position known as the "Quadrilateral," between the Bellean Woods and Ginchy, and as a result obtained possession of a strip of ground 1,000 yards in depth along a mile front. Prisoners report that the losses of the Germans in the Somme battle are enormous. They say that two battalions of the 31st regiment of the 11th division were almost annihilated when caught in the artillery fire.

WASHINGTON. — The British "tanks," the armored motor cars used in recent assaults on German trenches in northern France, were built for the most part in Peoria, Ill., in the form of caterpillar tractors designed many years before the war began to meet some difficult problems of modern farming.

THE VOLSTEAD ISSUE.

Chicago, Sept. 14.—Does the Barrett-Crowe faction see the handwriting on the wall? Why wait till this late day to come out against the Volstead law? It seems they were on the fence, pussyfooting around till they found out the sentiment of the majority of the people of the city and county, and yes, even the state. According to their statement they are compelled to come out against the Volstead law by the first law of nature, self-preservation, and it is their opinion that the city and county are overwhelmingly against the Volstead law. I think it is too late ow. Right after the primaries their attitude was watchful waiting. If the majority was dry so were they. Now when the majority are wet, they are wet too. How can the people trust a party like that?

After all is said and done, if you can't say anything else good about George Brennan, he had the courage to come out and say where he stood. As I understand it, he was advised to sidetrack his wet petition and at the risk of hurting his own chances insisted it should be filed. I think if there is ever going to be a change in the Volstead law men like Brennan will be the ones to change it.

SOFT FEMININE CURVES.

Oak Park, Ill., Sept. 13.—"An Observer's" observations on the female form are amusing to say the least. If the female figure with its soft curves and symmetrical lines is not to be considered beautiful, then certainly the less delicate and more angular, muscular, masculine form is much less to be admired from the artistic standpoint. "Observer's" statement that "the female form is deformed in adaptation to childbirth" is also inconsistent. Nothing that is natural and perfect is a deformity. We are as nature made us; the female is no more physically deformed than the male, and nature has endowed the feminine form with a beauty and grace to match the soft, fair skin and fine hair of the sex. A man's figure is admired more for its muscular strength and power than as an object of art.
M. L. W.

PROOF.

Chicago, Sept. 14. — The brawn and muscle of man is not to be compared to the soft curves and grace of woman. As a creature of strength, man is admired and looked up to, but to glorify the beauty of the male form is ridiculous. The average man would not care to ante up $5 per seat to see the male sex "glorified" on the American stage, and since man seeks beauty, and picked out woman as its representative, man should have no kick coming.
A WOMAN.

THE DEBT TO LAFAYETTE.

Chicago, Sept. 14.—It is very obvious that the man who wrote the editorial in this morning's issue, "America for Europeans," saw no service in France.

I had the good fortune to have served two and one-half years overseas, and saw the wanton destruction of French territory, saw the demolition of hundreds of miles of French mines, saw miles of forest uprooted and wells poisoned, so that it will take years for rehabilitation. We do not know what it is to have the instigator of a great war, that inflamed the world, as our immediate neighbor, like a canker sore ready to eat up our vital parts.

With no assurance from us that we will come to her aid in case she is attacked again, can you blame France for not wanting to give up her armies? Do you blame her for wanting to take her time to pay us when Germany is derelict in her payments to France? Do you blame her for apathy when she is not getting one-half of what the Versailles treaty calls for? Do you blame her for her anxiety to hold her colonies and not turn down any revolution in those colonies when the cream of her population was lost during five years of hard war? And wouldn't you feel downcast if your best friend turned against you in the hour of need?

And yet, that is really the situation when Uncle Sam deserted Lafayette, Woodrow Wilson, as the President of the United States, did have a constitutional right to be the official spokesman for all foreign affairs, and our country was to be gauged by his deliberation. There is no question in my mind that the senate's repudiation of its promises has destroyed France's faith in mankind. We owe much to France, for France has done much for civilization. Her soldiers were of the bravest and her people the most tolerant. It is not too late for America to help her in this hour of need.
GEORGE W. KOWALSKI.

WILSON.

Riverside, Ill., Sept. 14.—Your editorial of today is a breach of common decency, being an attack upon the character of a dead man and one, moreover, who was the chief executive of a great, if not a good, nation. President Wilson may have had his faults, and he may have made many errors of judgment, but his memory will be revered long after the penny-pinching antics of the present incumbent are forgotten and your fervid lies filed away. Wilson was an idealist and an honest man in a world of crooks. Like Wallenstein, he dreamed of a better day to come, and the earth is the richer for his dreaming. He, moreover, used correct grammar, which Coolidge does seldom and The Tribune never.

You are correct in stating that Uncle Sam is hated throughout the world, but he is called Uncle Judas Shylock in many lands where the people owe him naught, and there is no reason to suppose that a vulgar American millionaire is favored more at Stockholm or Madrid than at Paris. I shall tell you one of the reasons for this universal contempt. Like the daughters of King Lear, he is pretty well tarred with the brush of ingratitude, a thing Coolidge epitomized in vetoing the soldiers' bonus bill. In other words, we are good fellows to every one only when we can make use of them.
NORDIC.

A CHALLENGE.

Chicago, Sept. 14.—"I'm an alderman," sez he, flashing a tin star on the inside of his coat lapel.

"Then why," sez I, "are you obstructing this busy sidewalk in a rush hour?"

"That's my business," sez he.

"You look it," sez I.

"Your gray hair protects you," sez he.

To disprove which I hereby challenge said alderman to put on the gloves with me any day in the noon hour at the Central Y. M. C. A. gymnasium on La Salle street, and I'll wager him any part of a century that I make him apologize for that slam about my age and also for standing in the way so that pedestrians had to pass him single file. He refused to give ground without the aid of my elbow when I came along escorting a lame girl to a car alongside the drug store in the Conway building on Washington street.

I don't know his name, but here's a description: Five feet 8 inches tall, with rather fat, chubby face; wore a light suit of yellowish cast. Ringside seats free.
PAUL V. PEREZ.

KNELL SOUNDED FOR $3,327,319 ILLEGAL LIQUOR

Will Be Destroyed to Clear Warehouse.

Destruction and confiscation orders for $3,327,319 worth of booze and other Volstead contraband were issued yesterday by Federal Judge Adam C. Cliffe at the instance of Dan Anderson, assistant United States attorney.

The property includes everything in the bootleg line from pipe wrenches to aged bourbon—the results of 324 seizures made by prohibition agents and police since July 1.

The record destruction order was issued for immediate execution because of the congested condition of the booze section of the army warehouse at Pershing road and Wood street, it was said.

Need Space for Contraband.

With announcement from Washington that Administrator E. C. Yellowley would be sent back to Chicago and would institute a new drive against all classes of groggeries the government was said to be confronted with a serious problems to keeping space clear for the piling in of the fruits of seizure.

One hundred and fifty-six stills of all classes are included in the orders. Although several of the big cookers have a value of $10,000, the average appraisal was fixed at $500 a still. These are to be perforated and sold for copper junk.

Twenty trucks, all in good condition, were listed in the confiscation schedule and will be sold at auction by Deputy United States Marshal John J. Oros.

Of the whiskey 1,104 quarts of Old Granddad, Old Grove and Sunnybrook were found to be the McCoy and appraised at $40 a gallon. That whichdidn't scale up on the test as pre-war equivalent was listed as moon and appraised at $5 a gallon. There were 14,579 gallons of the moon.

Beer was given an appraisal value of $60 a barrel and 971 barrels of the amber are destined for the river.

In reaching the total of $3,327,319 as the value of the contraband Mr. Anderson used, in addition to the foregoing, wine $4 a gallon, alcky $6 a gallon, corn sugar, 5 cents a pound and mash 10 cents a gallon.

Raid Club; Seize Liquor.

Prohibition Agents under Capt. R. Q. Merrick were out in force all day yesterday. The biggest prize they bagged was the Knickerbocker club, a three story establishment at 3121 West Madison street, said to be the rendezvous of many well known business men of the midwest section.

Seizures at the club included 15 cases of ale, iced and ready, and 25 cases of Michigan cream beer.

Evidence on which warrants were obtained was gathered by Robert McNaught, agent of affluent appearance, who sometime ago was labelled by cabaret scouts as "Yellowley's big butter and egg man." It is said McNaught obtained a membership in the club after posing as a big shot of the business world.

ARGUE RIGHT OF WISCONSIN TO VOTE ON BEER

Supreme Court to Decide Question in 10 Days.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—The state Supreme court is expected to announce within ten days to a thirsty Wisconsin populace whether or not they will be permitted to express their sentiments on beer at the general election on Nov. 2. Arguments for and against the legality of the proposed referendum were presented to the Supreme court today. The court is expected to speed its decision, as the election machinery is held up pending its ruling.

C. A. Eriksen, deputy attorney general, brought a formidable array of precedents into court to show that many things that cost money had been ordered by the legislature in the past by resolutions. It is claimed by opponents that the referendum resolution is illegal because it calls for the expenditure of public money.

Opposed by Dry League.

S. A. Fulton, an officer of the Anti-Saloon league, who started the action to block the referendum, was represented in court by Attorney Walter H. Bender. Bender summed up his attack on the referendum proposal with the following points:

1. The question and the submission of such a question are not within the legislative power.

2. Any vote upon this question would be devoid of result, legislative or otherwise, and the mandate of these resolutions is not a justifiable exercise of the legislative function.

3. There is an essential and important distinction between a joint resolution and a bill as a means of expression of the legislative will, and the constitution makes the latter the exclusive means of such expression in all cases.

Thinks Bill Was Needed.

4. The legislature, in directing the submission to vote of the people of any specified question or proposition, must do so by bill duly enacted into law. This has been the uniform practice in Wisconsin. This is especially true where, as in the present instance, certain specific duties are sought to be imposed upon state officers and others and where the mandate of the legislature is sought to be made effective after its adjournment.

In addition, Bender contended that 2.75 per cent beer is intoxicating within the meaning of the federal constitution, and that therefore it is illegal to submit to the people a question involving passage by congress of a statute permitting such beer to be manufactured and sold, and that the passage by congress of a statute in form legalizing the manufacture and sale of such a beverage would not constitute "appropriate legislation."

Eriksen, for the state, contends that the submitting of the beer proposal to the people would involve an expense of less than $15.

JUDGE DECIDES TO TRY 5 DAYS OF BREAD AND WATER

After Imposing This Diet for 14 Years.

Harlington, Neb., Sept. 18.—(AP)—County Judge W. F. Bryant, 75, foe of liquor law violators in Cedar county, will begin a self-imposed five day diet on bread and water next Monday morning to "determine once and for all if such a diet is cruel and inhuman," he said.

Rye bread will be the judge's only food beside water. At the end of five days on the bread and water diet, the jurist said he would decide whether he would extend the sentence five days longer.

Judge 14 Years.

Judge Bryant has been on the county bench for 14 years and says he has been imposing bread and water sentences on bootleggers all that time. At present, Fred Dirks of Coleridge, is serving a sixty day sentence for liquor law violation, with every alternate ten days on bread and water.

When the recent Tekamah bread and water sentences of Roy Carson and Thomas Nelson, who lost an appeal to the state Supreme court to avoid the diet, came up, Judge Bryant said he was surprised they should attract any notice as "it is a method of intensifying imprisonment."

Advocates Whipping Post.

Judge Bryant advocates the whipping post to "annihilate bootleggers."

"If a man doesn't like to live under the laws we have, the world is wide," the veteran judge explains. "He should not be allowed to make an election of what laws he will obey and what laws he will disobey. Personally, I am glad now that prohibition was enacted, although at first I did not think much about the law."

MUSIC DIRECTOR OF CITY SCHOOLS, MRS. HEATH, DIES

Mrs. Agnes Collier Heath, for nearly forty years supervisor of music in the Chicago public schools, died of heart disease yesterday at her home, 1128 East 46th street, after a short illness.

Mrs. Heath, a native of England, was 69 years old. She became ill three weeks ago while on a vacation at Lake Geneva, Wis. She is survived by a nephew, John H. Collier.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 2 p. m. in the Kenwood Evangelical church, 4600 Greenwood avenue.

CUBANS ASK. U. S. PAY $41,000,000 ON WAR SUGAR DEAL

Montreal, Que., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Cable advices from Havana to leading sugar interests here state that an influential group of Cuban planters and sugar mill owners is petitioning the Cuban government to take action against the United States treasury for the recovery of $41,000,000, alleged to be the profit made by the sale of sugar to the allied nations during the later years of the world war.

Dr. Sainz de la Pena, Cuban consul in Montreal, said reliable information had reached him to the effect that the planters and owners would themselves press the claim if the Havana government refused to act. He said Cuba handed over its entire sugar crop in 1918 and 1919 to be sold by the United States government to the allied nations at cost.

The sugar, he continued, was sold through an equalization board, which was recently dissolved and, after all expenses had been paid, still had $41,000,000, which it handed over to the United States treasury. The Cuban planters and mill owners maintain this sum is rightfully theirs.

Hursen Is in Your Neighborhood

Draw a circle around Chicago for a distance of 15 miles from the loop. This is a tremendous territory. It takes in all of Chicago and many of its suburbs. In almost every neighborhood in this vast area you see funerals conducted by Hursen.

This means that Hursen belongs not merely to one neighborhood, but to every neighborhood. "Hursen's" is an all-Chicago institution. It has been so for years. There is no other institution of its kind that does so serve every part of Chicago and its suburbs. It stands alone!

Hursen's funeral automobiles—a fleet of Lincolns, and the finest in America—have eliminated the question of distance. Chicago has shown that it prefers the finer things at funerals. It prefers the Hursen cars, the Hursen elegance, the Hursen service, the Hursen chapels, and

Besides, Chicago knows that the charges for Hursen funerals are but a fraction of the charges made elsewhere. This is why Chicago brings Hursen into every neighborhood—into your neighborhood. This is why "Hursen's" is the greatest funeral establishment in America today. This is why Chicago always prefers to call Hursen, of course!

To the Public:

¶National Hartman Week is the World's Greatest Furniture Sale. Its fundamental principle is to give to the public at the two seasons of the year when the thought of home is uppermost, NOT the usual reduced old merchandise, BUT furnishings new and seasonable, at lowest prices and on the most reasonable terms.

¶As soon as the last National Hartman Week was over, our buyers began combing the markets for bargains that would be even greater than those offered in our last sale. With our vast 16-store purchasing power we have secured price concessions from leading manufacturers; we have purchased entire factory outputs. And we guarantee that all sale prices in National Hartman Week are the lowest that can be secured anywhere for merchandise of similar quality.

¶Last time we sold over $1,250,000 worth of new home-furnishings in the seven days of the sale. In the coming seven days we expect to sell over two million dollars worth. We thank you for your confidence, and hope that every friend of Hartman's will share in the great economies of this sale.

Vice-President and Merchandising Manager.

WILL OF FRENCH PRETENDER GIVES WIDOW NOTHING

King of Spain, Ex-Queen of Portugal Heirs.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 18.—Romance and pathos, coupled with vindictiveness against his wife, Archduchess Maria Dorothea of Austria, are breathed from the pages of the will, published in London this afternoon, of Philip, Duke of Orleans XIV., pretender to the French throne, who died at Palermo, Italy, last March.

After naming several royal personages for bequests, the will states:

"I direct that the archduchess will get nothing from my estates. I deprive her of any rights whatsoever, even her legal usufruct."

Lived in Exile 40 Years.

Born in 1869 at York House, London, the duke lived in England in exile more than forty years, spending most of his time at Eveham, Worcestershire, where he kept up to a certain extent the ceremonies and etiquette of the French court. As a result of his pretension as the king of France he was barred forever from returning to his own country, this applying even to his right of burial there, so a touch of pathos is added to the words of the last codicil, which states:

"It is my wish that my mortal remains, which cannot be committed to the earth of France, shall be buried in the sea in sight of the coast of France."

His animosity against his wife is the outcome of differences due to the duke's escapades when the duchess sued for separation in the Belgian courts in Brussels, asking alimony of 3,000 ($15,000) yearly. A private separation was finally arranged following attempted reconciliation by Emperor Francis Joseph and the Vatican had refused to annul the marriage.

The duke's estate surprised royal circles here because of its largeness. He left property in England valued at £150,000 ($750,000). The value of his property in Belgium, Italy, and Sicily, where he had large estates, is not mentioned in the will.

King of Spain Gets Pictures.

The duke left some of his paintings to King Alfonso of Spain. Among other bequests figures a life annuity to Mrs. Vilcette Jarrott, formerly Lady Rosslyn, of £4,000 ($20,000) annually, as well as all his personal jewels.

His bequests to other noble personages included paintings to the Duke and Duchess of de Montpencier. To the Duke of Vendome he left the painting of Duc Nemours. To the Duchess of Vendome goes a painting of the Duchess of Orleans by Winterhalter. To the Duchess of Chartres, a pastel painting. To Duc D'Oaste a platinum ring with large emeralds and diamonds. To one cousin, Jean, Duc d'Guise, all his sapphires, including those formerly belonging to Marie Antoinette, a cigar case presented to him by King Ferdinand of Bulgaria, and all his collection of flags.

To former Queen Marie Amelie of Portugal, his sister, all his other paintings, miniatures, and personal souvenirs other than his personal jewels. To his niece and goddaughter, Isabelle, 100,000 francs ($2,900).

To the city of Paris the duke left a sword presented by that city to his father. The Paris museum is left the duke's natural history collection and all his guns and arms. He left a further sum sufficient to produce an annual income of 25,000 francs, clear of all expenses and duties, for the upkeep of the museum. The will left the Museum de la Marine of Paris a reproduction of the first class man o' war Hercules, made by Hirannaux Sr., master carpenter of the French navy in 1845, and presented by the carpenter to the duke's great-grandfather, Louis Phillipe, king of France.

The duke directed that all his family papers at Manoir Danjou be dealt with only by his old friend, Maurice Emory.

Mrs. Hall Arraigned in Murder Case

McKinley, Recovering, Watches Pennant Race

Martinsville, Ind., Sept. 18.—(AP)—His condition somewhat improved in the last two weeks, Senator William B. McKinley of Illinois, who has been seriously ill at the Home Lawn sanatorium here since Aug. 18, manifests a lively interest in the pennant struggle between the St. Louis Cardinals and the Cincinnati Reds. "His condition, however, is still of a very critical nature," Dr. R. H. Egbert reports, "though not so immediately alarming as two weeks ago."

HENRY STEVENS SHOT MRS. MILLS AND HALL, CHARGE

Somerville, N. J., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—The state will seek to prove that Henry Stevens and Willie Stevens were the principals in the murder of the Rev. Dr. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills, it was learned tonight. According to one source, the theory of the state's case is that Henry Stevens fired the four shots that caused the death and that the throat of Mrs. Mills was cut after her death by Willie Stevens.

It was stated that a week before the night of the crime, Sept. 14, 1922, there was a conference in the Hall home in New Brunswick. Word of the rector's infatuation for Mrs. Mills had reached the family and the meeting was designed to deliver an ultimatum to the clergyman that he must give up the choir leader.

According to the state's allegation, Dr. Hall bluntly refused to do anything of the sort. He told the members of the Stevens and Carpender families, in the version of the case attributed to the state, that a divorce would be acceptable to him and that if necessary he would consent to a decree against himself.

It was stated that the state investigators in their theory of the crime held to the belief that Dr. Hall was trailed, either by private detectives or by friends of the families for the week preceding the crime. It also was said that the detectives believe he was followed on the night of the crime.

Details on the theory attributed to the state investigators were not forthcoming, especially as to what the state alleges took place at the scene of the crime itself.

It was intimated, however, that the rôles assigned to Mrs. Hall and to Carpender in this reconstruction of the crime were merely passive ones, and that the screams heard by various witnesses were the cries of horror uttered by Mrs. Hall.

ROB COUPLE IN PARKED AUTO.

Three bandits yesterday held up and robbed Miss Marie Hoppenrath and her escort, David Frolich, 1543 North California avenue, in an automobile parked in front of the girl's home at 2627 Walton street. From Frolich they took $185 and a watch, and from the girl $9 and a silk purse.

HUGO STINNES FIGHTS WAY BACK TO DAD'S THRONE

[Copyright: 1926: By United Press.]

BERLIN, Sept. 18.—Hugo Stinnes Jr., 29 year old heir of Germany's war time Croesus, today was regaining the financial throne which was his by right of inheritance, and from which he was ousted last year after a brief period as head of the vast combination of trusts created by his father.

Thanks to the British coal strike, now in its fifth month, Hugo Jr.'s fortune is returning. Adroitly exploiting the small property he retained after last year's crash, he has developed a coal export business from which, according to his associates, he has pocketed within recent weeks from $1,400,000 to $3,000,000 profit. France, Scandinavia, Holland, and South America have purchased his offerings. It was estimated today that his sales had increased from 2,000,000 to 2,500,000 tons. He has obtained many long term coal contracts in former British markets.

This sudden return of prosperity has enabled Hugo to plan negotiations for a $25,000 000 Wall street loan.

THRONGS GREET COOLIDGE ON WAY BACK TO CAPITAL

President Carries Birds and Dogs in Auto.

BULLETIN.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 18.—(AP)—President and Mrs. Coolidge returned to the capital tonight at 10:57 p. m. after an all day journey by special train from their vacation camp in the Adirondacks. . . . . .

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—On board the President's special en route to Washington.]—Returning to Washington from his vacation of ten weeks spent in the Adirondacks, President Coolidge in his special train passed through the populous New York towns and villages en route to be greeted by thousands at the stations and along the tracks as he and Mrs. Coolidge sat on the rear platform of their car.

The trip by daylight down the mountains through the rich agricultural Mohawk valley and along the historic Hudson was one continuous ovation for the delighted vacationist, who made his first daylight journey in many years.

Train Skirts New York.

At Utica, where the train halted for a few minutes, Republican leaders of that city and adjoining counties mingled in the station crowd of about 2,000 and forced the President and Mrs. Coolidge to shake hands and respond to the cheers which came from the children and hundreds of boys perched on the train shed.

The special skirted New York on the river side, thousands going across the river to Weehawken, N. J., to watch it pass.

President Coolidge was the first to arise at White Pine camp this morning. His vacation has restored him and his wife to perfect health and gave each a touch of tan and color that betokens vigor and refreshed nerves. At 7:45 a. m., the President walked from the cabin bedroom to find St. Regis mountain still covered with fog. He strolled about the walks, taking a last whiff of the wood and fall flowers that awakening Mrs. Coolidge.

Birds and Dogs in Auto.

The special train of six cars, including an observation car, diner, two sleeping cars, a club car and a baggage car, was still on the siding when the President and his party appeared at the station. The train was to be ready at 7:15, but President Coolidge had arrived fifteen minutes ahead of time. He and Mrs. Coolidge sat in their automobile, surrounded by the two dogs and the four bird cages Mrs. Coolidge had brought from Washington, until the train was made ready for them.

Occasionally the President recognized an old guide or an acquaintance made during the summer and leaned out of his car to shake hands. As soon as the train was made up the hungry, early morning risers went into the dining car and had breakfast. Seated facing the station, the President and Mrs. Coolidge exchanged greetings with the station crowd, which numbered several hundred.

MELLON BACK ON JOB; HOLD FIRST MEETING OF CABINET TUESDAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Secretary of the Treasury Mellon was back in Washington today after his summer abroad, but remained away from his office. It was indicated that he would be at his desk Monday morning, when the entire administration, headed by President Coolidge, will resume normal activities.

Secretary of Commerce Hoover, who has been on the Pacific coast for several weeks, will be at his office on Monday, as well as Attorney General Sargent, who has been in Vermont. All other cabinet members have already completed their vacations and a full cabinet meeting is in prospect on Tuesday, when President Coolidge will assemble with his advisors for the first time since early in July.

BARTLETT TAKES RODGERS' PLACE IN HAWAII FLIGHT

Washington, D. C., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Commander Harold T. Bartlett was selected today to succeed the late Commander John Rodgers in command of the special squadron of flying boats under construction at the naval aircraft factory at Philadelphia.

The squadron, when completed, will be flown via the Panama canal to San Diego for experimental work with the fleet in long distance flying. After these tests the navy department will decide whether another nonstop flight from the California coast to Hawaii will be attempted.

Commander Bartlett, a pioneer naval aviator, served with both British and French air forces during the war and was awarded the navy cross for bombing raids against the enemy. He was appointed to the naval academy from Connecticut, his native state, in 1906.

MANDEL BROTHERS MEN'S SHOPS

To the men of Chicago—I am happy to announce the dawn of another bright season in clothing values—

Earl Cragg
AUTHORITY ON MEN'S WEAR

$40

Two-trouser suits with a satisfaction guaranteed policy

Good news for busy men—

Purchasing a suit is now (at Mandel Brothers) a pleasant and profitable process—one devoid of all uncertainty. Your size is here—your selection of style cannot be other than correct—and we guarantee you satisfaction.

Note below—A view of our special Earl Cragg department, Second Floor, Wabash.

The fabrics—I have selected those serviceable materials which practical men demand—finished and unfinished worsteds, cassimeres, tweeds, cheviots, etc.—and have procured them in the correct shades and patterns for fall. Tastes of men and young men alike have been closely observed in the selection.

The styles—I have striven for something better than mere smartness. Double and single-breasted models, whether in two or three-button effect, possess a style distinctly masculine. They are cut on lines that give a bearing of athletic ease and dignity. The weaves, too, have a rugged richness consistent with a man's idea of style.

My pledge to you—

This is proof of my confidence in the Earl Cragg suit—a surety of its satisfactory service to you.

This guarantee accompanies each suit:

"Only master hands were allowed to design and make this garment and only dependable materials throughout have been used in its construction. It has been tailored in such a manner as to assure utmost satisfaction. If, however, it does not, I urge that you return it so I may make it right. Earl Cragg clothes must give full value under all circumstances."—EARL CRAGG.

Perhaps you have considered yourself hard to fit?

If so, another revelation awaits you here. I have given unusual sizes a specialized attention that enables me to assure the tall and short man—both stout and slim—the same perfection of fit as the man of average build.

POLAND CALLED NEW BREEDING SPOT FOR WARS

Europe Looks on U. S. as Nation's Backer.

BY FLOYD GIBBONS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, Sept. 8.—[By Mail.]—The storm center or breeding place for future European war has shifted northward from the Balkans to Poland, in the opinion of many students and close observers of continental events since the Versailles treaty demolished the old Austro-Hungarian empire and reconstructed the Polish republic.

American interest in this development is emphasized by the fact that Wilson's fourteen points fostered the rebirth of Poland and American capital has financed the new republic to the extent of three-quarters of its entire foreign debt. It is an interest that some Europeans even think amounts to a responsibility.

Hold Love for America.

Toward America the twenty-eight million people of Poland hold sentiments of affection, so intense and widespread as to approach national worship, but in spite of this deep rooted amity, the diplomatic relations between the new republic and its adopted parent nation are strangely lacking in evidences of good faith.

In the five years of Poland's national existence as a republic, based on the constitution adopted March 17, 1921, the Polish government has so far failed to sign as much as a simple treaty of extradiction with America, to say nothing of commercial treaties or conventions for the protection of American copyrights in Poland.

Administrative procrastination, born of polylingual and mixed class, religion and racial confusion, is more responsible for this curious state of affairs than the ill will or evil intent so often attributed to slav methods by westerners unwilling or unable to recognize the conflicting characteristics between western civilization and the modes and customs of a people that once drew their inspiration from the east.

No Treaty of Extradiction.

American criminals can find legal asylum in Poland as far as existing laws and international agreements are concerned, but instances do exist where Poland has turned over American criminals to American authorities upon request without resorting to legal procedure. It is a way they have of doing things in Poland when they really want to.

American paper money, passports and vises are counterfeited in wholesale quantities in Poland with but little interference on the part of the Polish authorities regardless of the fact that it is the Polish people rather than Americans who are victimized by these wholesale frauds.

The American dollar is the Polish peasants' symbol of financial security and American currency in estimated amounts varying from fifty to one hundred million dollars is being hoarded in Poland to the continual embarrassment of the Polish finance ministry's efforts to maintain Polish currency at its par value. But in addition to these bona fide millions reposing beneath the Polish sink, millions more of worthless counterfeit American dollar bills have been circulated throughout the country in exchange for Polish Zlotics.

Many Ignorant of Loss.

Thousands of the victims of this colossal fraud are still ignorant of their loss and seldom do find out until the press of want or circumstances forces them to present the hoarded bogus notes to be cashed in Polish currency. One instance exists where Polish authorities aware of the existence of the counterfeiters gang responsible, reported the matter to the American authorities with the curious suggestion that if Washington would supply the Polish police with funds, the Polish police would round up the gang operating in Poland and then prosecute it.

While Poles are chief sufferers from these laxities, it is American business that suffers from another and more important delinquency in Poland's diplomatic attitude toward America. By refraining from signing a convention with the United States for the recognition and protection of copyrights in both countries, Poland causes American motion picture, book, and song producers to lose hundreds of thousands of dollars annually.

But in sentiment, all the annoyances are wiped out. Last Fourth of July was a national holiday in Poland, American flags draped the streets. "The Star Spangled Banner" was sung throughout the republic and thousands marched in parades as a symbol of the Polish citizens' deep feeling of admiration and love for America—a feeling which the Polish government has seemed incapable of putting into diplomatic practice.

COAL FOR ITALY

ROME, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Vast coal and iron fields have been discovered at Perdusdefogu, in the province of Cagliari, Sardinia. The coal, estimated to total 30,000,000 tons, is said to belong to the same class as English anthracite.

Oscar Marcin, engineer and director of the company formed for exploitation of the mines, figures that coal can be taken to the port of Arbutax at a cost of 150 lire [$5.40] per ton as against 450 lire [$16.20] in the case of English coal. The iron, he says, may be shipped at a figure one-third the cost of iron from any foreign source.

DENIES DRY CZAR WAS GIVEN RIGHT TO SCAN BAHAMAS

New York, Sept. 18.—(AP)—The Bahama islands, where "we regard liquor selling as a legitimate business," prefers "nice people" as visitors to "heavy drinkers," Gov. Sir H. E. S. Cordeaux said today.

The governor sailed for England after arriving yesterday on the hurricane beset Muramar. Of the agreement reached, between him and Gen. Lincoln C. Andrews, United States prohibition chief, the governor remarked that the public seemed to have gained an erroneous impression.

"We made no concessions as to search and seizure in our ports," he said. "We have many keys. You know, small islands running out from the mainland. Well, these keys are so useless that we don't police them. So when Gen. Andrews said he wanted his men to keep an eye on them and chase any bootleggers that left them for Florida, only 50 or 60 miles away, we acquiesced. It's these fellows that have caused all the trouble. We don't approve of their methods at all."

BEG YOUR PARDON

Jim Hayes, who was mentioned in THE TRIBUNE last Thursday in connection with the stock swindle engineered by Lawrence J. Barrett, is not and never has been connected with the telegraphers' union, as was stated. R. H. McDaniel, president of the Western Broker division of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America, is the authority for the above statement.

500 Students Leave on Round the World Cruise

New York, Sept. 18.—[Special.]—The liner Ryndam left Hoboken this afternoon with 500 students, of whom 120 were girls, for an eight months' cruise around the world, during which the vessel will call at forty-seven ports and traverse 50,000 miles. Along her sides was inscribed in large white letters, "University World Traveler Cruise." There are fifty members of the faculty and forty-six members of the staff, including hospital attendants, welfare workers, and printers, who will get out the daily paper, called the Binnacle, which will be edited by Henry J. Allen, former governor of Kansas, who is also in charge of the course in journalism.

3 KILLED BY MINE CAVE-IN.

Scranton, Pa., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Three men lost their lives and another was injured by a fall of the roof of a mine in the Pennsylvania Coal company at Exeter, Pa., today.

NEW NASH MODELS

Leads the World in Motor Car Value

7 Great Bearings

The Smoothest Miles are NASH Miles

All new Nash models now have the great superiority of a 7-bearing crankshaft motor.

It is an engineering fact that this is the ultra-modern motor—the world's smoothest type.

The 7 great bearings give the revolving crankshaft absolute rigidity and stiffness, thus achieving the final degree of power-smoothness and quietness.

Every connecting rod bearing surface is supported on each side by one of these big main bearings. There is no whipping, no distortion.

United to this phenomenal power-smoothness and quietness there is pick-up of breath-taking swiftness.

Come view these new Nash models—16 different body styles—brilliant new body finishes—with prices ranging from $865 to $2090 f. o. b. factory. Now on display.

New Nash Attractions

New instrument board with indirect lighting and all instruments in single panel under glass, including hydrostatic gas gauge.

New oil screen "agitator" which prevents oil coagulation in coldest weather.

New crank-case "breather" eliminating crank-case dilution.

Rubber-insulated motor supports which deepen operative quietness (standard Nash practice for some time).

And an array of further superb new features.

(A Business Editorial)

THE JOB WELL DONE.

Too many men think only of winning the greatest profit for the moment. Quality serves only as an after thought, and failure is usually the final reward.

The man who carries out each trust, or task, to the best of his ability cannot be kept down. And the firm that sets quality of merchandise and service before all else is likewise sure of recognition.

The paths of quality and service prove after all to be the real avenue of success.

HARLAN AGREES TO ACCEPT CITY TRANSIT CONTROL

More Legislation Needed Under Albert Plan.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Ald. Arthur F. Albert, after a talk yesterday with Attorney John Maynard Harlan, of New York, reported that Mr. Harlan had agreed to accept a 20 year street car franchise contingent upon local control and regulation by a city commission.

"Mr. Harlan, speaking for Lisman & Co., bankers, told me he would accept an ordinance which would be void unless the legislature give the city the right to control the street railways through a city commission," said Mr. Albert. "There is no point to a contract unless we have the power to enforce its provisions. The local bankers and local representatives of the transportation interests are opposed to an ordinance which becomes ineffective unless we get a city commission."

Changes Original Harlan Plan.

If the Albert idea is adopted—and all aldermen who have spoken have indorsed it—then it means that the Lisman-Harlan plan as well as the other program cannot be effective until more legislation is obtained. Mr. Harlan's official statement on the subject probably will be made for the record at the next meeting of the subcommittee. His original argument was that "a complete, permanent, and progressive settlement of the surface transportation facilities" can be made under existing law, and that his plan means speed and progress, while waiting for legislation means delay.

The West Side Commercial league sent a letter yesterday to Mayor Dever and to each alderman opposing consolidation of Chicago's surface and elevated lines and busses. This league reasons that a merger means uniform fares and universal transfers.

The resolution of the league says that "by merging the rate of fare would be increased on the surface lines, owing to the fact that all transportation facilities other than the surface lines are operated at a much higher cost, thus making a higher rate of fare necessary, which higher rate could not be justified by granting universal transfers to the surface riders, which transfers would seldom be used."

Mayor Urged to Act.

Barnie Hecht of M. Hecht & Sons is president of the organization; A. L. Schmidt of the Security bank is vice president; E. B. McKnight of the Italian Trust and Savings bank is treasurer, and Dr. C. B. Roe is secretary.

In the covering letter to Mayor Dever the president of the association wrote: "We ask you to take note of this action and also that you read the resolution through. We represent a section of the city where people are interested in lower car fares, which would as a matter of fact be increased by a merger. We trust you will use your influence in opposing this merger."

Mayor Dever has not indicated what he thinks of transportation lately. He has declined to date to make any comment either upon the Harlan-Lisman plan or the proposals of the local bankers and transit representatives. However, the mayor in his own ordinance in 1925 vigorously urged consolidation. That is in conformity with the counsel of every traction adviser of the committee to date.

NO MACHINERY, RUSSIA NEAR RUIN, SAYS RED CHIEF

MOSCOW, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Vladimir Kuybusheff, who succeeded M. Djerdjinsky as head of the supreme economic council, warned all the Russian trusts, syndicates, and other industries today that the country's mechanical equipment is nearing exhaustion, bringing a serious threat to the national economy. Insisting that in the absence of new machinery from abroad drastic steps must be taken to conserve the present dilapidated equipment, he said the ever increasing cost of production, which was assuming menacing proportions, must be combatted with the utmost energy.

"This increase in the cost of production," he continued, "is due largely to irrational management of the national economy, a fall in labor discipline, lack of proper organization in the entire realm of industry, and feeble execution of the campaign of economy.

"The government demands are for far more radical lowering of the cost of production and overhead expenses than has heretofore been achieved. We must conduct an unrelenting struggle against laxiness, indifference, and lax management, and must raise the qual-

CHECK SENT TO ORPHAN ANNIE IS UTILIZED FOR ICE

The sympathy of Little Orphan Annie's many friends in her recent deplorable accident and present dubious condition in a hospital, following the paralyzing fall from her trapeze in the aerial act of Mr. Buzzer's circus, as portrayed by Cartoonist Harold Gray in THE TRIBUNE, has resulted in the receipt of a check for $7.60, with which to purchase a bouquet for the small patient.

Since her generous physician has already donated a perfectly adequate floral gift, Annie feels that the donation of the girls employed by the Carter and Holmes company, at 500 South Franklin street, should be utilized for the less fortunate orphans through the free ice fund, and she had Mr. Gray forward the check to that department, which is still functioning. Both Annie and her friends merit the thanks of the youngsters.

Other gifts received yesterday for the free ice fund included $10 from Edith B. Wyant and $5 from Albertina L. Prince of Coloma, Mich. Previous acknowledgments amounted to $2,300.66, making the grand total now $2,323.26.

We Need Peace! Briand Cries, Urging Accord with Germany

BY JAY ALLEN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 18.—The continuity of Foreign Minister Aristide Briand's clearly traced policy for a France-German rapprochement, which was brought close to fruition at Thoiry yesterday, is endangered by dissension within the French cabinet, THE TRIBUNE learns.

M. Briand returned from Geneva today, expressing his enthusiasm over his conference with Foreign Minister Stresemann. He said:

"The country can lose nothing in turning resolutely to peace. Dr. Stresemann and I will meet again if we obtain the approbation of our governments. We certainly will not meet later than December. I firmly believe that we can thus arrive at a reasonable settlement of the differences between the two countries, ending in joint collaboration that will be both close and loyal. I will present the results of my conversation with Foreign Minister Stresemann to the cabinet Tuesday."

Ultimatum to Reactionaries.

M. Briand's statement was taken in the best informed circles to amount to a veritable ultimatum to the reactionary members of the French cabinet that he is determined to bring France and Germany together and intends to push it through the cabinet.

But he issued the ultimatum at a delicate moment, because he appears to fear that an important fraction in the cabinet, and perhaps Premier Raymond Poincare himself, already is launching a campaign to discredit him and is preparing to bring him up short in his deal with the German foreign minister. M. Briand spent the afternoon explaining his conference with Dr. Stresemann to Premier Poincare.

The French foreign minister expressed his anger toward those opposing him, as follows:

"It is pretty miserable business for part of the French press to attack me on the Lotus affair (in which the Turks arrested Lieut. Demons, commander of a French boat that rammed a Turkish barge) while I was struggling at Geneva, thus attempting to single me out from the rest of the cabinet as being to blame for the unpopular situation, when it is well known the country's stand on Turkey was decided in a plenary cabinet session. I am frank to say this is pretty rotten.

"I fail to see," he continued, "why frank collaboration should not be possible between the French and German governments. I consider it absurd to hold that such a method is humiliating for a victor. I remain firmly attached to the idea of peace and the will to peace. France needs peace and can only gain by it. That is also the opinion of a goodly number of patriotic Frenchmen. They believe a country which, like ours, has given so many proofs of its heroism has a right to pause and take breath.

"I was prime minister during the darkest days of the war. I will do all in my power to prevent such terrible moments recurring and to establish peace on a solid basis. There is only a handful of Frenchmen who believe it would humiliate France and I can assure you that nobody at Geneva, not a single representative of any civilized country, sees us in a humiliating posture."

Many Doubters in Germany.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Sept. 17.—The utmost caution is expressed in diplomatic circles and the press following reports that the Stresemann-Briand accord is a sensational success, which eventually will restore European peace. Some point out that while Herr Stresemann can speak for Germany, Premier Poincare may easily veto M. Briand's acceptance.

Some ask whether the French peace making is intended to scare Italy. Others see a complete end of Premier Mussolini's sword rattling if France and Germany join economically and politically.

Urges Arms Holiday.

GENEVA, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Declaring that this is the psychological moment for hastening the disarmament conference of the league of nations, Paul Boncour of France introduced a resolution before the assembly's disarmament commission this evening urging that all preparatory studies be ended if possible this year or early next year to allow of a general world-wide conference before the next meeting of the assembly of the league of nations.

M. Boncour urged that such a conference should declare an armament holiday for a certain period of years, the scale of disarmament to be based on the present state of preparedness in the various nations. After the expiration of such a truce, he said, the subject of disarmament could be re-examined.

Fitting Feet—
Not Merely Selling Sh

Science says it takes three distinct types of shoes to fit the three distinct and normal types of Human feet.

Which Foot Is Yours?

The Trupedic Shoe is the only shoe in the world made on the flare principle—Inflare, Straight and Outflare—corresponding to the three distinct types of normal feet.

Trupedic Shoes are the result of a world wide research by the American Posture League, an organization consisting of leading most scientists, Orthopedic Surgeons and Physical Trainers. Trupedic Shoes are constructed to give quick relief to foot troubles brought about by misfitted shoes. The specially designed arch, combination last, cupped heel seat and many other scientific and corrective Trupedic features help to restore the feet to normal action.

Trupedic shoes are not freak shoes; they are stylish in appearance and their comfort is rather felt, not seen.

SALESMEN CAN YOU QUALIFY?

We have just been commissioned by one of the oldest and strongest organizations in America to comb the Chicago District for salesmen of PROVEN ABILITY and particularly of HIGH CHARACTER.

We are interested ONLY in salesmen with a record of GENUINE SUCCESS—men who are now profitably employed but who are seeking a permanent connection with a CERTAIN FUTURE.

We want men of mature age and judgment who have been accustomed to deal with big business men in big figures. To such men, particularly those with a well-established clientele, we offer an unprecedented opportunity for surprisingly large earnings.

We assume, of course, that you will not respond to this announcement unless you can present credentials that will bear the closest scrutiny. The men we accept will be carefully qualified, but those who are selected will be adequately financed and assisted in every respect.

We do not hesitate to recommend this as the highest class sales opportunity we have ever sponsored and are ready to stake our reputation on its inevitable success.

The men who qualify will be in line for rapid promotion and will form the nucleus of an outstanding NATIONAL Sales Organization.

LONDON BISHOP READY FOR TOUR OF U. S. COLLEGES

Dr. Winnington Ingram to Make Addresses Here

Arriving in this country Oct. 1 for exclusion of a two months' tour of Canada, the Rt. Rev. Arthur Winnington-Ingram, D. D., for twenty years Lord Bishop of London, will visit at Ames, Ia., a tour of leading colleges and universities of the [illegible] states.

Although his years number [illegible], the bishop is active and his duties include preaching before King George and Queen Mary of England, this active ecclesiastic is remarkable chiefly for his enthusiasm and for his interest in young men. His interest in young men's affairs, qualities, ambitions, and [illegible] He has especially requested a generous amount of time be left for his program in which to meet young men acquaintances at golf, squash rackets, or golf.

Will Make Many Addresses

From Ames, where he will speak before the student body of the Iowa State college, his itinerary includes many of the larger educational institutions of the middle west, New England, Canada, and the south. He is to address students at the University of Minnesota, Northwestern university, University of Michigan, Harvard, Trinity college, Columbia, University of Pennsylvania.

Plans for the reception and entertainment of the distinguished visitor include a call upon President Coolidge at the White House, a dinner given in New York by T[illegible] at which Chauncey M. [illegible] will preside, another by the Pilgrims, speaking union of that city, at which John W. LONDON BISHOP READY FOR TOUR OF U. S. COLLEGES

Dr. Winnington Ingram to Make Addresses Here.

Arriving in this country Oct. 1 at the conclusion of a two months' tour of Canada, the Rt. Rev. Arthur Foley Winnington-Ingram, D. D., for twenty-two years Lord Bishop of London, will start at Ames, Ia., a tour of leading colleges and universities of the United States.

Although his years number sixty-eight and his duties include preaching before King George and Queen Mary of England, this active ecclesiastic is remarkable chiefly for his enthusiasm for and his interest in young men, their ideas, qualities, ambitions, and recreations. He has especially requested that a generous amount of time be left free in his program in which to meet his young men acquaintances at tennis, squash rackets, or golf.

Will Make Many Addresses.

From Ames, where he will speak to the student body of the Iowa State union, his itinerary includes most of the larger educational institutions in the middle west, New England, New York, and the south. He is to address the students at the University of Chicago, Northwestern university, the university of Michigan, Harvard, Yale, Trinity college, Columbia, and the University of Pennsylvania.

Plans for the reception and entertainment of the distinguished visitor include a call upon President Coolidge at the White House, a dinner in his honor given in New York by The Pilgrims at which Chauncey M. Depew will preside, another by the English Speaking union of that city, at which Mr. W. Davis will act as toastmaster, a visit to the tomb of Abraham Lincoln, and a formal welcome in Baltimore by the Rt. Rev. John Gardner Murray, D. D., presiding bishop of the Episcopal church in the United States.

Famed as an Instructor.

In the quarter century of his episcopate in London, Dr. Ingram has won for himself a peculiar place in the consciousness of the English speaking world, and his fame as the preacher, friend, and companion of men has spread through every land in which the Anglican church operates. His talks to Oxford and Cambridge students have had widespread influence by reason of their wisdom, informality, and the genius of the bishop in meeting the viewpoint of youth.

His opinions on controversial theological questions reflect the same liberal opinions, and he was quoted at Toronto recently as declaring, "There is no contradiction between science and religion. You cannot discover too much because no truth can contradict itself. God bless all these scientific men."

Bishop Ingram will close his tour at San Francisco early in November.

TO VISIT COLLEGES

The Rt. Rev. Arthur Foley Winnington-Ingram, D. D., lord bishop of London, who will arrive in U. S. Oct. 1 for tour of American colleges.

SECRETARY WORK PAUSES IN CITY ON WAY TO WEST

Secretary Hubert Work of the interior department passed through Chicago yesterday on his way to his home state, Colorado, to make two speeches in the near future. He will address the western mining congress at Denver next week, and on Sept. 27 will speak at the semi-centennial celebration at Colorado Springs.

Secretary Work has not been signed up yet for campaign speeches, but said he probably will do some campaigning for Republican senatorial and congressional candidates.

The interior department, he said, is "running like a ribbon" and doing its share in the national administration's economy program, having cut its expenses $100,000,000 in three years.

LABORER HERE TO AWAIT FORTUNE; OTHERS DOUBTFUL

Despite the doubts expressed by his friends in Kewanee that he will never become the millionaire through inheritance that he claims he will, John Cooper, 32 year old Kewanee laborer, was still waiting in his room at the Atlantic hotel yesterday confident that his father and attorneys would come here Tuesday to deed the fortune to him.

"Advices which have been printed from Wilmington saying that my estate is unknown don't worry me at all," says Cooper, "for as a matter of fact those who have made inquiries are in ignorance of the location of the estate. Some have said that it is in Roanoke, Va., and some think it is near Wilmington, but none of them know, and any attempts they are making to find out about it will be useless. When the property comes to me next Tuesday night, then the whole world may know about it, but not before."

And with an air of finality, Cooper considered the incident closed. He will wait, he says, and he knows that the last laugh will be his. Cooper came to Chicago Friday to await what previous rumors had said would be the completion of negotiations in turning over to him his share of the historic Bradford estate in Virginia.

GRANDMOTHERS OF LONDON TAKE TO CHARLESTON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 18.—Dancing is going to be much faster in London this season, experts announce. Even the graceful waltz will succumb to the speed of the Charleston. All Mayfair and the suburbs are busy practicing the new speed craze, and the new Charleston dance, with less side kicking, is merely a shadow of its old self. According to Mayfair aristocrats, the Charleston now is much easier to dance than it was. The grandmothers and grandfathers now crowding the west end ballrooms are rejoicing that the new Charleston does not oblige them to lift their feet or kick.

FREEMAN & SNOW
CONSULTING ELECTRICAL ENGINEERS
ARMOUR INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY

Chicago, July 26, 1926

Report to Chicago Flexible Shaft Co.,
5600 Roosevelt Rd., Chicago, Ill.

SUBJECT: Continuous Heat Test of Sunbeam Iron.

PURPOSE OF EXPERIMENT: To test the endurance of the heating units in three electric irons.

IRONS TESTED: One Standard Sunbeam Iron with All-Over Heating Unit of chromium resistance wire; two other irons (A and B) with ordinary resistance wire heating units.

METHOD EMPLOYED: The irons were placed in a protective wire cage and each iron connected to a 110-volt electric circuit on February 28, 1925. Following are results of test:

	*Endured on Current	Burned Out
Iron A	1,903 Hours	May 23, 1925
Iron B	1,951 Hours	May 25, 1925
SUNBEAM IRON	11,167 Hours	Did Not Burn Out —Current turned off June 30, 1926

*Deductions made for time irons were not on current while making repairs to electric lines, etc.

As above report indicates, the standard Sunbeam Iron was the only one of the three that did not burn out.

When the Sunbeam had been on current equivalent to more than 30 years' service in the average home, we turned off the current (June 30, 1926) and on examination found the original Sunbeam Heating Unit still in good condition.

Respectfully submitted,
FREEMAN & SNOW
By C. A. Nash.

11,167 HOURS on Current Failed to Burn It Out!

Test Made by Engineers of Armour Institute Proves Sunbeam Good for 30 Years

Two ordinary heating units collapsed in a few weeks

No Sunbeam Iron has ever been known to burn out.

And engineers have tried repeatedly but each time failed to find the limit of its endurance.

One large Public Service Company kept the Sunbeam on continuous current for 5,000 hours day and night, but could not burn it out.

The results of numerous experiments have always been the same.

The latest test was made by engineers of Armour Institute of Technology.

They kept the Sunbeam on current 11,167 hours. Meantime two ordinary heating units tested beside the Sunbeam burned out in less than 2,000 hours.

When the Sunbeam had been on current about a year and a half it seemed useless to continue further, so the engineers turned off the current and quit. For in that 11,167 hours the Sunbeam had withstood as much electric current as it would receive in 30 years' use in the average home.

And no amount of home use would ever equal this test in severity.

Authorities now freely admit that they know of nothing else like the Sunbeam. So let no one persuade you to accept any other iron, regardless of its price.

Get the real Sunbeam and you have an iron like the one that defied the engineers to burn it out.

An iron with this 30-Year Heavy-Duty, All-Over Heating Unit that keeps the EDGES as hot as the point and center, so dampness in clothes cannot cool it off.

Thus a woman can iron without hard pressure from the shoulder. This lets her sit down, if she likes, and work in comfort.

These Electric Companies will deliver the Sunbeam for $1 down; balance $1 monthly on your bill. Order while this offer lasts.

Only $1 Down

Balance on your monthly bill

Because of its balanced, weight and All-Over Heating Unit, Sunbeam does not require hard pressure—this lets a woman sit and iron restfully, if she likes.

Patented Art-Steel Fire-Proof CASE for Sunbeam Travel —$2.50 value for only $1

This Steel Case sold only in connection with Sunbeam. Every home, office, factory or store from which you ever travel has use for Sunbeam Case. Fits through transom. Fine for Cord and Heating Unit over protection and saves its cost.

SAVAGE FIRES NEW BLAST AT JUDGE JARECKI

Says Recount Was Illegal and Unethical.

Joseph P. Savage, Republican nominee for county judge, fired another broadside at his Democratic opponent, County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki yesterday, declaring that while Jarecki's immediate resignation from the bench is desirable in the interest of an honest election on Nov 2, there is no desire that he resign as a candidate for reelection, because the voters can be trusted to take care of that.

Savage said Judge Jarecki conducted an illegal recount of the Republican primary vote on county judge merely in the hope of smearing Savage. The Republican nominee characterized Jarecki's action as unethical and declared that he suspended the recount of his own vote when it was shown that more votes were stolen for him than for any other candidate.

Sent as Open Letter.

The Savage statement was addressed to Jarecki as an open letter.

"The present county judge, at a great expense to the taxpayers of Cook county, for several months persisted in counting the votes cast for the Republican candidates for county judge," Mr. Savage said.

"Judge Jarecki, do you not know that your actions were unlawful, and did you not act in defiance of the law and squander public funds to gain an advantage over me, your Republican opponent at the coming election? Do you not know that the law provides that if the votes for county judge are to be recounted at all it should be done by a circuit judge? Is it not highly unethical for a judge who is interested in the subject matter of a case to insist unlawfully in presiding over the trial of the same?

Why Was Recount Stopped?

"When you were shamed by the press and myself into counting the Democratic ballots cast for county judge, the same as you were counting the ballots cast for the Republican candidates for the same office, and it became apparent that your judges and clerks had stolen twice as many votes for you as any other candidate, why did you summarily stop your own recount and persist unlawfully in counting the Republican votes?

"I understand that you state that you have not boasted that every election held by you as county judge has been corrupt. If you have not boasted of it, isn't it a fact that you have repeatedly admitted it? And are you not ashamed of your record? As head of the election machinery of Cook county, are you not responsible for this condition?

"And, having confessed repeatedly your inefficiency and incompetency, don't you think that you should step aside and allow some other judge to conduct the next election in which you and I are both candidates for the same office, so that public confidence may be reestablished in the broken down election machinery of this county?

"I am not asking that you resign as a candidate. I assume the intelligent electors can take care of your candidacy in a satisfactory manner on Nov. 2. I am merely asking that you surrender control of the November election, so that it may be honestly conducted."

HOGS, YOU'RE BEING PAGED

(TRIBUNE Photo.)

A Professor Wins

Hugh G. Van Pelt, former professor at the Iowa State college at Ames, won a ham sandwich when he who-o-o-e-ed and peeg-peeged his was to victory in a hog calling contest held at a picnic given by the alumni of the Iowa college in Thatcher's Woods, east of Maywood, yesterday.

His two competitors, Wallace F. McKee and G. L. Seaton, were right behind the winner and Prof. Van Pelt had to release his best vocal blasts to win the ham sandwich, the prize offered by Anthony J. Cermak, president of the county board, who was one of the judges.

The contest was unique. Those aspiring to be called champion hog callers stood in a group. The 600 picknickers took to the woods. The hog callers let go blasts that frightened several neighboring farmers. They locked their pigs in their pens, fearing they might be enticed by the resounding who-o-o-s, 'twas said.

The picknickers decided the contest by coming forth when their favorite who-o-o-e was who-o-o-eed. After several efforts on the parts of the hog callers Van Pelt was announced the winner.

BLAZE AT U. OF I. SCHOOL AROUSES HOSPITAL STAFF

Firemen spent three hours early yesterday in extinguishing a fire which attacked the six story building of the dental school of the University of Illinois at 526 South Honore street. Patients at the County hospital, across the street, were aroused and the damage was estimated at $50,000.

The flames were confined to the third and fourth floors of the old brick building. While the fire was stubborn, danger of its spreading to the hospital was eliminated by a 4-11 alarm, which brought enough apparatus to keep the fire from spreading.

LET BRENNAN HAVE WET ISSUE, SMITH ATTITUDE

G. O. P. Will Run Its Own Campaign, He Says.

BY FRANK BUTZOW.

Frank L. Smith, Republican nominee for United States senator, issued a statement yesterday which was interpreted as a declaration that he will oppose modification of the Volstead act in his campaign for election against George E. Brennan. But Mr. Smith did not actually say that; he left it to be inferred.

Smith said practically all of his own issues in the successful primary fight against Senator McKinley have been subscribed to by Brennan in the election fight.

"The Democratic candiate has no occasion to fear that I will reciprocate by subscribing to his policies," Smith said. "Just to set his mind at ease he can be advised that I have no such intention."

At Variance with County G. O. P.

Smith has put himself at variance with the dominant Crowe-Barrett-Galpin faction in control of the Republican party in Cook county. The county G. O. P. plans to take a flat-footed stand against prohibition in its county convention next week. Smith's attitude on the prohibition question was indicated as he held a conference Friday with local G. O. P. chiefs on plans for the campaign. He said he would be more specific on the issue later.

"Various persons professing deep interest in the outcome of the election of Nov. 2 are claiming to be distressed by what they call the silence and inactivity of the Republican ticket," Mr. Smith said.

"Maybe I should feel sorry about this. But I don't. Neither am I disturbed, because I am quite convinced that not one of these distressed persons is my well-wisher.

"I have taken counsel of the Republican party state managers, of my fellow-candidates on the ticket, the leading Republicans of Illinois, and of my own good friends throughout the state, and I haven't found a single sign of perturbation or alarm amongst them. On the contrary, every one of these is confident of a sweeping and most emphatic success for the whole ticket on election day.

Democrats Not Consulted.

"The campaign for the Republican ticket is being conducted by the official managers of the Republican party—which is to say the Republican party organization, national, state, district, and county. Quite properly, as I believe, these party managers have not consulted either the Democratic candidates or managers concerning the plans for the Republican campaign. We are making the cort of campaign we feel we ought to make, and are not making the kind of campaign they want us to make.

"I am convinced that the voters are already pretty well assured of what Republicanism stands for in Illinois, and for what I stand for personally. Also, there is plenty of time between now and election day for the discussion of every question at issue.

"Our plan, however, will be to discuss all the things we think are at issue; all that we think are the pertinent questions for discussion, and not what just one Democratic candidate wants us to discuss.

"Perhaps I ought to feel flattered, personally, because the Democratic candidate for United States senator has announced his agreement with virtually every principle and policy I advocated in my primary campaign—opposition to the league of nations court, relief for the farmer, promotion of the interests of the middle west and even in adherence to that fundamental of Republicanism, the American protective tariff policy.

Won't Take Rival's Policies.

"As a matter of fact I am neither flattered nor distressed by this pretended conversion because it seems to me to be unimportant, and I believe that is the way the voters will look at it. Hence, the Democratic candidate has no occasion to fear that I will reciprocate by subscribing to his policies. Just to set his mind at ease, he can be advised that I have no such intention.

"If the Democratic candidate and his supporters are not pleased with the way the Republican managers and candidates are conducting the Republican campaign, they will just have to be disgruntled. But for the life of me I cannot see what they are wailing about. They have all the time and opportunity there is to present what they want to discuss. We are not complaining about what they are saying or doing. Neither are we letting their complaints about us worry us. We are keeping our shirts on; if they cannot keep theirs on, that is their business

TWO factors control the strength and rigidity of a plaster wall board. First comes the quality of the plaster core. Second, but of equal importance, is the quality of the facing or binder.

Of two golf balls with insides of equal quality, the one with the toughest cover will last the longer. So it is with plaster wall boards.

The facing, which corresponds to the cover of the ball, is a vital factor in the service given by the board.

Beaver Bestwall is made from unusually fine materials. We use extra fine quality gypsum rock plaster for the core. It is made of pure gypsum rock from Beaver mines. Second, we use an improved, very tough, fibre facing or binder. This hard, tough fibre material is a product of the great Beaver Products Co. mills—where fibre products have been made for a quarter of a century.

Many DESIRABLE advantages

Beaver Bestwall—due to this improved construction offers these important advantages which you can have at no greater cost:—

(1) Strong, sturdy, long-lasting fireproof walls and ceilings for repairs, remodeling work or in new construction.
(2) Noticeable safety in handling—a minimum of breakage loss.
(3) More beautiful decorative effects. The hard, fibre surface of Beaver Bestwall takes decoration like a painter's canvas. Colors show up with unusual richness and beauty. Most exquisite effects are possible. Any medium—paint, calcimine, canvas or wall paper may be used.
(4) A saving in decorative cost for both labor and materials. The surface of Beaver Bestwall takes the finish perfectly—dries out smoothly. The "water glass" and the "paint" tests will prove that it does not absorb—that a little paint or calcimine goes a long way.
(5) The privilege of redecorating at will. You can even remove wall paper from the hard fibre surface of Bestwall without damaging it. Redecorating can be done with perfect results. This is important.

These are a few of the definite advantages of this improved plaster wall board—made possible by the combination of the superior gypsum plaster core and this exclusive, super-tough fibre binder produced only by the Beaver Products Company.

Costs no more—look for the cream-colored surface

Remember, there is no question about the advantages of Beaver Bestwall. The tests suggested on this page can be made by anyone. We especially recommend that you make them before you select or specify the plaster wall board for your work.

See for yourself. Mark down the results. Compare critically. And remember that this superior plaster wall board, which means more beautiful walls and ceilings, costs you no more.

Being made entirely by Beaver manufacturing costs are at a minimum and, therefore, it can be sold at prices no higher than you pay for the ordinary run of plaster wall boards. Why be satisfied with less?

The lazy, expensive way is to ask for "plaster wall board" and take anything. But it will pay you to specify Beaver Bestwall with the cream-colored surface and the Beaver trade-mark.

There is a representative building supply or lumber dealer selling Beaver Bestwall in every locality.

A Simple Comparison

Its tough cover enables the golf ball or baseball to withstand terrific impacts of club and bat. The same thing applies to plaster wall board. The extra tough fibre facing—permanently bonded to the rock plaster center—gives Beaver Bestwall its remarkable strength.

The "Water Glass" and "Paint" Tell

Place a sample of Beaver Bestwall over a glass of water. Invert the glass so sample is underneath the water. Also apply paint to a sample. Note how little is absorbed in each case. Very economical.

The "Fire" Tell

Every panel of Beaver Bestwall—the superior plaster wall board—is approved by the National Board of Fire Underwriters, and manufactured under their laboratory supervision.

The "Surface" Tell

Swiftly rub your finger tips over the fibre facing of Beaver Bestwall. Note that it does not scuff up and become woolly—a feature of the fibre facing which is sized and calendered.

The "Strength" Tell

Lay a piece of Beaver Bestwall across two piles of bricks or between two chairs. Pile heavy weights on the center. Note the surprising weight it will hold without breaking.

Easy to Apply

Saws and nails like lumber. Quickly applied to studding over old walls or ceilings. Will not warp, buckle, crack, crumble or fall. Is fireproof, moisture-proof. Produces smooth, clean, permanent walls and ceilings.

Many Uses

Use it for durable, fireproof walls and ceilings in new dwellings and buildings of every kind.

For quick, permanent, economical repairs for remodeling at low cost—reclaiming wasted attic space; lining garage or summer cottages; adding needed rooms, or walls in the cellar; making partitions in stores, factories—and for 101 other uses where a smooth, clean, permanent wall that will not warp, crack, crumble or fall is required.

READY TO CARRY SMOKE FIGHT TO FLAT BUILDINGS

Bundesen Waits for First Chilly Weather.

Any flat and apartment owners, who view the anti-smoke war as a vague and distant bluff, are due soon for an awakening jolt. The drive is scheduled to be carried into their precincts.

With the first pinch of chilly weather, thousands of apartment houses, as usual, are expected to start smoking. Health Commissioner Herman N. Bundesen ordered his engineers yesterday to call in the landlords as fast as offenses are observed.

"We feel that we are getting the loop and the lake front nuisance under control," he said. "Most of the boats have cleaned up and there is a noticeable decrease in smoke from buildings in the business district. We also have made much progress this summer at railroad roundhouses.

"Two of the biggest problems still are ahead, the railroad locomotives and the apartment buildings. We are concentrating on them."

The full cooperation of the Chicago Flat Janitors' union has been promised by William Quasse, its president, who previously promoted the anti-smoke cause at union meetings.

The Railroad Smoke Abatement board has appointed a committee to meet with W. J. Higgins, chairman of the General Managers' association, to urge him to call a conference of the railroad managers and take up the question.

The committee consists of Walter Scott, representing the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers; W. J. Powers, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen; W. Beck, representing the railroad smoke inspection forces; James Fitzmorris, of the General Managers' association, and J. L. Nichols, representing the terminal superintendents.

Although electrification is seen as the only ultimate solution of the railway smoke evil, members of the board, including the engineers, are convinced much can be done meanwhile.

CLAYTON MARK'S DAUGHTER WED IN LAKE FOREST

SCYTHA MARK AND ALVIN EHRET WED IN LAKE FOREST

Miss Scytha Mark, daughter of Clayton Mark of Lake Forest, was married yesterday afternoon to Alvin M. Ehret Jr. in a garden ceremony at the Mark home. The bride wore a gown of ivory velvet embroidered in pearls, and a veil of tulle with a medieval cap of rose point lace. Her bridal attendants, Mrs. Howell H. Howard (Loretta Hines), Miss Ellen Ehret, Miss Alicia Patterson, Miss Daisiana Smith, Miss Virginia Avery, and Miss Edwina Love, were gowned in frocks of pink. A reception followed the service, which was read by the Rev. George Roberts of the Lake Forest Presbyterian church. Mr. and Mrs. Ehret will go abroad on their wedding journey.

Miss Camille Henry wore her mother's wedding veil of rose point lace over a wedding gown of white satin at her marriage yesterday afternoon to John Grant MacDonald at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Huntington B. Henry.

The marriage last evening of Miss Gertrude Sevey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Sevey of 5537 Hyde Park boulevard, to Capt. Walter H. Soderholm, U. S. A., was the first wedding celebrated at the new Union League club.

YANKS' SEIZURE FOR FRENCH ARMY ROILS UNCLE SAM

Kellogg Acts to Defend Naturalized Citizens.

Washington, D. C. Sept. 18.—[Special.]—An attempt on the part of French military authorities to force twelve naturalized American citizens into the French army has been called to the attention of the state department and an investigation has been ordered by Secretary Kellogg.

This action by the French government follows, it was said, numerous other cases of a similar character wherein the military authorities have sought to force American citizens of French birth or extraction into the army.

Under French law, no Frenchman is permitted to become a citizen of another country without permission of the French government. As this privilege is rarely granted, any person born in France who later becomes an American citizen is held liable to service upon returning to France.

On numerous occasions this government has protested against this practice both by France and other countries. This nation's contention is that naturalization of a French citizen under our laws makes him an American citizen. We do not recognize a dual citizenship.

In all cases where Americans have been arrested by French authorities for military service the embassy at Paris has taken the cases up with the French government individually.

CENTENARIAN IS SOUGHT AS GUEST FOR VERMILION

Prominent Chicagoans, former residents of Vermilion county, are seeking a centenarian—a man or a woman more than 100 years old—to be their guest on Sept. 28, when they charter a special train on the New York Central lines, and go to Danville to celebrate Vermilion county's one hundredth birthday.

Attorney Joseph H. Barnhart is chairman of the Chicago committee, and on it with him are Roy O. West, Col George T. Buckingham, John R. Thompson, William A. Heath, L. E. Fisher, L. Landman, and J. W. Cannon.

The committee is anxious to find the former Vermilionite of 100 venerable years, preferably a native, and if it find him—or her—it promises that that particular Vermilionite never had such a time in his—or her—long life before. The special train will leave the La Salle street station, Sept. 28, at 9 a. m.,

PAULINE APEL, ONCE LISZT'S AID, CLOSE TO DEATH

WEIMAR, Thuringia, Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Pauline Apel, one of the few living associates of Franz Liszt, is dying. Eighty-eight years old, she now, physicians say, only a few months to live.

Thousands of German, as well as American pilgrims to Weimar, visit her, the caretaker of the pianist's former home, preserved just as he left it before he died at Bayreuth in 1886. For thirty years Pauline Apel was the servant and secretary. She knew Liszt as did few others, and among the few is his daughter, Cosima, who is also 88, whose life is ebbing at Bayreuth.

Pauline Apel's daughter, Frau Isadora Beck, 63 years old, now entertains visitors through the Liszt house, which is filled with gifts which his admirers found too costly to use. There are a hundred pipes which he once lighted.

ARCHITECTS JOIN FOR BETTER HOMES FOR CHICAGOLAND

Sweeping Approval of Tribune's Small Homes Competition

"Will be of Immense Benefit"

"I am very glad to see that The Chicago Tribune has started a small homes competition. Anything done in the way of improving the small home is commendable. The Chicago Tribune's selection of well designed small homes will be of immense benefit to the public."

JOHN A. HOLABIRD, of Holabird and Roche, 104 South Michigan Ave., Chicago.

Endorses Competition

"The Chicago Tribune is to be congratulated for instituting a competition for Architects to present designs and plans for the Small Home Builder. This enterprise is a public spirited one, and one which recognizes the need of the best Architectural talent for the layout and design of the small home as well as the design of our great public and commercial structures; which spirit actuated the competition which resulted in the present beautiful Tribune Tower. I heartily indorse the program and trust that it will result in many beautiful designs submitted." PIERRE BLOUKE, A. I. A.

"Splendid Move, Fine Idea"

"I think that it is a splendid move on the part of The Chicago Tribune to advance ideas on small homes in such a way that the public may receive the advantages of the best professional advice. It is a fine idea to assist in the securing of artistic and well designed houses."

H. B. WHEELOCK, President of The Chicago Chapter of American Architects, 64 W. Randolph St., Chicago.

"Of Tremendous Benefit"

"The whole American Institute of Architects is vitally interested in the small home problem. I think that it is of tremendous benefit to the public that The Chicago Tribune has inaugurated this small homes campaign."

ALFRED GRANGER, former President of The Chicago Chapter of American Architects, 332 South La Salle St., Chicago.

"Tribune is to be Congratulated"

"I regard the giving of publicity to the solution of the housing problem of great benefit. The Chicago Tribune is certainly to be congratulated in this small homes competition. Such a competition cannot fail to have a direct stimulating effect on everyone participating in the home building industry."

ALFRED P. ALLEN, of Allen and Webster, 225 North Michigan Ave., Chicago.

Approves Heartily

"I approve heartily of the competition for architects which The Chicago Tribune has started. Good taste in homes means good taste in the nation. Charming groups of houses in a community make for happiness. Where there are ugly, poorly constructed homes there is apt to be a lack in civic pride. The home, after all, is everything, and where there are well designed, attractive houses there is fine architecture."

A. N. REBORI, 332 South Michigan Ave., Chicago.

A Chance to Win $1,000 and a National Reputation as an Architect

EARL H. REED, JR., A. I. A., PROFESSIONAL ADVISER

SCARCELY had the first announcement of The Tribune Small Homes Competition been made before architects sent in enthusiastic endorsement of the plan to bring charm and excellence to the modest home. Already hundreds have requested details of the Competition and have signified their intention to submit designs. The response has been as enthusiastic as when the famous Tribune Tower Competition was announced.

There is a definite need for improvement in design and construction of the small home. This Competition has aroused intense interest in remedying the deficiency. Architects, draftsmen, builders, real estate men, home owners and those about to build are joining in this movement. Read what prominent architects say above.

The five and six room houses are of vital concern to countless families, eager to own homes but deterred because of the lack of suitable designs. For nearly a year The Tribune has sought through its editorial columns to show the possibilities of the small house. Each week typical plans, perspectives and rough estimates have been given to illustrate how the architect and builder can achieve charm and convenience.

A challenge to American architects

It is admittedly harder to design a small home of distinction than a larger one. Yet no type of building offers a larger field for creative ability. Never were there so many families intent on building small homes. The Tribune Competition will for the first time bring an exceptional array of talent and experience to the problem.

Modern science has given new aids to the architect and builder. Strangely, the small home has not advanced with other designs. The builder of limited income has not had the advantages of architectural progress. It is to relieve his condition and to eliminate stereotyped styles that gave form to The Tribune Competition. Now materials, devices and arrangements and building economies, hitherto restricted to the larger building, will be studied from the standpoint of the man of average means.

The designs in this Competition need not be limited to any period, style or country. Individual judgment and taste are given full rein. Beauty, convenience, excellence of design and economy of construction alone are to be considered. The designs, however, must be for five or six room homes.

Architects and architectural draftsmen are invited to submit one, but not more than one, design in each class. All designs will be anonymous until after the jury makes its awards. The program of the Competition has received the approval of a sub-committee on competitions of the American Institute of Architects in form and procedure.

$7,500 in Cash Prizes to Architects, Draftsmen and Students for Designs of Five and Six Room Houses

For first prize designs in each class at $1,000 each	$2,000
For second prize designs in each class at $750 each	1,500
For third prize designs in each class at $500 each	1,000
For fourth prize designs in each class at $300 each	600
For fifth to tenth prize designs in each class at $200 each	2,400
Twenty cash prizes, totaling	$7,500

The jury of award for The Chicago Tribune Small Homes Competition follows:

JOHN M. HOWELLS and RAYMOND HOOD, architects of Tribune Tower.

HOLMES ONDERDONK, Manager of Chicago Tribune Properties.

EARL H. REED, Jr. of the American Institute of Architects will act as professional adviser.

Each set of prize winning designs will be published in The Chicago Tribune's Sunday Real Estate and Home Builders' Section beginning with Sunday, January 3, 1927, and continuously each Sunday thereafter until the plans are exhausted. The Chicago Sunday Tribune Real Estate and Home Builders' Section is the largest in Chicago and has commanded interest and respect from a large audience for many years. In this way prospective home owners as well as the winning architects will receive the maximum benefit from the Competition. Readers will then be encouraged to own their own homes.

The Competition opened on last Sunday, September 12, 1926, and will close at 5 p. m., Wednesday, December 1, 1926.

For complete information, write immediately for a copy of the program. Address The Chicago Tribune Small Homes Competition, Tribune Tower, Chicago, or you can obtain a copy of the Competition Program by calling at the Public Service office, 11 South Dearborn Street.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

DAUGHERTY GOT $74,000 BRIBE, U. S. TO CONTEND

Prosecutor Hopes to Trace Bonds Through Banks.

New York, Sept. 18.—[Special.]—The high point of the conspiracy case against Harry M. Daugherty, former attorney general, and Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian, will be reached early next week when the government attempts to prove that the defendants actually shared in accepting a bribe.

Observers of the case agree that all the evidence introduced thus far in the two weeks which the trial has occupied has been largely preliminary.

The outcome will stand or fall, they say, by the success which meets the efforts of the prosecution in showing that part of the $441,000 paid to the late John T. King, Republican national committeeman from Connecticut, was turned over to Daugherty and Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian.

Described as Retainer.

Fifty thousand dollars has been accounted for, the government contends. This was handed to King in the form of a check, described as a retainer by Richard Merton, German metal magnate, as an inducement to promote a claim for $7,000,000, representing the proceeds of the sale of stock of the American Metal company formerly owned by the two German corporations headed by Merton.

This payment was made late in July, 1921, the government attempted to introduce in evidence on Thursday a check for $25,000 made out to cash on Aug. 1 of that year. It is asserted that this payment, half of the $50,000 retainer went to Smith. The check was ruled out as evidence, but efforts will be made next week through bank records to show that Smith received this money.

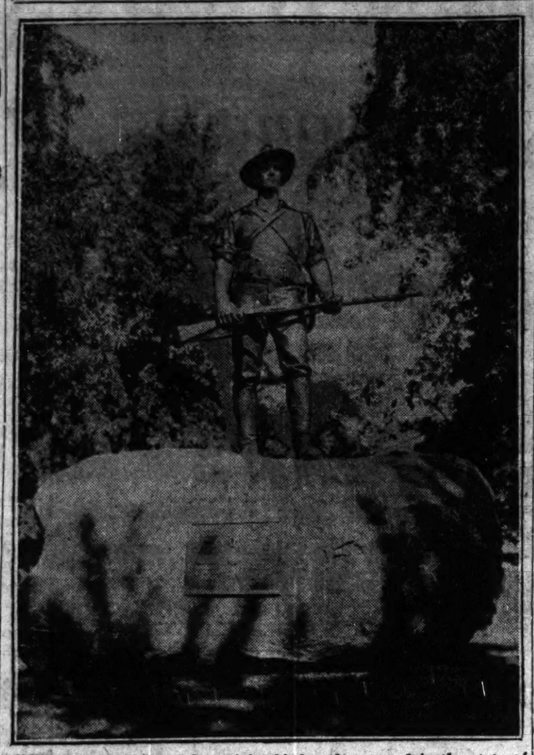
The remainder of the $441,000 was paid to King in Liberty bonds, according to Merton's testimony, which the defense does not contest. The $391,000 in bonds represented 5 per cent of the whole amount involved in the claims.

Trace Liberty Bond Numbers.

The government will contend that $100,000 of the $391,000 was kept by King; that $50,000 went to Miller, and that two blocks of bonds, $50,000 of one and $34,000 of another, went to Daugherty. The prosecution believes it can trace these bonds through records of banks, since all the bonds are numbered.

Efforts will be made, through the introduction of bank records, to trace coupons from an additional $100,000 to Daugherty.

Spanish War Veterans' Memorial



This monument, the first of its kind to be erected in the state of Illinois, will be dedicated Sunday, Sept. 26, in the Bohemian National cemetery at Crawford and Foster avenues.

132D INFANTRY WILL DEDICATE FORGES WOODS

Palos Tract Named in Memory of Battle.

Eight years ago Chicago's 132nd infantry captured Forges Woods, a supposedly impregnable German stronghold on the Meuse river in France. Next Sunday, in commemoration of that victory, Forges post of the American Legion will dedicate a large section of Palos Park forest preserve, as Forges Woods, and many of the men who are to take part in the ceremonies are men who fought over that battlefield in France.

Cermak Gives Plot.

The section to be known as Chicago's Forges Woods has been given the Legion post by Anton Cermak, president of the county board.

At the ceremonies in the preserve, Mr. Cermak himself will make the official presentation, Gen. John J. Garrity will accept on behalf of the post, and the principal address will be given by Brig. Gen. Abel Davis, who as colonel, commanded the 132nd through its service in the world war.

Story of the Fight.

How peaceful will be these services of next Sunday in comparison with the fire and flame of Sept. 26, 1918, may be conceived in the following report of the engagement, taken from the official records of the regiment:

"The regiment . . . met very severe resistance from a mass of machine guns echeloned in five tiers. So heavy was this fire that further progress in line formation was impossible, and the troops accordingly split up into small combat groups. In this fashion the regiment pushed forward under incessant fire, flanking the machine gun nests. . . . Forges Woods had been held by the Germans for four years . . . a veritable fortress bristling with machine guns . . . . Eight hundred prisoners were taken. . . . Our casualties were one officer and 15 men killed and 72 wounded. . ."

Capt. John O'Donnell, overseas chaplain of the 132nd, will pronounce the invocation. Col. Fred E. Rand, present commander [major overseas] also will speak.

POLITICAL INFLUENCE ON ARMY PROMOTION LIST IS FROWNED ON

Washington, D. C., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—With a new chief of staff of the army to be selected within a few weeks, unusual interest was attached today to a semi-official announcement by the war department that political activity in behalf of assignments or promotions hereafter will be absolutely taboo.

In an article published today, the Army and Navy Journal states that it has been requested again to inform the service that the application of political pressure upon Secretary of War Davis and President Coolidge in behalf of officers seeking promotion or assignment is detrimental to army morale and will not be tolerated. It further states that the President and Secretary Davis have determined that any officer using such influence will be considered to have a record which does not justify granting a request made in his behalf.

Maj. Gen. Charles P. Summerall is named by the Journal as most likely to be appointed to succeed Maj. Gen. John L. Hines, the present chief of staff.

Two Brothers Kidnaped in Automobile and Robbed

Robert and Richard Baldwin, brothers, 5112 Dorchester avenue, were kidnaped and robbed yesterday by three men who forced them to enter their automobile at 51st and Greenwood. During the ride Richard was robbed of $63 and a watch and Robert had $60 and a watch taken from him.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH WILL BE DEDICATED TODAY

The Fourth Congregational church at Talman avenue, just north of Logan boulevard, will be dedicated today with three services, one at 10:30 a. m. and the others 3:00 and 7:30 p. m. Four former pastors and the officials of the City Missionary society will be present. The Rev. F. E. Stillwell, the pastor, will be in general charge.

The new parish school of St. Peter's Evangelical Lutheran church at Michigan avenue and 74th street, will be dedicated today at 3:00 o'clock. There will be addresses in German and English. The Rev. Charles W. Tedrahn, the pastor, will speak the special words of dedication.

CHAUFFEUR ROBBED OF CAB, CASH.

John Ambrose, 114 North Sheldon street, a chauffeur, was robbed of his cab and $15 by a man who hired him at 63d and Cottage Grove avenue.

BRUISES COST MODEL HER JOB; WINS A DIVORCE

As proof that her husband beat her so badly that she lost her position as an artist's model, Mrs. Rosamond Wagman, 4449 North Robey street, yesterday exhibited a bruised shoulder to Superior Judge Marcus A. Kavanagh and was granted a divorce from Arthur Wagman, a salesman.

Questioned by her attorney, Lloyd A. Faxon, Mrs. Wagman said she was married in February, 1923, and that her husband began to treat her cruelly a few months later.

"I had to earn money by posing as a model," she told the judge. "But he struck me and bruised me so much that I couldn't wear an evening gown. And as for lingerie, that was simply out of the question. I was black and blue all over."

50% Power Increase Since 1920 —the Biggest of any American Car!

IF POWER is what you want in the next car you buy, you deserve to know all the facts about all of them.

In the six years since 1920—recognized as the period of greatest power advance since the industry began—Franklin tops the entire American field with a tremendous gain in ability of 50%!

The Thrill of Franklin Power

Just watch it shoot away from the next traffic line-up. Just notice the number that pass you on the long, hard hills. Just note how often you find one waiting for you at the end of a long day's run.

But only with your foot on the accelerator and your eye on the speedometer can you fully appreciate its instantaneous pick-up, its relentless power on the hills, its sustained high speed on the straightaway.

And the Franklin speedometer never varies from the exact truth more than 2%. It is a Waltham—the most accurate made.

Power That is 100% Usable

Best of all—and this is the secret of Franklin's matchless speed over the day's run—this power is 100% usable!

Over roads that force other cars to slow down, Franklin's super-flexible construction allows the owner to skim along without perceptible change in riding ease or speed.

Up hills and through mud and sand that shout caution to every water-cooling system, Franklin's advanced air-cooling permits its engine to work at full capacity without halt or danger of damage.

And over distances fatiguing for drivers of other cars, Franklin's freedom from unnecessary weight, its advanced steering-gear and its non-skid transmission brake encourage maintenance throughout the day of the same fast pace you started out with!

That's the Why of Franklin's Road Records

One long drive will make it clear to you why Franklin holds road records in all parts of the country—a growing list. It goes faster—and climbs hills better—more of the time!

In every important phase of ability, it shows a clean pair of heels. Start any hill at 15 miles an hour, and there is nothing in America that will pull with such tenacity so smoothly and quietly.

And for a quick getaway at the top, the New Franklin has no equal. It leaps away like a deer—fresh as before. Air-cooling alone can give this extraordinary protection from power-loss.

The World's Most Advanced Motor Car

Air-cooling alone would entitle the New Franklin to this leadership. Ask aviation engineers. They will tell you that airplanes adopted air-cooling not only because of greater reliability, but also because of greater power efficiency. Only Franklin offers this great feature in American motor cars.

Built with extreme care, of the finest materials, on the most advanced principles, the New Franklin gives a total of elements in modern owner satisfaction which no other car today can duplicate.

Let the nearest Franklin dealer show you all you should know about the New Franklin —with emphasis on the results its power makes possible!

Do you realize how easily, under the 25th Anniversary Plan, you can own the New Franklin? Your old car applied in trade, and low monthly payments, make it the wisest investment of the day. Price includes balloon tires, Watson Stabilators, front and rear bumpers, spare tire, tube, cover and lock, windshield wiper, rear-view mirror, stop and tail light, oil gauge on dash, and transmission lock.

SALVATION ARMY SEEKS $319,000 FOR CITY'S POOR

Says 94 Cents of Each Dollar Goes for Relief.

Out of every dollar given, 94 cents actually goes to the poor, the Salvation Army promises this morning as it prepares to start its annual appeal for funds with which to carry on its last year's work among the destitute and the unfortunate of the city.

The low cost of the administration of its charity—only six cents on the dollar—the Army points out, is due to the generous service of a large volunteer army of the city's leading men and women. They not only freely give their services in helping to collect the annual budget but also they give of their wisdom and experience in its best possible distribution.

Will Spend Its Budget Here.

The Salvation Army this year, under a carefully laid out program of the Chicago advisory committee, on which leading business men are serving, is asking $319,000. That amount, it is pointed out, actually is needed for the Army's work—there is a place for every dollar to give relief—and every penny will be expended right here in Chicago, where it is asked for.

Here is a list of the leaders who, by way of expressing their confidence in the Army and its work, this year are serving on the advisory committee, most of them having served in that capacity year after year:

Chairman—Lewis E. Myers of the L. E. Myers company. Members—Arthur Andersen, Arthur Andersen & Co.; Lester Armour of Armour & Co., C. A. Cairns of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad, A. B. Clift of the Illinois Central railroad, Mrs. Charles King Cornant of Glencoe, John F. Gilchrist of the Commonwealth Edison company, Herman H. Hettler of the lumber company bearing his name, De Forest Hulburd of the Elgin National Watch company, Albert D. Lasker, Ltd., Thomas & Logan, Attorney Nelson William MacChesney, John J. Mitchell Jr. of the Illinois Merchants' Trust company, Frederick W. Moore, Moore, Chase, Lyman & Hubbard; Stuyvesant Peabody of the Peabody Coal company, William J. Sinek of the Sinek-Sinek company, and Lawrence Williams of the Harris Trust and Savings bank.

To Collect by Industries.

Mr. Hettler is general chairman of the committee seeking the fund. The campaign will be conducted by trades and industries, each being assigned its quota. For this purpose the city has been divided into 57 basic industries, and a chairman in charge of contributions has been appointed for each.

The Salvation Army shows that some of its uses for the fund are $31,000 to operate the women's home and hospital, where unmarried mothers and their babies are cared for and given medical attention; $99,000 for food, fuel, clothing, and medicines; $58,000 for the maintenance of 21 corps headquarters where the poor and homeless may go to appeal for help and so on. The Salvation Army operates sixty-one institutions of various kinds in Cook county. They include 22 boys' clubs, 23 girls' clubs, 23 Sunday schools, 1 infants' nursery, and 1 gymnasium.

FETE TO HELP RAISE FUND FOR GREEK CHURCH

A campaign to raise funds for the erection of a new edifice to replace the St. Constantine Greek church and Kirsee school, which were destroyed by fire last winter, will be opened tomorrow night with a charity ball at the Aragon ballroom, Winthrop and Lawrence avenues.

Three of the most prominent Hellenic Young Lady's societies, one on each side of the city, will be in charge of the entertainment.

The feature number will be a series of classical interpretation of old and modern Greek dances.

LEADER IN DRIVE

John F. Gilchrist, vice president of the Commonwealth Edison company, who is taking an active part in the Salvation Army's campaign.

WOMAN ROBBED IN HOME.

Miss Ina Haywort, 4525 Bowen avenue, was robbed of her purse containing $6 yesterday by an armed colored man who surprised her in the hallway of her home.

ENROLLMENT IN NIGHT COURSES UP TO FORECAST

Registration for the first term of free public evening schools yesterday indicated that the expected enrollment of 65,000 will be reached by tomorrow night when the schools open, Morgan G. Hogge, assistant superintendent, reported.

Only eleven of the thirty schools turned in their enrollment record yesterday. Of these, Englewood high school, where regular day school courses are to be offered, had the highest figure. D. M. Davidson, principal at Englewood, reported that 4,000 night school students enrolled.

C. A. Petterson, principal at Schurz high, the only other high school furnishing day school credits, reported an enrollment of 3,000.

Lane Technical high reported 1,000, consisting largely of steam engine apprentices and young men in architects' offices. Tilden High signed 402, most of them seeking Diesel engine courses. A policeman, 55 years old, came to the Tilden saying that he wanted to study so that he wouldn't have to be a policeman all his life.

MRS. B. S. SMITH HEADS AUXILIARY OF STATE LEGION

The new officers for this year of the American Legion auxiliary department of Illinois were announced yesterday as follows: Department president, Mrs. Bessie Stuart Smith, Chicago; first vice president, Mrs. Mary Ennis, Greenview; second vice president, Mrs. Pearl Duncan, Glen Ellyn; treasurer, Mrs. Eva Springer, Elgin; historian, Miss Claire Loenker, Quincy; chaplain, Mrs. Pearl Middleton, Pontiac; secretary, Mrs. Ida E. G. Sherman.

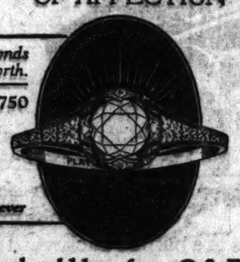
Diamonds
THE PERFECT TRIBUTE OF AFFECTION

You can always buy Diamonds of us for what they are worth.

DIAMOND RINGS—$25 to $750

By far the greatest number of diamond rings are bought for "Her" as an engagement ring. But diamonds are also desirable for other good reasons: as an investment—they last; to satisfy your love of the beautiful—an inspiration; for its preciousness—nothing can quite take the place of a diamond.

A Ring of Beauty is a Joy Forever



THREE Reasons why you should buy from O & E

CREDIT at Cash Prices — Credit at Cash Prices is a slogan originated by O & E. We know its full meaning and mean what we say. Our credit system is open to all—no interest, no carrying charge, no penalties attached to your use of it.

Finally—WE FOUND THE RADIO THAT MAKES Everyone AN EXPERT

Sensational ERLA Advantages —A Year Ahead!

1 Makes everyone an expert in getting distance.
2 Banishes squeals and howls forever.
3 Does not radiate into neighboring cabinets.
4 Reproduction positively lifelike.
5 Razor-keen selectivity with actual gain in volume.
6 Superior value at surprisingly low cost.

Erla DeLuxe Console, in quartered and matched burl Walnut, antique finish. List price, $146.50. Standard Console in dark two-tone Genuine American Walnut, $129.50

Anyone

WHO CAN WIND A WATCH NOW COMMANDS THE AIR

New MO-NOD-IC Receiver

Erla Omnitrode Tone Chamber. Finished in rich mahogany-brown and gold. Diameter 11 inches, price $12.50.

Every member of the family—because of an amazing discovery—may now experience a new and thrilling kind of radio reception.

Those who could never quite master the old type radio . . . with this new discovery . . . become expert.

Some who could "coax-in" only a few nearby points . . . now "tune-in" distance . . . by two easy dials.

Station after station . . . new ones . . . they never could get on the old-fashioned radio . . . are now tuned-in and out at will . . . and by anyone.

The squeals and howls are gone . . . now you get stations instead . . . like an adventure . . . new unheard places and voices appear . . . crisp and clear . . . selectivity razor-keen. Fuzziness and distortion totally absent.

An improvement so important . . . you should know all about it.

The Discovery of Scientists

A revolutionary principle is responsible for this latest development. It is the discovery of a distinguished group of scientists composing the Radio Frequency Laboratories. Scientifically, this discovery may be described as "erasing regeneration." Regeneration is the recognized cause of squeals, howls and distortion.

Many times manufacturers have sought to eliminate it. But never succeeded except by sacrificing volume and distance—too great a penalty. Now, at a single stroke, Erla (RFL) achieves this long wished for result. The only loss is the howls and squeals. There is an actual gain in reception.

Erla "Triple-Life" tubes, included at slight extra cost. Detector-Amplifier, base 7, U.X. 12.5. Power Tube, base 5, U.X. 14.0

It is with good reason that the Erla Monod-ic Receiver is looked upon as fully a year ahead. It eclipses all other types by comparison—and best of all anyone can get these marvelous results.

Not many will put up with obsolete radio receivers now . . . especially when the improved Erla (RFL) may be had at such extremely low cost.

A New Standard of Beauty

Picture the Erla DeLuxe Console in your home . . . a true "period" reproduction in dark American Walnut . . . hand-rubbed to a warm dull glow . . . finished after the popular antique manner. Paneling is uniquely attractive in matched burl walnut, infinitely varied in exquisite figuration. Imagine it placed just where you want it . . . ideally compact . . . a nook or corner will suffice . . . occupies no more space than a small table or floor lamp. Other distinguished cabinets also to choose from.

McHUM FREE "A" Battery Eliminator. Price, including tubes, $47.50

Values Unequaled Anywhere

One point will particularly impress you about the new Erla (RFL) . . . the low prices. Producing the new Erla (RFL) entirely by one organization makes it possible to effect great savings . . . outside profits are eliminated and the benefits of one-profit manufacture accomplished.

You can easily compare radio values yourself . . . and should. You will find as we have that you cannot duplicate Erla values anywhere.

Just as a matter of self-protection we advise you . . . do not buy any radio until you investigate the new Erla (RFL). You may as well have these latest improvements so vital to complete radio satisfaction.

See this newest marvel . . . a year ahead . . . you will agree it eclipses all others by comparison . . . The New Erla Monod-ic Receiver. Hear it at stores listed below or have it demonstrated in your own home if you prefer.

Erla De Luxe table cabinet, in quartered Circassian walnut veneers and matched burl Walnut, hand-rubbed and waxed. List price, $95.00. Standard cabinet in antique brown mahogany finish, $65.00. Other Erla cabinets from $45.00 to $250.00 more heating surface more fire travel means Greater Value

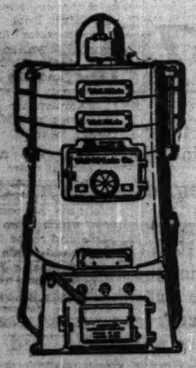
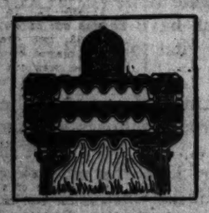
Were we to explain why the Weil-McLain Boiler is held in highest esteem by thousands of home owners, we would say, "First, because it offers them the benefits of vastly more heating surface and longer fire travel, resulting in noticeable fuel saving. Second, because these modern features, combined, create a boiler value that is not paralleled or equaled in the entire heating industry."



Round Type Boiler
For steam, vapor, vacuum and hot water heating; made in sizes for bungalows, residences and small apartments



Note particularly that these boilers have fuel saving corrugations in every section
Weil-McLain Boilers give you more heating surface

Heating Surface Increased

Less than five years ago Weil-McLain Boilers brought to the public a new conception of heating efficiency and economy. Home owners quickly grasped the fact that here was something far in advance of previous practice. They asked us the reasons for these revolutionary results. And here is what they learned.

By means of deep corrugations the heating surfaces in Weil-McLain Boilers have been tremendously increased. This has added greatly to the capacity and efficiency of the boilers without otherwise adding to their size or adding a single penny to their price.

You can easily figure it out for yourself. Picture these corrugations ~~~~ flattened out. They will make a surface as long as this ————. By means of these corrugations Weil-McLain put 40 per cent more heating surface into the same space.

This added heating surface in every section in Weil-McLain Boilers means proportionately greater heating efficiency—more heat per ton of coal or coke or per gallon of oil—lower fuel bills for you—a truly remarkable boiler value.

Fuel-Saving Corrugations in Every Section

The surface directly above the fire is most efficient. To prove this, first hold your hand at the side of a flame—then directly over it. You will find the hottest point directly over the flame.

The candle test (at left) demonstrates in a simple way that heating surface directly above the fire is the most valuable. The Weil-McLain "double-surface" crown sheet section directly above the fire has deep, fuel-saving corrugations to greatly increase the valuable heating surface at this most important point. All other sections have Weil-McLain corrugations to further increase efficiency and save fuel.

Back-and-forth Fire Travel

Long "back-and-forth" fire travel

But this is not all. Perhaps of equal importance is the famous Weil-McLain principle of long "back-and-forth" fire travel. In this modern boiler there are no short cuts to the chimney. The hot gases are baffled backward and forward through the corrugated heating surfaces, until the maximum number of heat units are absorbed and delivered to your radiators.

Scientific Combustion

And so it is throughout the entire boiler. Advanced designing has made possible Scientific Combustion which assures more complete burning of the fuel and more heat in the burning gases.

Weil-McLain Boilers burn any of the solid fuels (hard coal, soft coal or coke) and because of the forethought in their modern design they are unexcelled for oil burning.

Unexcelled for Oil Burning

The quick, intense heat produced by modern oil burners demands in a boiler a great amount of concentrated heat-absorbing surface, large water content and a long fire travel. You get all this in Weil-McLain Boilers through corrugated heating surfaces, large water spaces and long back-and-forth fire travel.

VON ELM WINS GOLF CROWN, 2 AND 1

EXPERTS AND SPORTSMEN PICK DEMPSEY TO WIN

BROADWAY SEES NO RUST ON HIS FIGHTING BLADE

Even Jack Kearns Favors Champion.

New York, Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Opinions expressed by numerous persons prominent in various fields of sport and on Broadway pick Jack Dempsey to retain his championship by an overwhelming majority. Furthermore, most of them predict that the champion will knock out Gene Tunney in an early round.

HERBERT P. SINCLAIR. [Picks Dempsey.]

The reasons advanced for choice of Dempsey are based mainly on his proved ability and his fighting instincts. Even woman, whose presence at championship fights these days makes it necessary to include their views if a symposium is to represent a true cross section of public interest, preponderantly favor Dempsey, despite the masculine inclination to dismiss their judgment as always being for the best looking man in a contest.

Mlle. Barrymore, for example, sums up her opinion of the outcome of Tuesday's battle in these terms: "I cannot imagine any man on earth beating the man I saw beat Firpo."

Keans Picks Dempsey.

Of course, Tunney is not without his supporters. Those who favor him generally base their preference on the fact that the challenger has been active, while the champion has been idle. Others make it merely a matter of sentiment, and some, though they hope Tunney will win, nevertheless select Dempsey on form. One of the most notable to pick Tunney is Jess McMahon, matchmaker at Madison Square Garden, whose experience with boxers entitles him to the rank of expert opinion.

On the other hand, Jack Kearns, who might be expected to let sentiment sway him, picks Dempsey. He says Dempsey still has enough of his former force to win within five or six rounds.

Humbert Fugazy, prominent promoter, and Billy McCarney, who long has had experience with fighters, both pick Tunney. Hardly any of those who favor the challenger expect him to win by a knockout. They generally believe his defensive tactics will enable him to outpoint the champion.

John McGraw leans toward Dempsey, though he reserves a chance for Tunney. Wilbert Robinson of the Robins says "Dempsey by a mile." Babe Ruth says "Dempsey will murder him." Miller Huggins of the Yankees picks Tunney because he thinks Dempsey has gone back.

Among the turfmen, Harry F. Sinclair, Walter J. Salmon, and Joseph E. Widener pick Dempsey. The followers of the thoroughbreds base their opinion generally on form. Peter B. Lenz is one who believes Tunney will win by a knockout.

Broadway Strong for Jack.

On Broadway Dempsey is generally the favorite. Sam Harris, one time manager of Terry McGovern and a lifelong follower of the fights, selects Dempsey, and further rates him as comparing with any heavyweight he ever saw. Al Woods says, "It's all over but the shouting," meaning that Dempsey will win.

Boxing experts on New York newspapers generally are agreed that Dempsey has better than an even chance to retain his title. Their comments thus far, however, are guarded.

This is the comment of one of the best writers on an evening paper:

"Tunney had better watch out that he does not run afoul of the 'wreck,' Dempsey."

Another believes Dempsey has slipped back and comments: "No one can keep the edge of the blade against the rust of the passing years. If Gene Tunney is at his best Thursday night he must be figured as formidable as any opponent in Jack's long list."

The boxing expert of a morning paper says: "The major matter of conjecture in connection with the coming bout is how much the champion has retrograded—if any."

Another morning paper writer, who has been covering big bouts for 20 years, says: "Dempsey has shown that the top of the fighting form he was in then and has run down considerably below the Dempsey of the fine battle three years ago.

The ring critic of another evening paper picks Dempsey as an early winner, saying: "Three or four rounds will be enough for Dempsey to knock Tunney right into the Delaware river."

Here are more opinions which represent the general trend culled from the opinions listed below:

H. R. Bradley—Dempsey looks a standout bet.

Warren J. Salmon — Dempsey; it's time to beat a champion.

Sinclair—Dempsey will win. If he's anywhere near his real form.

Tommy Hornsby — Dempsey should

Jack Thrown In Temporary Receivership

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Jack Dempsey was thrown temporarily in the hands of a receiver late today as the result of a suit filed by Jack Kearns, his former manager, demanding an accounting of all funds earned by the world's heavyweight champion from Aug. 1, 1923, to Aug. 3, 1926, the period of their three year contract.

Dempsey was ordered to appear before Vice Chancellor Robert H. Ingersoll at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning for a hearing.

Vice Chancellor Ingersoll issued a writ restraining Dempsey from leaving the state pending disposition of the suit and also enjoined him from assigning or transferring or disposing of any of his property. A supplementary agreement attached to the decree, however, permits Dempsey to appear through counsel provided the champion posts a $100,000 bond.

Won't Interfere with Bout.

This action will not prevent Dempsey from going to Philadelphia to fulfill his engagement in defense of his world's heavyweight championship against Gene Tunney next Tuesday night.

Emerson L. Richards of Atlantic City, a state senator, was appointed temporary receiver on all of Dempsey's properties pending disposition of the suit.

Senator Richards was obliged to post a bond of $100,000. A bond for the same amount will be required of Dempsey. The order of the court, together with the writ and subpœna, was given to Howard R. Cloud, sheriff of Atlantic county, with instructions to serve them. Sheriff Cloud immediately left for Dempsey's bungalow in West Atlantic City.

Camden Files Suit.

The suit was filed by James Mercer Davis of Camden, a former judge, representing Kearns. Arthur M. Sager of New York, who has been in charge of all legal action for Kearns against Dempsey, also was there. Sager is Kearns' chief counsel.

The suit specifically demands an accounting from Dempsey of every cent he has earned in exhibitions and also the amount of money he is reported to have received in advance from Tex Rickard, promoter of Dempsey's fight with Tunney. Dempsey also must give an accounting of the money he has received in gate admissions from his training camps at Saratoga Springs and Atlantic City.

JACK SAVES $400,000

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Although Jack Dempsey does not traffic in rare language, it now appears that he is by no means the intellectual paralytic that Mr. Gene Tunney's little group of serious thinkers believe him to be. He may have no idea how many angels may assemble on the head of a pin without congestion and he may think that Charles Dickens is only a polite pseudonym for Billy B. Dam but in the matter of quick serviceable thinking, Mr. Dempsey seems to be agile enough for his own requirements, which are rather exacting at this time.

MIKE TRANT.

One's respect for Mr. Dempsey's ability to think fast, rugged thoughts was heightened today when the word spread from pillar to pillar in the hotel lobbies along the board walk that he had met the flashy intellect of Jack Kearns in a fierce exchange of stategems and had completely out thought Mr. Kearns for a purse of about $400,000.

Dempsey Banks Guarantee.

For it now is stated that Dempsey already has been paid his guarantee for the boxing contest, as Tunney delicately describes it in Philadelphia next Thursday night, and has banked the money in California. Mr. Kearns is suspected of instigating the taxpayer's suit now pending in Philadelphia which would enjoin Tex Rickard from paying Dempsey any money on account of the boxing contest, or prize fight, until after the bout, at which time he, Mr. Kearns, doubtlessly would step forth with an attachment and force Mr. Rickard to put Mr. Dempsey's money in escrow which is an expensive word much favored by lawyers, meaning in hock. But apparently Mr. Kearns, who has a low opinion of Dempsey's mental capacity, underestimated the agility of his whilom provider, for he delayed too long and the money, according to today's information, is beyond reach of any Pennsylvania court.

It is explained that Dempsey gave Tex Rickard a receipt in the form of a note which will be paid off by Dempsey's performance in the ring.

Mr. Mike Trant, the Chicago detective sergeant who stands by the screen door of Dempsey's cottage during such time as he is not sleeping with one eye open at the foot of Dempsey's bed, was somewhat petulant today in denying that Dempsey was at all worried by the machinations of this Kearns. The photograph of this Kearns has been turned toward the wall in Dempsey's cottage and his name is not mentioned. Referring to him as "that guy," however, Mr. Trant asserted

LA COSTE BEATS BOROTRA TO COP TENNIS CROWN

French Ace Wins in Straight Sets.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 18.—A 22 year old youth today sits on the hallowed throne occupied for six years by William Tilden.

For the first time since 1920 a new national tennis champion was crowned today when Rene Lacoste of France defeated his compatriot, Jean Borotra, in three sets in the final round at Forest Hills. The score was 6-4, 6-0, 6-4.

Fifty-six minutes were all that were required for Lacoste to crush his weary teammate and to take his place as the second foreign player to capture the American title, now looked upon as the premier prize of tennis, in the forty-five years' history of the championship. Hugh L. Doherty of England was the first, triumphing in 1902.

Hailed as World Champ.

The victory of the youthful Lacoste marks the fulfillment of a prophecy made three years ago, when he first came to the United States as a member of the French Davis cup team. The school boy wonder of France, as he was called then, has borne out the predictions made in many quarters and by Tilden himself, that he was the man of destiny in tennis, for whom fortune held her most treasured jewel in store. Rene Lacoste has at last reached the goal set for him by his father. "Play tennis, if you must," said Pere Lacoste, after vainly attempting to lure him from the courts to business. "But remember that you must become the world's champion."

Today Rene Lacoste is the recognized world's champion. There are some who believe that William Tilden, restored to the plenitude of his physical powers, will be back at the top in 1927, but the fact remains that Lacoste has fought his way through a field that included the Philadelphian and all the other foremost players of the world, and his victory today over the Wimbledon titleholder establishes him as the monarch of tennisdom. Not only does he now hold the turf court crown but our indoor championship also, which he won in February when he defeated Borotra in the final, after the two of them had eliminated Vincent Richards and Tilden, respectively, in an early round.

A One Sided Battle.

In all the forty-five years' history of the championship there has seldom been so one-sided a final as was played today. For one set Borotra fought bravely, and thereafter all was a travesty. Worn out by his two bitter 5 set struggles with Johnston and Richards, Borotra was a mere shell of himself, utterly lacking in aggressiveness and scarcely able at times to drag his tired limbs across the court.

Borotra had difficulty in finding the range with his first service, and Lacoste, playing his shots with great length and good pace, kept him from coming up to play the net game. Occasionally Borotra flashed a pretty shot, especially off the backhand, but for the most part he was hopelessly outclassed.

Even his volleying game fell off, and he erred frequently on shots that, while they were not too easy, would ordinarily be kills for the Basque.

Billy Johnston and Howard Chandler defeated Jacques Brugnon and Watson Washburn in a peppy doubles match, 6-1, 3-6, 6-0. Alfred J. Cawse of Staten Island, retained his title as veteran champion of the United States by defeating Dr. William Rosenblom, of the West Side club, 6-1, 6-2.

London Typist Starts English Channel Swim

CAPE GRIS NEZ, France, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Mercedes Gleitz, a London typist, arrived here early this afternoon and started an attempt to swim the channel at 5:07 p. m. The sea is calm and there is prospect of good weather throughout the night. A prize of £1,000 awaits any Englishwoman who lowers Gertrude Ederle's time across the channel. The prize is offered by the newspaper that awarded £1,000 to Norman Derham, who swam the channel Friday.

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

St. Louis is in the lead, one and one-half games ahead of Cincinnati and six games ahead of Pittsburgh. St. Louis has only six more games to play and Cincinnati has seven.

If Cincinnati wins all of its seven games, St. Louis would have to win all of its six to beat out the Reds. The final standing then would be:

	W.	L.	Pct.
St. Louis	93	61	.604
Cincinnati	92	62	.597

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

New York leads by only two and a half games over Cleveland. New York has nine more games to play and Cleveland has eight. If Cleveland wins all of its eight games, New York would have to win seven out of nine to beat out the Indians. The final standing then would be:

	W.	L.	Pct.
New York	94	60	.610
Cleveland	93	61	.604

Tex Sells Radio Right for Bout; Station Secret

New York, Sept. 18.—(AP)—The Dempsey-Tunney heavyweight championship bout will be broadcast over the radio from the ringside at Philadelphia on Sept. 23, Tex Rickard announced today. The name of the radio concern to which the broadcasting privileges were sold was withheld. Rickard stated that its identity would be made public Monday.

WHEN AMATEUR GOLF CROWN WENT TO CALIFORNIA

Bobby Jones, emperor of golf, from Atlanta, Ga., putting on seventeenth green while his conqueror, George von Elm, looks on, in national amateur tourney at Short Hills, N. J. This putt settled the championship, for Jones halved it with the Californian and the match ended with Von Elm two up and one hole to play.

Cards Divide with Phils; Gain as Giants Beat Reds

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Denny Sothern, pinch hitting in the ninth inning of the second game of today's double header, lined a single that scored Al Nixon from second base and enabled the Philadelphia Nationals to check the pennant rush of the St. Louis Cardinals. The Phillies won, 3 to 2, in a hot battle after losing the first half of the twin bill, 7 to 3.

Despite dropping the second contest, the Cardinals gained a half game on Cincinnati as the Reds lost to New York. St. Louis now leads the National league race by a game and a half.

Hal Carlson, right handed ace of the Phillies, hurled his seventeenth victory of the season, holding the Cards to seven scattered hits and making them fight hard for their two runs. Carlson also helped with a single and a double and scored one of the runs in the tight battle.

His mound opponents were Alexander, who was lifted for a pinch hitter, and Reinhart, a left hander. The latter pitched the last two innings and was charged with the defeat.

The Phillies took the lead in the sixth inning. The Cards scored a run in the eighth to even it up. With one out in the ninth, Nixon punched a single to center. Henline batted for Wrightstone and filed to Hafey. Nixon then made a clean steal of second. Jimmy Wilson was purposely passed, and then Sothern responded with a hit that broke up the game.

Home runs accounted for all three of the Phillies' runs in the first game. Cy Williams hit his seventeenth homer of the season, and Mokan planted one in the bleachers with Williams on base. The Cards were in front, however, from the first inning and increased their lead as the game progressed. Rhem's victory in the first game was his twentieth of the season. Scores:

INDIANS, 3; YANKEES, 1

Cleveland, O., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Before 27,000 fans, the Cleveland Indians took the fifth of the series with the Yankees here today, 3 to 1, and are now within two and a half games of the league leaders. They play their final game tomorrow.

George Uhle held the pacemakers to four hits and, though wild, was able to bear down in the pinches except the fourth inning, when Meusel walked, stole second and came home on Lazzeri's double.

The Indians scored in the first on Spurgeon's single, Speaker's roller to Gehrig which the latter threw into left field trying to double Spurgeon at second and Burns' single. Spurgeon's second single, Speaker's double and Dugan's error of Burns' bounder in the third gave them another. Score:

George von Elm (left) greets the vanquished Bobby Jones after their brilliant match in which Von Elm ascended the amateur golf throne

Von Elm Waited Two Years for Chance to Whip Jones

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Short Hills, N. J., Sept. 18.—George Von Elm knocked at the door of golf's hall of fame for the third time today, and the door opened. The flaxen haired young man who has two years in succession traveled 3,000 miles and more to "take a beating from Bobby Jones" avenged these defeats and wiped off the slate the reputation he has of being able to "beat any golfer but Jones."

He nearly made that hall of fame and wore the amateur crown the last two years, and he came still closer to it this year when as a member of the Walker cup team the score stood 6 to 5 in favor of the Americans and Von Elm and Maj. C. O. Hezlet were still out. It was a close contest, but Von Elm ended all square with the British army's crack golfer and the Walker cup came back to the United States.

Born in Salt Lake City.

Von Elm was born in Salt Lake City twenty-five years ago and learned to play golf while caddying at the Salt Lake Country club. He won his first cup in 1916, when he was only 15, and that was the Utah state amateur. He won various minor titles, and in 1923, when he was 20, made his first bid for national fame. He had qualified in the national amateur at St. Louis in 1921, but was beaten by Jesse Guilford, 5 and 4, in the first round. But the next year he won the trans-Mississippi title, the Pacific nothwest crown, and was runner-up to Chick Evans in the western amateur.

He did not play in the national amateur in 1923, having been barred by the United States Golf association as a result of a controversy concerning gamblers who bet on him, but on investigation it was found Von Elm was blameless. The gamblers were betting on a good golfer on their own initiative.

In 1923 he was back in the limelight, being beaten in the trans-Mississippi final by Rudy Knepper, and he successfully defended his Pacific northwest championship. The national open that year was at Flossmoor, and Von Elm was beaten by Francis Ouimet, 3 and 1, in the third round.

Lost to Bobby Twice.

Then came the two years in which he bowed to Jones in his quest of America's highest golfing honor, the two defeats which he so amply avenged today. In 1924 he went through to the final, only to have Bob crush him, 9 and 8. Last year it was the same thing, and it came in the semi-final, Jones winning, 7 and 6. This year, on his fifth try, he came into his own. He finished second to Harry Cooper, pro, in the Los Angeles $10,000 open last Christmas.

Von Elm is comparatively small and slender, particularly so when he goes around the course with Bobby Jones, who has the chest and shoulders of a Tom Sharkey. He is a handsome chap, with a clean cut profile and a clean, tanned skin, blond hair, and blue eyes with a small but jutting jaw that is set as firm as he plays.

George married a couple of years ago and moved to Los Angeles, where he is in the insurance business and is a member of the Rancho Golf club.

Von Elm was tired tonight, dead tired, and after being presented with the cup left the club immediately for his hotel and bed. He'll take it back to Los Angeles with him, the new two foot, 12 carat gold cup, which was up for competition for the first time this year. The former cup was destroyed when Eastlake, Bobby Jones' home club at Atlanta, was burned last winter.

BOBBY BOWS TO FOE'S UNERRING WORK ON GREEN

Coast Player Leads, 1 Up, at Noon.

BY HARLAND ROHM.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Short Hills, N. J., Sept. 18.—George Von Elm rode out of the west today to avenge two defeats and demand by right of conquest from Emperor Bobby Jones the amateur golf throne of America. And he got it. He defeated the chubby Atlantan, 2 and 1, in the 36 hole final match over the Baltusrol golf course and he did it by better golf.

In achieving his life's dearest wish the flaxen haired young man from the Pacific coast thwarted the highest golfing aims of the Georgia star, that of winning three consecutive American amateur championships and that of winning three of the four major golfing crowns of the world in one season.

They were within Bobby's grasp this afternoon, when after finishing the morning round 1 down, he squared the match on the nineteenth hole, but his fingers relaxed and the thirty year record that no man has won the amateur golf championship more than twice in succession still stands.

Von Elm's Putter Unerring.

Through it all Von Elm put his head down, kept it down, and played golf. He wrote a symphony with his putter and an epic with his irons. Most of the time he couldn't match Jones' drives, which often carried well over 300 yards and rolled 50 yards farther, but time and again Von Elm's iron seconds were inside Jones' on the green. George's putting verged on the miraculous, though he had only two one-putt greens on the morning round and one in the afternoon. At least six times his putts from across the green stopped on the lip of the cup.

At times it seemed that the jinx that pursues two-time winners of the amateur crown was pursuing Von Elm instead of Jones. Four times Bob's putts laid Von Elm stymies, three of which cost him holes or halves. Once he chipped over Jones' ball to stab the putt and win the hole.

Jones was hitting his tremendous tee shots with all his effortless power, but his iron shots were not quite splitting the pin, as they usually do, and his putting touch was not so sure.

Von Elm's card was even par on the morning round, 36—36—72, and Jones had 37—36—72. In the afternoon Jones was out in 35, one under par, and had 33, two over par, for the eight holes played on the second round. Von Elm was out in 36 and had needed a birdie 4 on the ninth for par coming home.

Jones Beaten on 31st.

The Atlanta wizard refused to surrender until the thirty-fifth hole, but he was beaten on the thirty-first. Von Elm was 2 up and 5 to go. Jones' drive sliced into the bottom of a three foot deep ditch and the ball came to rest in two inches of water. He took an iron, but after sizing up the lie called for a spade mashie and hit it with all his power. It was a desperate effort to stay in the running, and it failed by a hair. The ball soared high into the air, directly toward the pin, but caught one corner of a trap in running up. Von Elm won the hole with a par 4 and was 3 up, with 5 to go.

The rest was pretty golf, but the match was lost, except for a miracle, and Jones knew it. No man could shoot Von Elm three holes with five to go when he is shooting the game of golf he was today.

Jones cut George's lead to 2 up by winning the thirty-second hole with his almost inevitable par when Von Elm was short of the green and missed a three foot putt for a half, and they halved the next three holes in par.

On the thirty-fifth green, with Von Elm dormie 2, both were within a couple of inches of the pin in 4s, and Bob conceded the half and the victory. And then the 12,000 surged in, some of them hoisting Von Elm, his sweat stained face crimson and his usually sleek, tow-colored hair disheveled, on their shoulders and carried him in triumph to the clubhouse.

Somebody yelled, "Put Bobby up there, too!" But no one else paid the slightest attention to him. The gallery had found a new king.

Both Show Sportsmanship.

Each studded the gold of his golf with a diamond of sportsmanship. On the seventeenth hole, 578 yards, in the morning round, each had low drives of fully 275 yards and equally perfect brassies of almost the same distance. Von Elm, 50 yards short of the green, pitched to 50 feet of the cup, and Jones, from a slightly nearer spot, sent a high pitch dead on the pin to within 3 feet of the cup.

Von Elm's first putt was two feet over and only a few inches away. George bent over to stroke his second and the unruly gallery began to stampede for the 18th tee. Von Elm straightened up and walked away to compose himself, and Bob, seeing he was disturbed by the racket, knocked George's ball away, conceding him a half. Jones was down at the time.

On the eighteenth Von Elm duplicated that courtesy. Jones hit a 300 yard drive, while Von Elm was 3 yards farther. Bob hooked his spoon second from a close lie to a trap at the left of the green, and Von Elm sliced his iron into the rough grass short and right of the green. George pitched on, 15 feet over the cup, and Bob chipped 15 feet short of it. Von Elm's putt stopped two inches from the lip of the cup, and Jones, after going down on both knees for a full minute to sight his putt, went 18 inches over. Von Elm conceded it for a half.

The eighteenth hole in that morning round will stand out in the memory of the spectators for many a year. Von Elm was two up and his drive took a lucky hop after striking on top of a bunker and rolled to just off the green, 60 feet from the pin. Jones' tee shot was a skyscraper. It struck ten feet from the pin, bounced, and trickled on, stopping hole high to a millimeter and eight inches to the left. It appeared hopeless for Von Elm on that hole, but he refused to be licked until the ball was down. He sent the ball spinning across the green to stop on the lip of the cup.

Bobby Squares Match.

Bobby walked to the tee on the nineteenth hole, 1 down, and addressed his ball in his usual manner, in one word, "crack." The ball sailed down the fairway 275 yards. Von Elm hooked to the rough, topped his second and didn't get out, put his third on top of a bunker, was short of the green on his fourth and on in five. It was his sole exhibition of bad golf all day.

Bob put his second in the rough, but stopped his approach 8 feet from the pin and sank it for a birdie 4, squaring the match, for the first time since the sixth hole. He also had won the hole in the morning round and the pro-Jones gallery yelled with joy.

Both got beautiful drives on the twentieth and they halved it in par fours, on in two, down in two. That was a refrain with Jones all day. They did it all over again on the twenty-first, Von Elm missing a 50 foot putt for a win by a hair. Von Elm ran into his fourth stymie on the twenty-second. Both were on the green with their tee shots, Jones twenty feet from the pin and Von Elm five feet. Jones' putt stopped two inches from the cup in exactly the spot Von Elm's downhill putt would have to break if it was to drop. George tried to curl it in but failed and they halved it in threes.

Von Elm Regains Lead.

Bob outdrove George on the twenty-third but again Von Elm was inside on the green in two and sank a 15 foot putt for a birdie three, going 1 up. Bobby never was square again. They halved the twenty-fourth in par fours. They halved the next, Bob playing his iron second out of the rough into a trap, but it bounced out.

The twenty-fifth and twenty-sixth again were par golf for both. The short twenty-sixth brought more par golf. Von Elm's 15 foot putt for a two was wide, while Bob's 15 footer stopped on the edge and the crowd let out a loud and long drawn out "O-h-h!"

Von Elm went two up, winning the 28th with a par 4, when Bob hooked his second into a trap and dubbed his explosion shot and didn't get out. He got on with his fourth and sank a long putt for a 5. They were ten feet apart with 250 yard drives on the 29th. The gallery's chatter bothered Von Elm as he played his second, and he stopped for a moment and then put it on the green. Bobby was on in two, but George was ten feet over, getting a downhill roller on his first putt. His second dropped in with its last turn-over. They halved the 30th in 3s. Then came the fatal 31st and Bobby was 3 down.

Jones was on in two on the 32d and Von Elm was short. Jones played his long putt up to the cup and George sent his chip within three feet and then missed it, Bobby winning the hole.

Jones Drives 300 on 34th.

The 33d was par 4s, each putting their first putts a foot from the cup. Von Elm's tee shot on the short 34th was on the top of the bank, back of the green, and Bob was closer. Jones' 30 foot putt stopped on the rim of the cup and both took 3.

On the last hole, that man killing 578 yard plus one, Von Elm gripped his club and lashed out a 280 yard drive, but Jones led him by 20 yards without half the apparent effort. Both played pretty seconds but were short, and both were on in 3. Jones' first putt went three feet over the cup and Von Elm's once more stopped on the rim.

Jones walked over to Von Elm and gripped his hand.

"You beat me fair and square," was all he said.

INSURANCE ON CAPT. HAL PAID; DROP INQUIRY

A check for $25,000 has been forwarded to the four Kentucky tobacco market clerks who owned Captain Hal, champion race horse, victim of poison given him by mistake a few days before the Lincoln Fields racing season closed.

The check was sent by the Hartford Insurance company following an investigation which showed that a pharmacist here, in preparing a prescription, had included 16 grains of strychnine instead of four in medicine later administered to the horse.

First reports were to the effect that a stable boy, in reaching for a bottle containing castor oil, had picked up one containing strychnine and given it to Captain Hal. The investigation cleared the stable boy of blame, however, and put it on the shoulders of the pharmacist who prepared the prescription.

"Captain Hal might have been insured for $150,000 if he had been owned by a rich man," one of the insurance heads declared last night, "but his owners, who turned down an offer of $75,000 for him a few days before his death, could pay the premium on only $25,000."

100,000 SCHOOL KIDS SEND CARDS WIRE OF CHEER

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Approximately 100,000 St. Louis school children today joined in a telegram of congratulations to Manager Rogers Hornsby of the league leading St. Louis Cardinals at Philadelphia. The telegram was sent in their behalf by the St. Louis Elementary School Principals' association.

"Congratulations and best wishes for today's games and those to come," the message read. "We are pulling for you."

Lockhart Wins Auto Race at Altoona Track

Altoona, Pa., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Driving a nonstop race at a pace of more than 117 miles an hour, Frank Lockhart, winner of the May 30 Indianapolis motor classic, was the victor in the 250 mile race today. Nursing his motor along, Lockhart never faltered after the first 50 miles, holding the lead until the final bomb. The official time was 2:08:13.

The veteran Leon Duray did not find himself until he had passed the 150 mile mark. Here he pushed ahead from sixth place, passing one driver after another, to take second money. His driving was the outstanding feature of the battle and he brought the crowd to its feet cheering time and again.

Peter Kreis took third place in easy fashion. Harry Harts, well up front early in the race, dropped back gradually, giving way to Duray and Young Kreis. He placed fourth. Bob McDonogh was fifth, Fred Comer sixth, and Tony Gullotta, substituting for Benny Hill during the final 100 miles, seventh.

While Lockhart deserved much credit for his ability to keep going at top speed from start to finish, Duray took the lion's share of the fans' attention. At 150 miles Duray was forced to the pit for a left front tire change. He was then in sixth place.

Going back to the boards after dropping two laps during the stop, he opened his front drive motor wide and ran wild. He lapped the leader twice and pulled up to the runnerup post.

First place took $10,000; second, $5,000; third, $2,500, and fourth, $1,750

The Chicago Cardinals will open the professional football season in Chicago when they meet the Columbus Tigers at Normal park, 61st street and Racine avenue, at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

For two weeks the Cardinals have pointed to this opening game. The back field has practiced diligently the deceptive Notre Dame shift with its crashing tackle attack and its swiftly executed running passes under the direction of Norman Barry, former Rookne pupil and coach of De La Salle High school.

Paddy Driscoll's flying feet undoubtedly will be missed, but Cardinal fans are expectantly awaiting the debut of Roddy Lamb, Lombard college performer. Lamb will be assisted by Ike Mahoney, Creighton, half back, Bob Koehler, Mickey McDonald, and Harold Erricson.

Red Dunn, Marquette university's all American quarter back, will call the signals, do the punting, and toss the passes.

Claypool again will play center, flanked by Brennan and Lunz. Big Weller, Nebraska all-American, is slated for a tackle, and Gillies probably will be stationed on the other side of the line. Bloomer, a tackle by trade, and Nick McInerny will draw the end assignments. Everett Swanson, end, now playing center field for the Missions in the Pacific Coast league, will report later. Swanson played at Lombard with Lamb. McNulty of Notre Dame has not reported. He was out of the game most of last season because of a broken ankle.

The Columbus outfit has a well balanced machine. Petcoff, 1924 captain at Ohio State and an all-Conference and all-Western selection that year, will bolster one side of the Buckeye line with his 235 pounds. Heldt, Iowa, will play center.

Box seats for today's game cost $2.20, and general admission tickets are $1.50.

The Chicago Bears face the Milwaukee Badgers, led by Johnny Bryan, former Midway star, in their initial encounter of the pro season this afternoon at Milwaukee.

With the addition of Paddy Driscoll, who takes the place of Joie Sternaman in the Bear lineup, the Bruins expect to put the right foot forward in the start of another dash for the National league gonfalon. The orange-clad aggregation has had a week of intensive drill supervised by Managers George Halas and Ed [Dutch] Sternaman.

Practically the entire Bear team is intact from last season. Healy, Hanoy, Trafton, McMillan, and the other oldtimers await the orders of their new field general, Romney, Chicago hero of the Princeton game a few years ago.

John Bryan has assembled a new team since he purchased the Milwaukee franchise last winter. Dilwig, Marquette all-American end last year, will be Bryan's star attraction.

GRANGE PLAYS TODAY

The New York Yankees, supporting cast for the second season of Grange football, will meet the Fox Valley All Star team in a practice game this afternoon at Exposition park, Aurora, prior to the trek to Cleveland for the opening game of the American pro league Sept. 26.

Both teams practiced on the Exposition field last week.

Coach Ralph Scott of the Yankees, Wisconsin All-American tackle and former member of the Chicago Bears, has rounded his organization of high priced talent into a workable grid machine. To assist this backfield, he has selected Otte, Iowa, Goebel, Michigan, ends; Kearney, Cornell, Hail, Illinois, tackles; Minnick, Iowa, Schimetch, Columbia, guards, and Griffen, Iowa, center.

WOMAN PILOTS SPEED BOAT TO DOUBLE VICTORY

Washington, D. C., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Matching her skill and nerve against men long seasoned in the speed boat racing game, Mrs. W. J. Conners, wife of a Buffalo publisher, drove Miss Oxeechobee to victory today on the Potomac river in the national regatta for the silver cup sponsored by the secretary of the navy.

Then she drove the same craft over a six mile stretch to defeat Mrs. Delphine Cromwell, daughter of the late Horace E. Dodge, automobile manufacturer, in Miss Syndicate. In the silver cup race Mrs. Conners averaged 52.59 miles an hour and in the match event she made 53 miles an hour.

J. Gordon Hamersley of the Columbia Yacht club, New York City, shared honors with Mrs. Conners winning the President's gold cup with Cigarette IV. by taking first place in each of the three 15 mile heats.

Miss America V. piloted by Gar Wood, won the international hydroplane race over Miss America IV., the only other boat to finish.

Woodlawn and Elim Nines Win in Church A. A. Games

Semi-final games in the Church A. A. baseball pennant race were played yesterday. Woodlawn Baptist beat Drexel Park Presbyterian, 10 to 2, at White City park. Elim Swedish won both ends of a double header at De Paul field, taking the opener from West Side Reformed, 12 to 0, and the final, 9 to 4, from the Maywood M. E. The first round of the finals will be played on Logan Square field next Saturday.

Sox Win Fourth Straight Game from Boston, 6 to

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

Those persistent White Sox grabbed another ball game from the forlorn Boston outfit yesterday, making four in a row, and now the Collins tribe is only two and a half combats behind Washington, which was thumped over in Detroit. The score was 8 to 1, with the Sox always in front and on their toes.

HOLLIS THURSTON.

The incentive of finishing fourth and thus cutting into the post-season bonus bag has kept the Sox hustling in great style now for more than a week. After the contest yesterday Boss Collins was all smiles.

"Are you going to finish in fourth place?" he was asked.

"Say, we're only four games out of third place," was his quick reply.

Connally Knocked Out.

This spirit shown by the Sox is not only liable to prove disastrous to Washington, or even Philadelphia, but it may simply raise Ned with the Yankees, who come to the south side Monday for four games in three days, a double-header being on the books for Monday. After their experience in Cleveland, the Yanks are likely to be down with dementia præcox or something when they get here.

An attempt was made to beat Boston yesterday with Sergt. Connally, king of the bullpen, on the slab. The sergeant was all rested up and, consequently, off form. For several days he hadn't been called upon for relief duty and spent the afternoons sitting in the shade. The sergeant isn't himself unless on constant duty in the pen and called to rescue some mate at least once every afternoon.

However, he was still ahead when taken out in the fourth, after being tapped rather freely. Hollis Thurston came to his aid, picked up the game, and hurled like a champion ace to the finish. Hal Wiltse started for Boston and was knocked flat before the second round was over. His left-handed stuff baffled nobody. Tony Welser rushed in and stuck to the finish, but the ball game was gone.

Sox Get Early Lead.

The Bean Boys nicked the sergeant for a run in the first on hits by [illegible] and Jacobson, with a scorless inning, but the Sox came right back two on a single by Hunnefield, a by Whispering Bill Harris, and rifice fly by Sheely.

In the second inning [illegible] with a single and Schalk [illegible] a pitched ball. Berg [illegible] Connally singled, scoring Ken[illegible] Mostil doubled, scoring Sheely, ger replaced Wiltse and [illegible] fuss, but not until Connally [illegible] on an infield out.

Singles by Rosenthal and [illegible] lowing a pass to Jacobson [illegible] enemy a run in the third [illegible] Herrera's single and Welser [illegible] scored another in the [illegible] geant was yanked and Thurston [illegible] forth and stopped the [illegible] stone still to the end.

The Sox got their [illegible] fourth without a hit. Schalk [illegible] and advanced on a passed [illegible] bunt put him on third, [illegible] tallied on Thurston's sacrifice.

Notes of the Cubs

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 18.—The Cubs left at midnight for New York. They have nothing to do tomorrow except to watch the Cardinals and Giants battle. On Monday the Cubs must take on the McGraw gang in a double header.

In the sixth inning of the first game Catcher Taylor threw his glove at the feet of Ump McLaughlin by way of registering dissatisfaction with a decision. He was chased. Manager Bancroft did a lot of talking about the matter and he, too, was fresh aired.

The day was fairly pleasant, so about 6,000 customers turned out. Judging by the noise they made, at least 99 per cent of them were deaf and dumb.

Cubs Lose to Braves, 3 to 2; Then Win, 6-0

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., Sept. 18.—After being plate shy for several days, McCarthy's Cubs overcame their modesty this afternoon and ended their painful losing streak by bumping off the Braves in the second portion of a double header. The first encounter ended in a 3 to 2 triumph for the home breds and registered the fifth straight trimming for the Chicagoans, but the Bears came to life admirably in the nightcap and annexed the working end of a 6 to 0 score.

SHERIFF BLAKE.

Next in importance to the shattering of the losing streak and the recovery of the batting eyes that have been dim since Hack Wilson was beaned was the hanging up of a new double play mark by the Bruins. They accomplished none in the first game, but in the second reeled off three to make a total of 173 for the season. This shatters the 172 league record held by the Phillies, and if the McCarthy infield continues to prosper there is a chance that the American league's record of 182, held by Washington, may be dumped into the discard.

Cubs Fall in Pinch.

Chicago started the opening game impressively by scoring a run on a hit by Adams and an error and a few other things. The tally proved worthless because the Braves popped right back with a pair in their half. Bancroft led off with a single and Welsh sacrificed. Mann scratched a hit past Jones and both scored eventually, one on an infield out and the other on a blow by Brown.

After the shaky first inning the affair proceeded leisurely until the sixth, when the Cubs could have had a lot of runs at bargain prices. They got nothing. With the sacks filled and none out, Grimm, Freigau, and Jim Cooney couldn't lend assistance. Better luck attended their efforts in the seventh, however, and they tied in the two apiece. Jones started this run with a single and completed the journey on safe clouts by Adams and Scott. This was the only inning in which the Cubs made more than one hit.

It wasn't altogether Jones' fault that the Braves assessed him for the decision in the ninth. Gautreau batted for the pitcher and walked. A sacrifice shoved him to second. Welsh flied out and Mann was purposely passed. The strategy would have panned out if Scott and Adams hadn't been over ambitious on High's low fly. Both tried to get it and they bumped. The pill fell unmolested for a single and Gautreau ran home with the winning run.

Cubs Win Second Easily.

The Cubs made another good start in the second by scoring once against Eddie Hearn in the first chapter. Adams opened with a hit and Heathcote followed suit. A pass to Scott loaded the corners with

Three Shows This Week in Chicago Rings

Three boxing shows, enlisting the services of popular fighters, will be held in Chicago this week.

Paul Allen, who learned to box at the University of Illinois, will meet Herbie Schaeffer of the south side in the windup of Mique Malloy's show at the Southtown A. A. park, 74th and Aberdeen streets tomorrow night. They will box ten rounds at 160 pounds. Emil Baksic of South Chicago and Haaken Hansen of Norway clash in the six round semi-windup at 158 pounds.

Eddie Shea, the west side Italian 158 pounder, will make his first appearance in Chicago since the passage of the boxing bill against Billy Humphries, English featherweight in the banner event of Neil Verrup's show in the north hall of the Coliseum on Tuesday night. Joe Sieloff of Milwaukee and Benny Valgar, the French lightweight, mingle in the semi-windup, which will be supported by three other contests.

Johnny Johntry, former alderman of the old third ward, will make his debut as a boxing promoter Thursday night at Cermak park, 26th street and Kostner avenue.

TUNNEY SLASHES SPARRING MATES IN LONG DRILL

Gene Loses His Smile and Fights.

BY JACK FARRELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
(Picture on page 3.)

Stroudsburg, Pa., Sept. 18.—Gene Tunney apparently has reached the peak of physical perfection. The Greenwich Village heavyweight title challenger proved that to the complete satisfaction of about 2,500 fans as he waded through his daily workout at Glenbrook Country club today.

BENNIE LEONARD.

Gentleman Gene was transformed into a veritable fighting demon over night and those who have grown accustomed to observing the antics of an affable, methodical athlete, marveled at the transformation. It may have been that Bennie Leonard, a great fighter himself, with whom the challenger engaged in a two round star chamber bout during the cool of last evening, gave Gene the cue to cut loose on his sparring partners.

Bennie Cuts Loose.

That private workout with the retired undefeated lightweight champion, incidentally was a darb. Bennie cut loose with all he had while Trainer Lou Fink held the watch. It was no sham-battle but an honest-to-goodness fight.

"Now, Gene, forget who I am and do your stuff," directed Benjamin when they stepped into the ring. And off they went at a slam-bang pace. Bennie assumed the Dempsey crouch and bobbed and wove as he shuffled in and out, tossing punches as he went and with everything he had behind them.

One of Gene's gloves early landed solidly on Bennie's right eye. Bennie countered with a hard left hook to Gene's mid-riff. And so it went for six hectic minutes with a one minute interval between rounds.

"Watch that baby go tomorrow," suggested Bennie as he emerged later from Gene's bedroom after a 15-minute confab.

Slugs Delaney Hard.

That viciousness Tunney has lacked in his training came to the surface today. His two round engagement with Jimmy Delaney was a slugfest all the way. The challenger uncorked a whirlwind two-handed attack which had the St. Paul fighter bewildered. He cuffed Jimmy with short left hooks and snapped over right hand punches to the jaw which jarred Jimmy to his heels.

Tunney was fast and smothered every attack Delaney launched with a flurry of punches. His judgment of distance was accurate and his blows carried right to the mark.

Harold Mays, Bayonne, N. J., light heavyweight, went on in the two round final but was no match for Gene. Delaney and Mays declared the challenger is hitting harder than ever.

The Sporting Goods by WESTBROOK PEGLER

CAULIFLOWER—$20,000,000 WORTH.

On the day that Gene Tunney was being escorted into Philidelphia to stand the mayor's inspection and cast an eye over the seating capacity of the Sesquicentennial stadium, Tex Rickard sat in a drawing room on the train munching his fireproof cigar and doing sums on the margin of a timetable.

"If it goes to a million and a half," Tex said, "I will have a total of $20,000,000 or something close to it, on my books, as the gross turnover on my deals in prize fighting. This dates from the time when I got the boys in Goldfield to subscribe $40,000 in $20 gold pieces for the first Gans-Nelson fight, and thought I was a whale of a promoter. Since then I've had a couple of shows that ran over a million at the gate and my troubles have increased in proportion."

Tex rolled the cigar across his face and drew whirligigs on the margin of the timetable.

"Politicians," he said. "Politicians. Those are the fellers that make trouble for a feller. The politicians got scared and passed that law against shipping the moving pictures of a fight from one state to another and ruined a business that might have been twice as big as the fight business. You can ship moving pictures of a horse race or a murder or a train wreck almost anywhere you like and make money on them, but you can't ship pictures of one guy giving another guy a dab on the nose because a lot of politicians are afraid to repeal that law. Politicians are the yellowest, cowardliest, sneakin'est bunch in the world."

Statesmen as a class were particularly low in Rickard's esteem at that particular time because politicians had chased him out of New York with his Dempsey-Tunney fight and were now coming to him with demands for twenty, thirty, or one hundred and fifty seats at the ringside in Philadelphia. And, to make the situation more oppressive, Rickard knew well that he didn't dare to turn them down because he still had his cauliflower garden in New York and would need their favor in his business.

Tunney then mentioned Benny Leonard's conclusion that the fight business was the dirtiest business in the world and expressed some personal hurt over this indictment.

"Sure, there's dishonesty in the fight business," Gene said. "Now and again there's a fake fight. Now and again somebody lets go a bouncing check or some promoter goes out the back door with the gate receipts and forgets to pay off. But I think it will compare well with the profession of law, which isn't exactly lily white, or the real estate business as I saw it practiced in Florida last winter, or the banking business, for that matter. The law says a man mustn't be charged more than a certain rate of interest for a loan, but you try to get a loan for the legal rate at some banks and see how the boys can run up the price with their brokerage charges and one thing and another.

"Some fighters have to be watched or they will hit on the breaks or carry paving blocks in their gloves, and when they do such things we hear a cry that the fight business is rotten and ought to be abolished. But what about lawyers? Did you ever hear of clean breaks or sportsmanship in a lawsuit? When you have to do business with a lawyer you get yourself a lawyer of your own to represent you. Why do you do that? Because you know that if you don't this other lawyer may trick you into signing away your trousers and charge you rent for a barrel to walk home in."

As one who has handled $20,000,000 worth of cauliflower in 20 years, Rickard allowed that the prize fight business was more sinned against than sinning. The fellow who runs the hat store on the corner doesn't have to hand out a free hat to every second cousin of an ex-alderman that happens to go by the door. But Rickard on fight nights in the Garden has to hide in his inner office to dodge requests for tickets that he would be afraid to turn down.

"Everybody picks on the fight business," Tex complained.

"Well," your correspondent inquired, "if it's that tough, why don't you go into cloaks and suits?"

"O, I'm doing all right," he said. "Twenty million in twenty years isn't bad."

50 Drivers in 100 Mile Race at Roby Today

The 100 mile national championship auto race on the Roby dirt oval tomorrow has drawn more than fifty drivers and cars from various parts of the country—drivers with strings of titles to their credit and cars with records for speed and stability.

DUTCH BAUMANN.

This is the third of the 1926 series of championships awarded to the Roby track by the governing body. The fifty and seventy-five mile titles were decided earlier in the year, and the 150 mile championship is to be run off on Oct. 10, the last meeting of the year.

Indianapolis drivers will again rule favorites. "Wild Dutch" Baumann, winner of nearly $50,000 in purse money this season, will be hard to beat. He will drive the same red Fronty-Ford built by Louis and Arthur Chevrolet which has carried him to many victories on local tracks. Wilbur Shaw and his teammate, Jimmy Copple, also should be up with the leaders.

D. D. Morris, driving Sonny Talamont's new car, and Walter Martin, driving Talamont's old racer, are the outstanding Chicago entrants. Billy Arnold also will prove dangerous.

Time trials will be held starting at 9 o'clock. The big race will start at 3 p. m.

DE PAUL ELEVEN TO PLAY FIRST GAME ON OCT. 8

Coach Eddie Anderson of De Paul university has started football practice with a veteran squad. The back field is practically intact. Capt. Kelly, Gaffeny, Hussey, Doyle, and McInerny have reported.

The schedule, featured by an intersectional game with Niagara university, will open Oct. 2 against St. Mary's of Winona, Minn. The card:

Oct. 8—St. Mary's college at De Paul.
Oct. 16—Columbia at Dubuque.
Oct. 23—Niagara university at De Paul—homecoming.
Oct. 30—La Crosse at De Paul.
Nov. 6—Open.
Nov. 13—Valparaiso university at De Paul.
Nov. 25—St. Viator college at De Paul.

Duck Season Lures Hunters to the Wilds

BY BOB BECKER.

Poor men, rich men, doctors, lawyers, merchants and manufacturers—in fact, men from all walks of life are about to desert desks, offices, and business cares for the sport of waterfowl hunting, which rightfully can be classed as one of the great national pastimes because millions of Americans take part in it. One has only to look at a cross section of the Chicago part of this duck hunting army to see how popular this sport is. A survey of the personnsl of some of the duck clubs along the Illinois shows that hundreds of prominent Chicago executives are shotgun enthusiasts when flocks of ducks and geese come down from the northland.

One of the oldest and best known hunting clubs along the Illinois river, which has drawn heavily from the list of prominent Chicago business men, is the Grand Island, located on a long island near Bath, Ill. Among the duck hunting enthusiasts who make up this distinctive club may be mentioned John T. Pirie, P. A. Russell, vice president of the Otis Elevator company; John Drake, Reuben H. Donnelley, Marvin B. Pool, and George H. Scott, vice president of the American Steel Foundries.

The Wild Wing club near Bath, Ill., represents another group of well known Chicago business men who have joined the shotgun army. Charles W. Folds, president of the Izaak Walton League of America, is a member of the organization. Every fall "Charley" waves an adieu to his Waltonian activities in order to match shot against circling mallard ducks. Among other Chicago executives who are members of this club and ardent duck hunters may be mentioned Theodore W. Robinson, vice president of the Illinois Steel company; Sewell W. Avery, president of the United States Gypsum company; George B. Dryden, Dryden Rubber company, and Warren Piez.

Fred N. Peet, Chicago business man, is another nationally known angler who lays aside fishing rods for a .12 gauge gun during the duck season.

And these are only a few of the many duck clubs to which business men go after the opening of the Illinois duck season.

KANSAS CITY, 4; GIANTS, 3.

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—The American Giants today dropped the first of a nine game series with the Kansas City Monarchs to decide which club will meet the eastern champions in the coming colored world series. The score was 4 to 3. Score:

that Dempsey was not interested in the activities of Mr. Kearns and decried reports that the champion had been subjected to some worriment by that guy.

It was explained that there are four detective sergeants and a 300 pound army captain around and about the premises only because Dempsey has a quaint fondness for the society of detective sergeants and 300 pound army captains, and not because of any feeling of apprehension.

Fitzsimmons Drops In.

Mr. Floyd Fitzsimmons, who is no comic artist, but who nevertheless drew the most hilarious funny papers of the age, the Dempsey-Wills fight contract of Niles, Mich., called on Dempsey this morning, and while standing on the front porch explained that this uproarious document had been worth a million dollars after all.

"That contract was the text of the ballyhoo that built up this Dempsey-Tunney fight so that the gate receipts will run to a million and a half," Mr. Fitzsimmons stated. "If it had not been for the contract which you so rudely described as the funny papers, there would have been no agitation over the side tracking of Harry Wills, and the Dempsey-Tunney fight would have been worth about $400,000 at the gate, and no more."

Mr. Dempsey postured for half an hour on his front stoop this morning under the chaperonage of two local patrolmen and Sergt. Trant, while several amateur photographers made pictures of him shaking hands, personally, with a bevy of prominent Philadelphia social lion trainers. This delegation, belonging to the Penn Athletic club of Philadelphia, then escorted Dempsey to lunch at one of the boardwalk hotels, where he drank a cup of tea and ate part of an olive. Then he went to the ring to execute his daily exercises.

"I am coming along to the top of my form," Dempsey said in discussing the relatively trivial matter of the boxing contest or fight. "I'm not quite ready yet, but I recognize the symptoms. The last two days of training will put me at my peak."

win by a knockout. He's got it all over Tunney.

Harry Ertle—This talk of Dempsey having gone back is tommyrot. I think he'll knock out Tunney.

Jack Curley—I am convinced that Dempsey is in good fighting condition and in good condition Dempsey cannot be beaten by Tunney.

Babe Ruth — Dempsey will murder him. I look for a knockout in an early round. Jack hits too hard for Tunney.

Ty Cobb—Dempsey for mine. He's the champion and still has enough of the old fire to stay champion.

James J. Corbett—Tunney can win if he protects himself for the first few rounds.

William Tilden — My guess is that Dempsey will win by the fifth round if he is the Dempsey of old.

Willie Hoppe—Dempsey as far as it goes. Hits too hard, knows too much.

Flo Ziegfeld—It looks even to me.

Florence Moore—Dempsey will win.

Mitzi—Dempsey will win. I don't like to hurt Mr. Tunney's feelings, but I think Mr. Dempsey will hurt him when they meet.

Kathryn Ray—Demysey will win.

EVANSTON HIGH DEFEATS CRANE ELEVEN, 33 TO 0

TOMAHAWK WINS 300 MILE HORSE RACE; STELLA 2D

Colorado Springs, Colo., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Tomahawk, half standard, half morgan bred gelding of Fort D. A. Russel, Wyoming, today was declared winner of the 300 mile Colorado endurance ride. The winner, ridden by Sergt. Thomas Garrity, received 95.02 points. The horses were judged on time and condition.

Stella, half thoroughbred mare, entered from Fort Meade, S. D., placed second. Vamp, Fort Riley, Kas., was awarded third place, while Prince, standard bred gelding from Cripple Creek, won fourth.

Ranger, 1925 winner, did not place. Bill Johns, 67 year old cowbody, who rode Ranger, was awarded a prize for horsemanship.

Season Tickets Still Available at Northwestern

Several thousand additional season tickets, good for all six of the home games on Northwestern university's football schedule, have been made available to the general public, it was announced yesterday by Edward B. Davidson, ticket manager.

At the same time announcement was made that no more orders for box seats would be booked, the supply being exhausted.

The season tickets cost $14. They entitle the holder to the same seat at every game.

The new stadium will enable the Purple to accommodate three times as many fans as usual, but there is an unusual demand for tickets.

Progress on the new stadium is going along at a rapid pace. Twenty-three thousand seats have been installed. Thirty thousand probably will be ready for the South Daokta game on Oct. 2.

Northwestern football ticket orders should be addressed to the Ticket Manager, 1427 Central street, Evanston.

WAR VETS FILE SUIT AGAINST PYLE, GRANGE

Claim Right to Franchise Held by Bulls.

Professional football, a few years ago a doddering sport which was given only an outside chance of surviving the rigors of one bad season, has grown to such proportions that rival factions are appealing to the court for the right to operate a franchise in Chicago.

This was revealed yesterday when the Disabled Veterans of the World War and the Chicago Marine club brought suit in the Superior court of Cook county against William S. "Big Bill" Edwards, Charles C. Pyle, and Red Grange, officials of the newly organized American League of Professional Football clubs, and Joe Sternaman, manager of the Chicago Bulls.

What Plaintiffs Charge.

The plaintiffs charge that Pyle promised the Disabled War Veterans the Chicago franchise in the league for a team to be known as the Chicago Marines. The Veterans, the petition charges, expended $10,000 in an effort to build a team and secure soldiers' field for their games, only to have Pyle grant the franchise to Sternaman and his "Bulls." The petition asks that the Chicago Bulls be restrained from operating in the city and that suitable damages be awarded the Disabled War Veterans.

Harry Pettit, Howark Shockey, and Dr. R. N. Price, representing the veterans, allege they began negotiations with Pyle in April relative to securing a franchise in his league. They assert that they were promised the franchise, and that they offered to post $25,000 as a guarantee of their good faith.

The petition charges that Pyle proposed that the Marine club secure soldiers' field as their playing grounds, and that Pyle went with the plaintiffs to the south park commissioners for this purpose.

Pyle Aid In Rival League.

The petitioners then discussed with Pyle the effect upon the "Chicago Marines" of the operation of the National Pro league and its two teams in Chicago. They requested that Pyle see that in arranging the schedule of the American league there would be no conflict in dates between the "Chicago Marines" and the National league teams. The petition declares that "Pyle assured the representatives of your petitioners that he had a man sitting in the National league meeting who would make a copy of their schedules for him and deliver same to him in New York City at the meeting of their association during the first week of July, 1926, and that this man would work to the advantage of the said Charles C. Pyle and the American League of Professional Football clubs at said National league meeting—and therefore the conflict of dates would be taken care of; later, representatives of your petitioners were invited by the said Edward Sternaman, who is one of the owners of the said Chicago Bears, to his office, to discuss with himself and his brother Joseph Sternaman the organization of the team which your petitioners were to put into the American League of Professional Football clubs; that at said conference the said Edward Sternaman stated that he was not going to allow his brother, Joe Sternaman, to do any talking, was going to protect his interests and give him his advices, and guide him along——"

"DUTCH" DENIES CHARGES

Edward [Dutch] Sternaman, half owner of the Chicago Bears, national pro grid team, in reply to the injunction petition directed against his brother's pro team of the American league, said last night that he had never at any time met with the backers of the "Chicago Marines," and that their allegations were untrue.

Upon receiving information of the filing of the writ, Joe Sternaman said he was convinced the Marines would be unable to place a team in the field, and proceeded to organize his own club. "I was prepared to post my guarantee, and had a lease on Comiskey park when I appeared at the meeting of the American league clubs in New York. I was granted the franchise.

IN THE WAKE OF THE NEWS

DEMPSEY AND TUNNEY.

IN estimates of the Dempsey-Tunney battle next Thursday night, Tunney followers place their greatest stress on the premise that Dempsey has "gone back." There are a few who think Gene will earn the crown no matter in what height of condition Jack now is, but a majority are banking on the supposition that Dempsey pugilistically will be far from the Dempsey of old.

The Wake does not believe that Dempsey will be the fighter he was on that day in Toledo in 1919 when he battered Jess Willard to submission in one round, although the battle actually lasted three rounds. Indeed, we do not think he ever since has been the man he was that day.

Jack Dempsey, on the other hand, would not go back as fast as most boxers, no matter how long idle. That is because he has the fighting instinct to a degree possessed by no other champions except John L. Sullivan and Bob Fitzsimmons. Jack is a natural ringman, not a developed one as were Jeffries and Willard, successful because of their powerful physiques and what they were taught.

Again, Dempsey is not an "old man," even as ring ages go. He is 30 years old. Tunney is 28 years old. Champion Jack has not taken any severe beatings which undermine the stamina of so many maulers and age them before their time. The title holder has lived an easy life for several years, but he never was one who wrecked his health by dissipation.

The Wake expects to see Dempsey enter the ring in good condition as a result of his serious training. We know he has a fighting heart. He will not be as good as against Willard, probably not quite as good in recuperative power as against Firpo. The questions to decide the battle will be his timing of blows, his power of recuperation if hit first—and how good is Tunney?

Stipulation or Wagers Drawn.

Dear Wake: We have a dispute over a bet on the Dempsey-Tunney fight. I accepted a wager as the other party stated it. He bet Dempsey would win. Now if the fight is a draw, do I win or are stakes drawn? Doc.

Answer—Unless there is an express stipulation concerning a draw at time wager is made, stakes are drawn in case of a draw.

Springtime all too quickly yields to summer's more voluptuous call;
Where roads smile at us in June, there autumn leaves soon fall;
So swiftly summer comes and goes, we scarce take note of time; soon
The flowers that grace the fields will die, the birds take flight, our friends pass on;
And joys that once were ours but stay an empty dreams of yesterday. J. L.

SHAW, OAK PARK LAD, STARS IN BADGER DRILL

Makes Long Runs Through Harmon's Team.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—The play of two sophomore back field candidates, Shaw, former Oak Park star, and Gene Rose, ex-Racine high athlete, featured first scrimmages of the season of Wisconsin grid candidates at Camp Randall stadium today. Piloting a team against a combination headed by Capt. Doyle Harman, Shaw tore off open field gains ranging from fifteen to thirty yards, and eventually advanced the ball in a position for Kreuse to plunge over the line for the first score of the season on a Badger gridiron. Rose took part in a second scrimmage and on the kickoff ran the ball seventy yards for a touchdown. A short time later he booted over a 20 yard drop kick. Both the youngsters were playing quarterback on their teams.

PURDUE

Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Two thousand spectators today watched Purdue's varsity football squad engage in a hard scrimmage under a broiling sun. Coach Phelan used four teams. No brilliant offensive work developed. Larry Deephouse, veteran guard, was the first casualty of the practice, receiving a bad cut over his eye. The scrimmage was devoted mainly to running plays, passes being used sparingly. Defensive work of the first string lines featured the practice.

IOWA

Iowa City, Ia., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Coach Ingwersen stressed forward passing today with Kutsch doing the passing. A long scrimmage between the first and second teams ended the first week of practice. One hundred and twenty-five freshmen were issued suits today and took their first workout under Dr. Belting, line coach. The frosh will carry the attack against the varsity next week. Kutsch and Skelly were the stars in today's scrimmage.

MITZI CAPTURES FIRST PLACE IN YACHT RACES

Mitzi, Commodore Hollis E. Potter's able sailer, showed its heels to a field of four R boats yesterday over a twelve nautical mile triangular course off Belmont harbor, winning in 2:25:38. The race was sailed in a comparatively placid sea, with a light wind blowing.

Nancy, piloted by its owner, Sam Dauchy, challenged the winner during most of the race but failed to hold up near the finish tape and placed second in 2:26:07. Ariel wound up in third position and Sari in fourth, the former doing the distance in 2:27:55 and the latter in 2:31:12. Colleen, owned by Clark Wright and A. C. King, brought up the rear guard in 2:35:42.

The boats got away from the starting line in good order and remained on even terms until shortly after the first mark was reached. Here Nancy and Mitzi moved into a slight advantage and worked away from the field. Catching a good gust of wind from the north, Commodore Potter shot into the lead and, through expert pilot ability, held the lead until the finish.

MAROONS FIGHT TO OFFSET LACK OF EXPERIENCE

Stagg Drives Squad for Florida Game.

Fighting for time to organize a team before the Maroons meet Florida two weeks from now, Stagg is driving his green material in daily practice sessions that have been in force since the opening of drill on Sept. 15. Rumors that the southerners will appear with a powerful team to open the new field are the reasons for the hurry and bustle on the temporary practice field north of the stadium, since Stagg is in no mood to suffer a repetition of the Missouri episode of two years ago, when the Missouri valley team opened the season at the Midway with a 3 to 0 victory.

Line Is Inexperienced.

In spite of the fact that he had no veterans, after four days' practice Stagg is beginning to form a team that may not be as bad as the gloomier of the Midway fans seem to think. The 1926 team will have weight and power in the line, and speed and drive in the back field and at the end.

The line ought to be better than last year's, which broke the tradition of Maroon linemen by allowing more touchdowns to be scored through it in the Illinois and Wisconsin games than it had suffered in the last five seasons. The letter men in the line are Wolf and Neff, guards, and Rouse, center. The other leading candidates are Borden, Welslow, Cochrane, Olwin, Cameron, Clarke, and Lewis.

The back field will give Stagg much more trouble than the line. The Maroons have four experienced backs in Capt. Marks, Stan Rouse, McKinney, and Anderson, the first three of whom are "C" men. Leyers, a sophomore, is being groomed for full back.

Stagg Needs a Quarter Back.

The quarter back situation is serious. Thorpe Drain of last year's team, one of the smartest pilots in the Big Ten, was expected back, as he had another year of competition, but he graduated in June. Dygert and Macklind are the leading candidates for quarter.

At end things are brighter. End Coach Dickson has only one man out, Apitz, who has seen conference competition, but he has excellent material in Spence, a sophomore; "Red" Krogh, Freeman, Fouché, and "Chuck" Hoerger.

Baker Flashes Speed in N. U. Grid Workout

Northwestern university football squad yesterday held its first scrimmage of the year.

Whether the frequent forty yard dashes of Capt. "Moon" Baker and Vic Gustafson, rival back field players, were due to their own clever running or to the opposing line's weakness was hard to determine, but from the side lines it looked like the two fast backs were right.

Rosey, who jumped into Purple prominence on the freshman team two years ago, stood out among the linesmen. Another forward out for the first time yesterday who showed promise was Chick Gandy, a former end from the University of Alabama. He weighs 185 pounds.

More scrimmage is carded this week. The frosh candidate will make their appearance tomorrow and probably will be ready to battle the varsity by the end of the week.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question Sam Sutton, 3208 W. 23d st., Cicero, Ill., was awarded $5.

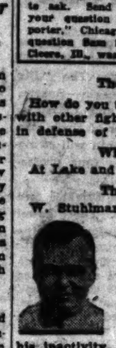
The Question.

How do you think Tunney compares with other fighters Dempsey has met in defense of his title?

Where asked.

At Lake and Wabash.

The answers.



W. Stuhlman, 3649 N. Keeler avenue, superintendent. —From what I have read of Tunney I think he will give Dempsey the hardest battle the champion has had. Dempsey undoubtedly has gone back considerably because of his inactivity. Tunney knocked out Tommy Gibbons, which was more than Dempsey was able to do.

William McKendry, 2646 Ogden avenue, clerk. — Tunney will give Dempsey a harder fight than most fans believe. Any battler who has been through what Gene has is tough. He'll be able to take a beating and come back for more. He looks better to me than any of the men Dempsey has faced.

Miss Goldie Smith, Dixon, Ill., home girl.—All the fans in Dixon are pulling for Tunney. Maybe it's his fighting ability or perhaps it's his personality or clean record. I don't remember any other opponent of Dempsey attracting so much support. I'm for Tunney.

James Schultz, 2508 North Kildare avenue, foreman.—I don't think Tunney rates better than some of the other men Dempsey has fought. Jack has been far too strong and clever for all of them. Maybe Tunney will change my impression of his ability Thursday, but I doubt it. Neither Firpo's terrifying right nor Gibbons' speedy footwork was good enough to offset Jack's natural fighting skill.

Norman Hutchinson, 846 West Mozart street, machine adjuster. — Tunney is faster than any man Dempsey has met and he packs a punch with his speed. I wouldn't be surprised to see Jack's "movie" nose in a cast when he comes out of the ring Thursday night.

TO INTER ASHES OF WESTON AFTER 15 YEARS' DELAY

Boston, Mass., Sept. 18.—(AP)—After lying forgotten for fifteen years in the undertaking parlors of a Dorchester funeral director, the ashes of Frank W. Weston, known as "the father of bicycling in America," are to be buried with appropriate ceremony.

Old friends, members of the Boston Bicycle club, which Weston, an Englishman, founded half a century ago, will conduct the services.

Burial will take place next Friday at dusk, beneath a tree that club members planted on the Fairbanks estate in Dedham ten years ago.

ZUPPKE GROOMS SOPH BACK FIELD FOR COE CONTEST

Illini Line Has Wealth of Material.

Urbana, Ill., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Football practice is in full swing at the University of Illinois with the expected personnel practically all on hand. A few players have scholastic tangles to unsnarl, but the layout is just about what was expected.

This week the Illini had the benefit of two daily workouts, and they also will have full days on Monday and Tuesday. On Wednesday instruction begins and the players will settle down into scholastic routine. In two weeks Zuppke will select a team to open the season against Coe college from Cedar Rapids, Ia. Since this will be the debut of the new back field three sophomores and one veteran, unusual interest attaches itself to the game.

Coe college has a reputation of being a hard nut to crack. Two years ago the collegians tied Wisconsin and the year before they held the Badgers to a 7 to 3 score. The Cohawks are coached by Moray Eby, old time Iowa captain. In the 12 years in which he has coached Coe the collegians have won 59 games, lost 23, and tied four.

An unusual attendance from out of town is predicted for the Coe game. It will be Boy Scout day for troops of Illinois and Indiana and it is expected that 10,000 scouts will march on the stadium field. Many Illini fans plan to journey here to see just what the Illini are going to do without Grange.

Coach Zuppke's early maneuvers this week demonstrated that he still believes in the Lanum, Timm, Peters and Daugherity combination for the back field. He reiterates that none of these players is a Grange or anything like him, but evidently he has confidence in the concerted offense which the quartet will produce.

Two of Zuppke's best linemen were slowed up this week by disabilities sustained before the practice started. Mariner, tackle, appeared with a cast, the result of an automobile accident, and Rickman, a strong sophomore prospect for center, also was handicapped by an infected foot.

Munn No. 4 Out for Nebraska's Freshman Team

Lincoln, Neb., Sept. 18.—The fourth of the Munn brothers is a student in the University of Nebraska. He will be a candidate for the 1926 freshman football team.

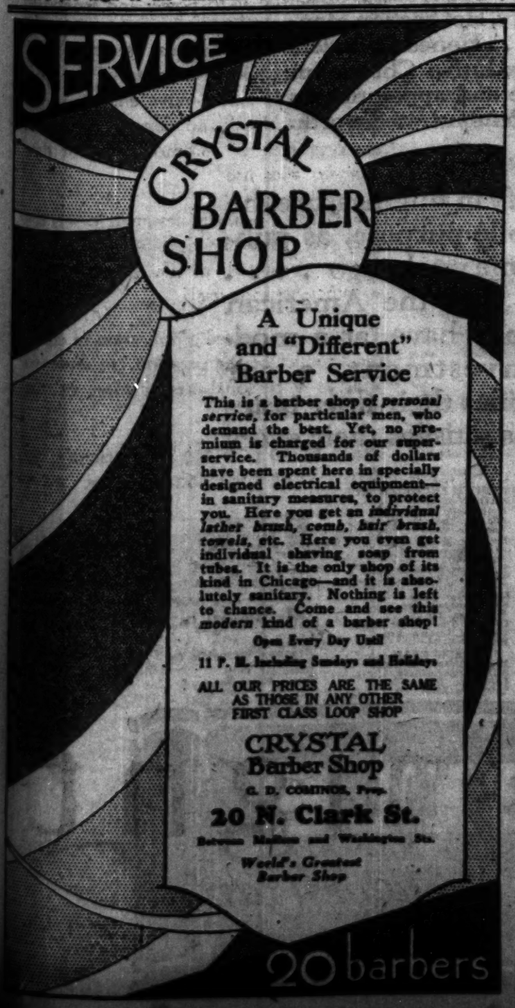
Three of the brothers who have preceded him have been members of the Cornhusker varsity eleven. Monte, former Nebraska state legislator, lawyer, and insurance agent, now a promising heavyweight prize fighter in New York City; Wayne, who wrested the world's wrestling championship away from Strangler Lewis, and held it for a short time, and Wade, a Lincoln insurance agent, are the Munns who have gone before Glenn.

Missouri Star to Coach Lake Forest Back Field

Lake Forest, Ill., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Elmer Kershaw, graduate of the University of Missouri in 1922, has signed a contract to coach at Lake Forest university, it was announced today. Kershaw was a half back on the college eleven and will have charge of the gold coast back field, with Head Coach Floyd Brown coaching the line. The first grid practice of the year will be held here tomorrow.

TOM DROHAN DIES.

Kewanee, Ill., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Thomas F. Drohan, who pitched for the Washington club of the American league in 1913, died here today.



"TROUBLE SHOOTING"

By Guess & B, Gosh

IN these days of advanced automobile design scientifically finished and balanced motors—with delicate and complicated running and operating mechanism—"Trouble Shooting" by "Guess and B, Gosh" is expensive and ruinous.

It costs a lot of money to dismantle or tear down a modern motor or other parts of your automobile and that is the only method the average repairman has of actually finding out "What's wrong," or if anything is wrong.

The Automobile Owners' Testing and Inspection Laboratories, guarantee, with the use of our costly, scientific, specially designed precision instruments and equipment to tell you "what's wrong," or if anything is wrong with your car without taking it apart or interfering with its operation in any way.

We do not make the needed repairs if any, but give you a written shop order, guaranteed to be correct which you take to your own repairman for an estimate of the cost of the work in advance, when finished you bring the car back to us for a re-check without any additional charge.

A modern sensible scientific system of "Trouble Shooting."

Save Money.. It is our business to save you up to 50% of your repair bills and to see that you get complete satisfaction and service as well.

We take the costly guess-work and possibilities of overcharge and bad workmanship right out of your repair bills.

Remember our findings are guaranteed to be 100% correct or your money refunded.

$10 $10

This week, for the modest sum of $10.00 you get a complete and guaranteed test sheet showing the actual condition of over 50 working parts of your car in addition to shop order for needed repairs previously described. Bring your car in at once or phone for appointment and further information.

World's Record Again Smashed by Veteran Roadster

Another world's record for the Wills Sainte Claire Six—the flight from Coast to Coast August 23-27 in 83 hours, 12 minutes!

A performance in itself so remarkable that the world paused to marvel.

Yet the most amazing fact in this astounding demonstration of master engineering and super-endurance was the mileage recorded on the speedometer at the start—

23,023 miles and every mile a tough one—more hard work than the average car is asked to do in two years.

For this is the identical Roadster that crossed the continent in record time in July, 1925, and also established a world's record between San Francisco and Portland, Ore., the same year.

A veteran performer—not a fresh car tuned and tested for a single task. Never has the industry seen its like.

Come in and see the Wills Sainte Claire. Ride in it. Better still, drive it. This is your invitation to a unique experience.. When you're ready, we are.

GOOD FOR YEARS AND YEARS AND YEARS

IRON MASK II. TAKES FEATURE AT HAWTHORNE

Arabian Finishes Second and Sure Fire Third.

Turf Record Set

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—(AP)—R. L. Gerry's Peanuts, carrying 114 pounds, with Jockey Thurber up, created a new American record for the mile and a furlong at Aqueduct track today by stepping the distance in 1:48 3-5 in winning the Edgemere handicap, worth $6,950. The time clips one-fifth of a second from the mark established by Chilhowee at Latonia in 1924. W. R. Coe's Pompey, with Sande astride, landed the place with Black Maria, coupled with Pompey, third.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Iron Mask II, giant French bred 3 year old, carried the red and white silks of H. J. McComber, California millionaire, to a spectacular victory in the $2,500 Rainbo handicap at Hawthorne yesterday. He beat Arabian by a length and a half. Less than another length back came Sure Fire in third place.

And staggering past the finish judges in fourth place, thoroughly whipped after he once enjoyed a long lead, came Stampdale, Christmas gift horse and former selling plater which could have gone into the lead for the Western handicap championship had he won this race.

Stampdale Takes Early Lead.

Most of the 12,000 race-goers pinned their faith and their hope in Stampdale to race on to greatness. They backed him into favoritism. They let out a noisy din when Jockey T. Burns shot him into a five length lead rounding the first turn of the mile and a sixteenth battle.

They continued to cheer as he raced on down the back stretch still five lengths in front. Running in second place in beautiful stride and under a tight pull by Jockey Frank Baker, came Iron Mask II. At the last turn Jockey Baker gave the big Frenchman his head.

Inch by inch those red and white silks moved up on Stampdale. Soon Iron Mask II was within two lengths of the leader. Jockey Burns went to work with his whip and his heels on Stampdale. But the one-time plater, despite the lead he still enjoyed, was quitting. Iron Mask II had too much class. He sailed into the lead at the head of the stretch, but Jockey Baker went far wide and through the opening came Arabian. For 70 strides it appeared as if he had saved enough ground to head Iron Mask II. Baker still refused to go to his whip. He resorted to hard hand riding and Iron Mask pulled away at every stride from then until the finish, always safe from any challenge.

Sergeant Seth Wins Woodlawn.

A good track, ideal weather and the presence of a number of high class stake performers in the Rainbo served to bring out one of the largest crowds entertained at Hawthorne in many years. The stand and the lawns were packed. The scenes in the certificate speculating pavillion were the wildest in the Chicago district this year. Long lines formed at every window. Many were unable to get close enough before the bugle sounded to buy a ticket on the horse they fancied.

There were two other good races on the program, the Woodlawn juvenile purse which found the consistent Sergeant Seth, an odds on favorite the winner, and the Oakwood handicap at six furlongs which engaged a crack band of sprinters. Jockey Bobby Jones was the riding hero with victories on Earl Coe, The Runt and Cup Bearer to his credit.

Chink won the Oakwood in the most exciting finish of the afternoon when Jockey Walter Anderson shot him through a narrow opening within half of a furlong of the finish and shook off Alderman J. J. Coughlin's Ida O'Day in the last strides. Pricemaker had been the early leader, but gave way to the late rush of Chink and Ida O'Day and just lasted to save third money.

Logansport Grid Star to Enter Northwestern

Logansport, Ind., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Russell Walter, two hundred pound athlete, left his home here today to enter Northwestern university, Evanston, Ill. Walter, as a high school athlete, starred in football and basketball and held state high school records in the 220 and 440 yard dashes.

New Midwest Soccer League Opens Today

The new Midwest circuit and the Major league will inaugurate their fall soccer schedules today. The "Big Four" of the new league—Sparta, Thistles, Bricklayers, and Canadian club—will have a series of their own and then early next month will swing into action against the four professional clubs of St. Louis.

At De Paul field, the Brickies and the Canucks will mingle. The "trowel wielders" have been reinforced by the addition of the clever Walker brothers and Goalkeeper MacEwan of Pullman. All three of them are expected to start. The Thistles play Sparta at 27th street and Kosther avenue. The Scots have signed Stewart, a clever English forward, who saw service with Pullman and Millwall; MacKay, a young Scot goalkeeper, and several others.

When the Olympias line up against Pullman at 103d street and Corliss avenue in a Major league game there will be Davie Baird, who has recently returned from Detroit. Andrew Howatt, a star goalkeeper from Newark; Ellis, a Canadian half back, and Matosky, who performed at outside right for the Olympias two seasons ago. Joe Phillips, Pete Quinn, and Dickie Vidano, the three old Olympia stand-bys, also will be on the job.

In other games the North Shores play the British Legion at Evanston, and Buda faces Coal City at Harvey.

Elgin Lightweight Grid Team Ties McHenry, 0-0

Elgin, Ill., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Elgin High school lights opened the grid season here today, playing a 0-0 tie with McHenry heavies. The Elgin heavies did not have a booking.

MICHIGAN GRID COACHES HUNT PAIR OF TACKLES

Loss of Edwards, Hawkins Blow to Yost.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Reporting at Ferry field morning and afternoon for drill in fundamentals and reporting again in the evening for skull drill, sixty candidates for Michigan's 1926 football team have finished the first four days of pre-season practice. Nearly all of the sixty men invited to return for early practice were on hand the first day with a few stragglers coming in Thursday.

Yost was pleased with the general condition of his men, most of whom have spent the summer at some work which put them in good physical condition.

Weiman Coaches Line.

"Tad" Weiman, Yost's first assistant, who developed the Wolverine line last year, put his line candidates through their paces in an effort to find two tackles to replace Edwards and Hawkins. Harry Kipe took charge of the back field candidates and the kickers, while Blott and Veenker, a newcomer to the coaching staff, aided Weiman with the line. Harvey Emory, former Princeton star linesman who coached here two years ago, is coaching the ends.

Michigan's back field promises to be even stronger this year than it was last season. Gregory was the only back to graduate, leaving Capt. Friedman at quarter, "Bo" Molenda at full back and Gilbert at one half. With men like Sammy Babcock, Miller, and Skidmore, all of whom saw service last year, and newcomers like Cook and Rich from which to choose another half back, the task of the coaches in this department will be comparatively simple.

Veteran Tackles Lost.

The line will be a different story. The graduation of Capt. Bob Brown, center, will leave a gap that will be difficult to fill, and two new tackles must be found. Lovette is back to take his old position at guard, but a new man must be found to play the other guard position. Benny Oosterbaan and Flora again will play the ends.

The men who were invited to return for early practice are as follows:

Quarter back—Capt. Friedman, Puckelwartz, Kelly, Whittle, Dahlem.

Half back—Gilbert, Babcock, Miller, Cook, Rich, Domhoff, Harrigan, Skidmore, Totzke, Miethe, Jackson, Hughes, Greenwald, and Roush.

Full back—Molenda, W. Weber, and Cowell.

Ends—Oosterbaan, Flora, Heston, Nyland, Wiard, Boden, Languth, Keller, and Bignal.

Tackles—Baer, Cade, Grimnell, Gabel, Heath, Asbeck, Lounsberry, Hagar, Pommersenne, Nickerson, Holpuch, and Hammes.

Guards—Lovette, Dewey, Maclntyre, Moffett, H. Weber, Mims, Sauer, Sulle, Michaelson, Palmerell.

Center—Truskowsky, Steinecker, Schoenfait, Nanry, Cregin, and Lesson.

The Wolverines open the season against Oklahoma A. and M. on Oct. 30.

EMERSON ELEVEN WHIPS CATHOLIC CENTRAL, 33 TO 0

Gary, Ind., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—The "Golden Tornado" of Emerson opened its schedule here this afternoon with a decisive 33 to 0 victory over Catholic Central of Hammond. Emerson ran wild in the final quarter, Emerson ran wild in the final quarter, its backfield warriors scoring 27 points. Central failed to make a first down and did not gain more than five yards during the entire game.

The game marked the debut of Elmer Lampe, former University of Chicago football star, in the rôle of Emerson coach. Short memorial services were held prior to the game for Joe Shay, last year's captain, who drowned in Lake Michigan this summer.

3 Chicagoans on Dartmouth Football Squad

Hanover, N. H., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Dartmouth's football squad has been at work for nearly two weeks and the hard task of rebuilding championship team that confronts Jess Hawley seems to be clearing after a preliminary survey of the material.

JESS HAWLEY.

Practice started on Sept. 7 and got into full swing when Coach Hawley arrived at Hanover last Saturday, the pre-season work having been in charge of Assistant Coach Jack Cannel.

Fourteen of Dartmouth's 22 letter men of the 1925 team graduated last June, leaving only nine regulars around whom to build a new eleven this fall. However, Eddie Dooley, who played quarter on the 1924 team, is back to complete his course after a year's absence, and it is around this strategist that Hawley plans to build his new team.

Last year's quarter, Bob McPhail, is Hawley's hope for filling Oberlander's place. McPhail has put on weight and now is in the 190 pound class. Capt. Horton at full back and Lane at left half back will complete the first string back field. These regulars will have to fight for their positions, as there is a wealth of husky second year men who will put up a battle for all the back of the line jobs.

The big problem that Hawley faces is the building of a strong line. Only two regulars of last year's line left, Davis center, and Horton tackle. Of the five minor letter men, Tullis, left end, and Diehl, guard, picked on the all-American team, three others, Parker, Smith, and Hall were not far behind in class.

Three Chicago men will fill the places. Fuqua and Morse will fill end positions and Black, halfback last year's freshman team, is sure to see considerable service as relief for Capt. Horton. Hawley has arranged a schedule that brings Dartmouth in conflict with seven of the strongest teams in the east. Yale, Harvard and Brown are to be played in succeeding Saturdays. Cornell will be the opponent in the season's final.

AQUINAS BEATS PEREZ, 2-1, IN K. OF C. GAME

A triple by Prati in the eighth inning, scoring Sweeney, gave Aquinas 2 to 1 edge over Perez at Cornell yesterday in the intersectional game of the Knights of Columbus baseball league, and broke up a brilliant pitching duel between Irvin of the visitors and G. Henry of the defeated contest. The hits were all that Irvin allowed, while the Aquinas batters were able to touch Henry for only four.

Brownson, north section champion, eliminated Sherman, west side contender, 11 to 1, at Logan Square park, while Feehan fared better against St. Cyr in the other north-west section encounter, besting the north side team 8 to 5, in an eleven inning fray at Columbus-Mills stadium.

Darkness halted Santa Maria of Leo XIII. in the eleventh frame of their battle at St. Michael's field, with the score at a 3 to 3 deadlock. The twirling of Kelly for Leo XIII. and Keegan for Santa Maria featured the combat, the latter allowing five safeties.

KENOSHA, 13; MADISON 0

Kenosha, Wis., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—The Kenosha Twin Sixes trimmed the Madison Blues, 13 to 0, in a Wisconsin-Illinois league game here today. The Twins scored first off Christenson in the first inning, and Wrieht gave Madison four hits.

The National Amateur Golf Championship Played at Baltusrol, Won Again with a

SPALDING BALL

Both the winner and the runner-up used a Spalding Ball.

This year and over an extended period of years, more major tournaments in England, France, Canada and the United States have been won with Spalding Golf Balls than with all other makes combined.

The ultimate scoring power can be attained only with the Spalding Ball.

EAST'S ELEVENS MAKE THEIR 1926 DEBUT THIS WEEK

Dartmouth Opens with Norwich.

Schedules Ready

COPIES of the 1926 collegiate football schedule are available at The Tribune Public Service office, 11 South Dearborn, and in the lobby of Tribune tower. Schedules will be sent by mail upon receipt of a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Opening games of the 1926 football season will be played Saturday when some of the leading elevens of the country will clash with teams expected to make the larger university elevens show some of their offensive and defensive power.

While none of the Western conference elevens will go into action, the day will be spent in practice for the opening struggle on Oct. 2.

Two teams which later in the season will engage elevens of the middle west will be watched with interest this week-end. Pennsylvania, opponent of Chicago and Illinois in two of the leading intersectional clashes of the year, meets Franklin and Marshall at Philadelphia. The Quakers again are coached by Lou Young, who expects to have a team which will defeat Chicago for the second successive time and make amends for its setback by Illinois last year. Penn will meet Chicago on Franklin field on Oct. 16 and will come west to battle Illinois at Urbana on Oct. 30.

Columbia Plays Vermont.

Columbia, which will tackle Ohio State in another intersectional contest in New York on Oct. 16, will open its season against Vermont on the home field. Prospects at Ohio State are brighter than last year and the Columbia game is the one Coach Wilce and his players want to win. Columbia also will have a better eleven than the one of a year ago.

Southern California, which will meet Notre Dame in Los Angeles on Dec. 4, clashes with Whittier in the mammoth stadium in Los Angeles. The Trojans should have the most powerful eleven on the coast this fall if advance reports count for anything. All of Southern California's games will be followed with interest not only by Coach Rockne and his players but by football fans all over the middle west.

Notre Dame faces a big job to win over the Trojans. On Nov. 27, Notre Dame is scheduled to meet Carnegie Tech in Pittsburgh. The Rockne outfit will start on its long trip to Los Angeles for the Southern California game on the following Saturday. Notre Dame's strength this year is a matter of conjecture, but the squad must have plenty of reserve power to stand up under the gruelling schedule, one of the hardest arranged for any eleven.

Dartmouth Meets Norwich.

Dartmouth, probably the strongest eleven in the country last year, opens with Norwich at Hanover. The showing of the Big Green in its 1926 debut will furnish a line on the team which Dartmouth fans hope will repeat the victories of last year.

Cornell will open against Geneva at Ithaca, Pittsburgh will meet Allegheny in the smoky city, Syracuse will tackle Hobart on the home field and Penn State will have Susquehanna as an opponent in the other important struggles to be played in the east.

Pop Warner's Stanford eleven will play a double header, having California Tech and Fresno Teachers' college as opponents at Palo Alto. Santa Clara will be California's opponent at Berkeley, while other teams of the Pacific Coast conference will clash with teams of inferior caliber.

Notre Dame will engage in a regular game between varsity and scrubs. If a freshman team is organized, the yearlings will furnish opposition for a short spell. Instead of devoting the day to a game with an outside school, Coach Rockne will use western conference officials who occasionally will step play to give Rockne an opportunity to explain the infringements.

BEVERLY.

Dr. B. A. Duffy won the low net play on eighteen holes. His score was 74—6—68. The pairings for the first round play for the president's trophy: Dr. H. H. Fryette vs. E. F. Olson, H. S. Graver vs. D. J. Normoyle; J. B. Tuthill vs. Dr. W. D. Mahoney; W. J. Jackson vs. J. W. Clark; John McKinley Jr. vs. A. F. Kruse; C. D. Enlette vs. M. A. Donohue; W. S. Negley vs. Philip Graver; and O. E. Lucius vs. E. H. Guerin. Blind bogey sweepstakes winners: W. J. Jackson, 90—12—78; Dr. B. A. Duffy, 74—plus 4—78; Philip Lenz, 88—3—85.

RIDGEMOOR.

A. M. Jones will meet the winner of the John H. Victor-M. A. Michaelson match, which will be played during the week, in the final play for the club championship next Saturday. Jones defeated Harry Radix, 3 and 2, in the semi-final. J. C. Weisert, who defeated Arthur H. Kroeck, 1 up on 21 holes, in the semi-final, will meet the winner of the J. A. Button-Dr. Langsdale match, which also will be played during the week, in the final play for the second flight championship. The final match of the third flight championship will bring together James Boye, who beat Edward W. Uhleman, 3 and 1, in the semi-finals, and Charles K. Anderson, who defeated Charles C. Secrist, 2 and 1. Next Saturday will also be the club professional's day, when the club pro, Howard Davis, has complete charge of the program and the prizes.

CALUMET.

R. M. Sommers, 77—2—75, won the class A ball sweepstakes. James E. Rowland was the runner up, shooting 80—4—76. In class B, L. Coyner was the winner with 91—19—72, followed by H. C. Clark, who had 94—19—75. Class C resulted in a win for E. B. Ross, 100—26—74. The runner up was R. C. Sims, 100—24—76.

BUNKER HILL.

The sixteen golfers who proved themselves eligible in the qualifying round to compete in the Concord cup tournament are Walter Brogden, Harry Reynolds, J. W. Brewer, J. H. Raymond, C. W. Hageman, H. EXMOOR.

J. F. McKenzie won the draw after L. D. Williams, T. W. Towler and he had tied for the medal play handicap trophy. Each had a 74.

T. C. NEAL won the weekly Fellowship trophy at Westmoreland by shooting 87—16—71. The sweepstakes leaders were W. B. Huey, 81—8—73; Dr. A. P. Grunn, 93—18—75; A. C. Perry, 77—3—75, and J. W. McCurdy, 83—8—75. Blind bogey leaders were Dr. A. P. Grunn, 93—18—84; J. A. Aamos, 103—19—84; William Ridgway, 93—10—83; 84; R. G. Bear, 101—16—85, and C. W. Love, 90—7—83.

RIDGE.

Father and son will battle next Saturday for the club championship, play being over thirty-six holes. J. K. Lamb defeated C. E. Carner in the semi-finals, 4 and 3, while his son Mack, beat Bob Dearborn, 2 and 1. In the class A final R. S. Beatty, who defeated H. A. Mix, 2 up, will meet F. E. Smith, the conqueror of G. Cravat, 1 up on 19 holes. F. W. Tike and A. H. Whitley will meet in the final match of the class B flight. Tike defeated J. Jacobsen, 2 and 1; while Whitley beat R. P. Rockefeller, 3 and 1; in class C S. J. Uglow defeated E. L. Cornell, 1 up, to enter the finals, where he will meet E. L. Baker, who defeated B. V. Squires, 3 up. In class D W. W. Robertson and H. L. Hankenson will meet in the final. Robertson beat A. S. Young, 2 up, and Hankenson beat William Struble, 1 up. There were no matches played in class E flight. J. P. Jackson and H. L. Hoey are the finalists in class G flight, while Hoey won his J. A. Grough, 1 up, while Hoey won his way to the finals by disposing of J. H. Keeney, 3 and 2. E. L. Schweeker won the championship of the class G flight when he downed G. Vickers, 3 and 2. All other final matches will be played next Saturday. The four who tied for blind bogey prize were V. H. Bartholomew, H. F. Doerr, A. G. Nesborn, and G. L. Cornell. Mrs. F. W. Flies and Mrs. W. S. Thompson will meet in an eighteen hole match next Friday to decide the ladies' club championship.

LA GRANGE.

The low ball foursome was won by the quartet composed of G. E. Mueller, F. S. Pope, C. W. Litsey, and W. E. Conrad. The winning score was 84—23—61. Mrs. T. W. Hawes won the La Grange ladies' championship, when she defeated Miss I. Moody, 3 and 1. Twelve qualified for the inter-club match Wednesday with Oak Park, Riverside, and Brookwood which will be held over the latter's links.

VERNON RIDGE.

Both the finals in the women's club championship and the men's club championship were decided. Mrs. Florence Katz beat Jane Nels, 5 and 3, for the women's title, and Sim Bows rounced Ralph Wanger, 1 up, in thirty-six hole play for the men's crown. In the consolation flight Percy Cowan defeated Edward Witkowsky, 8 and 7.

RIVERSIDE.

Eighteen holes medal play handicap for the C. B. Young trophy featured the day's activities. J. C. Hartig was the victor with a card of 75—6—69. The class A winner in the ball sweepstakes was J. C. Hartig, 75—6—69; the class B winner was Dr. H. E. Irish, 88—18—70, and the class C winner J. F. Roche, 101—31—70. Douglas Casey handed in the best score in the medal round for the club championship. New Colors—New Lines—New Comfort, Beauty and Distinction

The most beautiful body in this model that Hudson ever built is combined with the greatest of all Super-Six chassis.

Important increase in gasoline mileage is obtained with no sacrifice in power and flexible performance. Refinements and improvements centered around the famous Super-Six principle give greater smoothness, freedom from vibration and closely perfect all the great results of this exclusive Hudson advantage. The flywheel, balanced by precision machines also eliminates vibration possibilities.

Hudson's always brilliant performance is bettered. Power is greater. Pick-up is quicker. Reliability is increased. Motor life is lengthened. Repair needs are even more infrequent.

Hudson design, without resort to accessories, gives owners the top results of gasoline strained before it is delivered to motor, air cleaned and heated, and dirt-free lubrication.

Because the entire production of one of America's oldest and most exclusive custom builders is concentrated on Hudson bodies, this custom quality car holds the most amazing price advantage in Hudson history.

Standard Equipment Includes:
Automatic Windshield Cleaner, Rear View Mirror, Transmission Lock (Self-in), Radiator Shutters, Motor-Meter, Combination Stop and Tail Light.

WALKER ACCUSED BY G.O.P. LEADER, CARAWAY WIRES

Senator to Publish Name if Informer Agrees.

BY THOMAS WREN.

Streator, Ill., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—United States Senator Thaddeaus Caraway of Arkansas today replied to the telegram sent to him Wednesday by the convention of the Illinois Federation of Labor requesting that he furnish the labor meeting with any information on the alleged bribing of labor officials in the recent primary.

At the senate investigating committee on June 26 Senator Caraway remarked, "I wonder how much money was given to John H. Walker and Frank Farrington, president of the State Federation of Labor and former head of the Illinois Mine Workers, who handled the labor vote in Illinois."

In an Indirect Way.

Walker said he would like to believe that the senator was honest when he made the allegation, but that he is reluctant to believe there was much sincerity behind the charge because it was handled in such an indirect and cowardly way.

Senator Caraway's message, in part, follows:

"In the language used I am unable to conceive that any one should construe it as to charge that Walker had received any money for his influence. It said that he had been charged. In fact every one knows that rumors and newspaper stories were current of the use of money in the primary election.

"So persistent were these rumors that a committee of the senate had arranged to hold a hearing. I merely gave the information that was given to me by one of the most prominent Republicans in Illinois and in the presence of another very prominent Republican of that state.

Entitled to Names.

"Of course, they were of the defeated faction. As I said, there was no thought in my mind nor do I think the language should be so construed as to make a charge against Walker. However, if he and his friends think it does I agree that he is entitled to the names of those who furnished the information. When his friend, Mr. Wallace, came to see me, I gave to him the names and all the information I possessed, with the privilege of transmitting it to Mr. Walker, with one request that it be withheld from publication until I could see the gentleman who gave me the information.

"For reasons that Mr. Wallace well knows I have been unable as yet to see this party. As soon as I can do so I shall transmit to Mr. Walker or any one else who wants it the name of this gentleman. T. H. CARAWAY."

After disposal of the large batch of resolutions the convention adjourned to meet next year in East St. Louis.

Progressives to Start State Senate Campaign Tuesday

Illinois Progressives will start their senatorial campaign Tuesday with a dinner for their candidate, Farley Parker Christensen, at the Women's City club, 360 North Michigan avenue.

TRUST FUND HE COULD NOT SPEND ALL REGGIE VANDERBILT HAD LEFT

Newport, R. I., Sept. 18.—(AP)—The personal estate of the late Reginald C. Vanderbilt was insufficient to pay his debts, meet the expenses of the funeral, support the family, or pay for the settlement of the estate, the executor of the estate has revealed.

The condition of the Vanderbilt estate was disclosed in the filing of a routine petition by James P. Deering of New York, executor under the will, with the Probate court at Portsmouth.

Vanderbilt died last September. When his will was probated later in the month, estimates of his wealth ranged from five to twenty million dollars. Mr. Deering's petition revealed, however, that he left little more than the five million dollar trust fund, the principal of which he could not use, under the provisions of the will of his father, Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt. This trust fund has gone in equal shares to his two daughters, Mrs. Henry C. Cushing III. and his infant daughter, Gloria Vanderbilt.

POLICE CAPTAIN DOUBTS ZWICK'S KIDNAPING TALE

Capt. William Russell of the Hyde Park police yesterday ceased investigation of the alleged kidnaping of Dr. Albert Zwick, 1128 Hyde Park boulevard, terming the physician's story of abduction, drugging and robbery, the "most ridiculous he ever heard." The doctor was missing from his home all Friday returning late at night to say he had been spirited away by three men and kept captive until the afternoon.

Dr. Zwick may not be telling all he knows, Capt. Russell said to newspapermen after closely questioning the physician. "But we have no clews and can do nothing but let the case drop."

After being kidnaped by three men and driven in his own automobile for some time the doctor declared, he was relieved of $175, and a rag saturated with chloroform stuck under his nose until he lost consciousness. The physician declared he had no enemies and no interests except his medical practice.

EXHIBITION OF ILLINOIS ART STARTS SEPT. 27

The formal opening of the All Illinois Society of the Fine Arts exhibition, which purposes to do for the Illinois artists what the Hoosier salon is doing for Indiana contemporaries, will be held at the Carson Pirie Scott galleries on Monday evening, Sept. 27.

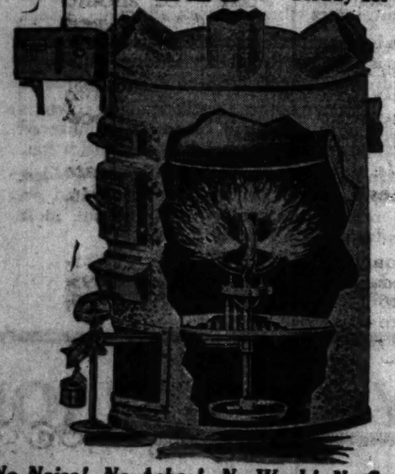
Patrons and patronesses for the event include Mayor and Mrs. William E. Dever, Gov. Small, Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Harshe, Mr. and Mrs. Frank O. Lowden, Mrs. Jacob Baur, Mrs. Medill McCormick, Col. and Mrs. William Nelson Pelouze, George Dixon, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph B. Straus, Mrs. James Bremner, and Mrs. Charles S. Peterson.

Mrs. Charles R. Dalrymple, founder and president of the society, declares the exhibition promises to be the largest demonstration of talent of Illinois artists in one exhibition. The works of 245 artists, representing both the conservative and the modern type, were accepted by the two juries.

THE OIL BURNER YOU HAVE BEEN WAITING FOR!

At a Price Any Home Owner Can Pay

$225.00 Installed Ready for Use



No Noise! No Ashes! No Work! No Soot!

The man of moderate means can now enjoy all the benefits of oil heating because the Lattner Oil Burner is sold at a price any home owner can easily afford. No longer necessary for him to put up with the inconvenience of shoveling fuel, carrying out ashes, adjusting drafts, etc., simply because he has not been able to pay the high prices of quality oil burners.

See It in Operation

Come to our Show Room, and we will show you, in actual operation, our new Gravity Feed Manual Controlled Oil Burner, the latest development in oil burners. This burner is a scientifically designed Oil Gas Heating Unit, and should not be confused with the so-called raw oil mechanical burners now on the market. It differs radically in BASIC PRINCIPLE and DESIGN from all competitive burners.

Foolproof—Easy to Operate
The Latest Improvement in Oil Burners

There are no moving parts to give trouble and get out of order. It is strongly built, simple and efficient. Any child can operate it, it can be operated from any room desired. It is ECONOMICAL, and assures clean uniform heat at all times.

Trucks and Busses to Have Place in Automobile Shows

Huge Expansion of Motor Transport Gains Recognition.

INTEREST of motor vehicle parts makers in the enlargement of the coming National Automobile show at New York by including commercial vehicles, has been expressed in a statement by H. L. Horning, president of the Motor and Accessory Manufacturers association. He believes that plans for the truck exhibit are in keeping with the tremendous expansion during the last two years of passenger and freight transportation by motor: He predicts that the truck section will add materially to the interest in the show on the part of all classes of the trade and public.

"This action of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce," he said, "recognizes the rapid development of commercial highway transport. Haulage both of passengers and freight by motor has grown phenomenally during last two years, with the result that large numbers of the trade and the public only casually interested heretofore in motor trucks will welcome the opportunity to see and compare the different makes of these vehicles at the show.

"We have only to review the production figures to note the great advancement made in the use of commercial vehicles. In 1924 manufacturers in the N. A. C. C. made approximtaely 142,800 vehicles and in 1925, 220,000, a gain of 48%. In the first seven months of this year they produced 182,600 vehicles, 58% of the total 1925 output. The growth in bus building has been equally remarkable. In 1924 the total N. A. C. C. members' output of busses and other special vehicles, such as ambulances, was approximately 2,000 and in 1925 it exceeded 8,000. In the first seven months of this year 4,600 of these vehicles were made, approximately 4,000 of them being busses. The 1926 output apparently is going to run substantially ahead of last year's.

"In view of the fact that the World Motor Transport congress will be held during New York show week, bringing several hundred foreign automotive men to the exposition, it is interesting to note that our foreign business in commercial vehicles has been making big gains. During the first half of this year our motor truck and bus exports gained 54% over the same period last year, as compared with a gain of only 1% for passenger cars. The appearance of these foreign tradesmen will also benefit makers of parts, accessories and service equipment and particularly the latter, who are to have a section of their own as a new feature both in the New York and Chicago shows. While domestic business in these repairshop appliances has been showing very creditable gains the increase in foreign sales has been especially marked, the 1925 sales having almost doubled those of 1924, while 1926 exports apparently will run just as far ahead of 1925."

Trade Gossip.

Shipments by the Hudson Motor Car company in August were 27,700 cars, the largest in the company's history. The company has now reduced its production schedule to 900 per day. Hupp Motor Car company produced about 4,000 cars during the month, with a schedule for September calling for 5,000 units. The company has a large number of unfilled orders, due to a carryover from August.

Studebaker corporation sales for August were nearly 13,000. September schedule has been set for 325 cars a day, which was the same as that of August. Probabilities are that the corporation will show 35,000 cars for the third quarter.

BOOTLEG GAS.

Judge Rainey T. Wells, of the state tax commission, has warned dealers in gasoline that bootlegging in gasoline will not be permitted in Kentucky. He said the commission had received word that motor bus operators are carrying gasoline from states bordering on Kentucky into the state following enactment of the new 5 cent gasoline tax law.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER.

He's Out to Learn the Truth About Motordom

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question, Fred W. Mayer, 1641 North Linder avenue, was awarded $5.

The Question.

Will wider highways solve the congestion problem at crossings or will the proposed doubled decked or overhead crossing viaducts prove the only solution?

Where Asked.

Loop.

The Answers.

R. E. Kneip, 1748 Belle Plaine avenue, concessionaire—I am of the opinion that the authorities will never build overhead viaducts or double decked structures at the highway crossings. I would prefer the wider highway system, as I do not think the overhead highway system would be practical. Wider highways undoubtedly will solve the congestion problem.

F. C. Yario, 3832 Monroe street, cigar merchant—Where they need the double decked streets is not out on the highways, but in the loop. For years the people have been endeavoring to build both subways and double decked streets, but all in vain. Never mind the highways; experiment in our own loop.

T. J. Herman, 852 South Halsted street, clerk—In my opinion the double decked viaduct at the crossings would be a decided advancement in the movement to relieve congestion on the highways. Traffic has become so congested that it is about time the proper officials were doing something about it.

Robert Pacelli, 4357 Monroe street, musician—Wider highways will solve the congestion problem. The highways now are only about eighteen feet in width, and entirely too small for the traffic of today. When one travels out in the country of a Sunday or a holiday he finds it difficult to make any headway at all, due to the great number of machines.

Dante Masono, 806 Forquer street, musician—Wider highways would at least solve one problem. When it is raining and the roads are slippery the motorist finds it difficult to move forward. In an emergency he must either crash into the car ahead or drive directly into the ditch at his side. This has happened on many occasions and should be remedied by building wider highways. The proposed double decked or overhead viaduct is not needed. Wider highways will fill the bill.

BEACON LIGHT.

The narrow beam of light that circles in the heaven on the summit of Lookout mountain crest is an aerial beacon and though small in size it employs a series of reflectors and lens which develop 7,000,000 candlepower, and it is visible for 15 miles and will penetrate fog for five miles.

PERFECT SEAT.

The usual procedure in grinding valves is to face the seat as well as the valve to make a perfect seat. After this has been done a few times the seat becomes too wide. It should then be cut down with a tool made for that purpose. The proper width is about two-thirty-seconds of an inch.

Veteran Drivers Flayed by Report on Carelessness

"ACCIDENT statistics are proof that experience does not imply driving with any great degree of security for other motorists or for the pedestrians who may cross the path of the old timer," says a safety bulletin issued by the Chicago Motor club. "It is frequently the case that detailed tabulations of mishaps indicate that the greatest number has been owing to the carelessness of drivers who have had five years' or more experience. In fact, some figures show a definitely inverse proportion of the number of accidents to the length of time the driver has been running an automobile.

"Statistics in one large city for the first three months of this year show only 23 accidents for persons who were driving three months or less, while but 64 mishaps were registered for drivers whose experience varied from three months to one year. Four hundred and five motorists who had driven cars for two to five years were involved in mishaps, whereas 685 whose driving records were of at least five years' standing figured in accidents, of which seven were fatal.

"Of course it may be said that the motorists of five years' experience are in the majority, but even discounting the difference in numbers, the preponderance of accidents caused by the more practiced person has but one explanation, and that is simply carelessness and a tendency to take chances. Many newer automobilists would have the utmost fear of trying to do what the more proficient ones think they can achieve but fail in doing.

"Figures in this same city also show that accidents were greatest in clear weather, during daylight hours, and on dry roadways, which would indicate that physical circumstances play a minor rôle. The human equation, which so often is the unknown quantity, apparently was mainly responsible for the mishaps.

"The lesson for motorists is plain. The saying 'never too old to learn' is a truism that has lost nothing of its forcefulness even in this enlightened age. Experienced automobile drivers should ever be careful to avoid that self-assurance which only too often is of serious consequence."

WOBBLY WHEELS.

Wobbly wheels are often caused by uneven tightening of rim lugs. Jack up the car and spin the wheel. Then loosen all lugs and tighten them even.

Simple Lighting Equipment Urged on Motor Makers

WHEN the instructions for adjustment of headlamps issued by the motor vehicle administrator can read simply, "Aim the lamp so that the beam is confined below the level of the lamp center," a long step will have been taken toward the solution of the headlighting problem, declared Alfred W. Devine, of the Massachusetts state registry of motor vehicles, in an address at a recent meeting of the Society of Automotive Engineers.

The public must not be given lamps that are so complicated that they cannot be adjusted by following the fewest possible number of simple rules. Rather, every effort should be made toward developing units that require no focusing adjustment.

The first step toward improvement in automobile headlighting conditions, said Devine, should be the correction of inferior headlamp equipment.

"Common sense should be used in the design and construction of the lamp so that difficulties shall not be encountered in ordinary usage."

How Quality Standardization Builds Long Life in CHRYSLER "70"

Many owners are driving Chrysler "70s" in their second hundred thousand miles.

They are marveling at the quality which continues to deliver its miles with undimmed vigor and at upkeep costs low beyond all precedent.

The Chrysler plan of Quality Standardization differs from, and is superior to, ordinary manufacturing practice and methods, because it demands fixed and inflexible quality standards which enforce the same scrupulously close limits—the same rigid rule of engineering exactness—the same absolute accuracy and precision of alignment and assemblage—in the measurement, the machining and the manufacturing of every part, practice and process in four lines of Chrysler cars—"50", "60", "70" and Imperial "80".

LONG LIFE is the fruit of Chrysler's standardization of quality—the planned result of an engineering and manufacturing precision which, in its all-embracing scope, is new to the motor car industry.

Where ordinary engineering is satisfied with the customary margins of safety, Chrysler engineering has provided lighter alloy steels tested under stresses thousands of pounds greater than they will ever be called upon to meet.

Where ordinary manufacture is usually content with limits of a thousandth of an inch, Chrysler "70" craftsmanship painstakingly calibrates in ten-thousandths.

Therefore, it has been only logical that not only Chrysler "70's" speed and power should eclipse all previous performance; its striking and smart appearance should outmode all existing body design, but—

Most important of all—that its remarkable endurance should be obsoleting pre-conceived ideas of durability and long life, even though its hundreds of thousands of owners exact from their cars the seemingly impossible in performance.

We are eager to demonstrate these Chrysler "70" superiorities.

Front Drive Cars Called Practical by Master Builder

Speed Experiments Prove Success of New Racers.

SUCCESS of the special Miller racing cars has drawn attention of automotive engineers to the front-end drive features of these machines. Harry Miller of Los Angeles, the constructor, was asked many questions about the drive by the Society of Automotive Engineers and said that he thought this type of drive has many possibilities, as it pulls the car instead of pushing it, permits the body to be placed as low as desired, is easy to drive, steers more easily than the customary rear-end drive without any need of over-steering, and has all of the mechanism at the front, where it is accessible.

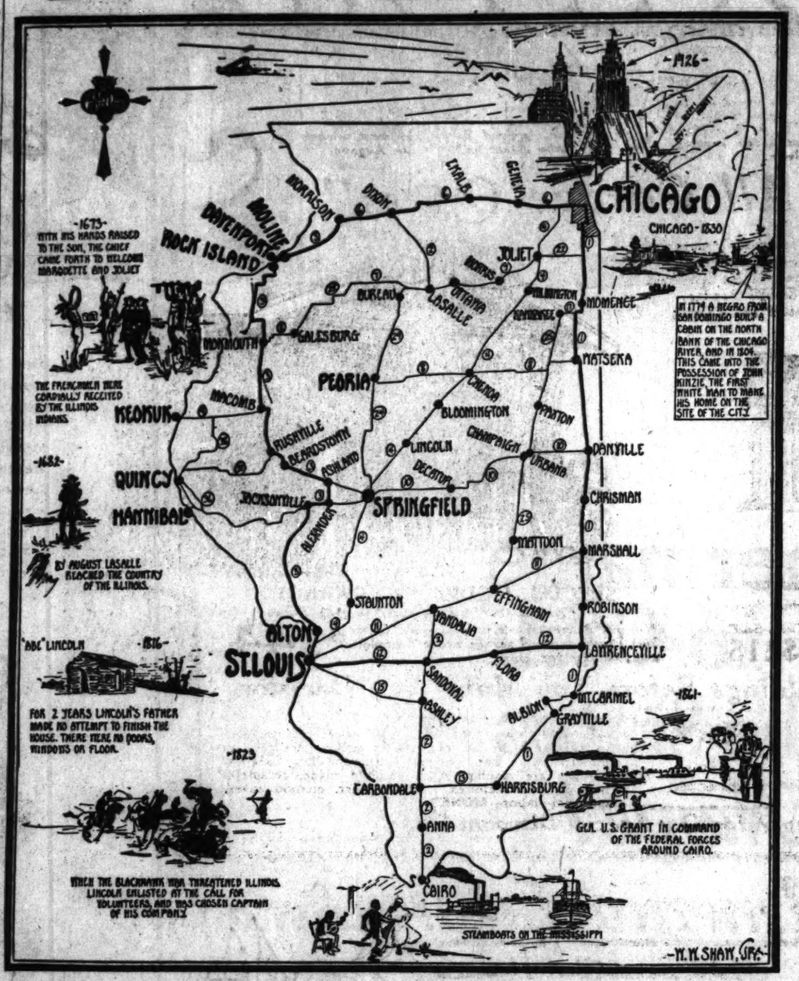
Describing the construction of the racing cars, he said that as much of the car weight as possible is placed on the front wheels. All that is carried on the rear is the fuel tank, and rear axle weight, only about 26 pounds. The unsprung weight on the front axle is only 20 pounds more than it would be with conventional construction. The transmission is carried by the frame and a bent axle goes around it. The brakes are on the transmission instead of on the wheels. The front wheels have no tendency to shimmy if they are balanced. The universal joints rotate at wheel speed instead of engine speed and the extreme up-and-down movement is only about 1½ inches. On the turning radius four ball bearings are used in each joint. On the racing cars the steering angle is about 30 degrees, although never more than 3 or 4 degrees is used in making the track turns.

Although the racing cars are driven by tiny eight cylinder engines of 2 3-16 inch bore by 3 inch stroke and have a piston displacement of 91½ cubic inches as against 122 cubic inches in last year's cars, the winning car this year averaged 95.88 miles per hour for the 500 miles, despite a wet and dangerous track. The engines have a supercharged compression ratio of 5.35 to 1 at the maximum crankshaft speed of 7,000 revolutions per minute and develop 154 horsepower. A car speed of 130.5 miles per hour has been attained on the board track at Los Angeles.

The supercharger, said Miller, is 7 inches in diameter and the tips of the blades have a peripheral speed of 68,533 feet per second, or 720 miles per hour. This gives a supercharger pressure of 16½ pounds. From 15 to 20 horsepower is required to drive the supercharger at maximum engine speed.

Tribune Tours

XXIV.—ILLINOIS CIRCLE



A telegram from Springfield says: "Route 24 between Springfield and Peoria is now open. Route 4 still closed south of Lincoln. Today's circle is 825 miles, or a three day drive. No. 1 is an almost continuous ribbon of concrete from Chicago to Lawrenceville. There are four cinder gaps totaling three miles and 137 miles of brick and concrete between Lawrenceville and St. Louis. No. 3 is all hard road except 3.8 miles of oiled dirt just west of Ashland. Morrison to Chicago is all hard road.

CAUSES KNOCKS.

A motorist who has his valves attended to frequently was surprised to find that the engine actually knocked a little more readily the second time the head was removed and replaced. The explanation was found in the fact that the head had been drawn down a little too tight, thus increasing compression.

Yellowstone Sets New Travel Mark for 1926 Season

YELLOWSTONE park as a host has this year surpassed all its records. Superintendent Albright's estimate of 180,000 visitors for the season gives an increase of 25,000 over last year. Most of the gain is accounted for by the increased popularity of the south entrance of the park.

Unequalled mountain scenery south of Yellowstone park, located along the A. Y. P. trail, together with the increase in tourists over this route has brought a gain of 200 per cent in the number of people going through the south entrance this year. The east and west entrances show much smaller gains, and the north or Montana entrance shows no gain.

The Jackson Hole country, the famous Toton mountain range and the Two-Gwo-Tee pass, are scenic wonders everybody wants to see. These and the good highways over the west section of the A. Y. P. make it possible and account for the big gain in travel.

Advices just received from park officials show that there has been an unusually heavy travel in the park this summer and the greatest part has been by private autos. The total for the season is expected to reach 180,000 people in the park, compared to 154,282 last year. Up to and including August 28, a total of 167,027 people visited the park as against 138,564 last year. The rail travel is about 4,000 behind 1925 but the auto travel is continually on the increase.

Small Cars Set New Speed Marks

OFFICIAL national competitive speed records of racing automobiles for distances of from five to four hundred miles were announced yesterday by the contest board of the American Automobile association, the arbiter of the principal tracks and speedways of the nation.

All of the records apply to the smallest and newest car, which is equipped with the 91½ cubic inch engine, and which recently became the standard on the major tracks. They revealed that the fastest average to date was made by Earl Cooper in a front wheel drive Miller 8 at the Charlotte, N. C., speedway on Aug. 23, when he rode first in a 25 mile sprint for an average of 128.783 miles an hour.

The contest board disclosed that the records for eleven distances were made by three men. Cooper holds the record for the five, ten, twenty-five and two hundred mile distances. Harry Lockhart has gone faster than any other man in the new cars in the 50, 100, 150, 300, 350 and 400 mile distances. And Dave Lewis holds the record for the 250 mile event.

Under agreement with the race governing bodies of Europe, the contest board announced, only the distances named are recognized in the compilation of records. The records will be submitted to the international body with the prospect that they will be recognized as world records. No one, here or abroad, has traveled as fast in the new cars as these three men, it was asserted.

So far all the records stand to the credit of Harry Miller, the Los Angeles master racing engineer, although the new product of the Duesenburg brothers shows promise, once all adjustments are synchronized.

Indication is already strong that automobile racedom will lose none of its speed by the change to the smaller motors which follow the 122 cubic inch engine, and which are mere vest pocket editions of the great machines that ten years ago and more roared about the tracks. In fact, there is every indication that the new machines, once their newness has worn off and the drivers have become thoroughly acquainted with them, may even set new world's records.

The board issued the following chart showing how the records were made:

Dist.	St.	Date.	Place.	Driver.	Car.	Name.	Cy.	Wt.	Time.	M. P. H.

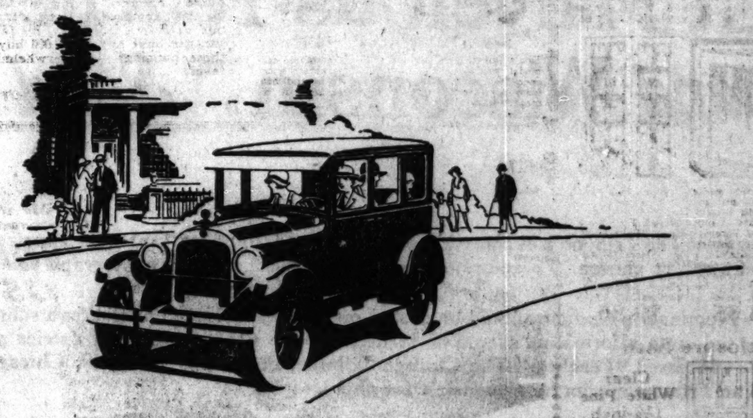
Survey Car Finds Going Good Along Route to Gotham

REPORT of a survey car to New York City via Harrisburg, Stratford, Binghamton, Niagara falls, Rochester, Syracuse, Utica, and Albany is as follows:

"Mich.-17 and Mich.-15, Prov.-7, 44 miles gravel, good in spots; few rough spots. Penn.-4, good condition; N. Y.-81, usually two or three detours. N. Y.-5, construction east of Utica but one way traffic. N. Y.-4 and N. Y.-5 fine condition."

Minnesota: Minnesota roads always generally good according to report issued by the state highway department. A week of dry weather made it possible for maintenance crews to remove any roughness due to rain.

Quebec-Miami Highway: [By Virginia State Chamber of Commerce] "This is the principal north and south route through eastern Virginia, following the state at Washington, D. C., continues to the North Carolina line through Fredericksburg, Ashland, Richmond, Petersburg, South Hill, and Clarksville—237 miles, of which 196 are hard surfaced. Non-hard surfaced sections maintained in good condition and rough in spots. On account of construction work between Ashland and Dumfries, [a distance of 18 miles] motorists should proceed with caution. There is a detour between Camp Humphries and Pohick church, a distance of 5.5 miles, in good condition; also north of Dumfries detour at south of Washington, and south of St. Petersburg there are detours.



Cadillac Business Principles Protect the Used Car Buyer

With the Cadillac dealer, the used car is neither a "problem" nor an "evil". It is a business, conducted according to sound business principles having to do with the reliability and the value of the merchandise.

Many dealers regard the used car as an "evil", because they lose sight of used car values in desperate efforts to make new car sales.

The tendency in every such case, is, of course, to ask the used car prospect to pay back to the dealer the unjustified high price for the used car which the dealer has allowed the man who traded it in.

The universal recognition of Cadillac as not only the finest of fine cars, but also the greatest value in the fine car field, enables the Cadillac dealer to allow for a used car a price that is fair—and to sell it at a price that is equally fair.

When you buy from a Cadillac dealer, you know that these sound business principles are operating in your favor.

Survey Car Finds Going Good Along Route to Gotham

REPORT of a survey car on routes to New York City, via Detroit, Sarnia, Stratford, Hamilton, Niagara falls, Rochester, Syracuse, Utica, and Albany is as follows:

"Mich.-17 and Mich.-19, Prov.-7, 44 miles gravel, good for 31 miles; few rough spots. Prov.-5, paved, good condition; N. Y.-31, mostly paved or three detours. N. Y.-5, under construction east of Utica, but open for one way traffic. N. Y.-4 and N. Y.-14, fine condition."

Minnesota: Minnesota trunk highways generally good according to the report issued by the state highway department. A week of dry weather has made it possible for maintenance crews to remove any roughness due to rains.

Quebec-Miami Highway: [By Virginia State Chamber of Commerce]—This is the principal north and south routes through eastern Virginia. Enters the state at Washington, D. C., continues to the North Carolina line through Fredericksburg, Ashland, Richmond, Petersburg, South Hill, and Clarksville—237 miles, of which 118 are hard surfaced. Non-hard surfaced sections maintained in good condition but rough in spots. On account of construction work between Acquotink and Dumfries, [a distance of 18 miles] motorists should proceed with caution. There is a detour between Camp Humphries and Pohick church, a distance of 5.5 miles, in good condition; just north of Dumfries detour 34 miles south of Washington, and south of Petersburg there are detours.

Auto Trade Sets Output for Year at 5,000,000 Cars

Popularity of New Models Keeps Sales Up as Winter Nears.

BY WHITCOMB WILLIAMS.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 18.—(Special.)—Leaders in the automobile industry, while sounding a warning that there possibly may be a slump in production caused by a decrease in sales by dealers during the last quarter, are practically unanimous in their belief that nothing can now occur to prevent a new high record. This will mean an output for the year of about five million passenger cars and trucks.

Leading producers, who set the pace to the whole industry, have been making careful surveys of all distribution fields for the remainder of the year, not only in the home markets, but those abroad as well. Conditions, according to reports already available, are uncommonly bright, and the industry will enter the fourth quarter of 1926 with a flying start. Factories will be running at capacity in several instances and nearly so in a vast majority, with the greatest first eight months' production record just closed.

What makes the fall and winter demand for motor vehicles look so good to those most interested is the reception accorded many new models, the situation in the used car market, the prospects of good crops, the ever increasing use of commercial vehicles, and the growing export trade.

Production for the first eight months of the present year will total in the neighborhood of 3,200,000 cars and trucks—the first time in history of the industry that the three million mark has been surpassed in a similar period. Output for the last four months of 1925 aggregated 1,481,563 units, so that if the production during the corresponding period of 1926 no more than equals last year's figures the aggregate for the year will be close to the five million mark. A majority of manufacturers believe this latter figure will be reached.

Prospects for September are exceedingly bright, stimulated by the demand for new models which have recently been introduced. Reports from dealers throughout the country are that they are either understocked or have a normal number of new cars on hand.

Hardly a week passes without a new model being added to the already long list. Most recent is the new line of Stearns-Knight cars, motored with the Knight sleeve valve power plant in its most perfected form.

The Paige Detroit Motor Car company will soon be out with a new line of Jewetts. While prices have not yet been revealed, it is understood they will be slightly higher than for the former line. An additional model, a four door sedan, will be added to the line, which will be regarded as the leader. The company will discontinue carrying both standard and special models, all models now carrying full de luxe features.

Rearrangement of factory facilities has enabled the Willys-Overland company at Toledo to reduce prices on Whippet and Overland sedans, the decreases ranging from $40 on the Whippet to $120 on the Overland. This brings the Whippet into a competitive price range with its only other competitor in the light car class.

The cut in the price of Overland sedans brings it, for the first time, below the $1,000 mark. The reductions created considerable comment in automobile circles, following a quite recent announcement that prices had finally reached their low point that would apparently remain unchanged for some time to come. Now the question is again being asked, will competitors be forced to follow the Overland cut and revise their prices accordingly.

In the announcement made by the Overland company a strong bid is seen for a larger volume of the light car field, coupled with the announcement from the Ford company that no new Ford models are being considered, and General Motors' statement that the year's output of Chevrolets will be approximately one million cars.

Chevrolet plants in St. Louis, Janesville and Cincinnati are being extensively enlarged under the vast expansion program, and Fisher body plants in these cities will provide facilities for 750,000 closed car bodies and 250,000 open models.

Employment in the various automobile factories and accessories plants continued its upward climb this week with an additional 651 automobile workmen. This raised the total employed to 239,750, compared with 244,082 for the corresponding week of 1925.

To facilitate delivery of automobiles to the northwest a steamship carrying nothing but automobiles is to be used between Grand Haven, Mich., and Milwaukee for transportation of new cars. The plan is to drive machines overland from Detroit, Flint, Pontiac and Lansing to Grand Haven, cross Lake Michigan, and continue the drive-aways to various sections of the country from Milwaukee. The plan will cut the cost of moving new cars to a minimum.

Oakland production for a single day has reached a new high point and now stands at 903, an increase of 93 cars. One thousand workmen are now rushing to completion the new $7,600,000 plant at Pontiac, which will be ready for operation Jan. 1.

Continental Motors have just imported a "something new" car, which is receiving considerable attention at their Detroit plant. It is a Vauxhall car, equipped with a single sleeve valve engine which was manufactured at the British factory of General Motors corporation. The engine, for which Continental Motors holds the world's rights, is now in preparation for American introduction by certain makers. It is a six cylinder motor, developing 70 horsepower from 236 inches of piston displacement. The car was brought to Detroit for study by engineers who are at work on similar engine models. General Motors, which will produce the car, has not as yet marketed it in America.

A window in one of Detroit's largest retail stores is this week attracting considerable attention with a display of eight automobiles. Some of the cars were built in 1900, the two oldest being a Packard and an Oldsmobile. The Packard is the first one constructed in Warren, O., by J. W. and W. D. Packard. The sixth curved dash Oldsmobile turned out in 1900 is also shown. This is the type of car which such famous personages as Chauncey M. Depew, Mark Twain, and Maude Adams owned twenty-five years ago. Other antiques are the Chevrolet, a two cylinder Ford, a Cadillac built in 1904, a Hupmobile, which was at one time a Detroit police "flyer"; an early Buick, and one of the first Hudsons turned out from the Detroit plant. In company of each exhibit is an up-to-the-minute car of the respective makes, which makes the contrast exceedingly interesting as well as humorous and shows a remarkable evolution.

General Motors corporation in Flint, where both the Chevrolet and Buick units are located, is now employing 30,457 persons, an increase of approximately 5,000 since the first of the year.

Motor Rows Hang Up New High Mark in Sale of Used Cars

Tips That May Save Crash for Night Driver

NIGHT driving requires a special technique, according to motor club observers. In some states the law requires drivers to dim their lights, but in many other states, after authorities have made sure that a lens does not glare in the eyes of oncoming motorists, the driver is free to travel at night with his bright lights turned on.

"Despite the precautions of the motor vehicle departments," says a club warning, "lights that have been approved often get out of focus and emit glare. The motorist who has learned his night driving primer will never look into the lights of oncoming cars; the motorist who keeps his eyes on the strip of roadway his own lights illuminate seldom will be troubled with glare.

"Another cause of glare arises from particles of dust that accumulate on the windshield. A clean windshield is essential for safe night driving. The motorist who realizes that dust refracts the rays of oncoming lights will make sure that his windshield is entirely free from dust. The driver who wears glasses will find himself in difficulties unless he is careful to keep his glasses clean.

"Scratches on the windshield also result in glare. Scratches may be caused by carelessness in cleaning the windshield or by allowing a windshield wiper to operate when the glass is dry and dusty.

"Rain makes even the most accurately adjusted light difficult to use at night. The wise driver will accommodate his speed to the lower range of visibility. Extreme caution is needed when driving at night in a downpour of rain. Dash lights and dome lights in the car tend to lower visibility in country night driving."

Like Motors.

Motor bus transportation has become so popular in Sweden that the length of regular passenger routes has been increased from 6,000 kilometers to 16,000 kilometers, it is estimated. Compared with the bus lines there are 18,000 kilometers of railway. The operating companies number 1,100, so well linked are the lines that it is possible to travel throughout the entire country using only motor buses.

An invitation to test the motor car achievement of the year

The Rubber-Silenced Chassis

Not since the introduction of Four-Wheel Brakes and the Harmonic Balancer has any motor car improvement aroused such tremendous public interest as Oakland's remarkable Rubber-Silenced Chassis.

Every one wants to know how this epochal and exclusive Oakland feature eliminates the disturbing noise and rumbling found in ordinary cars and imparts absolute quietness of operation. Every one wants to take the wheel and experience the joys of rubber-silenced motoring.

This company esteems it a privilege to demonstrate what is unquestionably the motor car achievement of the year.

Please regard this as a personal invitation to come in and drive the Greater Oakland Six at any time that suits your convenience, without incurring any obligation.

We want you to test the Rubber-Silenced Chassis and find out for yourself how completely the Greater Oakland Six outclasses all automobiles in its field.

Oakland Six, $1025 to $1295. Pontiac Six, companion to Oakland Six, $825 to $895.

Light hogs led in the downward swing of prices yesterday, finishing mostly 25c under the general selling Friday, with medium and heavy off 10@25c. General average price dropped 15c at $12.05, lowest since last Tuesday, with practical top for load lots at $12.55, lowest since Aug. 17. Small lots at $13.60 were no criterion.

Weighty mixed and packing hogs show uneven gains of 35c to 90c since the previous Saturday, while medium and light weights are 25c@$1.00 lower, underweights indicating a $1.25@1.50 drop. Top compares with $14.40 last Saturday. Arrivals yesterday promised to exceed 3,500, including 1,000 "directs" and 1,000 "through" hogs. A shipment of 96 Canadian "packers" from Chatham, Ont., averaged 505 lbs., at $10.00, including 12 stags, a feature sale of the day.

Receipts Too Large.

Increased numbers of light hogs last week advanced receipts to the second largest since the first week in August, but forced the general average weight down 2 pounds more at 266 lbs. the highest in six weeks, comparing with 277 lbs three weeks ago. Total arrivals at 115,200 were 16,500 greater than the previous week, which included a Monday holiday, and 21,000 larger than a year ago. General average price advanced to $12.10, the highest since the week ending July 24, due largely to the bigger percentage of offerings consisting of light hogs selling at the high end of the bulk of sales.

Cattle prices advanced to new high levels for the season, top at $12.00 equaling the year's peak, in face of immense supplies last week. Receipts at 39,000 were as large as any weekly offerings since December, 1924, when arrivals at 39,794 were largest since November, 1920. Western rangers numbered 22,200 head, over a fourth of the week's receipts. General quality cattle graded poorer than a few weeks earlier.

Scarcity and good demand for finished steers was general, quotations at several outside points being relatively higher than at Chicago. One big western center reported 1,300 lb cattle at $12.00. Choice 1,190@1 lb yearlings on the local trade reached this mark, best heavy resting at $11.75. Baby beef heifers brought up to $11.50. Desirable feeding steers sold up to $9.00 and best fat rangers at $9.25.

Sheep Receipts Large.

Sheep receipts at 145,400 last week were largest since October, 1920. Receipts from the range totaled 283 cars, 40 per cent arriving from Wyoming carrying a liberal portion of fair quality feeders, which experienced the sharpest break of the season. Feeders finished mostly $1.00 lower, with killers off 50c, while aged sheep ruled strong to 25c higher on lighter supplies from the west. Aged sheep averaged $6.25, highest in six weeks. Top fat ewes $7.50; wethers, $8.00. Fat and feeder lambs Monday, $13.00; best feeders at the close, $14.00. Tearing breeding ewes, $12.75.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 34,000 cattle, 33,000 hogs, and 30,000 sheep, against 35,661 cattle, 32,517 hogs, and 26,612 sheep a week ago, and 24,715 cattle, 30,110 hogs, and 29,426 sheep the corresponding day a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimated at 70,000 cattle, 115,000 hogs, and 120,000 sheep, against 61,090 cattle, 97,188 hogs, and 98,446 sheep a year ago.

CASH·GRAIN NEWS

Export sales of domestic Friday were considerably in excess of qualities reported late that day. It was estimated that exporters bought 300,000 to 400,000 bu. and yesterday No. 2 hard there for September loading sold at 11@11¼c over Chicago December, the highest premium on the crop. Demand, however, was not in evidence Saturday and sales were small. Ocean charters were made for 2,000,000 bu wheat and barley in all positions in the last two days.

Chicago handlers sold 6,000 bu wheat, 96,000 bu corn, 62,000 bu oats, and 3,000 bu barley to the domestic trade, with 50,000 bu wheat sold to go to store.

Offerings of cash wheat were not large and the basis on spot firm at 1½@2c over September for No. 2 red, and September to 2c under for No. 3 red. No. 2 hard was 4@6c over and No. 3 hard 1@3c over the future. Basis in outside markets showed little change, although undertone at Kansas City was easier.

Despite liberal offerings of cash corn to arrive, the spot basis here was steady to 1c higher, with No. 2 grades ¾@1¼c under December; No. 3 grades 1¾@2c under; and No. 4 grades 3¼@3½c under. Local handlers paid 1¼c under December for No. 2 yellow and white to arrive, 30 day shipment, and 2¼c under for No. 3 yellow and white. Outside markets were unchanged to 1¼c lower.

Cash oats were in moderate demand, with the basis ½c higher to ½c lower. No. 2 white sold at 1½@2c over and No. 3 white at 1@1½c over.

Official receipts of grain at Chicago Saturday: Wheat, 47 cars; corn, 91 cars; oats, 60 cars; rye, 4 cars; barley, 27 cars.

PRIMARIES FOR WEEK

Primary receipts of grains last week aggregated 10,728,000 bu, an increase of 1,490,000 bu over the previous week, but a decrease of 7,193,000 bu from last year, due mainly to wet weather delaying movement from farms. There was also a reduction of almost 2,000,000 bu from the five year average. Details follow:

PROVISION SHIPMENTS

Provision shipments from Chicago for the week to Sat. with the last three ciphers omitted, follow:

	Past wk.	Prev. wk.	Last yr.
Cured meats	17,172	13,947	13,378
Lard	9,745	8,288	9,765
Meats	26,917	22,235	23,143

Receipts for the week were: Cured meats, 6,807,000 lbs. Fresh meats, 26,932,000 lbs. Lard, 8,421,000 lbs.

BETTER GROWING WEATHER LOWERS PRICES OF WHEAT

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Favorable weather in the Canadian northwest, with the forecast for generally fair over the week-end, and scattered selling led to a decline of around 1@1¼c in wheat futures. While the finish was on a moderate rally from the inside figures on the deferred deliveries, the finish was ¾@1¼c lower, with September leading. September closed at $1.33¾; December, $1.35¾@1.36, and May $1.40¾@1.41. Winnipeg showed more strength than Chicago and was ¼@⅞c lower for the day.

Liquidation was on in corn with local longs selling freely, and there was also pressure from cash interests who were hedging against purchases of around 400,000 bu booked to arrive from the country. The finish was 1¼@1¾c lower, with September 75½c, December 81@81½c, and May 87¾@87¾c. Oats were ¼@½c lower, with September 33½c and December 42¾@42½c. Rye lost ¾@¾c, with September 94c and December 98½c.

Grains Lower for Week.

Strength in activity in wheat earlier in the week, due to heavy short covering, failed to have a lasting effect on values, and at the close prices were ⅝@⅞c lower than a week ago, while corn was off 4@4½c, showing independent weakness due to continued liquidation by local and outside longs. Oats were unchanged to 1¼c higher, the latter on September, which acted tight. Rye declined ¾@1c. Provisions were on the downgrade, and closed heavy, with lard off 42½@52½c; ribs, 40@45c, and bellies 65¼@70c lower for the week.

Sentiment was generally bearish and wheat traders were free sellers early, finding support lacking until December dropped below $1.35, under which figure there was fair support from houses with eastern connection and from shorts who were evening up for over the week end. Official Canadian reports showed that the greater part of the rain the past week was confined to the province of Alberta, and explained the reason why deliveries at country points in the three provinces aggregated over 3,000,000 bu per day.

Messages from the southwest claimed consignment notices on winter wheat were increasing rapidly. The trade looks for an increase of 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 bu to be shown in the visible supply on Monday, with supplies at Duluth and Minneapolis around 3,000,000 bu greater than a week ago. Export demand continues limited, although Friday's business was well in excess of estimates, and ocean room has been taken for 2,000,000 bu wheat and barley in the past two days. Liverpool closed ⅝@1d lower.

Liquidation on in Corn.

Scattered liquidation was on in corn from the start and news of a bullish character was persistently ignored. Shorts were the best buyers. The forecast was for general rains over Sunday, while the weekly forecast indicated frost in the more northern sections of the belt. The liberal sales of old corn to arrive for 30 day shipment were construed as confirming reports that the crop was maturing rapidly, and that producers were satisfied with the outlook for the new grain.

Easier tone on oats was due largely to sympathy with other grains. Trade was smaller than of late, with September breaking sharply at one time, but recovered the greater part of the decline later. Buying of rye against sales of wheat by spreaders prevented any material declins in the former grain. Trade was light.

Emergency Credit Banks No Longer Needed in Iowa

The National Agricultural Credit corporation of Des Moines and the National Agricultural Credit corporation of Fort Dodge, farm credit agencies organized to provide financing in Iowa communities, where banking facilities were inadequate, have fulfilled their purpose and their affairs will be wound up Sept. 30, it was announced by John H. Hogan, president of the Des Moines corporation.

About 90 per cent of the stock of the corporations, each of which was capitalized at $250,000, was subscribed by Chicago banks and other Chicago interests, while the remainder was taken by Iowa banks.

Each corporation had a borrowing power with the intermediate credit bank of Omaha of ten times its capital. No loans were made on any security except corn. The Des Moines corporation loaned $350,000 at its peak, the advances being made on the basis of 75 per cent of the market value of the grain at the time of the loan. The Fort Dodge corporation loaned about $150,000 at its peak.

WORLD'S·GRAIN MARKET·NEWS·

The grain trade appears to be more evened up than for some time. Local longs who bought grains of late on bad weather, were generally unloading yesterday on predictions of a change for the better for the coming week. Trade sentiment was more bearish as result of the decline in prices and the short interest is said to be larger, especially on the part of the general run of traders. The disposition for the present is to sell grains on all bulges.

It is estimated that the country including interior elevator men and farmers have sold upwards of 1,000,000 bu of corn to arrive to Chicago buyers the last week. Purchases on Saturday were estimated at over 400,000 bu, the largest of the week. This forecast increased receipts in the near future, also that farmers are satisfied with their crop outlook as they seldom dispose of their old corn until they are certain about the quantity of the new grain that they are likely to have.

Winnipeg reported the weather mostly clear with no rains. Cash premiums on wheat 1c to 3c lower than on Friday. Private cables received at Winnipeg said there was no export demand and hedging sales caused a weakness.

Indications are for an increase of around 2,000,000 bu in the visible supply of wheat in Monday's report, and will compare with a gain of 3,249,000 bu last year. The big increase will be mainly in the northwest, while Chicago will decrease. World's shipments are estimated at around 12,000,000 bu, a good increase over last year, the bulk being from North America.

Commenting on weather conditions in Canada the last week, Bartlett-Frazier company say: "Out of fifty-one reporting stations in the three provinces only thirteen show an aggregate precipitation of as much as one-quarter of an inch and ten of these stations are in Alberta. Only two of these stations are in Saskatchewan. Last week Saskatchewan had no rainfall of consequence and farmers deliveries to country elevator for the week were 13,286,000 bu.

Wheat inspection at Winnipeg on Friday showed 533 cars No. 1 northern, 396 cars No. 2 northern, leaving only 326 cars for other grades. This is considered a good grading especially the reports of damage to the grain in sheds.

Liverpool cables attributed the break of ⅝@1d in wheat prices to better Canadian weather and the break in Winnipeg on Friday. American wheats were steadily held with demand very quiet after Friday's large business.

There is said to be indications of an export demand for fresh shelled No. 1 yellow corn at about September price in Chicago were it obtainable.

The Canadian wheat pool was said to be a good seller of wheat in Winnipeg yesterday, with the buying largely by shorts.

Wheat marketings in western Canada for Friday were 2,295,000 bu, and interior elevator loadings, 1,795,000 bu.

LONGS UNLOAD LARD

Holders of lard were free sellers of September and October, forcing prices down around 25c for the near delivering, with a reaction of 7½c and a close at net losses of 17½c, while January was off 12½c for the day, with prices around the lowest of the week.

There was liquidation in short ribs with declines of 35c, and bellies were 10@35c lower. The only buying support to the list came from shorts who were taking profits. Hogs were sharply lower and the cash demand moderate. Lard in Liverpool was mostly 6 to 9d lower. Prices follow:

HISTORY YAWNS, CHUCKLES AGAIN AT FORECASTERS

BY HARPER LEECH.

If one could depict changes in style of the so-called social sciences as female costume can be pictured with the aid of Godey's Ladies' Book and its successors, the effect would be similar.

H. G. Wells, who set the "outlines" fashion, now raging in the book stores, now pokes fun at the gigantic beard of Karl Marx. In his time Marx was not much further astray in interpreting modern industrialism than contemporaries like John Stuart Mill. He failed as a prophet. He failed in dealing with the circulation of capital—the weak point of economics today.

As for Wells, Shaw, Webb and company—a glance at the Fabian essays, 1889 edition, will show that history also has the laugh on them. History is now laughing at the whole shoal of "liberals" who contracted the soviet paycheck in 1919.

In 1916 this writer was a Washington correspondent. An excited California editor wired to know if the European war could be explained in terms of racial conflict—as stated in a popular book of the day. Inquiry of anthropologists at the Smithsonian showed that the idea was the bunk.

But for quite a period after that the regnant school of popular science interpreted nearly everything in terms of skin, hair, and eye pigment. Doctor Freud's libidio then usurped the leading role. It was soon eclipsed by the endocrine glands, which became the ruling shibboleth.

Now we seem to be swinging back to the climatic, trade routs, and environmental ideas of the mid-Victorians—like Buckle and the utilitarian school.

Which recalls to this writer that a pupil of the late Dr. Hugo Munsterberg of Harvard says a favorite quip of that really wise man was: "The assertion even the vehement assertion, of one truth is not the assertion of all truth."

The last national gathering of anthropologists, sociologists, etc., held in Chicago, was dominated by the "cultural anthropology" style, now in high favor. They kicked the well known "Nordic myth" all over the lot.

A similar symposium led Dr. Charles A. Beard, president of the American Political Science association, to observe that the "culturals" had done their work so well that they had conclusively established the existence of a "superior race"—the non Nordics. And so it goes.

Current figures of industry and trade fit no simple formulas—confirm no shibboleths.

If some one tells you Europe has been ruined by division into little states—look up the prosperity of Holland, Denmark, or Switzerland.

If told that natural resources and trade routes explain everything—note that the Scandinavian peoples are on the Baltic, the Spanish and Italians on the Mediterranean. Neither have great natural resources. The main trade routes of the modern world enmesh neither. In import trade the northerners are good for per capita purchases of $88, the southerners for $18. The Mediterraneans outnumber the Baltics five to one, but their foreign trade is worth only 20 per cent more. But the Lapps lag far behind both. Climate, trade routes and resources don't explain the difference. Neither does race—look at Switzerland with no unity of race or language, but ranking along with the Scandinavians, Americans, Australians, Canadians as leaders in electrical consumption and other progressive indexes.

In the radio news today note how the Swedes stand. In telephony, "intelligence quotients," kilowatts, longevity, high railway wages and other such things, national rankings flatly contradict the latest formulas of social doctrinaires.

CHICAGO CURB MARKET

Although price changes in the local unlisted securities market displayed some irregularity last week, the majority of issues showed a firm tone with advances predominating.

Acme Steel Goods was in good demand at 72 with cheapest offerings at 73. Beatrice Creamery moved up to sales at 64 and was later wanted at this price with offerings at 65. There was a good investment demand for Brunswick-Balke-Collander preferred, resulting in the price improving to 101. Central Cold Storage was traded in between 22¾ and 23¼. Celotex common was extremely erratic, selling as low as 150 in the early trading, rallying to 165 and showing a 5 point improvement in closing at 181 bid, 185 asked. The preferred sold as low as 89, but recovered to 91 at the close. Both the first and second preferred stocks of the H. Channon company were in good demand, the former at 88 and the latter at 87½. Elgin National Watch was about 1 point easier, selling between 89 and 89½.

Goodman Manufacturing moved up fractionally to 51 bid, 52 asked. The bid price of Great Lakes Transit company improved fractionally to 24. Kellogg company common was about 4 points easier, being offered at 109. The preferred, however, was steady at 108 bid, 111 asked. Keystone Steel & Wire common sold between 45 and 45; while the new preferred was neglected at 80 to 84. National Tea preferred moved up a point to sales between 100 and 101. Although Novadel Process was traded in at 8½, stock was later in supply at this figure with buyers at 8¾. National Theaters recovered a portion of its recent decline, handing at 7¾. Standard Cap & Seal was quiet at 40 to 41. H. O. Stone common was active, improving 5 points to 135 bid. Union Stock Yards of Omaha was also in better demand, showing an advance of 2 points at 123 bid.

Creamery Package common issues were fractionally lower, the range for the week being reported at 34½ low, 35 high, closing transactions being reported at 34½ for the full-voting common and around 33⅜ for the non-voting common. The preferred stock was in good demand at 101 with no trades reported and no stock offered. A better demand was noticeable for American Stove common, 134 bids freely bid with transactions reported at that price and at a slightly higher figure. The market at the end of the week was quoted 134 bid, offered at 137. Lack of interest in Universal Gypsum common caused that stock to be offered at 14 with no actual bids being made for it. The preferred held steady with 76 bid, 73½ asked. Interstate Iron & Steel common was wanted at 53 with none offered and no trades actually reported. The preferred was in demand at 103½ with a few transactions reported at 104½.

Bank stocks were rather irregular, Union Trust showing the greatest advance with sales between 425 and 427, an improvement of about 10 points. State Bank of Chicago, however, sold off 10 points to 780. Illinois Merchants Trust company was quiet, transactions at 306 showing no change. Lake State moved up to sales between 125 and 126. First National was again wanted at 500. National Bank of Republic was slightly better at 265 to 282. Continental & Commercial was traded in at full closing at this price bid, with offerings at 468. There were a few small lots of Northern Trust offered at 480—some 3 points lower than previous sales.

STOCKS REBOUND FROM BEAR RAID; RAILS LEAD RISE

YESTERDAY'S AVERAGES

New York, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Abruptly changing its course after yesterday's drastic decline, the stock market rallied in spirited fashion today under the leadership of the Van Sweringen railroad issues and a handful of prominent industrial shares.

With the market's technical position greatly improved by the latest shake out, confidence was speedily restored by the flood of buying orders which poured in for the railroad stocks. This support was powerful enough to counteract the influence of forced liquidation at the opening, which resulted from the first resort to margin calls in many months.

Word that the Van Sweringen interests had promised another revision of the Nickel Plate merger terms favorable to minority stockholders of the constituent roads started the spectacular buying movement in the shares of these companies.

Chesapeake and Ohio Soars.

Prospects that the Chesapeake and Ohio opposition would be overcome by doubling the annual dividend guaranty sent this road's common stock soaring more than 12 points to a new high record above 171, and it closed only a fraction below the top. The same factors accounted for a gain of nearly 4 points in Nickel Plate and advances of 1 to 3¾ in the Erie and Pere Marquette issues.

Other railroad shares made a belated response to the favorable news developments of the week which previously had failed to arouse interest. Atchison, Illinois Central, Norfolk and Western, New York Central and Louisville and Nashville were strong, while Southern Railway shot up 3 points on the announcement that preferred stockholders had lost their suit to compel an equal division of dividends above 5 per cent.

Industrial Shares Also Rally.

The recovery of the industrial shares was less pronounced, but it was sufficient to give the market an appearance of solid strength. General Motors crossed 155 to the highest price under its present form of capitalization, and U. S. Steel, after dipping below yesterday's low level to 143, closed a half point net higher at 144¾.

Apparently discounting its early return to a dividend basis, Bethlehem Steel matched the year's peak price of 58¾, closing only slightly below this figure for a gain of more than 2 points. Equipment shares, including American Locomotive, Baldwin and Pullman, were bolstered up by predictions of increased railroad buying and substantial improvement took place in Granby Mining, Cast Iron Pipe, Du Pont, White Sewing Machine preferred, Owens Bottle, and American Smelting. Mack Trucks and Warner Pictures "A" continued under selling pressure.

Curb Market Also Firm.

The curb exchange presented a firm front and quotations in some sections headed upward. Celotex opened with a 4 point gain at 134, which improvement was soon cancelled. Warner Brothers suffered a point loss at the start and then declined further after a short rally. Estey Welte, which had been daily moving into new ground, sold at 21½. Freshman Radio and Fox Theaters were moderately higher. Quietness ruled in the public utility and oil divisions. Mexico Panuco slumped to a new low at 3 and Vacuum rallied a fraction, selling to 97½.

With trading in the foreign exchanges extremely light, there was little change of consequence in the principal rates. Demand sterling ruled around $4.85 and French francs showed a loss of but one point at 3.80 cents. Japanese yen continued their advance, being quoted at 41 11-16 cents.

Bonds Dull and Steady.

Bond prices drifted aimlessly in quiet trading, with the market developing a somewhat steadier tone. Fractional gains were recorded by nearly all the French government, railroad, municipal, and steamship issues on a moderate volume of buying. Belgian, Italian, and German bonds, however, lost ground.

Trading in domestic liens was lifeless. Gains of one to two points were registered by Granby Mining 7s, Empire Gas and Fuel 7½s, American Writing Paper 6s, and Continental Paper and Bag 6½s, but Realty Oil 6½s slumped nearly 3 points. Rail issues were firm. Missouri Pacific first 6s and Oregon Short Line 6s were in demand.

Today's weekly statement of the New York clearing house banks and trust companies shows a deficit in reserve of $35,172,610. This is a decrease of $75,-981,810, compared with the week before, when excess reserve of $50,487,908 was reported.

The statement reflected the unusually large settlements on Sept. 15, including the quarterly federal tax payments. Loans, discounts, and investments increased $35,826,000, while net demand deposits decreased $13,416,000 and time deposits fell off $13,569,000.

CHICAGO BANK CLEARINGS

Chicago bank clearings last week totaled $365,250,000, an increase of $176,800,000 over the preceding week, which contained only 5 days, one a holiday, but a decline of $26,750,000 from the corresponding week in 1925. Balances last week totaled $54,800,000, an increase of $21,600,000 over the preceding week and also a gain of $13,900,000 over the corresponding week last year. Figures for the week, day by day (with three ciphers omitted), follow:

Nine Great American Racing Stars buy The Greatest BUICK Ever Built

Frank Lockhart
"After a rigid test, I am convinced the 1927 Buick has advanced engineering ideas, which make it superior to any motor car built. I purchased this car on its performance, and roadability, which I must have in making the racing circuit from Coast to Coast."

Bennett Hill
"To know there's a real car under you—that's what makes automobiling—that's why my new Buick—with its silent power-flow and its reliable four-wheel brakes makes me feel better than any other car I have ever wheeled."

Within thirty days after its introduction, the Greatest Buick Ever Built received one of the greatest tributes ever paid a motor car.

Nine internationally famous A. A. A. speedway stars singled it out above all other cars for their personal use and for their families!

Some of these men are graduate engineers. Others are veteran automobile designers. All of them know motor cars—probably as no other group of nine men in the world.

They have learned the vital necessity of fine engineering, rugged construction and brakes that never fail. They know the importance of stamina and riding comfort. They instantly recognize those qualities of performance that lift a car above the commonplace.

Almost daily they drive the costliest types of hand-constructed automobiles being built today—yet read what they say about Buick and why they chose it for themselves.

Dave Lewis
"The new 1927 Buick convinces me that Buick constantly lives up to its promise—'When better automobiles are built, Buick will build them'."

Here is expert opinion on those qualities of vibrationless performance, efficient operation, handling safety and brilliant beauty, which stamp the Greatest Buick Ever Built as the greatest motor car value ever offered.

Peter De Paolo
"They named it correctly when they called it the Greatest Buick Ever Built. But they might have added, 'And the greatest value ever offered.' I still think I'm not wasting my money by owning two Buicks."

Bob McDonogh
"I thought I could judge the speed of a car. The smooth, vibrationless operation of my new Buick fools me and I can't tell within 20 miles an hour of its speed unless I watch the gauge. Never have I driven a car that operates with as little effort."

Frank Elliott
"From zero to seventy, there isn't a change in the performance of Buick. I have never driven a car before that was absolutely without a speed where vibration took the joy out of driving. Buick has certainly set a mark for perfect design and workmanship in passenger car construction."

Earl Cooper
"My mechanician best expressed my opinion of the 1927 Buick, when he said: 'The smoothness of electricity most nearly expresses the feeling its silent power-flow gives you'."

Cliff Woodbury
"Buick delivers the goods. I never worry about getting there and back—and this new car does it so easily and so quietly that you never know there's an engine under the hood."

Fred Comer
"I bought a Buick because I wanted the most automobile I could get for the money spent—most in mechanical perfection—most in style and comfort. Buick gives me all, plus the smoothest passenger job I have ever handled."

SMALL HOMES CONTEST STIRS WIDE INTEREST

Many Architects to Make Designs.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.
[Home Builders Editor.]

LOUISE BARGELT.

Hundreds of requests from architects and architectural draftsmen were received last week at THE TRIBUNE Public Service Bureau, asking for a complete program of THE TRIBUNE small homes competition.

Not only in Chicago territory was keen interest aroused, but throughout the country as well, showing that certainly no one phase of human activity is of more vital interest to men and women than the small home building industry.

The five room and the six room house! These are the homes to be featured in this competition, which offers twenty prizes in all to architects and architectural draftsmen. The houses will be judged on their charm of design, their attractiveness of line and form, and on their essential practicability and comfort.

The small house is admittedly one of the most important parts of the building movement today. Economic conditions have made it necessary for the vast majority of home builders to content themselves with five or six rooms.

The costs of living, the price of fuel, light, servants, the numberless expenses attendant on the upkeep of the larger house have all increased so enormously that to make ends meet a reduction in house size has been an imperative necessity for many.

Her Own Servant.

The servantless house is the five or six room house. It can be maintained comfortably by the mistress with occasional day help. And with grounds small enough so that they can be taken care of by the man of the house on Saturday afternoons.

What a delight to the prospective builder to know that he can afford for a reasonable price today a house of charm and convenience when only a few years ago the little house was usually a plain if not actually ugly affair. No one thought it was worth while to spend any time on the designing of a small home. It had to have at least eight rooms before it was worth considering.

Growing in Favor.

Little wonder that the small home is growing rapidly in favor when every effort is being made on all sides to increase its comfort, heighten its beauty, and diminish its cost.

There are few restrictions placed upon the architects and architectural draftsmen in the designing of homes in this competition. Only those which restrict them to moderate size and cost and include in their designing those major comfort conveying features such as covered porch, attached or detached garage, and basement under the entire house; features which larger houses possess and which smaller ones may also be expected to have since they contribute so materially to the comforts of living.

The five room house is not to exceed 21,500 cubic feet in contents, including the garage. The site is assumed to be level, with a frontage of 50 feet and a depth of 125 feet to the alley. The five rooms are assumed to be a living room, dining room, kitchen, two bedrooms, a bath and a covered porch. If the dining room is not included, additional space for this use should be provided in the living room, kitchen, or a breakfast nook. The garage may be attached or detached. The so called "shirt front" exterior, with a side and rear of different material should not be employed.

Of Any Style.

The requirements of the six room house are similar excepting that there are to be three bedrooms, the lot is to be 35 feet wide and the cubic contents 25,000 cubic feet.

The houses may be of one or two stories as the architect prefers. As to the style, they may be low and rambling after the English or Spanish or Californian cottage type, or molded with the severe, symmetrical lines of the Georgian Colonial.

Any country or any period may be drawn from, providing that the houses serve the needs of the man of moderate means, meeting his desires for something attractive as well as economical, pleasing to look at as well as comfortable to dwell in.

Closes Dec. 1.

The contest closes at 5 P. M., Wednesday, Dec. 1. Announcement of the prize winners will be made Sunday, Jan. 2. Working plans of the prize winning houses will be on sale at the Public Service Bureau of the Chicago Tribune, Monday, January 3rd, for one dollar.

First Prize Designs in each class $1,000
Second Prize Designs in each class 750
Third Prize Designs in each class 500
Fourth Prize Designs in each class 300
Fifth to Tenth Prize Designs in each class 200

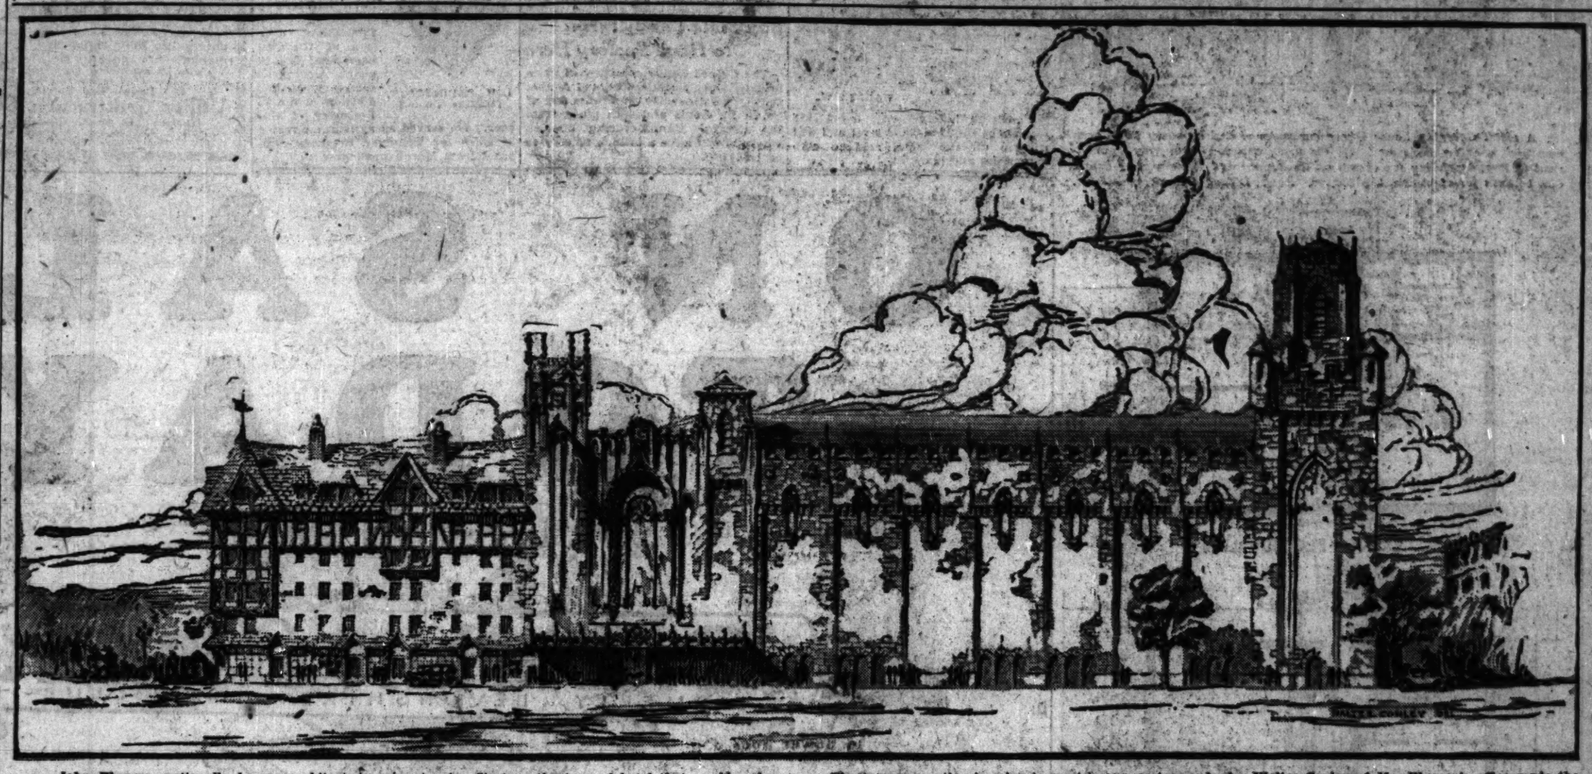
AH! IF ONLY THIS WERE ON OUR OWN BOUL MICH!



John Eberson, nationally known architect, is going to give Cicero a theater and hotel that would make even Boul Mich hold up its head a bit. Chicago has some colorful cinemas, but we doubt if even our flashiest film magnates could honestly admit we've got anything to compare with this Heraldic playhouse the National Theaters corporation is going to erect in our western suburb. Walter Conley of Mr. Eberson's office made the above rendering.

CHICAGO MEN PLAN GORGEOUS THEATER-HOTEL

Huge Structure Will Cost $1,800,000.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

JOHN EBERSON.

Cicero, our sophisticated suburb to the west, which smashes its way on to page one with bullets and bloodshed day after day, and which probably has more well known names on its "Bootleggers' Who's Who" than any community of its size in the world, is going to have what we believe will be one of the most magnificent and imposing cinemas on the globe. We base that prediction on what Architect John Eberson shows in the adjoining picture and also on what he tells us.

This great Gothic structure, of impressive beauty and dignity, is to be erected at the northeast corner of 22d street and 50th avenue, directly across from the athletic field of the Western Electric company, by J. J. and B. J. Cooney and Clement McMahon, who control the destinies of the National Theaters corporation. This will be the eleventh playhouse in that growing chain of cinemas.

200 Room Tavern.

The huge building, in addition to having an auditorium, is to have a half timbered quaint tavern at one end which will have 200 hotel rooms and nine stores.

The Heraldic, as Mr. Eberson has christened it, will contain 2,785 actual seats. This means in the somewhat careless arithmetic of the average fillum magnate—a "3,000 seat house." Anyway, that's closer by about a thousand seats than some of our other big picture palace owners get in their capacity calculations.

Back to Crusaders.

"Our conception for the exterior and interior of this building, which we purpose carrying out with utmost consistency, is that of the romantic days of the crusaders, opportuning us to use dignified building materials and touching in our style of architecture on the Gothic," said Mr. Eberson.

"We're enthusiastic over the possibilities of such an architectural treatment, for it'll enable us to impress our patrons with the majesty of Gothic architecture and the charm of the most heroic and character building period of medieval times.

"Walled City of Warring Popes."

"We are thinking of Avignon, the walled city of warring popes, a massive golden silhouette, punctured by parapets and turrets, spotted with bright arches, blocked windows, and sealed doorways. We mingle with historians and study the wood cuts of painters and architects who have recorded the magnificence of this style of architecture.

"The atmospheric expression of this 14th century style of architecture, with ramparts, arched bridges, city walls, and house turrets, picture the rain washed remnants of an old castle church and tavern clustered in a medieval hamlet, which is the inspiration and thought behind our architectural treatment of the Heraldic theater and tavern building."

A Machine Gun or Two?

Mr. Eberson states that the theater part of the big structure will cost $1,300,000 and the tavern $500,000. Work is to start at once, with completion set for the fall of 1927.

Now let's hope Cicero's gentlemanly gunmen won't stick up the box office on the opening night. Any way, why not put a machine gun or two up in those picturesque little turrets?

Spanish Type Theater for North Shore

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

One of the most picturesque bits of country in Chicagoland is soon to occupy that bit of uninteresting terrain along Sheridan road between Wilmette and Kenilworth which for years has been known as "No Man's Land" because it belonged to neither village, although contiguous to each. This locale will resemble a bit of Spain for the architecture of the new structures projected will get its motif from that sunny country.

FREDERICK A. RAWSON.
[Dobbins Photo.]

It has just been announced that work is to start, probably this week, on a 1,400 seat moving picture theater in that part of the district just west of Sheridan road. A seventy-five foot street will be cut from Sheridan through the property and the theater will occupy one corner and stores another.

Designed by Clark.

The theater, which will show first run films, was designed by Edwin H. Clark. White stucco, red tile roofs, and bright tile trimming will be the materials of which the theater building will be erected.

Just across Sheridan road will be located the two new shore clubs recently told about in this department, the Vista del Lago and the Breakers Beach club. Both structures will be in the Spanish style of architecture. And across the street from the theater will be a building containing nine stores. The store building will have arched entrances and a low square tower to harmonize with the other developments.

The owners of the new theater want it to look like one of the old Spanish missions of the Pacific coast. It will have an arched entrance, a shadowed loggia and deep reveal windows to bear this out.

Will Cost $400,000.

An interesting feature of the project is the fact that a majority of the patrons will have to come by automobile, as the building is located some distance from the ordinary modes of transportation. For this reason, special parking space for motors will be provided.

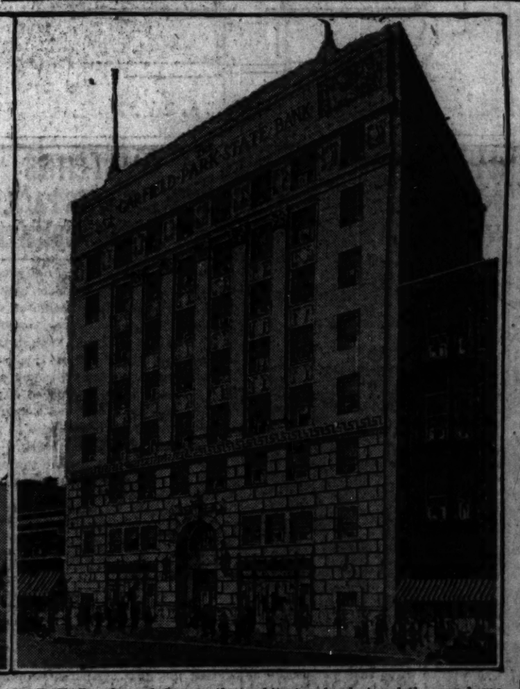
The theater building is expected to represent an investment of about $400,000. It is hoped to have it ready for operation by May 1, 1927.

The syndicate promoting the development consists of the following: Ayres Boal, Alfred T. Carton, Edwin H. Clark, Marmel T. Clark, Harry C. Edmonds, H. O. Edmonds, Frederick H. Rawson, Gilbert Scribner, Arch W. Shaw, Henry T. Stanton, and Anna B. Wickes.

FOR ALBANY PARK

A few years ago the land which the above pictured imposing building will occupy was practically a prairie. And now we shall soon have a six story home for the Hill State bank with a foundation sufficiently strong to carry four more floors. K. M. Vitzthum & Co., Inc., are the architects. The project will represent an investment of $800,000, it is stated. Work is to start early in October, with completion expected in the middle of 1927.

BUILT BY DOLLARS



D. H. Burnham & Co. are the architects who designed the new home for the Garfield Park State bank which will be erected in West Madison street, just west of the northwest corner of Crawford. The structure will be eight stories high, and it is stated will cost about $800,000. The bank will occupy the first floor, while the upper seven will be rented as offices.

NEW FURNITURE BUILDING FOR COTTAGE GROVE

The Spiegel-May-Stern company has leased for twenty-five years the 50x125 at 8340 Cottage Grove avenue, across from the Tivoli theater, at an annual rental understood to be $30,000, and will erect a four story building to be used entirely for the sale of furniture. Rosenberg & Lurie were brokers.

SHOPPERS' BRIDGE TO LINK FIELD'S WITH "L" LOOP

Work has started on a "Shoppers' Bridge," which will link Marshall Field & Company's retail store building with the elevated loop. It will stretch across from the west platform of the Randolph street "L" station into the second floor of the Wabash and Randolph corner of the Field store.

JAMES SIMPSON.
[Maisene Photo.]

According to James Simpson, president of Marshall Field & Co., who recently returned from Europe, the construction costs of the new bridge will be paid for by the store.

The Davis store, owned by Marshall Field & Co., has had an "L" bridge for several years. Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co. also have had a bridge connection with the "L" loop for a good many years. So has the La Salle street station. Hartman's recently connected its new store with the Adams street station.

As the Palmer house is the only big hotel directly facing the loop, it's a good guess the Palmer estate will link it with the "L" lines. Mandel's also can easily bridge over the space between the Madison street station and their Wabash avenue section, and this presumably will be done.

OLD WORLD CINEMA

A beautiful moving picture theater, reminiscent of one of the old mission houses of California or a bit of Spain, is soon to occupy a part of the "no man's land" lying between Wilmette and Kenilworth. The structure, which is to be of white stucco, was designed by Edwin H. Clark. It will cost about $400,000, it is stated, and will be owned by a syndicate composed of a number of wealthy north shore people. The auditorium will seat 1,400, and the best and latest films will be exhibited.

DEMPSEY'S WAX BEAK HELPS TO FINANCE DEAL

Mr. John Harrison Dempsey's wax beak helped put over a good sized realty deal at the northwest corner of 78th and State yesterday. Dr. William E. Balsinger, who melted Mr. Dempsey's proboscis into more modish shape than it originally faced the world with, paid $100,000 for the 152x125 feet of vacant to William Fleming. Rumor has it that John D. (not Mr. Rockefeller) paid $19,000 for his nasal alterations. If that's true, then a tenth of Dr. Balsinger's purchase money was supplied by Jack's vanity, or, pugilistically speaking, by a fraction of a nose. Cramer, Foote & Co. were brokers. Mr. Fleming bought this corner six months ago for $65,000.

JACK DEMPSEY.

MADISON-AUSTIN CORNER IS SOLD FOR $265,000

Alex G. Javaras sold the southwest corner of Austin and Madison, 82x125, improved with seven stores and twenty-eight offices, to George Poniatowski of Forest Park, for a reported $265,000.

Giant Co-op Is Announced for Sheridan

One of the most notable cooperative apartment building projects in the city has just been announced for the southeast corner of Sheridan road and Greenleaf avenue, running to the lakefront, syndicate headed by J. A. Lucas will erect a structure 100x400 feet and thirteen stories high.

Adolph Pruskauer is the architect for the building, which will contain ninety-six apartments. There will be twenty-four apartments of nine rooms, twenty-four of four rooms and forty-eight of six rooms.

The exterior will be of buff colored face brick on all sides in conformity with the 1926 idea of no more shirt front buildings. The trim will be of pulsichrome terra cotta.

A feature of the structure will be the great size of the rooms. All the living rooms will measure 20x26 feet, the dining rooms will be 18x18, the master chambers 14x20 and the others 14x16.

The project will represent an investment of $1,750,000, it is stated. Work is expected to start as soon as the plans are completed, which will be in about two months. The building is to be ready for occupancy ten months or a year after the start of work.

SIX ROOM HOME FOR PEOPLE WHO LIKE FORMALITY

Of Georgian Design and Costs About $10,000.

Are you interested in home plans? "Small Homes" plan books may be purchased for ten cents at the Public Service office of The Tribune, 11 South Dearborn street, and in the branch in the lobby of The Tribune Tower. They will be sent out by mail on receipt of thirteen cents in coin or stamps.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

A charming rendering of a small 6 room Georgian home. Convenience has been combined here with artistic effects, and much thought has been given the matter of economy, resulting in an approximate cost of $10,000.

It has been built for Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Brooksbank on South Crescent avenue, Park Ridge, Ill. Rowe, Dillard & Rowe, 127 North Dearborn street, Chicago, are the architects.

This home is almost square in shape, with a general floor overall of 24x31-8. This means the utmost compactness in the floor plans, and yet the whole impression given is of a spacious residence, with central hall on the first floor opening wide to the long living room on one side and the dining room on the other.

Of Plain, Red Brick.

According to true Georgian tradition, the exterior is of plain red brick. Stone was sometimes used and today some architects employ a smooth, cream tinted stucco which resembles stone. This, after all, is a matter of taste, though perhaps the most frequently seen Georgian residence shows an elevation of plain brick work with no elaborate patterning.

Georgian homes are not preferred by those who live together with any great amount of informality. Much privacy is afforded by the way the rooms are divided from each other by a central hall on both floors. In contrast, for instance, to the typical Spanish home, where one room is reached by going through another. Though, of course, in our Americanized versions of Spanish homes, their general floor plan is very much according to our general idea of how "things should be."

A first impression gives a picture of a home symmetrical in line, dignified, and impressive, and furthermore a home whose exterior depends largely for its charm on its refinement of detail.

A Bronze Knocker.

A few steps lead to a fan shaped doorway. These steps may be finished off with hand rails and a bronze knocker on the door. All these details, while carrying out the Georgian idea, add to the cost of the house.

In fact, if all the details are included in the building of a Georgian home, it is not the least expensive type to erect today. It is not necessary, however, that everything should be afforded at once. The conditions that are necessary for the general effect can be economically met and other details added later, and a home in this style be made to prove a delight to the observer and a comfort to the owner.

Inside, the stairs leading up and down divide the front hall from the rear hall. In the old Georgian home the staircase was amply wide and not inclosed, with the balusters often painted white, while the steps were of light or dark wood, and carpeted or uncarpeted. Again in former days the dining room was frequently found in the rear of the house, for it was not considered the best form to dine in too public a spot. Now, though, in reproducing the Georgian type in six and even in five room homes, one has to temper one's designing to suit appropriateness.

Porch Not Enclosed.

The porch here is not enclosed. It is supported by columns which may be repeated for mantel treatment in the interior if desired.

The windows are finely proportioned and symmetrical, flanked by green shutters, which is truly a Georgian touch.

The upstairs offers three bedrooms; two more or less connected and apart from the other by the private hallway. The master bedroom is large and almost directly connected with the bath. Observe the sizeable bath and linen closet.

The floors are of oak. In a Georgian house they may be of highly polished hardwood, and it goes without saying that there is no limit to the variety of rugs which can be used.

There is generous window spacing on both floors and the bedrooms especially have abundant light and closet space.

Announces Union for Realty Salespeople

The organization of the Real Estate Sales People's Protective union has just been announced by Mary H. Sweet, secretary of the organization, with an office at room 830, 127 North Dearborn street. The object of the organization is to protect the profession of selling from outsiders and part time sales people and to take united action with real estate operators and brokers.

News of the Architects

Mr. Carl Hauber, Chicago architect, plaintively, and we believe with justification, calls attention to the fact that THE TRIBUNE carelessly shoved his office out on the roof of the Kimball building.

"I moved to larger quarters on the 8th floor and you said I'd moved to the 18th. There isn't any 18th in the Kimball building—it's the roof," said he, no pardon.

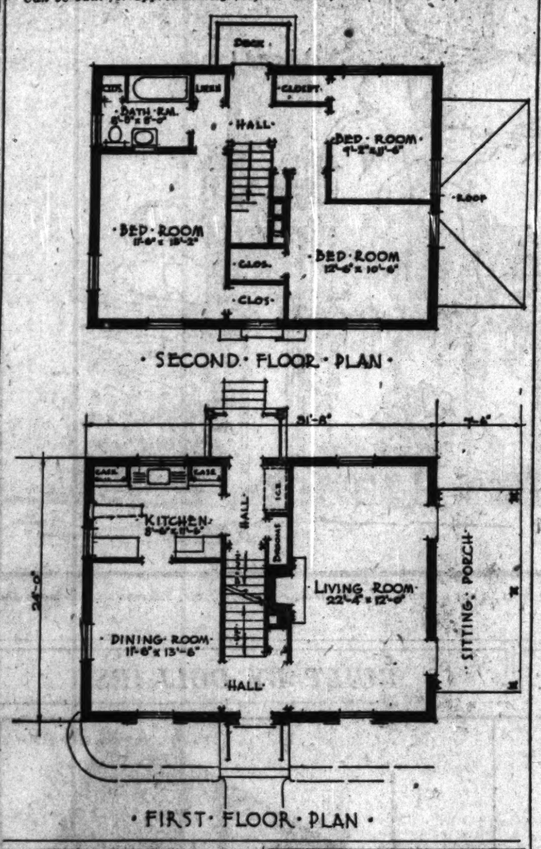
FOR THE DIGNIFIED

A small Georgian house where convenience and economy have been combined with artistic effect. Its red brick exterior is severely symmetrical in line, depending for charm on its dignity and refinement of detail. Can be built for approximately $10,000. Rowe, Dillard & Rowe, architects.



WORK TO START SOON ON HOME OF HILL STATE BANK

To Rise at Kimball and Lawrence.

Work will start early next month on one of the most imposing bank structures outside of the loop. The new building will be the home of the Hill State bank, and it will occupy the northeast corner of Lawrence and Kimball avenues, in Albany Park.

K. M. Vitsthum & Co., Inc., are the architects for the building, which is to be eight stories in height. In laying the foundation, however, provision will be made for the addition of four stories later, when the structure will be ten stories high.

K. M. VITTHUM. [Chambers Photo.]

The bank building's exterior is to be of classical design and will bear the appearance, according to the artist's rendering, of one structure superimposed on another. The exterior material will be either stone or terra cotta, resting on a ten foot granite base.

To Cost $800,000.

The site which the building will occupy measures 116½ feet on Lawrence avenue and 125 feet on Kimball, running to an alley. The structure and the land it occupies will represent an investment of $800,000, it is stated.

The first floor will contain the main banking room, which will measure 75x125 feet, with the ceiling thirty feet above the floor. The banking floor will be as handsome on a smaller scale as many of the great loop financial institutions. It is to contain the very latest in business conveniences, and it will be finished in imported marble and bronze. The rest of the first floor will be occupied by six stores facing Lawrence avenue and two stores on Kimball. The northern portion of the Kimball avenue side will house the offices of the Hill State Bond and Mortgage company.

Has Eighteen Shops.

On the second floor there will be about eighteen shops, with the rest of the space there used by the bank. The third, fourth, and fifth floors will be occupied by offices, which will be rented to outside companies, doctors, etc. The sixth floor will be used partly for offices and partly for a lodge hall.

In the basement will be found the safe deposit vaults, the coupon booths and other banking quarters. Further, there will be a large restaurant.

It is hoped to have the bank's new home finished by the middle of 1927 so that it can move in from its present quarters at Lawrence and Christiana avenues. The officials of the bank are: W. N. Reynolds, president; A. H. Carson, vice president; George C. Lowe, vice president; C. D. Reynolds, vice president, and J. H. Jeffries, cashier.

It is interesting to note that only twenty years ago this district was practically a prairie land. But with the construction of the Ravenswood branch of the Northwestern elevated the locality developed fast. The Lawrence and Kimball business section is now one of the most lively of the city's outlying business areas.

MIDDLE WEST CITIES HOLD BUILDING PACE, STATISTICS INDICATE

Building construction in the principal major cities of the middle west is being well sustained in point of volume according to statistics compiled by S. W. Straus & Co. Although Chicago's 8 month record of this year compared with the corresponding period of 1925 showed a drop of 7 per cent, her August record had a gain of 9 per cent over last year and a 34 per cent gain over July this year.

Milwaukee and Detroit are the only two cities in the group that maintained a gain for the comparative eight months' period. Milwaukee with a building volume of $26,300,923 for the eight months compares with $26,198,941 last year, giving a gain of 5 per cent. Detroit's gain was 2 per cent for the same period.

Cleveland, Des Moines, Indianapolis, and Milwaukee were other middle western cities that showed gains in August 1926 over August 1925. Indianapolis, Kansas City and St. Louis, in addition to Chicago, had gains in August this year compared with July.

The comparative record for the eleven cities for the first two-thirds of the year is as follows:

City—	First 8 months, 1925.	First 8 months, 1926.
Chicago	$256,977,350	$238,836,400
Cincinnati	23,632,825	19,568,350
Cleveland	47,902,850	47,353,735
Detroit	133,779,457	136,561,398
Des Moines	4,850,915	4,086,472
Indianapolis	18,120,920	14,517,656
Kansas City	28,459,005	16,666,215
Milwaukee	26,198,941	26,300,923

LABOR CHIEFTAIN HAS PLAN TO AID COLLEGE YOUTHS

To Provide Summer Work in Building Trade.

BY THOMAS WREN.

Samuel Patrick Luzzo, who holds official positions with five Chicago trade unions and central labor organizations, announced last night that he intends to work out a plan this winter to aid college boys to obtain employment in the building industry during summer vacations.

SAMUEL PATRICK LUZZO. [Mabel Sykes Photo.]

He said the plan will regulate the employment of the college students so there will be no interference with the employment of the regular union members, of which there are nearly 15,000 working as laborers and hodcarriers under Luzzo's supervision in the local building industry.

Mr. Luzzo is president of the Hodcarriers and Building Laborers' District council, vice president of the Building Trades council, president of the Track Layers' union, secretary of the Laundry Workers' union, and chief of the Material Yard Employes' organization.

May Be Count.

There is a rumor in labor circles that Samuel Patrick may become the next international head of the hodcarriers' organization. This position carries with it a title of count from the king of Italy—so, for all one knows, Samuel Patrick may become a count along with the string of titles he now holds with labor unions.

Luzzo is not a college man; his knowledge was obtained in the school of hard knocks and experience. But he has been studying the life of college students and has come to the conclusion that all's not well in the present day college life in so far as teachings of the labor problem are concerned.

The union leader says his intended plan will give employment each summer in the building industry to college boys who are desirous of continuing their schooling by doing manual labor during the yearly vacation period. Last summer, averred Luzzo, a large number of college boys, many of them football stars, were engaged in the Chicago building industry, mostly on nonunion construction.

Would Benefit Later.

He said the idea came to him then that a plan to give a certain number of the students employment each vacation period in the building industry would be of a beneficial nature to the labor movement in general. Some of these boys, asserted the union chief, may be laborers today, but later they will be the captains of industry.

In the latter capacity they would have a working knowledge of the labor movement, its aims and ambitions. They could determine for themselves the difference between employment on an open shop basis and one of closed shop or a 100 per cent trade union plane.

Carpenters in Dispute.

William L. Hutcheson, international president of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, will give a decision in the controversy between the local factions of carpenters regarding a recent election when he returns from England. The international head of the carpenters' organization is attending a trade union congress in Bournemouth, England, as a fraternal delegate from the American Federation of Labor. His co-delegate is Frank Farrington, former head of the Illinois Mine Workers' union.

Election of officers of the Chicago Carpenters' District council was held last June and, after one week of ballot counting, Harry Jensen was reelected president by 104 votes. Nearly 20,000 votes were cast. Ballots cast in local 1786 disappeared on election night and haven't been located yet. Fred Bobzin, Jensen's opponent, claims he was elected, but counted out with short pencils and disappearance of the ballots cast in local 1786. Settlement of the argument will await Hutcheson's return from abroad.

It is reported that the Carpenters' District council will again seek a reaffiliation with the Building Trades council. Because of a jurisdictional dispute, the carpenters were ousted from the central body a few years ago.

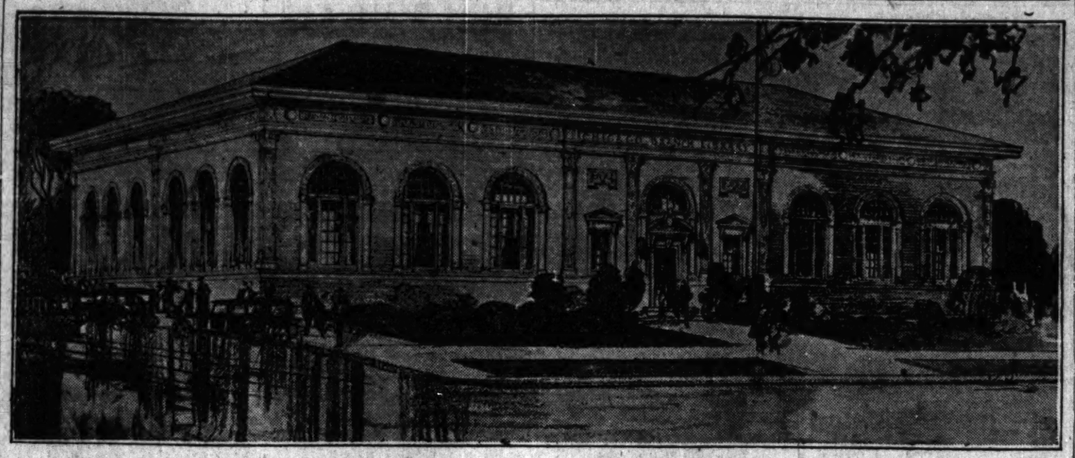
Of late many of the carpenters' locals have been clamoring for affiliation with the trades council and it is said that Jensen, sensing the demands of the rank and file in the last election, will seek admittance to the council without reservations.

Conroy in East.

James J. Conroy, secretary of the Building Trades council, is this week attending a convention of the international union of bricklayers at Atlantic City. He is representing the Chicago local of tile layers, a union which is affiliated with the bricklayers. Conroy is one of the veterans of the labor movement. In elections he generally leads the ticket by a good majority. In appreciation of his long service there is some talk of making his job a lifetime position.

Several years ago when gangsters gained control of the Building Trades council Conroy was the only leader who ventured into the union headquarters. He was secretary then and through the turmoil succeeded in keeping the files of his office intact. Virtually all the other leaders of building trades preferred to get the news from headquarters at second hand. And Conroy is a quiet, easy going fellow who is a student of the labor movement.

FIRST OF SEVERAL NEW BRANCH LIBRARIES



Architect Alexander V. Capraro designed the above branch of the Chicago public library to be erected at Crawford and 27th, as told about in another column. It is the first of a series of branches to be erected throughout the city. Rendering by Charles Morgan.

HOTEL MARKHAM

Chicago continues to figure extensively in the Mississippi gulf coast development. Benjamin H. Marshall of Chicago and Wilmette has designed a $1,000,000 eight story hotel which is being erected at Gulfport, Miss. It'll be managed by a Chicagoan, L. A. Reinert, lessee-operator of the Cooper-Carlton hotel, Chicago.

Also, it'll be named in honor of another Chicagoan, Charles H. Markham, president of the Illinois Central, which has a terminus in Gulfport. So far as can be learned, Chicagoans are not the builders nor the owners. Apparently it's to be more of a commercial hotel than tourist. It's to open next winter.

LIBRARY BRANCH TO BE BUILT AT CRAWFORD-27TH

One Story Structure Will Cost $55,000.

The board of directors of the Chicago Public library has approved plans for the first of several branch libraries to be erected in various outlying districts and thus extend service eventually to all parts of the city. The first branch in this program, according to Librarian Carl B. Roden, will be at the southwest corner of Crawford avenue and West 27th street.

CARL B. RODEN. [Moffett Photo.]

Plans by Architect Alexander V. Capraro call for a one story building of Italian renaissance design, 105x50, which will have a shelf capacity for 15,000 to 20,000 volumes. It will have reading rooms for adults and children.

Ground will be broken early this fall. The cost of the new building will be approximateley $55,000. The building committee of the library board, under whose supervision the plans were prepared, comprises Louis M. Severson, Michael Iarussi and Robert J. Roulston.

LOOKING BACKWARD

To Sept. 19, 1916; 10 Years Ago Today

Murray Wolbach acquired the old Wanderers' club property at East End avenue and 71st street during the week. Mr. Wolbach is reported to have paid $100,000 for the property, about eleven acres, which was occupied by the club for seventeen years. The club moved there from the old Comiskey park site at 35th and Wentworth in 1899. Mr. Wolbach will develop the property and it is stated that the ultimate erection of apartment houses and business blocks will represent an investment of $2,000,000.

MURRAY WOLBACH.

An unusual apartment building is being erected by Mrs. E. S. Theurer on the west side of Lincoln Park West, 128 feet south of Fullerton. It will be unique in the fact that, while it will be six stories high, it will contain only four apartments. The first floor will be devoted to the entrance lobby and service rooms, while the sixth floor will contain a roof garden, guest-rooms, etc. The cost is placed at $175,000. The architects are Vitzthum & Teich.

To Sept. 19, 1906; 20 Years Ago Today

The North Ravenswood subdivision of forty acres at the northeast corner of Lawrence avenue and Robey street, which has just been placed on the market, has an interesting history. It belongs to Mrs. P. D. Armour, the widow of the founder of Armour & Co., and it has always been held in her family since it was acquired from the government in 1839 by her grandfather, John Ogden, who paid $50 for it, or $1.25 an acre. It descended to her father, Jonathan Ogden, where title has since remained. The building of the Ravenswood extension of the Northwestern Elevated made it available, so it was decided to subdivide it and place it on the market. J. W. Heddenberg has charge of the property.

MRS. P. D. ARMOUR. [Maisene Photo.]

John Walker of Allegheny, Pa., bought from Frederick Bartlett a tract of about twenty acres at the northeast corner of 16th street and South 54th avenue, Cicero, comprising blocks G, H, I and J of the Grant Locomotive works addition, just back of the old works.

To Sept. 19, 1896; 30 Years Ago Today

Mrs. Emma Bush is to have a beautiful residence in Edgewater. Wilson & Marshall are at work on the plans. The house will be two stories, basement and attic high and will cover an area 37x70 feet on a lot 54x150 feet. The outer walls will be constructed of white marble bowlders. The residence will cost $19,000.

E. R. WILSON.

Edgar M. Snow & Co. negotiated a loan for Martin D. Amble from the Northwestern Mutual Life of Milwaukee for five years at five per cent on the property at 153-55 East Jackson street, valued at $120,000.

J. Grafton Parker & Co. have sold for Mrs. Helen L. Leland the Rockingham apartment house at the southwest corner of Michigan and 59th street to Frederick H. Bainard for a consideration of $80,000.

R. C. Givins' sale of lots and houses by auction at California and Diversey avenues attracted large crowds during the week. The number sold and the prices obtained were said to indicate a successful undertaking. Sales of lots were made from $295 to $1,000 each.

War Friends Form New Realty Firm

A 1917 war friendship between Harry J. Powers Jr. and Ernest H. Young, both flying pilots, has resulted in their forming a real estate partnership under the firm name of Powers & Young, according to an announcement made yesterday. The new organization will specialize in loop property, theater sites, and outlying business districts. Their offices are in the Straus building.

Mr. Powers is the son of Harry J. Powers, one of Chicago's oldest and best known theater owners and managers. For some time he was associated with his father, and then he entered the realty field, specializing in theater sites and the sale of loop properties.

Mr. Young is the brother of W. K. Young of the firm of W. K. Young & Brother, having been associated with that firm for fifteen years. Both partners in the new firm were lieutenants in the air service.

INSURANCE MAN MADE OFFICIAL OF REALTY FIRM

Herbert J. Lorber, for years secretary of the Rollins, Burdick, Hunter company, insurance, has been made vice president, in charge of administration, of George F. Nixon & Co. Mr. Lorber will assume his new duties Oct. 1. Mr. Lorber worked out the details of the insurance protection plans adopted some time ago by the Nixon concern. Edwin O. Syman will remain as vice president of the Nixon company. He will be in direct charge of the sales forces it was announced yesterday.

New Cook County Plat Book Just Published

The announcement of a new map is always good real estate news. So we're glad to pass along to readers the information that a brand new plat book of Cook county, with colored plates, has just been published by the Thrift Press, map makers of Rockford, Ill. An improvement over former plat books of the county is the printing in of the names of roads.

Roy E. Stacy of the Thrift Press writes: "We believe this book to be the most complete of its kind ever published for Cook county."

NEW YORKER BUYS HERE.

I. Miska sold to Levi Rokeach of New York the two story building, lot 48x100, at 914-16 South California avenue for a reported $28,500. E. N. Duerlein & Co. were brokers.

VIRGINIA PARKER ENTERS SERVICE OF REALTY FIRM

Herewith is a picture of Miss Virginia Parker, who, with Miss Mary Glenn, recently became associated with the Connell-Meloy Real Estate company, at 167 East Chicago avenue. Miss Parker is comparatively a newcomer in the real estate field, having entered the business only about a year ago. Previous to her present connection she worked with Mellicent Martin. Miss Parker is modest concerning herself. But it was learned that during the war she rolled bandages for wounded soldiers. And she went to school in Boston.

EDISON ELECTRIC COMPANY BUYS CICERO FACTORY

The Edison Electrical Appliance Co. Inc., manufacturers of Hot Point electrical appliances, continuing its recent program of expansion, has purchased from the Vitanola Talking Machine company the property at 52nd avenue and 22nd street, Cicero for a reported price of $350,000.

Of this amount $140,000 was in cash and the balance of $210,000 in the form of a bond issue running to Greenebaum Sons Bank and Trust company was assumed by the purchaser. The property measures 350x628 feet and is improved with a number of manufacturing buildings.

Ednyfed H. Williams was attorney for the purchaser and S. Sidney Stein of Moses, Kennedy, Stein & Bachrach represented the seller.

BUILDS ON VAN BUREN.

I. Miska bought the lot, 52x100 feet, at 2748-50 West Van Buren street from Mead & Coe for a reported $4,250. He is improving it with a two story building. E. N. Duerlein & Co. were brokers.

Glencoe Physician Buys Evanston Flat Building

Dr. E. W. Maechtle of Glencoe has bought the twenty-one apartments at 1505 Oak avenue, Evanston, from William Blanchard Jr. for an undisclosed consideration, giving in part payment his residence at 1092 Bluff road, Glencoe.

Dr. Maechtle and his family will leave for Florida shortly, where they will make their home. The flats just bought will be managed by Hokanson & Jenks. Marjorie De Golyer of that firm was broker.

GARFIELD PARK STATE BANK TO ERECT NEW HOME

Will Be 8 Stories High; Cost $800,000.

(Picture on page 1.)

Out of the west side comes the announcement of a handsome new bank building for the city. It's to be erected for the Garfield State bank and will stand in West Madison street, fifty feet west of the northwest corner of Crawford.

D. H. BURNHAM.

The structure will be eight stories high and it is stated will cost about $800,000, including the bank interior and decorations. The bank owns frontage of 75 feet on Madison, with a depth of 175 feet to the alley. The eight story building will occupy the front third of the property.

The building was planned by D. H. Burnham & Co. The exterior design is to be reminiscent of the Italian renaissance period. The decorative scheme will make the structure as dignified and impressive in appearance as the gentlemen who occupy the bank offices where one goes to see about that loan. And if there is anything more dignified appearing to a borrower than a banker, what can it be?

A Fancy Word.

The architects of the buildings say that the three lower floors "form a massive stylobate of rusticated courses." And just to save wear and tear on your dictionary here's the definition of the word with the rather sophisticated air about it. A stylobate is a continuous base for two or more columns. Rusticated courses in this case mean heavy blocks that stand out through deep channeling.

Polished granite will provide the material for the three lower floors. The entrance will be through an arch two stories high, with two bronze lanterns at each side.

Our old friend, the stylobate, will form the base for five slender pilasters that will extend from the third to the top of the seventh floors. Two massive corner piers will provide a frame for the pilasters, as a glance at the accompanying photograph will show. The eighth floor will form a frieze with ornamental panels between the windows.

Of Bedford Stone.

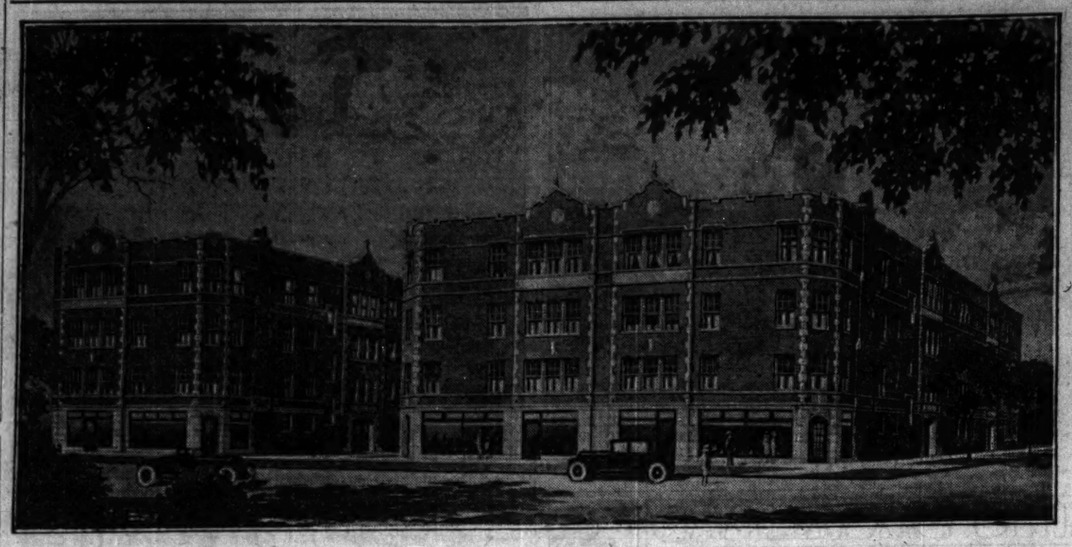
Above the eighth floor there will be a high parapet, with art work making it distinctive. The entire façade will be either of Bedford stone or a combination of stone and terra cotta.

The bank is to occupy the first floor and the remaining will be rented for offices. The bank floor will have a ceiling twenty-two feet high, with mezzanine floors in the front and rear.

The safety deposit vault will have a capacity of 6,000 boxes, with provision for 6,000 more when needed. Then there is promised a new cash vault which will be so difficult of access as to make robbing the mint at Denver seem easy by comparison.

The bank's present building was erected in 1912 and already it has been outgrown. Its combined resources are placed at approximately $7,500,000. The officers are: B. A. Cliftherto, president; F. P. Rees, chairman of the board; A. Marquart, vice president; J. L. Simmons, vice president, and J. H. Kenna, cashier.

STORES AND FLATS FOR FAR SOUTH SIDE



William G. Carnegie is the architect of the above stores and flats to be erected at the northeast corner of 111th place and Vernon avenue by the Da Met Building corporation. The site was purchased from Bartholomew O'Toole. E. L. Bloomster made the above rendering.

DAD IVERSEN TAKES SON INTO RENAMED FIRM

S. Charles Iversen, former president of the Chicago Real Estate board, tomorrow will celebrate the completion of thirty-three years in business at one location [105 South Dearborn street] by changing the firm name of Hibbard, Porter & Brother, which he personally conducted since 1911, to S. Charles Iversen & Co. Adding a domestic touch to the celebration, Mr. Iversen announces that his twenty-two year old son, Stanley S. Iversen, will be associated with him in the organization. The young Mr. Iversen attended the University of Michigan and then spent six months in the advertising business in Florida.

SELECT SEATTLE FOR CONVENTION OF U. S. REALTORS

Seattle, Wash., will be honored with the next annual convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards following a decision of the directors of the association at their quarterly meeting recently held here. The date of the meeting has been tentatively set for Aug. 9-13, inclusive, being a departure from the usual custom of holding the convention in June. The change in date was made because it was felt this period would fit in better with the business plans of the members than the earlier date. The annual business meeting of the association will be held at Miami, Fla., from Jan. 13 to 14.

Brokers' Notes

The Rev. Fred E. Bennett, so called "fighting parson" of the Free Methodist church, has been made a divisional manager of the Metropolitan Realty company. He has been lecturing for the Metropolitan concern for over a year.

THE REV. FRED E. BENNETT.

Elmer Jordan and Merle Lyon announce the retirement of Irving B. Enevold from the firm of Elmer Jordan & Co., 2419 West 63d street. Mr. Enevold is now in business for himself at 2341 West 63d street.

The real estate firm of O'Connor Brothers, 9 Addison street, Oak Park, has opened a branch office at 6201 Ogden avenue, Berwyn, with W. H. Hansen as general manager.

Frank E. Maher, formerly of Detroit, has been appointed sales director of the Calumet properties of the H. Wallace Caldwell Realty company.

M'MENEMY AND MARTIN ADD MANY TO ORGANIZATION

Increased business activities have necessitated considerable enlargement recently in the various departments of the firm of McMenemy & Martin, Inc. Ralph E. Peterson, a member and one of the directors of the company since its organization, has been made sales manager.

Among the recent additions to the sales department are the following: Russell C. Clipson, formerly with Joseph T. Ryerson & Son; James E. MacDonald, formerly with the bond department of the Union Trust company and the Standard Casting Directory, Inc., of Los Angeles, and Charles Swingley, formerly with Mackay & Co., New York, and the Palm Beach real estate office of Ladd & Nichols, Inc.

But men are not the only acquisitions to the personnel. The renting department has taken on Miss Catherine Campbell, Miss Alta Cundy, Mrs. Ethel Page, Miss Helen Lehrkind, Miss Jean Cartwright, Miss Alice Snyder, Miss Agnes Lochman, and Miss Dorothy Nettleton.

And George W. Gill has been made local renting manager for the Seneca hotel in Streeterville, with Walter H. Cattin as assistant.

WINNETKA VACANT DEAL.

Henry C. Anderson bought the vacant property 50x150 on the east side of Rosewood avenue, between Fig and Vine streets, Winnetka, from E. L. Middleton. Quinlan & Tyson, Inc., were brokers.

PLAN $350,000 BUILDING FOR PULLMAN SITE

Will Be at 111th Place and Vernon.

Bartholomew O'Toole, realtor, yesterday sold the northeast corner of 111th place and Vernon avenue to the Da Met Building corporation as the site for a new three story store and apartment building for a reported $325,000. The property, which had been owned by Mr. O'Toole for the last sixteen years, fronts 130 feet on 111th place and 125 feet on Vernon avenue.

BARTHOLOMEW O'TOOLE. [Wallinger Photo.]

Plans have been drawn by Architect William G. Carnegie for a structure to cost $350,000, which is scheduled for completion by May 1, 1927; but, according to Mr. Carnegie, it is expected to shorten the contemplated construction time considerably.

The new building will contain fifty apartments of two, three, and four rooms each. There'll be six shops on the ground floor. Mr. Carnegie will have complete charge of the construction and the general contract has been let to the Carnegie company.

Near New Bank.

It is close to the new Pullman bank at 111th and South Park, now nearing completion at a cost of approximately $400,000.

The Da Met Building corporation is headed by Edwin S. Davis. The secretary of the corporation is Andrew C. Metzger.

EALTY BOARD'S OLF PLAYERS TO TEE OFF SEPT. 29

rizes to Add Interest to Day's Sport.

Golf was forced to take the role of step-child at the Chicago Real Estate Board's outing at Mooseheart last July, but it comes into its own on Wednesday, Sept. 29, when realtors will devote the afternoon to pursuing the elusive little sphere over the fairways and greens of the Glen Acres Country club.

ERCE W. JONES.

Glen Acres is situated a mile west of the village of Glen View. Play is to start at 2:30 p. m. and at 6 p. m. a chicken dinner will appease the appetites of the players. And the prizes will be awarded during the dinner.

Number of Events.

The events are to consist of play for the best low gross, best low net, blind bogey and a special membership contest for those who have procured new members for the board during the year. The player getting the lowest gross score for the day will receive the President's cup. Permanent possession of the trophy goes to the player who wins it three times.

The winner last year was Joseph H. Dwyer of George C. Bour & Co. Further, there will be a vice president's cup which will be awarded to the nonwalter making the best gross score of the day.

Pierce Describes Prizes.

"Speaking of prizes," said Pierce W. Jones, executive secretary of the board, "I have never seen a more beautiful collection of prizes than those offered the winners in our golf tournament. There are five prizes in the low gross contest, five prizes in the low net contest, three prizes in the blind bogey contest and two prizes in the special membership event.

"In addition, a prize will be awarded to the player over sixty years of age who makes the best low net score of the day. Our committee on prizes outdid themselves in their selections. Among the prizes offered, besides the president's and vice president's cups, are silk leather golf bags, cowhide handbags, silver platters, a silver fruit dish, golf shoes, golf hose and golf balls. The first prize in the membership contest is a Waltham mantel clock. All told something like twenty prizes are being offered, and there will be a spirited contest among our members for ownership of these prizes."

The special outing committee which has arranged this program consists of the following members: Earle G. Crumrine, chairman; James W. Benninger, Benjamin L. Coolidge, Elmer Corbin, Amos H. Kagy, Albert W. Sawyer, Leo G. Varty, David Winton.

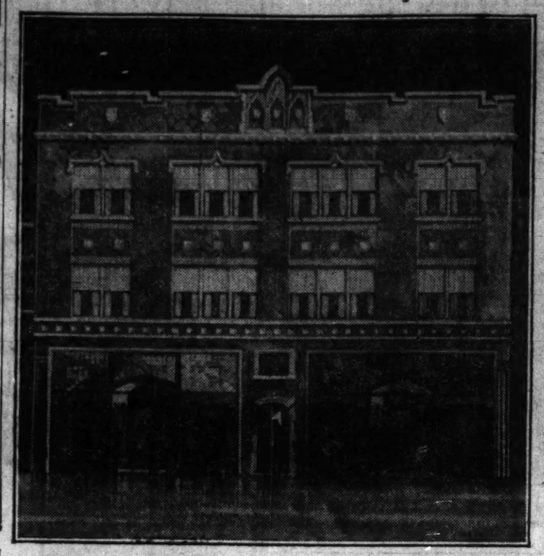
ames Skinner Will Open Real Estators' Law Course

James G. Skinner, an instructor who has been connected with several law schools in the city, will open the fall course of the Cook County Real Estate Board's class in legal practice at the board rooms on Sept. 21. The class is limited to fifty.

ercy Wilson & Company Plan New Subdivision

Percy Wilson & Company are opening a new subdivision called North Shore Vista which consists of a thirty-acre tract at the northwest corner of Milya road and Green Bay road, north of Lake Bluff, in Lake county.

ON WENTWORTH AVENUE



E. P. Rupert of R. E. Major & Co. designed the three story building which is nearing completion at 6904-06 Wentworth avenue for A. R. Schiefer. The structure will contain two stores and eight three room apartments. One store will be occupied by Mr. Schiefer's jewelry store and the other by H. L. Marshall with a shoe shop. It is stated that the project will cost $50,000.

ANNOUNCE NEW COUNTRY CLUB FOR EQUESTRIANS

News of interest to Chicago equestrians is contained in the announcement of the organization of the Forest Hunt and Polo club. The club has thirty acres of property at North avenue and the West River Road, adjacent to the forest preserve.

Architect Roy J. Hotchkiss is drawing plans for a modern club house. The stables will have provision for 200 slip stalls and seventy-five box stalls. There will be an indoor ring measuring 200x100 feet for winter riding and instruction.

The club proposes to take a leading part in polo play of the country and of course it will have its annual horse show. The forest preserve across from the club's property will provide an ideal place for riders.

The officers are: Harry G. Goelitz Jr., president; Robert Cantwell Jr., vice-president; C. V. Williams, secretary and Otto McFeely, treasurer. The organization offices are in suite 1413, Palmer house, and 1013 North boulevard, Oak Park.

Today's Real Estate Opportunity

A LARGE tract of apartment sites, in the heart of the city—surrounded by high grade development—held in an estate for years, now open and offered as fully improved restricted apartment sites at subdivision prices.

On the North Side

Until yesterday this large and beautiful tract was known as the Budlong Woods Golf Course. It was held intact in the very midst of most remarkable development on the North Side, where apartment and business buildings, schools, churches, banks and great shopping districts are veritably crowding upon it.

The last golf course within the city, but not as close-in as this one, that was subdivided three years ago, was sold to lot buyers within less than ninety days for $2,700,000—and resales netted investors tremendous profits—today it is so solidly built up as to be indistinguishable from the development surrounding it—and the subdividers' low original prices have become history.

Now the Budlong Woods Golf Course has been bought for cash on an acreage price basis and is being subdivided by Wm. H. Britigan, and city lots, restricted apartment sites, with all improvements, are being sold at subdivision prices. It is two miles closer than Rogers Park, only seven and one-half miles from the Loop. It has transportation and some of the city's finest apartment and business neighborhoods about it now.

This property, which except on the business streets is restricted to apartment development, with adequate and uniform building lines, is only seven and one-half miles from the Loop—two miles closer than Rogers Park, less than ten minutes from the Wilson Avenue district.

No other tract so situated remains in Chicago—You will appreciate the opportunity when you see it—drive out today, or come by elevated or street car—the office on the property is open daily and Sunday—the opportunity is for those who act—and quickly.

REALTY EXPERTS EXPLAIN HOW TO BUY PROPERTY

Give Ten Commandments for Land Investors.

The business of buying real estate is a serious business to many, raising a number of problems which the prospective purchaser is often at a loss to solve. To help bewildered individuals in selecting property the Chicago Commerce, the interesting weekly which is the organ of the Association of Commerce, is publishing a number of interviews with prominent real estate men in which they offer their advice on the matter.

Among the most comprehensive of the interviews was one with W. Burke Harmon, who operates in New York as well as Chicago. Mr. Harmon gives his advice in the form of "Ten Commandments for Land Investors."

Mr. Harmon's commandments follow:

"1. Ask about time tables. Remember that the location you choose must be within reasonable commuting distance, in point both of time and fares. Transportation is closely related to real estate values.

"2. Investigate the building restrictions. You probably know what you will build—but you must also know what your neighbor can build. Be sure restrictions are adequate with regard both to the cost of the houses and also their architectural design. The country is covered by what might have been good subdivisions ruined by ugly buildings.

How About Neighbors?

"3. Inquire about the permanence of the improvements which are installed. Has the developer a permanent maintenance fund, or is he interested only until the property is completely sold?

"4. Have curiosity about your future neighbors. Inquire about the class of people who are purchasing.

"5. Investigate the developer as well as his development. Make sure that he keeps promises, that he is financially sound, and that he builds his holdings up instead of merely getting rid of them.

"6. Look ahead a few years. Remember that if the necessity ever arose for unavoidable delinquency in your payments, or forfeiture of your property, you would really be very helpless. Inquire about the history of the developer in such circumstances, whether he would help you find a buyer for your holdings.

Seller Is Competitor.

"7. Think of competition. Remember that the developer is himself your strongest competitor until he has completely marketed his holdings. Because there will be no appreciable increase in value of property until he is sold out, inquire about his ability to complete his sales in the face of possibly changed business conditions.

"8. Think about your family. Find out about play space for children and the educational, social and recreational surroundings. In twenty years these may make a tremendous difference in home values.

"9. Buy within your means. Do not buy installment property for speculation or with money you might need for some sudden emergency.

"10. Choose carefully only of the best, as you would with any other investment. Increases may possibly come slower than you expect, and while real estate investment is a form of compulsory saving that often yields large returns, it is what is called a slow asset. Be sure that your investment is worth holding over a period of years."

Teter Tells Views.

Lucius Teter, president of the Chicago Trust company, has some interesting remarks, especially for the person of small means who buys for speculative purposes. His statement follows:

"I have been much impressed with the large amount of real estate being sold to families of moderate means during the last few years. The buying of one lot among thousands, simply marked off, with no building activity in sight, this buying being done merely as a matter of speculation, is something which I do not approve. But I am very much in favor of the buying of a good lot upon which a comfortable home is to be erected, and I am a believer in a man owning his own home when he has become located in business.

"There are three points upon which I would place especial emphasis:

"1. Neighborhood. A good neighborhood is exceedingly desirable. Where a man makes his home is where his family must spend the greater part of the time, and good neighbors are a tremendous asset.

Consider Transportation.

"2. Transportation. Without adequate transportation other considerations suffer. No matter how many fine points property may have, if it is located in an inaccessible place it becomes undesirable.

"3. A good lot. This, to my mind, is the point to be emphasized to all persons contemplating building. Many a plan a fine home with splendid appointments, but because the cost of the house appears to be too high they economize by buying a poor lot. This is false economy. It costs just as much to build a home on a poor lot as on a good one and the net result of a good lot and good house is worth far more in the end."

George F. Nixon, president of George F. Nixon & Co., gives five points to be considered in the purchase of real estate. First in the list he places transportation. The other four are convenience, in the matter of nearby business districts, schools, churches, etc.; restrictions; public improvements, and property values near by.

Considers the Spiritual.

John T. Wheeler, vice president of Baird & Warner, has a number of interesting points in his advice. He emphasizes the desirability of buying a home in the right kind of community—in a locality where neighbors would be compatible. In his remarks Mr. Wheeler is as emphatic for consideration of the spiritual side of the elements in the case as for the more practical details such as transportation.

Carl L. Latham of Alden, Latham & Young gives pithy advice regarding the actual transaction and his remarks make it clear that the purchaser ought to have competent advice, for there are a number of technical questions such as commissions that must be considered.

JOHN MARSHALL LAW SCHOOL REALTY CLASS TO OPEN ON TUESDAY

FARM and GARDEN

Dominion Pork Producers Change Their Type of Crop

Bacon Hogs Found More Profitable than Lard.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

JUST how much United States pork producers are going to gain in the long run from the half cent a pound tariff on Canadian hogs is a question. Competition has been cut down on the domestic live stock markets, but it has been increased in the sale of bacon and other hog products on foreign markets.

Dominion farmers did not quit raising hogs when the tariff went into effect. Instead they are growing from a million and a half to two million more hogs today than they did eight or ten years ago. Western Canada is in the process of changing from the lard type to the bacon type of hog. The dominion turns out a hog crop of four and a half to five million a year. More than a million of these are produced for export.

Three times as many pounds of bacon are going out of Canada to Great Britain as were exported in 1913. During the last fiscal year 125,376,000 pounds of Wiltshire sides were exported and almost the same amount the year before. At least 100,000,000 pounds goes to England.

About forty per cent of the hogs are of the bacon type and within a few years this percentage will be greatly increased, which means that more Wiltshire sides will be going on to the English market to compete with hog products from the United States.

Tariff Responsible.

It took a blow like the tariff to awaken dominion farmers to realization that they were outside the corn belt. Thousands of farmers who went out of the states into western Canadian provinces took along with them their bacon type brood sows and clung to them despite the fact that in many cases they could not produce the crops necessary to fit them properly for the market. The shift from lard to bacon hogs is being made as rapidly as farmers can cross their lard type sows with Yorkshire and Tamworth boars. Two litters a year are being produced on many farms so that within a short time more than half the hogs raised in Canada can be used in making bacon.

While the shift is being made there is also the task of finding a market for the products coming from the lard hog. Canadian packers are finding an outlet for much of it through the development of a high class trade for Cumberland sides. But the percentage of sides that fall into the bacon class is rapidly increasing.

Other Changes in Farming.

Both the dominion and provincial governments are working with the agricultural colleges to aid farmers in improving the quality of their bacon hogs. As a result great progress has been made, especially in the last three years. To encourage farmers, a premium of ten cents a hundred is paid for hogs that make a good grade of Wiltshire sides, which takes in the ham, side, and shoulder, while in Cumberland sides the ham is cut off. The hogs are graded by government inspectors.

The shift in hog production has been the germ for many other changes in the agriculture of western Canada. The production of bacon hogs fits in nicely with dairying, which is also being developed gradually. The skimmed milk, a byproduct of the cream belt, makes ideal feed in the fattening of bacon hogs. Barley and oats, two main coarse grains grown in Canada, also make good feeds. Wheat screenings that come from the big crops of Alberta, Manitoba, and Saskatchewan are used extensively in feeding hogs.

Canada is protecting this great bacon industry by having a quarantine on all hogs entering the dominion, where there is little trouble with hog cholera.

In order to take care of the hogs now being produced in the western provinces, there are three big packing plants in Edmonton and one at Calgary, Alta., and one at Moose Jaw, Sask. A few farmers in Alberta and Saskatchewan are raising a carload of bacon hogs each year.

Sheep Flocks Reduced.

Along with the development of the bacon hog is coming a change in the sheep raising business. The small flock is becoming more common. Big sheep men are prevented from operating on an extensive scale in some sections of Alberta where the open ranges are closed.

BEEF FACTORY.

WINTER CATTLE FEEDING SCENE—Canadian cattlemen are forced to fatten more and more of their steers in Dominion feed lots. Lots filled with feeders like these are now common in western Canada, where the cattle industry was paralyzed by the United States tariff.

What Do You Know About That

Some day you will build your home. Perhaps you are thinking about it right at this moment! If so, the more you know about construction, the more time and money you will save.

Try your hand at these questions:

1. What is the most important building contract?
2. How can you obtain a permanently beautiful home interior?
3. Why do some plastered walls crack and how can this be prevented?
4. What causes "lath streaks" and what is the remedy?
5. How can a home be made fire-safe with plastered walls?
6. What is the most economical finish for plastered walls?
7. Is stucco a satisfactory exterior finish?
8. How can you improve the re-sale value of your home?
9. What are the ten commandments for lot purchasers?
10. How many of the twenty-five cardinal construction points can you name?

All these questions and dozens more are answered in the book "Better Plastering for Modern Homes." Every prospective home builder should have a copy. Don't proceed with your home until you have studied it thoroughly. Call or write any of the following building supply dealers and they will be glad to send you a copy—free of charge.

WORK UNDER WAY ON COUNTRY CLUB AT RICHTON PARK

Golf and Winter Sports to Be Features.

Work is now under way on Richton Park Country club, the latest of the golf and other sports associations which are encircling Chicago, helping to make the city one of the greatest playgrounds in the country. The club holds 123 acres near Richton Park and not far from the terminal of the Illinois Central's electrified suburban service.

The golf course is being put into shape under the supervision of Henry Cociis, Flossmoor Country club expert, who has helped develop a number of south shore grounds.

The organization will have an attractive clubhouse, reminiscent of the old mansions of New England. It was designed by Victor C. Carlson, the architect. In planning the building special attention was given to the appetites that are aroused by a day in the country and the result is the dining room will be unusually large. It will be able to handle 200 of the most ravenous eaters at one time.

Provides for Winter Sports.

Of course, there will be ample locker provisions and dressing room space.

The club's interests will not be confined to golf and there are to be a number of tennis courts and a riding stable. When winter comes, as it usually does in these chilly parts, the directors of the club are going to see to it that the members don't sit around in their respective apartments in the city and talk about the good old summer time. For arrangements are being made to take the good that each season has to offer. The creek winding through the property will be dammed to provide a skating pond, while there will be skiing, snowshoeing, and tobogganing in the hills surrounding the club.

Other attractions of the club will include a deer and buffalo park.

Novel Finance Plan.

A novel plan has been worked out to finance the organization. Membership is secured through the purchase of a unit consisting of one share of preferred stock and one share of common stock. The preferred stock will be retired from the profits derived from the fees, leaving the club free from incumbrance.

The club has a twenty-five year lease on the property from Otto Tueter, the owner, on a sliding scale of rental.

The board of trustees includes Henry Coorlis, H. R. Lewis, and H. P. Harding of Flossmoor; M. H. McCoy of Chicago Heights, O. M. King of Chicago Heights, and Thomas F. Montgomery of Homewood. Dr. C. E. Goodell, 125 North Wells street, Chicago, is the club's secretary.

OUTDOORS IS KING HERE

The above attractive building is under construction for the Richton Park Country club, near the terminal of the Illinois Central electrified suburban service. The architect is Victor C. Carlson. While golf, of course, will be the stellar attraction, the other outdoor sports will not be neglected. There are to be tennis courts and a riding stable. And winter comes in for especial attention, with provisions for skating, skiing, snowshoeing, and tobogganing.

LIBERTYVILLE TO HAVE ITS OWN GOLF CLUB

With the birth of the Libertyville Golf club another play spot is added to Chicagoland's attractions. The club now controls 140 acres through purchase and lease about two miles northwest of Libertyville, which are to be developed at once.

There is to be an eighteen hole course which will be sporty because of the rolling nature of the terrain. Small streams and brooks will provide a number of natural hazards. The present plans provide that a part of the club's property be set aside for the members only, while there will be a fee course open to the public to help pay expenses.

A modern residence is on the property, which will be remodeled into a club house, with showers, lockers, dining room and other necessities. It is expected that the course will be ready for play early next summer. The course will fill a need long felt in the community, as hitherto Libertyville golfers had to motor from ten to twenty miles for their entertainment.

3300 Sheridan Road as it will appear when completed

3300 Sheridan Road

A new apartment of elegance, operated on the semi-co-operative plan. A sixteen story structure of Italian Renaissance. Apartments will be of five, six and seven rooms with one, two and three baths. They will be entered from a private foyer and will have both passenger and freight elevator service.

3300 Sheridan Road is the focal point of Chicago's exclusive residential section—removed from the grime and noise of the Loop, yet only three miles from the downtown business and shopping district.

The building will afford an unobstructed view of the Yacht Harbor and Golf Links in Lincoln Park, as well as of miles of sandy, wave-swept shoreline and blue expanse of Lake Michigan. Of course, references of high order will be required. All details will be supplied on request to interested persons.

Watrous Plumbing Fixtures

A WIDE range in up-to-date building construction is represented in the five examples shown here—two in Detroit, one in Chicago, one in St. Louis, and one in San Francisco.

The most modern character of hotel design is illustrated in the three hotels appearing at the top, the center and the foot. An exceptionally effective combination of offices and theatre is seen in the handsome Ambassador Building, and the farthest progress yet made in planning industrial buildings is exemplified in the home of the famous Paris Garters, in Chicago.

All these structures, like many others built or in process of building from coast to coast, offer examples of Watrous plumbing installations, which have carried the science of sanitary engineering to a point of hygienic perfection never before attained.

Watrous

Flush Valves and Duojet Closets

Clogging and Overflowing Prevented—Water-Waste Avoided
Unfailing Action Even Under Low Pressure

THE design of the Watrous Duojet Closet avoids the narrow outlet that is required in the usual single-jet type to insure syphonic action. This narrow outlet is a frequent cause of obstruction and overflows. In the Watrous Closet, a thorough and immediate flush is effected by two powerful converging jets. The outlet passage is wider beyond the trap than at the entrance, so that anything that can get in can escape at the other end.

The speed and certainty of Duojet action eliminates the water-waste occasioned by the longer and less certain process of single-jet operation.

The Watrous Flush Valve delivers the exact quantity of water needed by the bowl with which it is used—and no more. Maximum economy is therefore assured when it is installed in combination with the water-saving Duojet Closet.

WATROUS FLUSH VALVE INSTALLED IN COMBINATION WITH DUOJET FLOOR CLOSET

Another advantage: the Watrous Flush Valve functions perfectly even under low pressure conditions where other valves often fail. This is owing to the diaphragm-area in the control-chamber, which is 25% larger than in other valves.

Also, in installations where, due to low pressure and small supply pipes, the water supply to the valve often makes it impossible for other valves to produce proper bowl action, the Watrous valve effects a thorough flush. It has a larger water-way per second of opening, and therefore delivers water with extra volume and "punch."

The Watrous wall bowl, shown on the right, operates on the same Duojet principle as the floor type, and has the obvious advantage of simplifying the work of cleansing the toilet-room floor. It also promotes speed and economy in the erection of new buildings by dispensing with furred ceilings and closet connections in floors.

MAIDEN MEDITATIONS

by Sara Moore

Style Deadline.

"Europe has adopted the pajama for afternoon wear. In France and England, both hostesses and guests are dressed in colorful bifurcations not yet popularized in the United States."—Helen Cornelius, style scout.

"We are surprised to find that American women do not wear pajamas for afternoon calls. English women have adopted pajama costume for tea for some time."—Harrod's representative, touring American stores.

In England even maiden aunts
Go out to tea in Chinese pants.
Our natives, trained by bedroom plays,
Regard the things as negligees
And bifurcations controvert
In favor of the ancient skirt.

(Second thought.)
Though discontented wives, of course,
May set the stage for quick divorce,
I'm sure that only red hot mammas
Will be converted to pajamas.

Mamie Hickey's Shorthand Diary.

Check!

Perhaps efficiency does work.
For when I tried to teach the boss
That, should a girl a wrecking wrench
Into the wheels of business toss,
His best built systems could be smashed,
And well laid plans made total loss.

I led him on. He followed, too,
But ere his interest was full blown
He seemed to sense alarms ahead,
Romance then hit a stumbling stone.
He's made Big Business safe, all right!
He's just installed a dictaphone!

If One Lives, One Learns.

I lost a hairnet, one earring,
My dignity—at least in part.
I thought fruit punch a temp'rance drink—
'Twas icy cold and tempting, tart.

Next day I crawled from out the ditch
Just as Jim's motor—wrecked—exploded;
I had not guessed that, like the punch,
Young Jim, who drove, was also loaded.

A cynic is not born; she's made.
Experience implants suspicion;
It's made a wreck, I greatly fear,
Of my once trusting disposition.

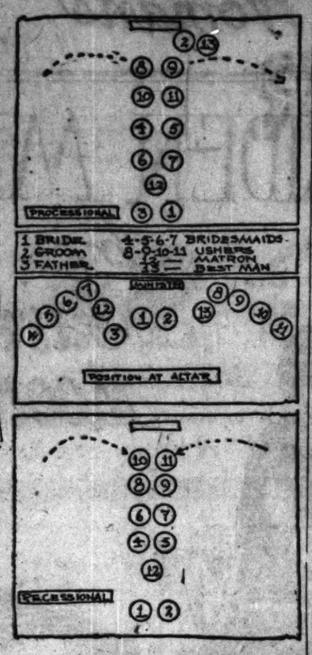
Correct Wedding Procedure

By Persis Standish

For the Ceremony in Church, Home, or Hotel, There Are Certain Forms That Should Be Observed.



A NUMBER of requests have come in my mail lately for "wedding forms" and as it is confusing to state just how the procession should enter a church, stand during the ceremony and exit, the three little diagrams given with this article are a better answer. I will endeavor in the text to supplement whatever movements of the participants should occur in between. In other words, like the movies, I will tell you with captions what should happen "in the meantime."

The diagrams apply, of course, to a church wedding. But the same order of procedure is equally correct for a home wedding or one in a ballroom of a hotel. If the bridal party is smaller, all that is necessary is to eliminate from the diagrams such attendants as are dispensed with in the particular case and you will have the correct order.

Whether a wedding is held in a home or a hotel some sort of improvised altar should be used. That is some place should be set aside for the minister to stand and should be decorated with at least a palm or bouquets of flowers. Then there should be either pillows or a prayer bench for the bride and groom and their attendants to use in that part of the ceremony where they are obliged to kneel.

At Church.

To get back to the church wedding. Before the entrance of the bridal procession there are certain things that must be attended to by the ushers. One side of the church is reserved for the family of the bride and the other for the family of the groom. When a wedding guest arrives at the church door he or she tells the usher whether he wishes to be seated on the bride's or the groom's side of the church. If the guest does not state which side, the usher asks the question and then proceeds up the aisle with the guest and seats her accordingly. If a man and woman enter together the usher offers the woman his arm and the man walks on the other side of her.

After all the guests are seated and the bridal party has arrived and is waiting in the church vestibule two of the ushers stretch white ribbons over the entrances to the pews. Then the organist plays the wedding march and the bridal party enters as indicated in the diagram above.

The families of the bride and groom sit in the front pew, of course, so that it is easy for the bride's father to return to his seat after he has taken his daughter to the altar. This seat is always on the left side of the church.

The groom's family always sits on the right side of the church, that is left and right facing the chancel. When the bridal procession nears the altar the groom should come forward to greet the bride and take her up the altar steps.

A Change of Custom.

The bride's father used to wait slightly behind the bride until the minister said, "Who giveth this woman to be married to this man?" and then stepped forward and gave his daughter away. But now it is often arranged so that he need not wait for this part of the ceremony, but by the very act of taking her to the altar says as much in intent and may return to his seat with the rest of his family as soon as he has discharged this duty. All this depends, of course, upon the particular ceremony to be read and the arrangements made with the minister or priest.

The word "obey" is now often struck from the text of the marriage ceremony and, in fact, it is otherwise modified to suit the feminism of the century.

The best man is intrusted with the ring and should produce it speedily and surely at the moment the minister needs it. The bride should have removed her left glove and given it to the maid or matron of honor. She should, before the ceremony, put her engagement ring on her right hand until after the wedding so that when the groom puts the wedding ring on her finger she will not have to stop and fuss about taking off the engagement ring.

Groom Kisses the Bride.

After the minister says the words, "I now pronounce you man and wife," the groom turns to the bride and it is customary for him to kiss her. A barbarous custom, no doubt, but one which seems to please Mrs. Grundy and make all the sentimental old ladies cry with joy—or is it disappointment? Now, please, by old ladies I do not mean women sixty or more, because years never measure age. "Old ladies" can be twenty and younger, and some of them wear trousers. The youngest woman I know is past fifty. It will always be so while the world lasts.

The procession is ready to leave the church, as indicated in the third little diagram. It is here that a warning needs to be given to wedding guests. It is rude to follow the procession out of the church too soon. A decent lapse should be allowed for the bride and her party to get into their motors before any one else appears on the church steps. No matter in how much of a hurry you may be to get to your business or other appointments do not rush out of the church on the heels of a bridal party. Furthermore, do not make a church sound like the zoo at feeding time by a great deal of conversation and laughter. It is never polite, in a church of any denomination.

It is perfectly polite, of course, to greet friends and to say how lovely was the bride, but all this must be done in a whisper or at least in a low voice and with no laughter. The family of the bride and that of the groom next proceed out of the church. Then after they have gone the guests may disperse, but always without crowding and confusion.

At Home or Hotel.

In the case of a home or hotel wedding where it is impossible to seat all the guests, it is needless to say that everybody should stand during the ceremony. White ribbons can be stretched, forming an aisle among the guests, for the bridal party.

In the case of a home ceremony the guests should be sure to stand well back from the improvised altar so that the families can have first place and see the ceremony at close range. It is not rude, but merely expected for the families of the bride and groom to take their stand nearest the improvised altar.

After the ceremony in a home or hotel the guests should allow a few minutes in which the bride and groom are greeted and kissed by their families and in which a line can form before they go up to offer their congratulations to the groom and the best wishes to the bride. NO ONE EVER CONGRATULATES A BRIDE. The congratulations are supposed to be for the groom alone—though, personally, I think the reasons for this are obsolete and I have seen many a bride whom, if I had done the sincere thing, I would have congratulated. However, one would be liable to social ostracism for so doing.

In the case of a church wedding the bridal party and the families have time to greet each other and get in line before the guests arrive.

Strange Weddings

Have you ever seen a wedding so outlandish that it upset all your ideas of the traditional ceremony? Some marriages are foreign and quaint in their adherence to ancient customs; others are ultra modern in their haphazard speed and unconventionality. The Tribune would like to know the story of the strangest wedding you've ever seen. We will pay $1 for every letter published. Address: Strange Weddings, Chicago Tribune.

A Foreign Custom.

A little foreign girl was sent to me from Europe by her sweetheart, who was following her on the next boat. When he got here they asked to be allowed to get married at my home and I consented.

To my surprise, with a nice array of wedding finery, veil and all, lying on the bed, the bride stepped out before the waiting minister, dressed like an old grandmother, shawl on her head, shirred skirt and an old fashioned jacket—all old wearing apparel, and in her hand she held a broom, on her arm was a towel, a dustcloth, and over the arm she carried a cooking pot with a wire handle.

I was dumbfounded. The wedding ceremony was stilled by our surprise, and when it was over the bride returned to her room and came out in her wedding finery, ready to celebrate.

I asked the reason for this and she said the costume she wore was a symbol of a good, worthy housewife and as such she must present herself to the groom, who accepted her on her qualifications, while he simply wore the customary suit of clothes.

I can't say I fancy such a wedding!

Y. S.

A Bridal Parade.

On a hot Sunday afternoon I was startled to hear a brass band in the street. I flew to the window and there, right behind the band, marched a bride and groom. About two yards of the bride's veil was trailing in the dust. The bridegroom's face was scarlet with heat and joy.

Behind the bridal couple walked twelve bridesmaids and then about fifty guests followed. I never saw so many happy faces all at once. Every now and then somebody would give a wild whoop and the others would laugh. It was all so comical that I could not help smiling.

A. N.

A Surprise to Her.

We were attending summer school at Cedar Falls, Ia. My roommate got a date for me.

The young man had a lovely car, and I was happy to go with him, as I had admired him all summer.

When he asked me where we should drive I answered, "O, I would dearly love to go to the little brown church in the vale."

We were informed that we were just in time to see a wedding ceremony. To my surprise, my roommate was the bride. She had gotten the date for me to get me out of the way, and here I was a witness to her marriage.

C. M. L.

Fooled.

One night I went to a small town vaudeville show, and between acts the manager came out and announced that they were going to have a most unusual occurrence, a surprise even to the cast themselves.

"In fact," he went on, "I don't believe any one in the audience has ever seen such a thing before. Let us call it the Adam-less wedding."

Then, while we sat with our mouth fairly open, out on the stage came two young looking girls and one of our own local ministers. He was a serious minded pastor and we could not conceive of him doing anything that made light of the wedding ceremony. He then went straight through with the services as solemnly as he had ever done it. In fact, it seemed much more serious in a way, because we couldn't imagine him marrying two girls.

As soon as the ceremony was over and the couple threw kisses to the audience, the pair began to dance and off slipped the wedding dress of the one and as they bowed to the audience off came his "bob," and there stood the lithe dancer that we had watched do his stunts earlier in the evening. He had completely fooled us all.

M. S.

An Uninvited Guest.

Violin music coming from out of the university rock garden mystified us as we were returning from a tennis game at 6 o'clock one June morning. We crawled on hands and knees through the bushes until we could see down into the sunken garden. Filling this picturesque spot was a wedding party and some fifty guests, prominent faculty members and students. We recognized the bride as an instructor in the school. The whole garden, with its sides banked with flowers and walled in by trees made a beautiful setting. The only sounds were the twittering of birds and the voice of the minister.

Then we heard a murmur among the guests. Finding a wedding in the middle of the campus was a surprise to us, but to the guests it was a greater surprise to learn that the bride's two attendants were also being married.

So my strangest wedding was also the most picturesque that I have ever witnessed as an uninvited guest.

A FRIEND IN NEED

by Sally Joy Brown

I want to be the medium through which the friends in need may be brought together. It may be you have some discarded article which has not outgrown its usefulness that will make some less fortunate one happy and you would gladly give it if you knew how to go about it. Write to me and I shall be happy to be of service to you. Please write on one side of the paper.

When information is wanted by mail, a stamped, addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send article to The Tribune but write for the address of the applicant and send direct.

TO MAKE THE BABY WELCOME.

IF there is anything we like to think of as an occasion for happiness it is the advent of a new life in the world. Yet our files at the present moment show cases where the expected arrival of a baby is falling with crushing force upon families whose savings have been exhausted by illness or unemployment, and whose wage leaves no margin above current living expenses.

When we think of the infant clothing, cribs, carriages, and all baby articles which are being outgrown and discarded every day in Chicago before they have lost all usefulness, is there any reason why we should let this condition exist another day?

At present these articles only take up room, and all too often are thrown out and lost to every one at the next house cleaning, or when moving.

If you have them, think how much better it would be were those things to go as a veritable godsend to some family or mother in despair for lack of ability to welcome the newcomer.

Then let us know that you will help! Let's make this a "clean-up" week on articles of this sort, so that for a time, as far as outfitting the babies is concerned, their coming will be an occasion of unalloyed joy in all anxious homes.

Anxious to Help Herself.

"You have helped so many, probably you can help me. I am poor and have a house full of little children to feed and clothe. I would like to rent out several rooms to help me pay the rent, but I cannot afford to buy bed clothes such as pillows, sheets, blankets, etc. If you can get any for me, I will glady mend them if necessary. Anything at all would be greatly appreciated. Mrs. W. L."

Now that cooler weather is coming on, you may be discarding some worn bedding for new. We shall be glad to supply Mrs. W. L.'s address.

Call for Old Magazines.

"I would be pleased to receive some old copies of the Red Book and Cosmopolitan magazines if any of your readers have some they do not want. I would be more than glad to pay postage for same. A. C."

If you are moving you may be glad to pass on any old copies of these magazines.

Wants Pharmacy Books.

"I would like to study pharmacy, but I am unable to buy the books I need for the course. If any one has any books on the subject and would care to give them away I would be most grateful for them. I will gladly call for any offered. L. H."

Have you the books this student needs? I am sure they would be appreciated.

This Speaks for Itself.

"Do you know of any one who has a doll buggy for my little sister and me? My mother cannot buy one for us because my brother is the only one working. L. P."

This letter speaks for itself. Can you answer it?

Baby Scale Wanted.

"Would it be possible for me to get a baby scale through the kindness of your readers? I want one for a new baby and would appreciate it so much if some one has one she no longer needs. R. A. D.

No doubt some one has a baby scale they no longer can use, which will do for this young mother.

Children Are Motherless.

"A young mother, just 25, died a month ago and left her sick husband and six children, girls 18, 16, 8 and 6, and boys 12 and 14. A friend offered to give her time toward making clothes to keep the children in school this winter. I will gladly pay cash on any clothing that can be made over for these children. H. W. S.

Perhaps we can lighten the burden by sending our discarded clothing to this family to be made over for the children. This case is a most worthy one.

For a Student.

"I have a copy of Snyder's 'Commercial Science' and will be glad to send it to any one who is in need of it. L. E. P."

If you are a high school student you may be able to take advantage of this offer.

New Thought Magazines.

"I have a half dozen copies of the Nautilus magazine [illegible] which are not new but in good condition. I would like to pass them on to some one. H. F. M."

If you are interested, write to us for H. F. M.'s address.

Offers a Brass Bed.

"I have a brass bed and spring of full size, which I will be glad to give to any person in need of it. Mrs. J. T. C."

Can you use this bed? It may be yours if you will write for it.

Two Minute Hair Dress

By Edna Wallace Hopper

That curl in my hair, that fluff and that glow are due to no expert's attention. I have no time for a hairdresser, and never have a Marcel wave.

Twice a week I apply a hair dress which great experts made especially for me. I have never found anything else to compare. My hair is always curly, always glowing.

Now I am playing this great hair dress at every woman's call. All toilet counters supply it as Edna Wallace Hopper's Wave and Sheen. My guarantee comes with each bottle. Unless it delights you, unless it doubles the beauty of your hair in an hour, ask for your money back. Go get it now. It will be a find.

BRIGHT SAYINGS of HUSBANDS & WIVES

The snappy comeback of the better half when cornered has often been a source of wonder to husbands and wives! The husband or the wife has come across with a bright saying that will never be forgotten by the other half of the matrimonial sketch. What was that bright saying, Mr.? Mrs.? Send it to us, and we'll pay you $1 for it if we print it. Address Bright Sayings of Husbands and Wives, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago.

No Hope of a Bite.

Thinking my husband was preening himself considerably on a certain achievement, I remarked, "Now you're fishing for a compliment!"

He put me in my place by replying, "No, I never fish in such shallow water." M. A. A.

Deceiving.

Wifey—Do you know why married men live longer than single men?

Hubby—They don't live longer; it just seems longer. M. K. T.

Censored.

Wife—I noticed you cut an article on "How to Live to Be a Hundred" out of the magazine. Why did you do that?

Husband—I was afraid your mother might read it. E. E. M.

Willing to Try It.

Mr. Binks—Do you think absence makes the heart grow fonder?

Mrs. Binks—I don't know. Go away for a long time and I'll write and inform you. C. A. R.

Proving It.

The old argument as to the superiority of the sexes was raging, and as usual, the males defended by hubby, were coming off rather badly.

"Well, anyway," said hubby, "men talk about more sensible things than women do."

"Yes," rejoined wifey in triumph, "they're always talking about women, I notice." D. J. L.

The Last Word in Paris Fashions

Under the Fur or Fur-Lined Evening Wrap the Smart Parisienne Wears the Filmiest of Gowns.

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS.—(Special Correspondence)—Paris must be looking ahead to a green Christmas this year. The autumn fashion shows run to the most vaporous of fabrics in evening gowns—filmy things that give one excellent reason why girls go south. There are no substantial warm-appearing materials. Everything is so light as to prohibit more heat producing "undys," than an envelope chemise—the kind that will go in an ordinary envelope, so thin and lacy is its composition. The only protection they are going to give us is a warm evening coat, and evening wraps are chiefly made of fur, or at least lined therewith.

They have a lot of faith, these Paris style makers, in the efficiency of American steam heat, for they could never get up the nerve to advance such ethereal evening modes on the strength of Paris chauffage central. It is in most apartments and social rendezvous about the strength of six candle power. Anyway, America doesn't have to worry. The overheated interiors that prevail there ought to make the new winter "next-to-nothing" in weight evening gowns a great success.

Velvet is a leading fabric for evening modes. This sounds rather like a refutation of my statements, but Paris velvets have been through the most strenuous reducing process conceivable, and new velvets that look no heavier than chiffon are the result. You could read The Chicago Tribune through any one of them in an ordinary light. They really deserve the name of chiffon velvet, and it is only the velvet nap that distinguishes them from chiffon itself. There are also plenty of genuine chiffons in the winter evening mode, a regular deluge of laces, and a quantity of moire, fragile and metallized.

Over these featherweight dresses you put an evening coat that is luxurious, and warm, and you are all set for the smartest affair of the coming winter. There are, of course, certainly and without question changes in colors, lines, and details—changes that will make it impossible to wear what you wore before. For instance, as materials grow lighter, colors become darker. Never have I seen so many black evening dresses. And then there are red ones. Not a light and vivid red, but two deep and somber tones. The first is called "Oporto," and it is the color of port wine, if prohibition-ridden America can remember this deep black-ruby shade. The second is even darker and more purplish. It is called "Virginia creeper," and is a deep red-purple. Such colors prevail in every leading Paris collection of autumn models.

Oporto red velvet, as thin as chiffon, and spangled fringe in the same tone make the smart evening dress at the extreme right.

A deep purple red moire, shot through with gold, is the material of the next frock with its panniers of self-colored chiffon.

Black lace reigns supreme in the Fall fashions from Paris. The flares at the hip line and from knees to hem line are of special significance, as depicted in the model seen second from the right.

Next, a dolman cape of beige-dyed ermine is trimmed with bands of beige fox and lined with black velvet.

Our first model is "Oporto" in color and is made of chiffon velvet. I saw it in Montmartre after one, on the evening that I went to Jean Patou's to his fashion gala that presented his own version of autumn styles to this aristocratic private clientele and the press. All good fashions, like all true Americans, go at once to Montmartre on arrival in Paris. This one might have stepped right out of one of the fashion shows, being so exclusively presented and so well guarded. It has a bolero waist, that is high in front, and dips down to the hip line in back, all made out of Oporto velvet. It has a straight skirt of the same velvet, over which is placed two tiers of fringes, these fringes made of tiny strips of velvet, about one-sixteenth of an inch wide, and each one covered by a line of red and gold paillettes, or spangles. This is a type of fringe that Paris is stressing most specially and particularly for evening. The right shoulder strap supports at the base of its jeweled fastening in back a full length cluster of these paillette covered fringes.

A simpler and smarter evening frock could not be imagined, and it is tres a la mode. Over this you would wear an evening coat of beige or white fur, or one in the same colored velvet lined with fur, one of the lesser breeds of pelts would do nicely where the fur is an inside affair.

Our second model is one of the new moire evening frocks, which will be seen frequently in the Fashion Capitol this fall. This one is Virginia creeper in color, and is shot through with lines of gold, which mark the "watered" pattern of the moire. The cut of the frock proper is extremely simple. It is a straight slip, without deviation, which gives to the bodice part a slight blouse at the hip line, where the sacklike slip is made fitted by a series of tiny vertical tucks that are placed under the side drapery. You will notice that the drapery consists of panels, and these panels are made of self-colored chiffon, which is a straight wide piece picoted on both sides and at the bottom, and arranged first in a deep loop which extends from the above-the-hip waistline to just above the knees, and afterward in a long panel that falls about three or four inches below the brief hemline.

This model serves to remind you of two things: First, that Paris waistlines are moving up, along with the franc; and second, that Paris hemlines are moving down. Both of these processes are slow, but significant. An important item of this toilette is the big fan of purple-red and gold ostrich which is sold with the gown and carried as an essential part of it. You don't use it to keep cool, you use it for a decoration only, to add grace to the silhouette.

Our third model is probably the most important single item in Paris evening styles for fall—the black lace evening frock. Paris shows some of these frocks over a color, but preferably they are all black. The laces are usually rather a large and heavy pattern, and are often cire, or of a shiny surface. Our model is very cire, and the lace is a large patterned lace. The waist is really a jumper, and is made in a straight line to the normal waist, from which point it flares over the hips. This is one of the newest and most exclusive lines that Paris is offering for fall. If you are slim, or just gracefully plump, this line will suit you admirably, and will enhance that lovely Venus curve from waistline to hips.

Of course, the skirt is fitted below the flare of the jumper, just to an inch or two above the knees, when it flares decidedly to the hemline, which dips down in center front and back and rises at the sides to the actual knees. A black chiffon bow and long ends makes a decorative detail on the right shoulder.

Our fourth model is the accepted evening coat, or rather dolman cape, with its bloused upper part and its slightly flaring skirt. This model is made of ermine, but ermine that has been dipped in the dyeing vat, and has come out a rosy beige. The collar and the luxurious band at the bottom of the wrap are beige fox. The items to note are the bloused upper part, which ends well above the hips, and the long haired fur trim. The lining is also significant, since this wrap was designed to wear with a black frock. It is lined with black chiffon velvet, and the sharp contrast is one of the most beautiful and significant items that this model presents to the student of new styles.

IN all our 26 years of successful service, the House of Komiss has never greeted a new season with so many beautiful fashions or such phenomenal values as we present in this great

High Crowns Are the Mode, and Velvet Is the Favored Fabric

THE hat shown in this article has a tendency to the popular Tyrolean craze for high crowns seen in the smart shops. This crown is narrowed toward the top and is marked by two deep back and front folds. The narrow brim is turned up in the back allowing the plain facing to show, and is then caught up by a cockade midde of green chicken feathers, in a way like the feathers worn by the Alpine climber. This hat is made of Chanel red felt.

This could be easily called the insert season, as designs like those in the illustrations are cut in front and on both sides of felt crowns. The outside line is made of gold kid and the inner one is made of silver kid. This kid is pasted on to a foundation of tarlatan or rice net. This is then pasted on inside of the crown. Make the insert one-half of an inch larger than the opening in the crown so it can be sewed or pasted firmly to the inside of the crown. Different colors of velvet are attractive used in this way, also any short hair fur such as gazelle or stenciled rabbit that is shown so much. Baby calf in black and tan and black and white is used in bands for trimming, too.

This is the first season in a great many years that velvet has come into its own. It is shown in all the late tones, such as tiger lily brown, jungle green and Red Grange red, but for smart wear the black velvet hats stand out alone, both in large mushroom shapes and small hats turned up off the face. The crowns are made in either four or six sections. The backs of the brims are longer than have been worn. Black panne velvet combined with satin is a favorite for matrons' hats.

Deep tam-o'-shanter shapes and high baggy crowns that can be crushed down on the head are also made of velvet; little trimming is used. On the smaller hats an ornament made of ribbon is made into one-half yard loops, making perhaps five or six of those on both sides, then tied in the middle with a milliner's knot, the loops fall on the brim of the hat. A piece of the same ribbon is used to finish off the bottom of crown. Three yards of ribbon is needed for this trimming. From one and one-half to one and three-fourths yards is needed of the velvet, as it comes in eighteen inch width.

How to Order Clotilde Patterns.

Write your name and address plainly on dotted lines, giving your number and size of such patterns as you want. Inclose 10 cents in stamps or coin [coin preferred]; wrap it carefully for each number, and address your order to Clotilde, CHICAGO DAILY TRIBUNE.

Note—Clotilde Patterns are made in New York exclusively for THE CHICAGO DAILY TRIBUNE. They are perfect in fit, up to date in style, and the easiest of all patterns to use.

HOW TO USE THE PATTERNS

THIS smart one piece dress is made by pattern No. 2570, and washable silk shirting or broadcloth, flat crêpe or crêpe de chine would be suitable materials.

The back is cut in one piece, also the front, and at each side there is an inserted section underneath the inverted plaits. Directions given with the pattern show just how this is set in place. But always be careful when you are working with plaits to see that the fold on the under side is quite as smooth as that on the upper side. No amount of tacking or pressing will make plaits set well unless both under and upper folds are perfectly straight and smooth.

After the seams are finished and the plaited sections in place make the belt and set it on. Leave the plaits basted from top to bottom until the dress is entirely finished. The belt is made and pressed and then put on the dress. A large perforation on the front shows where the ends are fastened. Buttons set on at the tops of the plaits are the only trimming necessary.

The dress is cut down from the neck in the center front, and underfaced. Cut two collars. Set one on the neck of the dress with the seam to the wrong side. Then join the other collar to the underfacing across the upper edge of the facing—press the seam open flat and then lay this collar and facing in place on the collar and dress, baste carefully and stitch in a narrow seam from the dress opening on one side up and around to the opposite end. Turn the collar right side out, baste the seam edges together and press carefully. The collar edge is hemmed across the seam in the back and the facing tacked invisibly in a couple of places.

If the dress is made of a solid color it will be pretty to make the neck scarf of a shadow plaid georgette.

Well shaped long sleeves finish the dress. At the bottom, for size 36, the dress measures about 1¾ yards.

Pattern No. 2244 is for children's pajamas—just the kind to use for winter. Buy a good quality of outing flannel, and before cutting, measure the length in the middle back and front to be sure the length will be ample. A one piece sleeping garment like this must be large and allowance made for shrinking.

The best finish for the seams is a fell—a good half inch wide. After one side of the seam is trimmed off to about ⅛ inch, baste the seam down from the right side so that the half inch margin on the wrong side will cover the cut edge; and baste the length of the seam close to the stitching. Then turn to the wrong side and, turning in the edge, hem lightly. Now lay the garment in the machine, right side up, and stitch right through the hemming. This may sound like much extra work, but it really goes fast; and when finished there are no raw edges sticking out. On the right side the material is smooth, as it will not be unless the right side basting is put in, for you can't crease the seams as in many wash materials. If the material will show a crease—percale, for instance—this right side basting is not necessary.

Pattern No. 2557, is one of the newest designs and it is so easy to cut and make it will surely prove a favorite.

Every dress today shows fullness of some kind in the skirts. This one instead of having plaits or gathers is cut circular, showing graceful ripples at the sides. This skirt is joined to a long waisted upper part. This is cut down in the middle front and an inserted plait is set in place. The dress may really button through this plait, or buttons may be used as trimming and the fastening made by using small snaps. For size 36, this dress measures at the bottom about 2¼ yards. The full length sleeves are gathered at the wrists and set into narrow bands.

2244—Child's pajamas. Sizes 2, 4, 6, 8, 10, and 12 years. Size 8 requires 2¼ yards of 36 inch material.

2557—Woman's and misses' dress. Sizes 16 years and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3⅛ yards of 40 inch material.

2570—Woman's and misses' dress. Sizes 16 years and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3 yards of 40 inch material.

Results of Jealousy

We're all acquainted with jealousy, the monster that smashes love affairs, wrecks homes, causes business quarrels, and generally plays havoc with us mortals. We'd like to know your most notable experience with a jealous person or persons. If you have encountered a situation where jealousy led to a tragic or ridiculous climax, tell us about it. The Tribune will pay $1 for every story published. Address Jealousy Editor, Chicago Tribune.

Her Destiny.

The worst thing about jealousy is its tendency to grow. Like cancer, if not checked, it will in time destroy that upon which it feeds. I have an aunt whose life has been a perfect example of this.

A naturally jealous nature was augmented, early in her married life, by the misfortune of slight deafness. As the physical ailment grew, the mental one outstripped it. Every word spoken by other members of the family that was not screamed to her became cause for a scene. She even tried bribing the children for listening and repeating their father's conversations. Life with her became unbearable.

She is now an old woman, though scarcely past middle age. Alienated from her family and totally deaf, perhaps she is fulfilling her destiny—a warning of the horrors of jealousy.

F. G.

Jealous of a Child.

The queerest case of jealousy I ever knew of was a woman who was jealous of the six year old son of her husband by a former marriage.

This foolish woman would fly into a rage if her husband favored the boy by giving him a candy bar, or some such small thing. The only way she would be satisfied was to have a candy bar, too.

R. P.

A Just Reward.

A classmate of mine at a musical college we attended always seemed jealous because I received more applause than she did at our annual recitals. One year, knowing that my selection came before hers on the program, she inserted something between the piano keys so as to spoil the sound and fixed the bench which she knew I always used, so that it would give way when I sat down.

At the last minute the program was changed, her name was called before mine and the instrument I was to use had been placed on the stage for her. In her excitement, she forgot about the broken bench and went to the floor. After having another bench brought out for her use and vainly trying to get music from the muffled keys, she left the stage in embarrassment, never taking part in any more recitals.

Fuller Balls—or This?

CHICAGO Faucets spell freedom for victims of the old fuller ball nuisance.

A standardized, renewable unit—about the size of your little finger—contains the entire working mechanism of any Chicago Faucet fixture.

If anything goes wrong, you simply take out the unit—as easy as removing an electric bulb.

It may only need cleaning. It may mean replacing the washer. At long intervals the seat itself may have to be renewed. This costs only a few cents—takes only a few minutes of anybody's time.

And nothing more serious can ever happen to a Chicago Faucet. It's there for the life of the building—and no leak need ever be let go more than two minutes.

Bring Out the Hidden Beauty

Do you know that just beneath that soiled, discolored, faded or wrinkled complexion is one fair to look upon? Mercolized Wax will gradually and gently peel off the devitalized surface skin, revealing a new, fresh, white, beautiful skin underneath. The new complexion is a perfectly natural one, therefore in no way to be compared with a make-up. The wax leaves no trace but that of increased loveliness.

A New Skin—Your Own!—at small expense and effort. Simply apply Mercolized Wax at bedtime as you apply cold cream; wash it off in the morning. Fine, almost invisible skin particles are flecked off with the wax. No harm possible. No detention indoors. The lively young, healthy underskin is brought gradually to view—you have the exquisite complexion of robust girlhood!—and every one will tell you, You Look Years Younger—Assist Nature if she needs your help. Obtain an ounce of Mercolized Wax from your druggist or department store, use as directed—and you will bless the day that you made the acquaintance of this wonder working product.

Modern Homes Find Breakfast Room Is a Practical Necessity.

GONE are the days when every member of the large family was compelled to make a formal appearance for breakfast at an early hour. The child who did not arrive in the large, somber dining room in time to join in the blessing, which was asked by the stern head of the family, was indeed in disgrace. Less ceremony attends the partaking of the morning meal nowadays. Everyone comes in to breakfast at a different hour, suitable to his own needs and comfort. This state of affairs accounts for the present mode of breakfast rooms. Because we wish to leave the main dining room in order throughout the day, we have contrived to have a little room especially set aside in which we may peacefully enjoy our breakfasts and informal luncheon.

In building a new house, we plan to have this little extra room included in the floor plans. In houses which have been built already, where no breakfast room has been originally incorporated in the plans, the unnecessary pantry may, as often as not, be converted into one, or a sun room for this purpose may be added, adjoining the kitchen or dining room. It really must be managed somehow that we have a special breakfast room, and the gayer it is, as to color, the more surely will it be appreciated.

room done in gray, rose, black and white. It is just a small room, made by a remodeling and inclosing of what used to be an open porch at the side of the house. The wall paper shows a large, plaid pattern in rose, gray, black and white. Woodwork is painted black. Black and white linoleum, in small, alternating squares covers the floor. The furniture is painted French gray with soft rose colored lines around the edges of each piece. At the windows are white China silk curtains. Jade pink china, with a fine black edge, is used in this room.

Delightfully interesting is a somewhat larger breakfast room in a new suburban house. Walls and woodwork are painted pistachio green. Linoleum in large squares of black and cru covers the floor. Glass curtains at the many windows are of ecru gauze. Striped sunfast in old gold, copper, and four shades of green makes the draperies. The furniture combines mahogany, stained brown, with gumwood. It is decorated with floral motifs, in soft, rich tones, in an octagonal pattern. The little light chairs are cane seated. On a small size Welsh dresser a set of decorative china is displayed.

At one side of the room is a serving table on which a large copper tray is flanked by a pair of twisted copper candlesticks with jade green candles. Parchment shields decorated with floral motifs matching those on the furniture are used on the side lights. Adding a note of vital interest to the room is a lovely wrought iron fernery, placed before a grouping of windows. It is filled with trailing ivy.

Quite unusual is a little breakfast room in another modern home. The floor is done in square, pompeian red tiles, set in black mortar. Walls and woodwork are painted ivory. The furniture is enameled glossy black, with light, pompeian red trims. Chair seats are upholstered in flowered cretonne, on a light pompeian red ground. A set of nest tables, the top one acting as a serving table, holds a quaint, brass coffee set. A black highboy at one side of the room is used as a silver and linen chest. It is flanked by a pair of narrow, hanging shelves, on which odd decorative pieces are placed. A pair of three branched, brass candelabra on the buffet are fitted with lemon yellow candles. At the windows are ivory net glass curtains, finished across the lower edge with narrow fringes of the same color. Indian prints make the overdraperies. Parchment shields on the side lights are decorated with ships silhouetted in black.

In the little room illustrated today, a color scheme of blue, cream and mauve has been carried out. The walls and ceilings are a deep cream color; the woodwork a quiet mauve. Furniture is painted a soft, old blue, delightfully cool and restful. On the open dresser, colorful pieces of china and glass are advantageously placed. At the windows are cretonne draw curtains, showing a little blue and yellow flowers on a cream colored ground, marked off in squares by means of mauve lines. A pair of mirrors, in simple frames painted mauve, give a pleasing sense of balance. Side lights and ceiling light are of cream colored glass composition. A blue mauve rag rug is used on the deep blue floor.

Happily reminiscent of the days of samplers and hooked rugs is a breakfast room done in the colonial style. Walls are covered with a paper on which sprigs of small flowers are scattered on a white ground. Woodwork is painted white. At the windows are glassed curtains of white voile, with draperies of flowered chintz in a delicate Dresden pattern. A drop leaf table, set of Windsor chairs, and a pair of side tables are of antique golden maple. Pewter sconces fit into the general plan most admirably.

Pleasingly effective is a breakfast room done in bright, strong colors. The walls are brilliant lemon yellow and the woodwork and floor a deep, dull green, almost black. Furniture is enameled black and bright flame. Full glass curtains of theatrical gauze, in flame color, are finished with French heading and gathered on rods at top and bottom of the casement windows. Lemon yellow china is used. Brass candlesticks, fitted with turquoise candles, give just the right accenting note to the room.

Another vividly colorful breakfast room combines jade green and violet. The walls are pale violet, the woodwork a light French gray. Black, marbleized linoleum, waxed and highly polished, entirely covers the floor. At the windows are violet silk gauze glass curtains, used without overdraperies. The furniture is jade green, with twisted legs painted violet and with violet lines on the cabinets, tables and chairs. This combination makes a cool interior, as well as one which is exceptionally and joyfully colorful.

ISN'T IT ODD
By William Atherton DuPuy

ISN'T it odd that the lack of proper sanitation in the households of animals so small that they can live in a single blood corpuscle should have killed millions of man?

One of these animals consists of a single cell. It is so small that only the most powerful microscope can see it. Yet it is just as much an animal as is Towser, barking at the milkman. It is called a protozoan. Its first home is in a red corpuscle of human blood.

The protozoan eats that corpuscle and throws the waste over the side. That waste poisons the system of the owner of the blood. It gives him malaria or sleeping sickness.

This person with malaria or sleeping sickness may die and all the protozoa will die with him unless a certain thing happens—unless a mosquito or fly comes along and drinks some of the blood that has these tiny animals in it.

Just as the butterfly is first an egg, then a caterpillar, then a cocoon, then a butterfly, so does this protozoan have its different stages. And at each stage it must have a certain sort of place to live or it will die.

One part of its life is lived in human blood. Then it must have a spell in just one sort of incubator in all the world. That incubator is the stomach of a mosquito. Unless the protozoan gets in the mosquito's stomach it will die. Of the uncounted millions of protozoa that develop in the blood of a single person suffering with malaria, all of them die without offspring except the few that find a way to get into the stomachs of mosquitoes.

These few thrive and multiply. One becomes ten thousand. Here they live through a certain stage of their lives. Then they are like the fat caterpillar. It must become a butterfly and live in a different world or there will be no more of its kind. The protozoan must find a way to get back into the human blood from which it started.

Its only chance is that this mosquito should carry it back. Not one mosquito in ten million ever bites a human being, so the chance is small. This mosquito that has already got this protozoan from one human being must, after having properly developed it, hand it back to another. The chances are pretty small. Billions of protozoa fail to make the journey that completes their lives where one succeeds. If the journey was a little easier there would be much more malaria in the world. But those that do make the trip begin throwing over their garbage and another human family has to call in the doctor.

The Cheekiest Person I Ever Met

Send us a short, to the point, reminiscence of the cheekiest person you ever met, and we'll pay you $1 for it if we print it. All letters must be addressed to the Cheekiest Person Editor, The Tribune, Chicago.

Nothing Else But.

My nine year old brother sells a magazine. The other morning when he was starting out on his route one of our neighbors called him and told him to bring her one. Telling him to wait a minute, she went in the house and left him outside, expecting her to return at any moment with the money. In about twenty minutes she came out and handed him the magazine, saying, "I only wanted to read that short story that your sister said was so good."

Isn't that a case of cheek?

L. E. M.

Beyond a Doubt.

The cheekiest person I ever met is a young lady living next door to us. Her husband is a railroad mail clerk and is away most of the time. She evidently does not like to cook, because she comes over with her little girl just at meal time on an average of five times a week, has an excuse, and, of course, we feed her and the child.

And the best of all is that not once has she asked us to her home when her husband is there. Instead they go to a café and leave their little girl with us.

She is the cheekiest person I've ever seen.

F. W. W.

A Lot for a Little.

My wife had been ill several days and it became necessary for us to have a woman come in and take care of the house. A woman friend of my wife's offered to do it and the next day she, her husband, two babies, and luggage moved in. They stayed three weeks, although my wife was sick only three days. At the termination of their stay I asked her if I owed her anything. (Three weeks' board for three days' work was sufficient to my thinking.)

She replied: "Twenty-one dollars—nurses get seven dollars a day." (She wasn't even a trained nurse). Cheek?

W. I. D.

Knew What She Wanted.

My new neighbor kept admiring the luncheon set I was embroidering and I was greatly pleased that she would express so much admiration for it. One day she said casually, "O, by the way, would you mind if I used your new luncheon set for a little affair I am giving just to my own crowd?"

I thought of a way to get out of doing so right away and I said, "O, it isn't done, I have only ten napkins finished."

"That will be all right," she assured me, "I knew it was not finished, so I just asked nine beside myself."

She used the set and I wasn't even one of the guests, not being one of "Just her crowd."

M. C. R.

Grudging the Heat.

The cheekiest person I ever knew was our landlord who, one Sunday morning, came and told us to shut our windows as he wasn't heating out doors.

M. G.

Go-Getter.

My new neighbor fills the requirements perfectly. A few days ago, on my laundry day, I found her, out of turn, using my washing machine, basket, line and clothes pins.

What was not readily available, she had reached through the locker to obtain.

E. A. K.

Easy for Her.

The cheekiest person I've met was a woman who visited me one afternoon. After partaking of refreshments, she asked to take the remaining sandwiches, cake, etc., home for her husband and daughter, for then she need buy nothing for supper.

R. A. S.

Borrowed—Gone!

I lent a neighbor a small gas plate and after using it all summer, they decided to leave the city, and had a public sale of household goods.

I was right there and they sold the gas plate and never said "boo" to me. If that isn't cheek, what is it?

N. P.

With a Lawyer's Shrewdness.

The cheekiest person I know is a young lawyer who had his typewriting done free of charge one whole summer. He would advertise for a good stenographer. Each girl applying was told the position was extremely difficult to fill and that she must prove her worth.

It was suggested that she work a few days and show her skill. The girl gladly complied, put forth her best efforts and departed with the understanding she would be advised of the result of her work, but of course, never heard from him.

I'll tell the world he was the cheekiest person.

Mrs. V. V. P.

Hard to Explain.

I was sick and in a hospital. On visiting day my fiancé, who was out of town, sent me a beautiful box of flowers. The nurse had just arranged them artistically and left the room when a strange woman passed my open door, looked in, entered, admired my flowers and chatted a few minutes.

On leaving she helped herself to over half of the most beautiful of the flowers before I could protest. She informed me she had a sick nephew upstairs and she felt sure he, too, would enjoy some flowers.

H. H.

When Words Fail.

I was sitting in a car that was crowded, and near me was a young woman with a little girl of 9 or 10. An old lady with a cane came near me, and, standing up, I offered her my seat, but turned to see the young woman seating her little girl in my place.

I spoke to her and told her I got up to let the lady have a seat, and she told me she paid her fare and her little girl was going to have it.

Mrs. B.

$5 Apiece for Bright Sayings

The Tribune will pay $5 for each childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, The Tribune, Chicago.

Paul thought he wanted one more job before school started so went to see his grandfather about it. He was given a basket and told to gather the grapes.

Grandaddy was surprised when Paul refused the basket saying, "Nope, can't make any money at that, cus I like grapes too well."

C. M.

When we went in next door to see the triplets, the mother of the babes asked little Georgia what she thought of them.

She replied without the slightest hesitation, "I 'fink you'll be kep' awful busy keepin' the covers on so many."

C. J. M.

A little girl stood at the gate of a little cottage as I passed by the other morning. Her face was beaming with smiles.

"Hello, little girl," said I.

"'Lo. I'se dot a little boy bruvver this morning. They put him on the scales right away to see if he weighted enough. Daddy said he weighted eight pounds, so we're goin' to keep him."

Children Cry For Fletcher's
CASTORIA

The Young Mother.

The ills of infants and children should be so well known to the youngest of mothers that a reminder or a repetition of the symptoms of illness seems unnecessary, yet there are some mothers who overlook a feverish condition, a little colic, or a disposition to be irritable. If not corrected they may lead to serious sickness. And to correct them, to bring Baby back to its happy self, is so easy by the use of Castoria—a medicine prepared just for infants and children. It will regulate the bowels (not force them), aid digestion and so bring quiet and rest.

Fletcher's Castoria has been doing this for over 30 years; regulating the stomach and bowels of infants and children. It has replaced the nauseating Castor Oil, so-called Soothing Syrups, poisonous Paregoric and other vicious concoctions in the homes of true and honest mothers—mothers who love their children.

Those mothers will give their babies foods and medicines especially prepared for infants and children.

Fletcher's Castoria safely relieves

Constipation	Wind Colic	To Sweeten Stomach
Flatulence	Diarrhea	Regulate Bowels

Aids in the assimilation of Food, promoting Cheerfulness, Rest and Natural Sleep without Opiates.

To avoid imitations, always look for the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Proven directions on each package. Physicians everywhere recommend it.

The Common Sense Cure for Insomnia - - - - - - -

by Antoinette Donnelly

Eliminate the Mental or Physical Disturbance Which Prevents Sleep, Learn to Relax, and You'll Soon Be Able to Court Slumber Minus the Aid of Sleeping Potions.

NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)—If you've never been an insomnia sufferer, I suppose you never can understand why people are so afflicted and, being afflicted, why they will make themselves slaves of a drug habit to promote the blessed peace.

I am one of those fortunates with a conscience that ought to be troubled, I suppose, but, by the grace of an indulgent Providence, has so far escaped the punishment of sleeplessness. Maybe it'll get me yet. I'm not bragging. But in the meantime I wonder why so many people do go in for powders and potions for dreamland excursions.

Recently a young woman, in her mid-twenties, I judge, was in turn ahead of me at a druggist counter. She told the clerk she wanted something that would guarantee her a night's sleep; confided to all of us who happened to be listening in that she hadn't slept for a week.

"What in the world, short of murder done, would keep a person from sleeping for a week?" I mused. I asked the druggist if he had many calls like that. And he told me they hear that story every day. He confided that the sale of sleeping potions is steadily on the increase, but he had no information of any particular value to offer on why sleeplessness is becoming so prevalent.

Some Causes and Cures.

I made inquiries from more fruitful sources and found, among other things, it is estimated that more than 50 per cent of insomniacs are sufferers from digestive ailments of one kind or another; that disturbances of the circulation and constipation are contributing causes; also, that where something is wrong with the eyes, the ears, the nose, the teeth, and the throat, these, too, affect the sleeping hours.

Mental disturbances, as is well known, keep many an eye open long past shutting time. Carrying to bed your business problems, your family misunderstandings, or worries of various natures prevents the needed sleep.

The remedy, then, would appear to be to digest your food, empty your bowels, don't worry, and let your physician, oculist, and dentist fix up what is otherwise pathologically wrong.

All Drugs Are Destructive.

The use of drugs to promote sleep is the uttermost folly. When you realize that insomnia is not a disease, but a manifestation of some mental or physical condition in need of repair, no cure need be expected from drugs or combinations of drugs.

"Practically all the drugs employed in the treatment of insomnia are poisons," says Dr. William S. Walsh, well known physician, "and produce sleep artificially. They are also habit forming, and tend to accumulate in the system, thereby deranging the body functions. Not only is the sleep they produce unnatural but it fails to be productive of the feeling of well-being and satisfaction that distinguishes normal sleep. Drug users awake irritable, fatigued, mentally dull. Again, their sleep is likely to be disturbed by unpleasant dreams, nightmares, and other disorders associated with unnatural sleep. Frequently used, the dose of soporific drugs must be constantly increased in order to obtain the desired effect. Moreover, it is also necessary to change from one agent to another, inasmuch as the body becomes accustomed to the drug used and is no longer influenced by it."

"There is no drug known," he continues, "that will produce a perfectly normal sleep. Nor is there any drug that can be used indefinitely, no matter what the ailment may be, that does not destroy more than it builds."

Regular Habits Important.

The person troubled with insomnia should lead a quiet life, free from excesses of any kind. The average requirement of sleep is eight hours, and affairs should be regulated to get that amount and to give some form of regularity to the hour of retiring.

The evening meal should be simple and light, free from indigestible foods. Condiments and stimulants, such as tea, coffee, and alcoholic drinks, should be avoided by the one seeking relief from insomnia. Before going to bed, a glass of hot milk, malted milk, beef tea, or simply hot water, may prove beneficial. For the nervous person the hot bath is recommended.

A great many restless sleepers go to bed with the idea that they are not going to be able to sleep and that lack of sleep is fatal. The truth is that lack of sleep will not undermine your health—if so many hours of the night are spent in bed regardless of whether sleep comes or not.

If you put yourself to bed at going to bed time, remain there for seven or eight hours, and dismiss from your mind fretfulness because sleep does not come, you will come out in the morning in surprisingly rested condition. Your body is getting the rest, and that is what matters. This complete relaxation will not come to your tired bones unless you drill yourself to understand that you are getting rest even if your eyes are open.

Free insomnia from the popular idea of its baneful consequences, and you are on the road to getting rid of the ailment itself. It is the anguish of mind attendant on sleeplessness that makes it a disease.

The Art of Relaxation.

Relax your body. Relax your mind. And if sleep does not come for an hour or so, what of it? You are getting the rest you need. If you can give sleep a bit of the indifferent treatment that is prescribed for waning affections, it will be more apt to come wooing you. At least, that is the desirable frame of mind to entertain. And it is a procedure that has worked effectively in a number of cases reported by a physician to me.

"Sleep is like a pigeon," one reads. "It comes to you if you have the appearance of not looking for it; it flies away if you try to catch it."

Persons of nervous temperament are the most prolonged sufferers. You cannot cure in a day nerves that you have been raising to an exaggerated pitch for years. But you cannot give a nervous individual any better treatment than to make him lie down and relax the body completely. Thus insomnia and nerves can be undergoing treatment at one and the same time if you look upon the retiring hour in this light.

Answers to Queries by Antoinette Donnelly.

M. J. B.: A foul breath may be due to one of many things. There may be a catarrhal condition of the nose and throat, or enlarged tonsils. There may be a disturbance of the digestive tract. The condition of the mouth and teeth may cause it. Again, it may be what is called an inherent condition. You must find out the cause and then proceed to eliminate it.

SUE: The white spots on the nails are usually caused by lack of care in manicuring. Care must be used in pushing back the cuticle. Five minutes a day devoted to the nails will keep them in excellent condition—of course, with a manicure every ten days or two weeks. Send stamped, addressed envelope for manicuring instructions.

D. J. K.: If the pits are extremely deep, they cannot be removed entirely, but your skin can be improved. Go to a reputable skin specialist for this work, as this treatment sometimes leaves permanent blemishes unless given by a competent operator.

H. E. R.: Undoubtedly you are using an impure soap. Cleanse the skin with a good cleansing cream daily, and when using soap be sure it is the purest. I have a formula for a good cleansing cream which you may have for a stamped, addressed envelope.

MAZIE: Paleness of the face rarely exists in a healthy person. There is a type of natural pallor which is beautiful, and with it goes a creamy skin and glowing eyes. Pallor in apparently healthy persons is caused by lack of fresh air and a monotonous diet. To cultivate a fresh skin, you must learn to breathe deeply, get outdoor exercise, sleep in a well ventilated room, and eat the right kind of food. All green vegetables are good; also fruits. Drink plenty of water, six to eight glasses a day, and walk several miles daily.

MARIE G.: Repeated turning of the ankles results in thickened ligaments, and in the course of time the ankles become enlarged. Often the wearing of high heels is responsible. Wear shoes with heels from an inch to an inch and a half in height. With the constant turning the ankle bone shifts to one side, and soon there is visible quite a protuberance. With the swelling of the tissues you have thick ankles. I have some exercises which you will find helpful, but you must first send along a stamped, addressed envelope for them.

Teaching as a Profession - - - - - - - -

VOCATIONS FOR GIRLS

This is the third of a series of six articles dealing with vocations open to girls and women today. The Tribune will be glad to answer any questions relating to different lines of work which girls and women may undertake with a fair chance of lucrative returns. Address VOCATIONS FOR GIRLS, THE CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE.

If you have a talent for teaching; that is, if you like children and young people, possess considerable tact and no small degree of patience; if you have a personality which draws a response from others and a manner which can be authoritative without being didactic, there is no line of work which is surer of permanent employment or one from which you can expect a more reasonable remuneration, fixed and in proportion to the training which you have secured.

Furthermore, in the matter of financial returns, the salaries of teachers are on the increase throughout the country.

While teaching does not offer the exceptionally large salaries which women in business and in the professions sometimes earn, it must be remembered that all these "large salaries" are decidedly the exception and not the rule.

Teacher' salaries, which can be said to run from $1,000 to $5,000 a year, will measure up extremely well with the salaries which women earn in other lines. Besides this there are the long summer vacations, and the whole day Saturday instead of the half day which most business women can expect.

Again, a teacher's day is usually six to seven hours instead of eight to nine hours, though many teachers must spend time outside the schoolroom in preparation for the next day's work and in correcting papers.

It is also claimed that teaching, which demands so much expenditure of nervous energy, is not conducive to physical health, and that the work in the schoolroom, in its nervous, exacting demands, is so arduous that many teachers become nonsocial and hypersensitive.

In spite of these disadvantages the fact remains that thousands of young women throughout the country are finding this work pleasant, profitable, and remunerative. They are enjoying to the full the security of their positions, the long vacations, and deriving from their profession, which is, in its training of youth, one of the most important of the professions, a constant inspiration.

By the time at least that a girl is half way through high school, if she considers teaching, she should consult or with her teachers in regard to her work and decide on what courses she must have before she enters normal school or college.

There are many different lines of teaching. Special subjects include in their scope such widely varying studies as athletics and business courses, music, dramatic art, domestic arts and sciences, also the general subjects which come in the regular curriculum of grammar school, high school, special schools and private schools, business colleges and liberal arts colleges.

Elementary School Teaching.

This may be said to mean grade school teaching and embraces the first to the eighth grades. A high school education and normal school are required in most places to teach in the primary grades. Opportunities are possible if the teacher supplements her education by college work during the summer, and by correspondence courses. It is also possible for her to specialize in some branch of the fine arts or domestic arts and in this way become a special teacher of drawing, music, cooking or sewing. There are also principalships, supervisors and superintendentships towards which she can work, but as these are not numerous her best chance of advancement consists in further study along with her teaching.

The remuneration differs greatly in different cities and towns. In Chicago there is a fixed salary, grading according to promotion and years of service, with a maximum salary of over $2,000.

Kindergarten Teaching.

For the girl who likes children and who finds their management easy and pleasant through a natural tact and patience and understanding, this kind of teaching is delightful work. In most kindergarten schools a girl with a high school education may enter, and after her training she is in a position to teach in a public or private kindergarten, enter playground work, or equip herself to teach in a kindergarten school for teachers.

It is, furthermore, important work, as the child comes into the hands of the kindergarten teacher at a most impressionable period.

A girl with kindergarten training can often, with some experience, open a private kindergarten of her own and succeed well.

High School Teaching.

Four years of college or university training are required for most high school positions. Most years there is a shortage of teachers throughout the country. In many large cities, Chicago, included, positions are secured through examinations. In smaller cities and towns a college or university degree is sufficient, and positions are obtained through application to the principals, teachers' agencies, college employment bureaus, etc.

The salaries are much higher than for teachers in the primary and elementary grades. In Chicago the maximum is around $4,000. There are also many opportunities for a teacher to earn extra money by teaching in summer schools, night schools, etc.

Private high schools, girls' schools, institutions and boarding schools for girls offer many positions to the college graduate who prefers this kind of teaching rather than public school work. Where the teacher lives at the school, her board and room are included in her salary.

Teachers of the Blind.

This line, of course, is a highly specialized branch of teaching. For the elementary grades a normal school graduate is acceptable, but for high school teaching college graduates are preferred.

If a girl is considering this kind of work she should, by all means, visit some schools for the blind in order to see for herself just what the work is. The chance for real service is great here, but it is often confining, where it is residential, at least. All institutional work brings a teacher in close contact with the pupils, differing in this way from public school teaching, where the instructor lives her own life out of school hours.

There are many hundreds of teachers for the blind in this country.

Athletic Instructors.

For the girl who has good health and a liking for gymnasium work and sports of varying kinds this work is immensely interesting. Almost any of the normal schools of physical education admit a girl with a high school diploma. She may specialize in dancing, swimming, gymnasium, and corrective work, but a college education is particularly desirable if specialty work is to be undertaken.

Teachers of physical education are in demand in various industries, hospitals, recreation centers, and the Y. W. C. A., as well as in public schools and colleges, private schools, and different state activities.

Vocational Schools.

Many young women today are employed by vocational schools. Here there is considerable opportunity for advancement, as it is a comparatively new field. Teachers in these schools deal chiefly with pupils between the ages of 14 and 18. Technical training is given for special vocational work, such as household arts, commercial work, and other branches of skilled service where women are in demand.

There are also positions among the mentally slow and the defective for teachers with normal school training. Young women in this work should have more than an ordinary degree of patience. The salary is usually a little higher than that which teachers in the elementary grades receive.

Besides these teaching positions mentioned, there are many along specialized lines in which the girl with a particular talent and training can find employment.

They include: 1. Teachers of fine arts in special and private schools, the subjects covered consisting of music, drawing, singing, dancing, and dramatic art. 2. Teachers of the domestic arts, embracing cooking, sewing, etc. 3. Teachers in business colleges which offer instruction in shorthand, bookkeeping, typewriting, and similar subjects.

Library work may be included without teaching, since the educational requirements for the librarian and the teacher are in many points similar.

The qualifications necessary, in the main, for the girl who considers taking up library work as a profession can be said to embrace a quick and accurate mind, an instinctive appreciation of books, together with a sound basic education and a technical training in the library sciences.

The girl must have graduated from high school first of all. College graduates are more and more in demand, though there are many library schools and apprentice courses which may be entered by the girl who has her high school diploma.

While some of these library schools require girls with two years and even four years of college, others have less standardized requirements. Many large city libraries maintain excellent training schools in which they will admit the high school graduate.

The high school girl who is considering librarian's work should specialize in English, history, social sciences, and foreign language.

There is a large field in library work, including public libraries and private, children's libraries or departments of libraries, high school and college libraries, and also libraries of a medical nature in connection with hospitals.

The salaries are improving. For a long time they were inadequate for the training demanded and the services required, but like the salaries of teachers, they are on the increase.

The majority of salaries may be said to run from $1,000 to $2,000. Of course there are beginners who start on less, and trained workers who receive more, but the average might be said to be somewhere between those two figures.

It is pleasant work, bringing the girl in contact with interesting people and many young people to whom she can be of real help. The hours are rather irregular in many places, and there is often Sunday work in the public libraries of large cities. Usually she receives a vacation of from two weeks to a month during the summer.

Varied Activities of Women

Philadelphia is to have a half million dollar hotel devoted entirely to women, the first of its kind in the Quaker City.

A black stain is put on a Japanese girl's teeth just before she marries and it takes several months for it to wear off.

Of the 127 women eligible to practice law in France less than 20 are practicing barristers in the courts.

Mrs. Fannisbelle Sutherland, Kentucky's only woman police judge and one of the only two in the United States, has done so well since she assumed office that her salary has been raised by city council in Paris, Ky.

Foreign visitors to Cologne, Germany, will be guided about the city by women guides, 12 of the prettiest women in the city having been appointed municipal hostesses.

Free Health Service

by Life Extension Institute

To the policyholders of these Insurance Companies

558,600 have already applied for it

THE life insurance companies listed here offer the services of the Life Extension Institute to certain classes of their policyholders without charge. Some of these companies have been making this offer for over ten years. All of them make it because they are convinced that Life Extension Institute examinations improve the health and prolong the lives of their policyholders.

558,600 policyholders of these companies have applied for this free health service. During 1925 alone over 75,000 were examined. Even more significant is the fact that a large number continue to be examined year after year.

That policyholders taking Life Extension services are materially benefited, both in improved health and prolonged lives, is shown by the results of a study made by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company of the first 6000 of its policyholders who took the examinations over a 9-year period. This study showed that the death rate of those examined had been reduced 18% below that for all policyholders. A similar study, recently made by the Guardian Life of New York, confirms these results.

What has been done for these policyholders can be done for you. It is only by a thorough physical examination at regular intervals that those defects which may be lowering your vitality and tending to shorten your life can be detected and remedial measures suggested. You owe it to your family and yourself to keep in good condition and to do everything possible to prolong your life. Isn't it worth the trouble of sending a coupon to find out what the Life Extension Institute can do for you?

In dealing with the Institute you are dealing with an organization of unquestioned standing, headed by men with the highest ideals. No treatment is ever undertaken by the Institute and no individual agencies for treatment are named. About 9000 examining physicians of unquestioned standing are co-operating with the Institute in all parts of the United States in connection with its health examinations.

The free examinations for policyholders are entirely apart from those given by the individual insurance companies at the time application is made for a policy. They are absolutely confidential and no information is given to the companies. The examinations can in no way affect future insurance.

If you are a policyholder in any of the companies listed mail the coupon below to find out whether you are entitled to free services.

If you are not entitled to the Institute's services for policyholders, the Institute's Standard Health Services are available to you as an individual subscriber. Many of the most prominent men and women in the country are annually examined by the Institute in its individual membership department. The Standard Services include a critical survey of your whole life and body, suggestions as to any needed form of medical treatment, instructions on all phases of correct personal hygiene and many other valuable privileges designed to protect you from disease and prolong your life. If you are not a policyholder send the coupon below for information about the Standard Services.

The Institute's services for policyholders and non-policyholders are available in all parts of the United States and Canada.

GAS the Fuel

A Fuel that Marks the Modern Home

WHEREVER the magic of gas has been applied, there we see progress. With the introduction of gas into our homes we see the dawn of a new era — an era of new conveniences, new comforts and new economies. We see the realization of a new triumph over household drudgery, aggravation and waste.

Those Towers of Progress

The great steel towers in your city are the symbols of achievement — the landmarks of progress. They are the fuel bins of a new era. Their presence is a pledge of service—a confiding assurance that no home piped for gas need suffer the consequences of fuel famines, that their fuel supply will be always and instantly available without the necessity of annually laying in and paying for large supplies of expensive and wasteful coal and wood.

The dirty wood box, the coal bucket, the soot-laden chimney and the cumbersome cook stove have no place in the gas-serviced home, and the fuel is paid for only as and when used.

The A-B UNIFIED Cooks the Meals

Gas, the clean, invisible and economical fuel gives us, among other things, the indispensable benefits of the A-B Unified Gas Range which cooks, bakes and heats with gas. No kindling of fires, no carrying of wood and coal, no ashes. With the A-B Unified Gas Range, should we wish to cook, or bake, or take the uncomfortable chill out of our home, we have but to press a lighter button and immediately the gas responds with an intense heat that quickly cooks our meals or heats our room as we like.

Every modern improvement is embodied in this remarkable range. It has a standard four-burner cooking top, large size baking oven with rust-proof linings and oven—and automatic oven-heat control. In addition, it has the wonderful in-built gas-heater section.

Warms and Purifies the Air

The heater section has solid top with two stove lids. Specially designed gas burners heat the cold air as it is drawn from the room, whence it passes through the heat chambers in the back of the range and into the room, while fumes are drawn up through the flue. Thus the cold, impure air of the kitchen is sterilized and sent back into your home fresh, pure and comfortably heated.

Kitchen Plan Book Free

Mail the coupon TODAY and receive a beautifully-colored booklet giving plans of convenient kitchen arrangement, wall color schemes, etc., etc. The booklet is full of illustrations and good ideas. All Free.

A-B Unified G

el of A New Era

For Convenience Comfort and Economy

Immaculately clean kitchens are possible for the home on the gas service line, for gas-stove kitchens can be easily kept clean. The comfortable, delightful kitchen is the gas-stove kitchen. There is no question about it. And when we remember that for the quick heating of water for the sick patient, or the preparation of food at any hour for the sick room, gas is the one fuel always dependable, its real importance is increased many fold. No home can be called modern without gas, and no gas-serviced home is complete without the latest and best appliances for using it.

The New Era Has Come

Thanks to the genius of master men, the skill and brawn of thousands of workers and the investment of millions of dollars, we have come into an era of new-found comforts and greater conveniences; we see the mysterious magic of gas in daily unfailing service without thought of effort, no irritating disappointments and no exhorbitant expenditures.

GAS RANGE Heats the Kitchen

Not a Luxury--a Necessity

For the sake of our comfort—for the health of our children who must be dressed early on chilly mornings of the early fall or late spring when we hesitate to fire up the furnace—for the sake of a warm kitchen in any season before the furnace has had time to heat it comfortably—this double-duty range must be considered as a necessity.

And it need cost no more to enjoy these comforts, for the breakfast may be cooked over the heater top with the same gas that is heating the kitchen.

Thousands Now in Use

The A-B Unified Gas Range has brought a new appreciation of modern comfort and convenience into thousands of homes, more than two thousand of them in Chicago alone.

15 Days' Trial In Your Own Kitchen FREE

We can hardly appreciate what a truly indispensable service awaits us in the Unified Gas Range until we get it into our home where we may see and feel and enjoy its advantages. Upon request the A-B Stove Company will have one of these remarkable ranges placed in any gas-serviced home for private demonstration, where it may be used to cook and bake and heat for fifteen days. If, after a two weeks' trial, the old method is preferred to the new, your Gas Company will remove the range and replace the old one without argument, without obligation and with only the satisfaction of having done a duty to those whom it aims to serve. Thousands of these ranges have been sold on this basis.

See Your Gas Company

More complete details about the A-B Unified Range, the description of the different sizes and styles made, prices and terms, will be gladly given upon request. Also all information regarding the Free Trial. Remember to fill out and mail the coupon in this advertisement, which calls for the beautifully-illustrated booklet of Kitchen Plans.

Makes It Safe for the Babies

A-B Stove Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Gentlemen:—The A-B Unified Gas Range I have in my home was installed and put into operation on October 1, 1925—8¼ months ago. On April 9th of the same year a pair of babies came into our home and, as you may guess, the ordinary methods of caring for them had to be altered to accommodate two instead of one, which meant some changes. One of these changes was the place of bathing. We decided our kitchen was the best place, but the heating was important. So we bought a Unified Range and had no difficulty in raising the temperature of the kitchen 10 to 15 degrees in as many minutes, making it safe for the babies. Last winter was a cold one, so the service your range gave was doubly appreciated, as it did something not before possible, and economically, too, twice a day, mid-morning and night.

This evening is very cool. The thermometer reads 55 degrees in our kitchen. We lighted the heating section and in a little while it was comfortable. Friend wife likes the oven very well, and the heat control still more. She appreciates, too, the ingenuity of your designer in making a catch for the pan under the burners, as our little girls are on their feet now and would have it on the floor as fast as their mother could return it, were it not for that device. She wants me also to mention that she takes a great deal of pride in the general appearance of her stove (we have the all-white enamel). The walls and ceiling of our kitchen are white, our sink is white, the linoleum on the floor is a sort of checkered white and blue and with the all-enamel Unified Range you can picture for yourself what an inviting kitchen we have.

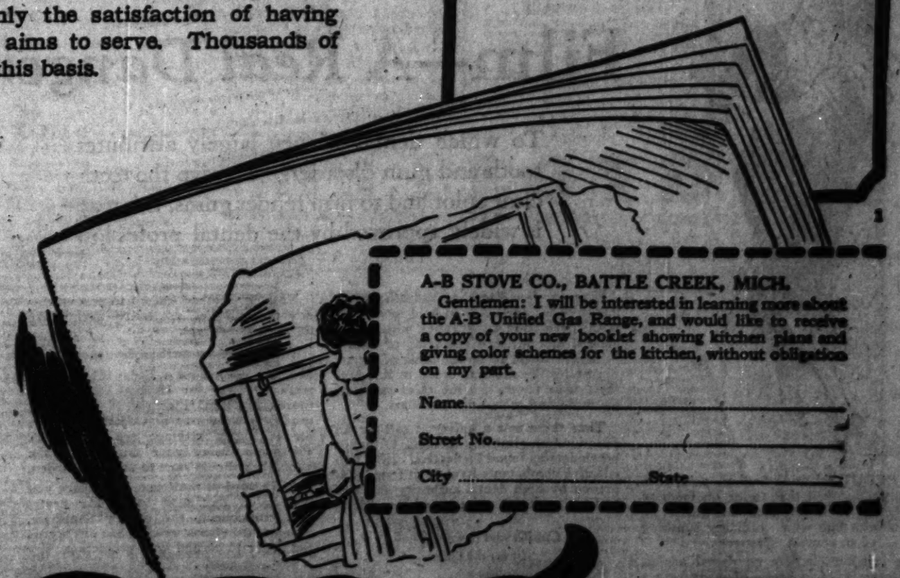
Lowered the Gas Bills

A-B Stove Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Gentlemen:—It is with pleasure we write to let you know we are very much pleased with the Unified Range in all respects. We have found it just as we hoped it would be when we purchased it. We used the heating section for cooking and found it very satisfactory both for cooking and heating, also found it heated the room very nicely. We used the gas a great deal for baking and heating, and were surprised our gas bills were not as high as they used to be with our old stove which we used nearly as much. The oven control is giving us very good satisfaction.

Originals of these letters on file in our office. Name and address on request.



A-B STOVE CO., BATTLE CREEK, MICH.

Gentlemen: I will be interested in learning more about the A-B Unified Gas Range, and would like to receive a copy of your new booklet showing kitchen plans and giving color schemes for the kitchen, without obligation on my part.

My Most Embarrassing Moment

The Tribune will pay $1 for every letter published on "The Most Embarrassing Moment of My Life." Address Embarrassing Moment, The Tribune, Chicago. Write on one side of the paper. No manuscripts returned.

Caught.

We had one crabby customer who had never given the operators a tip. However, she came in one day to be all "fixed up" before attending her brother's wedding. Another girl and I "worked" on her and when we finished, she gave us each a quarter tip. To say we were amazed is putting it rather lightly.

As soon as we heard the door slam and told each other about the tips. We said she must have been celebrat- after her we sat down and laughed ing the wedding ahead of time, for she must have been nearly unconscious to have separated from that 50 cents.

Before we finished laughing about her, the reception room curtains separated, and there stood our customer.

She certainly did give us a lecture and then said she had slammed the door purposely to hear what we had to say. Were we embarrassed? Neither of us could think of a thing to say.

Mrs F. L. J.

Getting the Truth.

I took a week's boat trip as a vacation one summer. A young fellow boarded the boat at Buffalo and was placed next to me at the table. We became quite friendly—indeed, with him it seemed to be love at first sight. He told me he was the son of a wealthy nationally known manufacturer, whose name appears on billboards throughout the country and showed me papers to substantiate it. When we reached Chicago he called upon me, but I determined to investigate, and when I returned to the office I immediately addressed a letter to the bank in his home town, listing questions I desired answered, and among them, "Is he married?"

Well, I certainly received a shock when the head of my department came to my desk and handed me a letter, asking if I had written it, and I found it was the one I had sent, with the bank's answer on the bottom. They had simply addressed it to my firm instead of to me personally, as I had used the firm's letter head, and as I had advertised pretty well what a wonderful time I had had, etc., you can imagine my feelings when the answer was, "He is Mr. H.'s son and resides here with his wife and three children."

Riding the Irish Mail.

I was about 22 when at Christmas time I gave my little nephew and niece an Irish Mail as a present. I was as interested in riding it as the youngsters were, as I'd never had one when I was a youngster.

The following summer we were invited over there for a Sunday afternoon and evening. I spied the Irish Mail and announced I was going to take a ride on it. We all went out on the sidewalk and amid jokes and laughter, I started on my ride. I had on a georgette crepe dress and I hadn't gone more than eight or nine feet when I got stuck.

The georgette had wound around the gears of the Irish Mail. I was unable to move forward or backward, so had to get out of my dress, right out on the street and make a wild dash for the house—amid more jokes and laughter than when I started out, I might add.

I have since made up my mind that riding on Irish Mails is pastime for little girls—not big girls.

E. M.

Rifling a Mail Box.

There was a family whose house I passed each day going to market. The members of this family looked familiar to me, and yet I could not recollect where I had met them. My curiosity was aroused, and I felt if I knew their names I might be able to place them. None of my acquaintances in the neighborhood happened to know them.

One day on my way to market I saw them load up their auto with suitcases, lock their doors, and drive off, presumably on quite a trip. When I was returning a couple of hours later I saw the mail man come down off their porch, and it was then I got my bright idea. This would be my chance to find out what their name was.

I went up on the porch, took the letter out of the box, and was just looking at it when the man of the house came out to collect his mail. He had evidently delivered his family some place and returned.

It gives one rather a queer sensation to be found rifling a mail box.

E. M.

Mother and Daughter.

While I was visiting my brother in a small town I was introduced to two women, mother and daughter. The daughter is fat and a bit too large for a girl of 15. Her mother is pretty and young looking.

Before the dinner I went downtown and met the mother. Mistaking her for the daughter I started a lively conversation, gave her a ride in my old car and tried to make a date. "Please come—without your mother."

Then I came back to my brother and met the daughter. I could have kicked myself for my foolishness. I now mistook the daughter for the mother and told her I had met her daughter downtown.

My brother poked me saying, "This is the daughter!"

My face reddened. I never was more embarrassed.

But that is not all. To make it worse I explained that I was just joking.

C. B.

Only a Screw.

The other day when riding on a motor bus I saw something lying on the floor that looked like a graudation pin and when the lady who was sitting next to me got off I leaned over to pick it up, and you can imagine my embarrassment when I discovered it was a screw in the bottom of the bus and I was unable even to budge it.

I was so embarrassed I was afraid to look at any one. They all looked at me and I was obliged to stare out of the window until I got down town.

A. W.

Her Error.

It was my first year of teaching and I was trying to be most elegant and impressive at the reception given to the "new teachers." Being presented to a plump, placid, motherly looking woman, I mincingly said, "I believe, Mrs. Johnson, that I have some of your dear children in my Latin class."

consternation when she replied, "O, no, I am an old maid," was heightened when one of the older teachers obligingly whispered in my ear that the only Johnsons in our school were coal black!

Film—A Real Danger

To which dental science largely attributes tooth and gum disorders. To give the teeth clear color and to firm tender gums, this way is widely approved by the dental profession

RECENT scientific findings point to a viscous film that forms on teeth as the enemy of healthy teeth and gums. To a stubborn film which ordinary brushing has failed to combat effectively.

As a result, largely on dental advice, the tooth-cleaning habits of many people are being radically changed.

Many methods considered right yesterday are judged inadequate today. Modern dental science has made important new advancements. Findings that mean much in dental prophylaxis. These are embodied in the special film-removing dentifrice called Pepsodent.

New an effective film combatant

For years dental science sought ways to fight film. Clear teeth and healthy gums come only when film is constantly combated—removed every day from the teeth.

Film was found to cling to teeth; to get into crevices and stay; to hold in contact with teeth food substances which fermented and fostered the acids of decay. Film was found to be the basis of tartar. Germs by the millions breed in it. And they, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea and most gum disorders.

Thus there was a universal call for an effective film-removing method. Ordinary brushing was found ineffective. Now two effective combatants have been found, approved by high dental authority and embodied in a tooth paste called Pepsodent.

Curdles and removes film—Firms the Gums

Pepsodent acts first to curdle the film. Then it thoroughly removes the film in gentle safety to enamel.

At the same time, it acts to firm the gums—Pepsodent provides, for this purpose, the most recent dental findings in gum protection science knows today. Pepsodent also multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. And thus aids in neutralizing mouth acids as they form.

It multiplies the starch digestant of the saliva. Thus combats starch deposits which might otherwise ferment and form acids.

No other method known to present-day science embodies protective agents like these in Pepsodent.

Please accept Pepsodent test

Send the coupon for a 10-day tube. Brush teeth this way for 10 days. Note how thoroughly film is removed. The teeth gradually lighten as film coats go. Then for 10 nights massage the gums with Pepsodent, using your finger tips; the gums then should start to firm and harden.

At the end of that time, we believe you will agree, that next to regular dental care, Pepsodent, the quality dentifrice, provides the utmost science has discovered for better tooth and gum protection.

On the Virtue of Gratitude

by Doris Blake

Plea for Old Fashioned Kindliness to Heal Some of the Sores of This Modern World.

AMONG the stories told of President Lincoln is one that illustrates the beauty of gratitude, the virtue, a noted divine recently said, if cultivated more generally would relieve the world of half its woes.

The Hon. Thaddeus Stevens called upon President Lincoln one day with an elderly lady who was in great trouble and whose son had been in the army, but for some offense had been court martialed and sentenced either to death or life imprisonment. After a hearing, the President proceeded to execute the paper granting him a pardon. The gratitude of the mother was too deep for expression save by her tears, and not a word was said between her and Mr. Stevens until they were halfway down the stairs, when she suddenly broke forth in an excited manner with the words: "I knew it was a copperhead lie!" "What do you refer to, madam?" asked Mr. Stevens. "Why, they told me he was an ugly looking man," she replied with vehemence. "He is the handsomest man I ever saw in my life."

There is on my desk at the moment I write a letter from a broken hearted mother. Through the influence of a girl, the son of late has been showing a marked change in deference to this parent, whose life since the boy's birth has been one long sacrifice. The ungrateful boy argues that children owe their parents nothing. They did not ask to be born. Petted by the mother's indulgent way with the boy was in the right way. But would he not be a better man, a better citizen, a better husband, if there were gratitude in his heart for the many blessings his parent provided him? Would he not be a happier individual if there were in his soul the kindness that is born of gratitude?

Unkindness Breeds Ingratitude.

There is an old saying that if you underestimate a blessing you lose it and if you overestimate an evil you increase it. Gratitude is a blessing that none of us can well afford to lose, for the simple reason that it is a powerful factor in winning that personal happiness upon which we are all bent and because it does have a worthwhile influence in our affairs with the world.

At no time has the world stood more in need of it than right now. It is commonplace to hear sons and daughters disclaiming obligations to parents in the light of the "live for yourself" propaganda current. Wives claim they owe their husbands nothing, and husbands switch the old mate for a young one because there is no real gratitude in their hearts. There are parents without gratitude toward children who devote to them their best years.

The individual, in overestimating the possessions of another, forgets to count the blessings that are his. And this more than any other feature is answerable for the discontent in homes and in the expressions on countless numbers of faces.

Dr. Arthur Vos, writing in a health publication, stresses the importance of the cultivation of gratitude from the health point of view. As a remedy for the grouch who sees nothing about him but pessimism, and the "glum," the neurasthenic, and the petulant, the sullen, churlish, and morose, he recommends a changed heart. Wrong habits of thought we know to have a deleterious influence on the health of the body.

Kindliness and Health.

"It is true," says Dr. Vos, "that the cultivation of a spirit of appreciation and gratitude has a vital influence in neutralizing the reflex effects which a pathological condition or an organic disease may produce in the mind and disposition of the patient. Every true and honest effort in displacing such hurtful, pernicious, and detrimental feelings and emotions is a wellspring of energy pouring out its refreshing and healing waters into the very life of man. Such efforts must be inspired by repeated resolutions, by determination, by an act or repeated acts of will, and constitute what is known as self-control and poise.

"You may not see instantly what effect your resolutions and determinations may have upon the subconscious mind and its expressions, but if you will continue to persist in cultivating a kindliness of disposition, a spirit of gratitude and of appreciation, it will not be long before a new series of sense memories, concepts, ideas, and emotions will become dominant in your consciousness. And as these gradually take form in the mind, new cells are generated in the brain and new faculties are established by the subconscious mind for their exercise and perpetuation. The office of the subconscious mind, let it be remembered, is not only to preside over all the cell producing and creating functions but to regulate and control the chemical changes and activities as these affect the secretory and excretory fluids of the body engaged in the process of nutrition and elimination. Hence its possibility of creating new cells and new areas with their corresponding faculties.

"When the subconscious mind is discouraged by an act of will, which it is if the choice of feeling, emotion, or attitude is not made in harmony with its own nature and modes of operation, the physical processes of the body will be gradually depressed and ill health will sooner or later ensue."

Ingrate Has Small Soul.

This, contends Dr. Vos, is the process of disease production from wrong mental attitude, which is well illustrated in the fact that no ungrateful person can ever be perfectly well or happy.

"All noble natures intuitively recoil from expressions of ingratitude, for they intuitively feel that selfish motives are destructive and not creative in their influences. The ingrate, not having received the joyous and bounding feeling that can only arise from an appreciation of the blessings that life affords, has no song in his heart and cannot be loved by those with whom he comes in contact."

Gratitude and thankfulness of heart, instead of arising from a weak and timid mind, is, on the contrary, the most eloquent evidence of greatness of character and nobility of soul, says Vos.

There is nothing good a person may possess, whether it be of the mind or body, character or health, chattels or landed properties, friendships or acquaintances, fame or reputation, which may not be lost if not appreciated.

Such being the case, let's begin today cultivating a spirit of thankfulness for the many blessings we have. We have them—many of them. Heretofore we've been so busy with envy and jealousy, cultivating selfishness abominably, that we simply haven't taken the time to count the things we could be grateful for.

Answers to Queries: By Doris Blake.

"Dear Miss Blake: I took my girl to the theater. We arrived home after midnight. Her mother was angry. She does not approve of her daughter coming home late. I do not wish her to have the wrong opinion of me. How can I square myself? T. C."

An explanation from you with the assurance you will be more careful in the future will do much to reinstate you with the mother, T. C.

"Dear Miss Blake: I have been going with a young man who talks about other girls whom he goes out with. How can I find out if I am wasting my time going with him? G. T. A."

Don't be too anxious about it, G. T. A. He doesn't monopolize your time. You have the same opportunity for keeping up your other acquaintances.

"Dear Miss Blake: I have been going with a girl who loves me. I have asked her for a kiss, but she said she could not give me one for a certain reason. I think she is bashful. What should I do. "Worried."

Not bashful, Worried, merely cautious, and you don't blame her for it, now, do you? If she granted your request you'd soon tire of her and seek other companionship.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am 17, but have no boy friends. My girl friend is of the same age and has many. Is it because she allows them all sorts of liberties? Would you advise me to begin now to indulge, too, in order to gain the opposite sex? "Milly."

She is paying dearly for a popularity which will be short-lived, Milly. She will be dropped by those who pose as her friends. They soon tire of her type, dear.

"Dear Miss Blake: I was keeping steady company with a girl until she stopped speaking to me. I love her and would like to win her friendship again. Please advise. J. B."

Your chances aren't so good when she refuses to speak, unless you gave her good reason for cutting you. If so, an apology is in order. Otherwise, look elsewhere for a girl, J. B.

The TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

EDITED BY JANE EDDINGTON

Celery, Both Stem and Leaf, Serves as a Health Beautifier as Well as a Most Palatable Food

All recipes have been scientifically tested by Miss Eddington with current market materials and are indorsed by her.

A FULL bunch of fall celery may contain fifteen heads, and we should get at least three services from these, if not six. The service of the stems—split, fringed, stuffed or served as hearts of celery, needs but little exploiting. It is the leaf that too often is not utilized.

Crisp, and fresh, and cool, and dainty—which means immaculate — the tender stems of celery are an excellent daily tonic for almost anybody, or one of the blessed health preservers. Not only health preservers, but something else of similar import, are fresh celery stems for the stout man or woman, because they are bulky, and yield water without water logging. They are health preservers in both a mechanical and chemical way. They give bulk without supplying calories. For our chemical activities—and we are all chemical—and with every breath, they supply minerals essential to certain chemical activities and the vitamins, yes, and water, too, in which the minerals are dissolved.

Some crisp celery may be the salvation of those who are inclined to eat too much dinner, and to eat too heavy foods. If it does nothing else it extends the more solid viands, and so ameliorates digestive conditions. Of course, it is one of the sweepers, which is the same as saying that it gives bulk, or that it is roughage. That is one of the reasons why leaf, as well as stem should be used for food, though it does not attract the eye as do the little crisp hearts. If the cook knows her business a celery green or the leaves cooked may be presented most appetisingly. Dirty raw celery—its dirt is of a lively sort and dangerous—should repel, while soft cooked celery—leaf or stem—may be germ free.

The green leaves of celery undoubtedly contain more iron than the bleached leaves—iron for the anemic, you know—and no matter how coarse they may be in appearance, unless they have been sun scalded, they are not too coarse to cook into a pleasant green, which may be used hot with butter and other seasonings to taste, or used cold for a salad. The bleached leaves make a pleasant blend with them.

Uses for Celery Tops.

Bleached celery tops in a lamb stew cook up so deliciously that they may easily seem to be the most savory and desirable ingredient in the stew. Even when only a few are used they are hard to find. Dried celery leaves in such stews and in macaroni sauces will often cook up to look exactly like fresh leaves, and may be almost as savory. Every white leaf, and the best green ones as well, which are not needed for immediate service, should be dried for seasonings. They add a distinctly fine quality to a tomato soup, as well as to stews. The winter pot roasts and gravies are improved when dry celery leaves are used for seasoning them. When hearts of celery are cooked, as in "celeri au jus," the leaves should not be removed.

Celery Greens.

Celery greens, with good cooking, are milder than any one would guess, or mild enough so that various effects may be secured with them. They may even seem to taste like asparagus. It seems a pity, since it costs money to transport and handle the leaves as well as the stems, and more because they have so valuable a physiological service to render us, that we should throw them away. To be quite specific, they provide us with that invaluable vitamin called water-soluble B, or perhaps they call it something else now. That was its first and convincing name.

How to Prepare Celery Greens.

Look over the leaves carefully, rejecting rusty or otherwise imperfect ones and rusty stems, if they are used with the leaves. Wash the whole in several waters, brushing coarse stems if necessary, when they are used. Green and heavily ribbed stems may be peeled and only the white pith or pulpy center used, cut fine. Cut the leaves from small wiry stems and then cut these stems fine [use a small wooden board], and add to the leaves. When ready, blanch for five or ten minutes, depending upon how coarse the leaves seem, drain them and rinse with cold water. After that start them to cook in a little cold water, turning the fire quite low as soon as this small amount boils. Cook until tender and serve with butter, or finish as you choose. Served with unsalted butter they can be recommended to those seeking a salt free diet. A word further about the blanching: It must be done with discretion because a good deal of soluble material may be lost, as the color of the blanching water may suggest. A bit of turmeric powder added to the greens while they are cooking, if just right, seems to set the celery flavor and color the greens in a natural way.

Thickened Celery Greens.

Use for one cup of cooked celery greens chopped fine, four tablespoons of butter and two level tablespoons of flour. Melt the butter, stir the flour into it and keep on stirring until the flour is cooked. Add greens, stir thoroughly to blend, and cook slightly. Serve as is, or use lemon juice, served separately.

Heating Celery Greens.

Celery greens chopped and seasoned and molded may be used for a salad. Or leave quite plain and when ready to use warm them up in a meat stock, or plenty of butter. Serve in place of spinach.

Celery Soups.

The coarse stalks, cleaned and cut fine, and the good leaves may be used in making celery soups. Any reasonable quantity of celery, with a little more water than to cover it in the cooking, may be used for the foundation, with an onion and a little salt to set the flavor a bit. Insipid celery soups are hateful. The liquid strained from celery cooked for greens, or purposely for soups, may be thickened like a white sauce and almost any proportion of milk or cream combined with it, but the best effects are probably secured with rather a condensed celery water, and considerable rich milk.

A Boy's Recipe for Celery Soup.

Because he had just made it for his mother, the following recipe was secured from a 12 year old boy who had learned how to make it in a class in one of the best of private schools: Four stalks of celery cut fine, water to cover, one tablespoon of flour, two cups of milk. Wash the celery, scrape off heavy threads and brown surfaces, cut out any bad spots, put on a board and cut exceedingly fine. Use nice white leaves, as well as stalks. Just cover with cold water and put on to cook for twenty minutes. When the water has boiled turn the fire low. Wet the flour with a bit of milk and stir to a smooth paste. Then add the rest of the milk and put over the fire and stir until it thickens. It should not need straining because of lumps. When it is cooked, add the celery and the water it is cooked in, and let it stand over the fire from five to ten minutes. You can strain out the bits of celery or eat them with the soup. This is quite drinkable, but can be made thicker—use another tablespoon of flour—or richer by adding butter. As it is, you could hardly get a lower caloried soup yet it is valuable for those who need to get more milk into their diet.

Celery Almond Soup. I.

This soup may simply be called an almond soup and used for grand occasions, as almond soups are used. It is easy at a glance to see that a celery soup may be a half way stage to an almond soup. Use one cup and a half of finely cut celery, one onion, sliced, two cups of water, one-half cup of almonds, milk to thin and seasoning to suit. When the celery is cut exceedingly fine there is less reason for straining it out—it is good sense to eat it, and good dietetics as well. Add the water and onion to it and cook for twenty minutes. After ten minutes add the blanched almonds put through the nut butter disk of the food chopper, and be careful to keep all at a simmering temperature. Thin with milk and add seasonings. When successfully made this is as appetizing as the best cream of chicken soup. It is such a soup as is fed to invalids by prescription. It is a genuinely thick soup with reason and we are fond of saying that it is infinitely preferable to that invalid pastel called a milk or cream toast, which is hot always so bad, but is generally.

Celery Almond Soup. II.

In putting celery to cook for a soup base add to it a pinch of salt, half teaspoon of sugar and a bit of cayenne pepper and perhaps an onion. Simmer it gently for forty minutes. Strain off and pound the cooked celery to fineness and add the liquid to it. For each cup of this add to a scant tablespoon of melted butter a tablespoon of flour and stir till smooth before adding the celery water. Stir and cook for ten or fifteen minutes. To serve at this point, as a celery soup, add a little cream and serve with croutons. To half a cup of blanched almonds chopped or pounded fine add three-fourths of a cup of milk, and cook for ten minutes. This is enough to combine with two or three cups of the other preparation. When the almonds have simmered thus, add them to the celery mixture and cook the two together for five or more minutes. If this should seem to be lacking in the rich flavor expected, add a teaspoon of sugar, but be careful not to make it seem sweet. Serve in cups with a little whipped cream and some form of crisp bread.

Celeri au Jus.

Recipes for celery in meat gravy have not been found in our American cook books, nor has the dish by this name been well cooked at our hotels. It has had—as far as our experience has gone—too dark a gravy around it and one so seasoned with made sauces that we have tasted it afterwards. Since it is essentially a French dish, it is natural that it should be cooked to perfection in Paris, in the best places to eat, where it is garnished most delicately with poached beef marrow. It seems to us that in perfection this cosmopolitan dish is a delicious compromise between meat and vegetable. The ingredients may be varied, but good results can be obtained with these: Hearts of celery, a slice of salt pork, soup stock or meat gravy to cover, two or three onions, seasonings, and other vegetables to suit the taste, like a tomato or two, or a vegetable bouquet.

Use about the four inner stems of a head of celery, paring the root clean, but not cutting it off, and so leaving as a piece the heart of the celery head. Clean carefully and cut off the top, making the stalks of equal length. Blanch the hearts for five minutes, and then give them a cold dip. Then cook in a flat bottomed pan, with the other ingredients, for half an hour. The pork, if used, will furnish salt enough for that seasoning. If, by the time the celery has cooked till deliciously tender, the meat stock is reduced to a glaze—thick stock at the start—the dish will be the most perfect. A bit of sugar helps to make a glaze and improves the flavor. Or carameled sugar without much sweetening power can be used. Water instead of meat gravy can be used, and then more vegetable seasonings added. A stock made of long cooked rack of chicken or turkey is excellent for this dish. French endive may be cooked in the same way.

MY GREATEST THRILL

Write and tell us about the greatest thrill you ever experienced, and if we print your letter we'll pay you $1. Make your letters short and snappy. Address them to "Greatest Thrill" Editor, The Chicago Tribune.

Her First "Appearance."

I've been a scribbler for years and years, getting just enough encouragement from long-suffering editors to keep me writing. You know how it is—"Men may come and men may go, but I go on forever"—and I'm still going.

Well, not long ago I was working on an article explaining a new game and a housekeeping device. The manuscript was sent around 'steen dozen times and it always made the return trip. Finally my young daughter read it and said, "Let me use this, will you?"

"O, yes," I answered, "go ahead."

Nothing more was said about it for several weeks. Then one bright winter day daughter came dancing up the street, waving a magazine.

"Here we are," she exclaimed, as she opened the front door.

"Who—where?" I asked.

"Here"—and she pointed to the aforementioned article—printed, published, actually accepted by an editor. I looked at her in astonishment. She was only 12, and an eighth grader, but she had "appeared." She had revised the article somewhat, but the ideas were still there. Since then she has "appeared" a good many times, but there will never be a thrill like the first one. A. K.

Into the Ditch.

We were forty miles from home with a storm at our back, so we attempted to outrun it.

A few minutes later we were horrified to hear a harsh blast from an approaching train. We had forgotten this crossing! We saw that we could never stop before the train reached the crossing, so our driver turned the steering wheel quickly and we crashed down, down into the ditch against a wire fence. There the car fell over on its side.

Beyond a few bruised heads and shattered nerves we were safe, but the horror of that night will always remain with me. I. T.

Just Escaped.

As my college chum and I were hiking along the bank of the Mississippi river we suddenly heard something splash into the muddy water. Looking back we saw a large section of the bank, on which we had just been walking, fall into the river. With thanks for our escape, we quickly ran to higher ground. J. L.

Caught in the Track.

My greatest thrill occurred recently when the heel of my slipper was caught in the railroad track and a train was coming full speed. Thanks to my friend who was calm enough to tell me to unbutton my slipper and step out, I was saved. I barely had time when the train came roaring past. I shudder to think what might have happened if——. R. L. F.

HOME FURNISHERS ARE GREATER

Some Families are Never Ill

FORTUNATE are the children whose parents fully realize the seriousness of constipation. Hospital records prove that 75 per cent of all disease originates in bowel obstruction, or constipation. Young children cry because of it; school children are hampered in their studies; grown people are made 25 per cent less efficient; elderly people's blood pressure increases 28 per cent. Innumerable mothers give Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at the first sign of constipation, and have little or no serious sickness among their children.

Largest Selling Laxative

Every up-to-date family medicine chest should contain a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a compound of Egyptian Senna with pepsin and palatable aromatics, a prescription written 30 years ago by Dr. W. B. Caldwell, who practiced medicine 47 years. You can buy a bottle in any store where medicines are sold, and the cost is less than a cent a dose. We guarantee that if you give Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin to a child or for a few nights to an adult it will relieve any case of constipation no matter how chronic, or your money will be refunded.

10 Million Bottles a Year

Use it once and you will never again take coal tar drugs in candy form, calomel or salts. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a vegetable laxative free from opiates and from narcotics. It can be safely given to infants, yet it effectively moves the bowels of adults. It acts gently; does not cramp or gripe. Keep it in the house and use it for any indication of bowel obstruction such as constipation, biliousness, torpid liver, dyspepsia, pimples and like skin eruptions. Give it early and it will help break up a fever or cold.

Write "Syrup Pepsin," 522 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois, for a free sample bottle.

The MAGIC MAN

by Hallie Erminie Rives

IN the black stillness of the night, Canuck clumsily and awkwardly copied the secret formula. It mattered little to him that his dastardly errand might wreck the traditions of one of the great industries of the world—endanger the livelihood of generations. What did matter was that he must hurry—hurry back to Meg's Pawnshop, in Hell's Kitchen, that most flagrant of New York's slums. In his absorption, he neither heard the stealthy footsteps nor saw the gleam of the gun in Rose's hand.

Start It Here and Continue It Next Sunday

Miss Rives is the author of many popular books, among them "Hearts Courageous," "Satan Sanderson," and "The Castaway." Her latest novel, "The Magic Man," is an ideal story to read serially.

THE autumn sun was pouring a wash of gold over the great stone pile which was at once the home and the workshop of the "Wizard of Melton Park," as the famous Roselius was bromidically referred to by the headline writers.

A fitting setting for the master chemist, whose name in the world of scientific experiment was a household word. "The Roselius Method of Extracting Helium," "The New Element, Roselius, and Its Place in the Atomic Scale"—the textbooks were blazoned with his achievements. He was to electro-chemistry what Luther Burbank was to agriculture, a daring explorer in unblazed paths. The Cagliostro of color, whose twentieth century alchemy had regiven to the world the ancient "Tyrian purple" that had dyed the silken sails of the triremes of Roman emperors crimsoning the Mediterranean. The modern Midas whose touch turned worthless coal tar to gold.

With its tennis and handball courts, nine hole golf course, bathing pool, and all the accessories of smart country life, it was a happy hunting ground for the supersophisticated younger lot, of whom Rose Roselius, the chemist's only daughter, was a conspicuous member.

From the upper windows of the house, on such a clear day as today, one might even see the fanged skyline of New York, yet in its peace and quiet have been a thousand miles away. From its wide front lawn rose the whir-r-r-r of a grass cutter—an electric chariot which careened in an ever narrowing circle—pierced by the malevolent squawk of a gallant tailed peacock preening on a marble bench from Taormina.

In its own wing of the building, looking upon a paved court, the office staff was functioning with its usual swiftness under the direction of Miss Thorp, by designation Roselius' private secretary, and, in fact, his right hand man for more than twenty years.

Miss Thorp was in her late forties, neutral tinted and painfully proof against slander. She was august and angular, and in repose had a deceptive and brooding quiet, suggestive of etheric forces hanging in suspense, like a battleship in harbor or the calm that is supposed to precede an earthquake.

She affected gray, and her smoke-gray hair, to which nature had given a kindly wave, was drawn back with uncompromising neatness and wound in a high knot like a hornets' nest. To fancy it marcelled would have been a desecration; to imagine it bobbed almost an obscenity. She wore no ornaments, unless a small wrist watch of gunmetal might be so denominated, and her long, thin fingers were ringless. Her large, inquiring eyes, clear and courageous, set wide apart, looked through the heavy lenses of tortoise shell rimmed spectacles.

She smoked cigarets and, when the spirit moved her, she swore, these softer vices serving to humanize what might otherwise have seemed a stern and inflexible exterior.

She lived, officially, in the village near by, in a small, uncompromisingly white cottage with pagoda blue window shutters and a garden as prim and prism-ish as she, whose most sensational ornament was a century plant. She maintained this, as she said, as "a place to sulk in," but her evenings and her nights were as often as not spent at Melton. Roselius, to whom she had given through all these years such passionate allegiance, was her single admiration. She lectured, scolded, browbeat, and managed him, but in her inmost heart gave him a hero worship that was sexless, selfless, and unremitting. She habitually camouflaged this with satire—thereby giving a superb impersonation of the ostrich in his apocryphal sand act—and could no more have expressed it verbally than she could have said "buttered beans" in Choctaw.

In her own little cubicle Miss Thorp tidied her desk swiftly, locked its drawers, and with a pat to her hair (which had never been smoother) opened a door into the great room which, inasmuch as it was a combination of library and laboratory, was known to the staff as the "lib-lab." She stood a moment, her eyes, roving over its expanse. Familiar as was its every line and feature, she never looked at it thus without a thrill. . . . .

In all its suggestion of beauty and color and mystery the place, except for its modern electric luster and its wall telephone, might have been the study of Joseph Balsamo the Alchemist.

As Miss Thorp stood seemingly glaring at all of this with aversion, but in actuality steeping her soul in its atmosphere, a side door opened and a young man came into the room. He wore a long white overgarment, atrociously stained rubber gloves and smoked glasses, and carried a beaker filled with a chemical mixture which gave forth a violent hissing. He nodded to her, disappeared in one of the workrooms, and presently returned empty handed.

"Mr. Bruce," she said, with an accent of strong disapproval repressed with violence; "are you still at it? You know perfectly well you haven't had your clothes off for forty-eight hours."

He took off his goggles and showed a pair of apologetic, boyish eyes.

"It's not quite that bad, you know," he said.

"It's not far from it. Why must you make yourself a worm for the governor to tread on?"

He turned out his hands in genuine perplexity. "But how can I quit till he does?"

"Well, you ought to," she answered, with exasperation. "Then maybe he would. He'll kill himself, working the way he does. Besides, he's got other things to do. I'll stop him!"

She stalked to the door through which he had come and raised her voice. "Governor!"

There was no reply.

The fascinating, swiftly moving love story of Rose Roselius, the daughter of a great scientist. And the queer fate of a cowardly dullard transplanted into a home of culture and refinement. Don't miss this new Tribune Sunday serial.

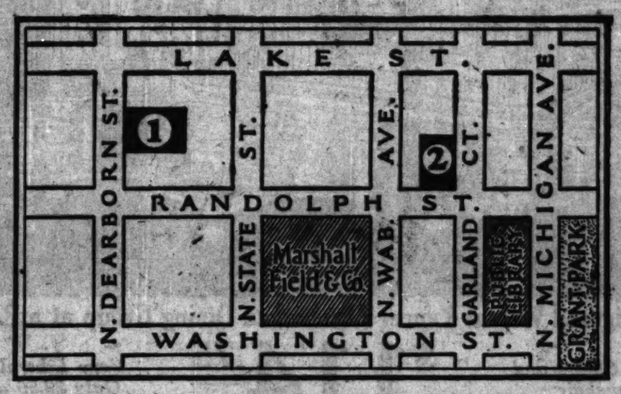
Convenience

Here you may be treated during your lunch hour, after work or in the evening

The accessible location and convenient hours of the Public Health Institute make it unnecessary for any victim of a "Social" Disease to forego reliable medical treatment because of lack of time.

Open from 10 A.M. to 8 P.M. every day except Sunday, the sufferer may secure treatment during his lunch hour, on his way home from work or in the evening.

Even during its busiest hours, the facilities of the Institute are not taxed. There always is an adequate number of physicians and private treatment rooms available.



[1] Men's Department, 159 North Dearborn Street
[2] Women's Department, 72 East Randolph Street
South Side Clinic, 129 East Thirty-first Street

The convenience of the Public Health Institute, together with its exceptional facilities for treatment at extremely low fees, are a constant reproach to the person who permits a "Social" Disease to impair him in body and mind.

No man or woman ever should be "too busy" to give a "Social" Disease the serious attention it deserves. For sooner or later every person who has contracted one of these dread infections will be forced to consult a physician. His condition will reach such a critical stage that delay will no longer be possible.

If every sufferer would have a doctor examine and advise him when the symptoms first appear, there would be fewer inmates of insane asylums . . . fewer persons who go through life blind or in the grip of rheumatism, parafysis or locomotor ataxia . . . fewer untimely deaths from heart disease . . . fewer defective children.

Even late cases, where the disease has had damaging effects on the system, will respond to proper treatment. Many such cases are cured. Hence every person who knows or suspects himself to be infected is urged to immediately consult a reputable physician or to come to the Public Health Institute.

Being organized not for profit, the Institute's fees are low enough to be within the reach of all. Even those who lack immediate funds will not be turned away.

Bearing in mind that a "Social" Disease may be inherited or otherwise innocently acquired, an occasional medical examination is advisable if only as a preventive measure. At the Public Health Institute you can be examined at small cost in surroundings of privacy and comfort.

Women and Children

A special department exclusively for women and children, with women assisting as nurses and attendants, is located at 72 East Randolph Street. Every facility is provided here for effective treatment, and the utmost privacy with the highest degree of comfort is assured.

In the Summer's Jazz Skirmishes

By Edward Moore.

If a person had taken the trouble to make a collection, he could have assembled quite a volume this summer on the subject of the lowly but bright eyed jazz. Many have taken a hand in it; in fact the subject still seems to be a source of anneyance to the high minded and good.

Considered as a campaign, the movement had its weaknesses. Attacks were scattering and uncoördinated. Concentrated, they might have made a fairly respectable battle; as it was, they classify chiefly as inconclusive skirmishes. But they were important because not only the musicians, but the church took a hand, and likewise they caught the attention of one who takes a lively interest in barbed epithets and stinging adjectives as they fly through the air.

The Rev. John Roach Straton, for instance, was quoted some weeks ago as announcing that the purveyors of jazz were musical bootleggers, and that, like venomous rattlesnakes, their heads should be bruised under the heels of the righteous. Making due allowance for a not unstartling mixture of figures of speech, there was some evidence of irritation in the remark. The Rev. Billy Sunday also had something to say, somewhat less polytonal of metaphor, but covering the same general theme. He, however, added a bit of constructive criticism to the effect that the greatest of all American composers was Stephen Foster. And that, in a manner of speaking, is that.

Pietro Mascagni prepared the way for another trip to the United States with a dictum holding that jazz has the same effect upon the soul that opium has upon the body. Of course, the irreverant might ask a few searching questions here about "Cavalleria Rusticana" and Mascagni's subsequent but unavailing efforts ever since to write a piece that is popular. That is hardly the point, though there is one critic in Chicago who is ready and willing to testify to the terrific effects of the Italian composer's "Ysabeau." Unlike opium and its derivatives, however, the narcotic influences of the work created neither unpleasant after effects nor any wish to repeat the experience.

At Least It's on the Move.

It is not impossible to imagine that one reason for all this indignation is the fact that jazz keeps moving. Perhaps jazz is in the direction of the flowery path of perdition, but at least it is going somewhere. Paul Whiteman and his band took a trip to Europe in the spring and came back in the summer, leaving, as he has been doing for several years past, the populace in a state of bliss and the serious critics much disturbed in mind.

Sir Henry Coward of England is one of these. He is the conductor of the Sheffield Musical union, and, it would seem, is in no end earnest. Whether he actually heard the Whiteman organization or underwent the much sadder experience of hearing jazz by an English band does not appear, but his general reasons he would like to suppress jazz. According to him, it has several characteristics, and they are all objectionable. Here are some of them: Its jingly tunes, jerky rhythm, blatant muted trumpets, hooting, out of tune saxophones, imitating pleng-plengs by banjos, boisterous bangings of kitchen utensils, ceaseless commotion, atavistic tendencies and grotesque howlings.

There is an unconfirmed suspicion that Dr. Coward, if pressed, would express the belief that cake is sugary of taste, potatoes grow in its composition, and that persistent indulgence therein would lead to digestive disturbances.

Rather curiously, certainly unexpectedly, the German critics did not fall afoul of Mr. Whiteman's organization; at least they all did pot. I saw one review which was as sane a discussion of the subject as has yet come to attention, treating the program as just what it pretended to be, light music with many entertaining and some fascinating features. The point, arguable point, was the contention that jazz was too exotic ever to become part of the German musical mind. That is nothing but prediction, which is ever untrustful. Besides, German composers like Hindemith have made strenuous efforts to write in the jazz manner. Results are distressing, but the desire was evident.

Aiming for the European Manner.

There is no difficulty in seeing why Mr. Whiteman's jazz tour should be approved in Germany, or at least not disapproved. For many years, in fact, ever since American composers started disfiguring white paper with ink spots, the ideal has been to write music in the European manner, usually German, but of late years French. The Germans have routinely retorted that they could do that sort of thing better themselves, and, besides, such industrious imitation of manner was frequently destructive of originality of idea. They were quite right. When I think of the rods, furlongs, and miles of imitation European music that my strange method of making a living has forced me to hear, I begin to believe that putting notes upon paper is a more inexplicable activity than ever. As a consequence there has been no American master of composition at all.

Then along came jazz, with no pretense at manner—its critics say that it has no manners—but in spite of themselves people began to find it had more intellectual honesty than symphonies and tone poems and operas that preceded it.

Of course, this is not intended to be a wholesale commendation of jazz. Wholesale commendation will not settle anything, any more than wholesale condemnation. There are tons of bad jazz in the world. But there are quarter tones of bad symphonies as well.

Hearing Whiteman One Better.

A few weeks ago I happened to meet with a jazz band that made a more frank and unashamed assault on so-called classics than even Whiteman and his men in the habit of doing. It was a pretty good band. The players were distinctly not out of tune, the trumpets were restrained and unobstructive, the elephantine sousaphone was mellow of tone and agile—and correct—of performance.

What they played, and I heard, translated into terms of jazz, a good sized section of "Faust," some excerpts from "Tannhäuser," which included some bits of Venusberg and Tannhäuser's solo in the same scene, and the Pilgrims' Chorus, finally several tunes snatched from the venerable "Traviata" and galvanized into new life.

It was pure burlesque, of course, and it all depends upon the point of view how it sounded. You could call it light and tuneful hearted and at times witty comment. I found much more than many a performance of the same thing I have heard that were undertaken with the laudable idea of extracting six dollars a seat for the hearing. In fact, it would take a carefully selected and well rehearsed band of artists to make them sound anywhere near as well. The thing was in a building devoted to food and the dance, a few miles northwest of Chicago on the Milwaukee road, if you insist upon knowing.

Ben H. Kahn, who is influential in art as well as business, and about New York, made a spirited defense of the classics the last time he was in Chicago. He said, at length and in detail, that the habit had produced educational by-products, that the person who danced to a bit of symphony or opera would some day be seized with a desire to hear it in its original or unjazzed form, and the concert hall and opera house would thereby be filled.

By Mae Tinee.

GOOD Morning.

And have you seen "Don Juan" yet? And have you heard the Vitaphone? And if so, what did you think of the two of them, and would you mind just putting your ideas down on a bit of paper and sending 'em in to a lady?

The Vitaphone is a wonder! Not so much in what it does as the manner in which it does it.

JOHN BARRYMORE makes a glorious Don Juan.

As a layman, acknowledgedly ignorant on the subject and unashamed of the fact, I would say that a victrola record and a set of radio tubes might quite well take care of the actual sound. What they DON'T take care of is the synchronization of sound and motion. And the thing that DOES take care of this is Warner Brothers' little secret that they are keeping tight under their little belts and buttoned down snugly beneath their little doublets.

Every word formed by the lips of Will Hays falls as formed from—well, the lips of the Vitaphone. A second's pause on his part—and the Vitaphone is silent, to proceed, hand in glove with him, when he proceeds. And so it is throughout the program—perfect synchronization—quite as perfect in the case of the entire New York Philharmonic Orchestra as it is in individual representation.

The latter was to me, with the exception of Marion Talley's record, which was scratched or something—much more effective than the former. It will be a wonderful thing to see and hear the President deliver his messages—things like that, won't it?

How the Hamlets Will Love It!

And WHAT a godsend to the hamlets, the Vitaphone! (When the Vitaphone becomes inexpensive enough for the hamlets to afford, which it isn't now.) We in the cities have our orchestras, our opera, and the great condescend to talk from our platforms because we are so many. We marvel at the Vitaphone—and would never really miss it. But take your tiny, secluded township, folded away from the world—and bring the Vitaphone to the inhabitants thereof. Their Open Sesame to a new heaven and a new earth!

And now about "Don Juan."

Speaking of John Barrymore, how do you like Douglas Fairbanks? Method in the query, my owns, as you will agree when you see Mr. Barrymore in the character sung of by Byron, Moliere, and a score of others, scaling walls, leaping from high places, performing picturesque and incredible feats afoot and on horseback. It can't be said that he beats the redoubtable Mr. Fairbanks at his own game, but he is certainly a rival of parts, and one "glorious Apollo" to gaze upon!

There was, in the 14th century, an original for the many stories that have been written about Don Juan. A libertine, this man. The picture shows him, taught in infancy by his father, distrustful of women. The elder Don Juan has been deceived by the Dona Inez, his adored wife.

The father—also impersonated by Mr. Barrymore—dies at the hand of a dark and jealous mistress. The son, who has witnessed the murder and taken last advice from lips bitter and sneering, grows up a famous lover and leaver. Rapier-slim, falcon-eyed, hot as fire, and cold as ice, he regards the women who pursue him as legitimate prey and betrays them with never a qualm. For no, never, in his life has Don Juan discovered a woman who has proved his father's opinions false.

Like overripe fruit, the ladies of his acquaintance have dropped into his careless arms and now, look, who craves his favor—Lucretia Borgia, herself! Lucretia Borgia, evil, beautiful sister of Cesare Borgia, the cruel, the profligate.

The fame of Don Juan has become known to Lucretia, and the Count Donati, who has given her much information regarding the handsome gallant, has inferred that, perhaps, not even Lucretia herself could win—and hold this man.

Which fires her with desire, fanned by anger. Should a Borgia be ignored or jilted by a man, all Rome would seethe with laughter hidden under a monstrous seriousness, for who would dare a smile at the expense of these feared folk?

Beauty Surrounded by Borgias!

It is on the evening of Don Juan's first call upon Lucretia that he sees the girl who is to change his world for him. She is Adriana Della Varnese of the Orsini, unfriendly to the Borgia. Adriana is there because Count Donati has decided she is the girl he wants to marry, and Lucretia, having remarked, "Your little whims must be gratified, Donati," has ordered the girl and her father to appear at the palace.

From that time on, witness Don Juan between the devil and the deep sea.

So well does Lucretia work out her evil designs that she almost wins Don Juan. At any rate, she causes him to believe that Adriana, like all the rest, is faithless.

Prison, the torture chamber, poison, riots, chicanery of all sorts gum up the plans for happiness of Don Juan and Adriana, and right along here the picture drags a bit. Enough is enough, you know—and after that comes too much.

The ending is most spectacular—Don Juan fleeing with his swooning sweetheart on horseback, pursued by hordes of the followers of Lucretia, and, single-handed, filling purgatory with brand new faces. A wild and bluggy battle! A voice croaked somewhere on my right: "Say, was that the guy that fought the windmills?"

John Is Incomparable, as Usual.

Mr. Barrymore is magnificent throughout, gorgeous in all his moods and tenses and with a palpable tongue in cheek for obvious absurdities demanded by the script. A fascinating character, whether ardent, evil, impudent, or rolling the whites of his eyes in utter satiety.

Mary Astor is perfectly adorable as the one good woman in the piece. Estelle Taylor, who would have been handsomer in her own hair than the blonde wig she wears, makes a luscious and sinister Lucretia. Warner Oland, who plays devils as devils should be played, presents Cesare Borgia as a sullen sensualist, and Montague Love makes a great Donati.

Yes—and Lucretia's maid is Helen Costello, who lends produced. The atmosphere of the decadence of those times is heavy upon it.

It is awfully beautiful and awfully bad.

(And I bet Jawn uses a double sometimes.)

See you tomorrow!

Notes on Journalism

By H. L. Mencken.

THE general success of the tabloid papers, the oldest of which is only seven years old, still seems to puzzle the majority of newspaper men. When they admit it at all, they commonly credit it to the looseness and imbecility of the newcomers, which are described as given over wholly to crime and scandal. But this is plainly a prejudiced and highly inaccurate view of them. In the whole country there are not more than three that actually specialize in such matters. The rest, at worst, are no worse than the usual run of yellows. And at best they are very good newspapers, intelligently edited and carefully printed.

What makes them popular, I believe, is far less their contents than their form. They are made for reading in crowds, and it is in crowds that they are mainly read. A great advertising boom now rages in the United States, and all the old line papers ruin to an immense bulkiness. Some of the more prosperous of them, on the days that advertisers favor, come out in two or three sections and weigh a pound or more. To go through such a paper in a jammed street car is quite impossible. The man who attempts it gets only a beating for his pains. But he can manage a tabloid without making his neighbors yell, and so he reads it.

The lightness of the little papers gives them another advantage: they can be distributed much more quickly than the larger papers. A boy on a motorcycle can carry a hundred copies of even the bulkiest of them to a remote junction in ten or twenty minutes, but the old style papers have to go by truck, which is slower. Not so many can be printed in an hour. Not so many can be carried by a single newsboy. These advantages count up. The majority of readers, when there is news afloat that interests them seriously, look for it in the larger papers, which can give it in full. But these same readers also buy the tabloids for the first bulletins. Thus there is much duplication of circulation. The tabloids take a certain amount of circulation away from the larger papers, but not enough to be disastrous.

They would be even more successful than they are, I believe, if their editors could resist the temptation to improve them. That temptation, of course, is easy to understand. Every newspaper man worthy of the name dreams of making his paper better than it is, and those who run the tabloids are stimulated further by the general professional opinion that their papers are somehow low. So every tabloid, as soon as it gets into safe waters, begins to grow intellectual. The bald, gaudy devices that launched it are abandoned and it takes on decorum. Already there are tabloids with opinions on the French debt, the Philippine question, and the music of Stravinsky. I know at least two that are actually liberal.

This, I fear, is a false form of progress. The tabloid, so lifted by its boot straps, becomes simply a little newspaper, and it must inevitably be inferior to the big ones. If I were a tabloid magnate I'd head in the other direction. That is to say, I'd try to produce a paper interesting and instructive to the uncounted thousands who now read no newspaper at all. That such persons exist may seem incredible, but it is nevertheless a fact. They swarm in every large American city. They include the vast class of illiterates, which is everywhere larger than the statistics show. And they include the even larger class of near-illiterates—that is, those who are able to spell out enough words to get them through the ordinary business of life, but find reading so laborious and painful that they avoid it as much as possible.

Many of them, as the psychologist, Dr. Eleanor Wembridge, has demonstrated, are congenitally incapable of mastering it. They understand only such words as are comprehensible to a child of, say, ten. The rest is simply a fog to them. An ordinary newspaper article, even in a tabloid, is thus mainly unintelligible to them. Half the words in it are beyond them. Even when, by dint of hard sweating, they spell their way through it, the impression it leaves upon them is very vague and unsatisfactory. They may grasp its main propositions, but all its details are lost upon them.

It is my belief that a newspaper aimed at such readers would make a great success in any large American city, and especially in Chicago or New York. It should be printed throughout, as First Readers are printed, in words of one syllable. It should avoid every idea that is beyond the understanding of a boy of ten. It should print no news about anything that morons are not interested in. And its illustrations, instead of being mere decorations, should really illustrate, as the pictures in a First Reader illustrate.

I don't think it would be difficult to get together a staff for such a paper. If journalism itself failed to produce the necessary talent, recourse might be had to pedagogy. There are schoolma'ams, male and female, all over this great land who are professionally adept at explaining things to children. They have perfected technical devices that do the trick quickly and effectively, and those devices could be adapted to journalism without the slightest difficulty. Journalists themselves, after a little training, would greatly improve them, for journalists as a class are much more intelligent than pedagogues. In the end there would be a new English (or American) for the submerged, and reading would spread to a vast class that now gets all its news by listening.

To that class, as to children, much of what now passes for news, and is dished up in endless columns every morning, is wholly uninteresting. Its members, despite the alarms of bank directors and other such naïve fellows, are not Socialists; they are, indeed, quite incapable of comprehending politics save as a combat between two men, A and B. In the strict sense, all ideas are beyond them. They can grasp only events. Are they interested only in crime? I don't think so. What they are interested in is drama. The thing presented to them must take the form of a combat, and it must be a very simple combat, with one side clearly right and the other clearly wrong. They can no more imagine neutrality than they can imagine the fourth dimension. And when they see drama they want to see it moving.

Soon or late some sagacious journalist will set up a paper made to the tastes and limitations of this immense horde of God's children, and his rewards will descend upon him like a deluge. The earliest movie magnates tapped that colossal till with great skill, and so lifted the movies to the third (or is it second?) place among the country's industries. They did not start out with Balzac, Joseph Conrad, and Dostoievski; they started out with "The Perils of Pauline" and filmizations of serials out of the Fireside Companion.

But once they got rich, they began to develop, in the immemorial human way, a yearning to be respectable, and even intellectual. That is, they began to turn their backs upon their original clients, who had poured all their wealth into their coffers, and to reach out for customers of a higher sophistication. Thus, the 10 cent movie house passed into the shadows and in its place appeared the blazing hell showing pictures at $2—pictures full of artistic and even literary pretension. Fortunately for the movie magnates, this pretension was mainly buncombe. They lacked the skill and culture necessary to make the movies genuinely intelligent, and so they escaped bankruptcy. But even so, they converted a business whose profits were as certain as those of a bootlegger into a business full of hazards and calamities.

They will come to a safe harbor again when they return to the Fireside Companion level. No one in this world, so far as I know—and I have searched the records for years, and employed agents to help me—has ever lost money by underestimating the intelligence of the great masses of the plain people. Nor has any one ever lost public office thereby. The mistake that is made always runs the other way. Because the plain people are able to speak and understand, and even, in many cases, to read and write, it is assumed that they have ideas in their heads, and an appetite for more. This assumption is a folly. They dislike ideas, for ideas make them uncomfortable. The tabloids, seeking to force such things upon them, will inevitably alarm them and lose their trade. The journalism of the future—that is, the mob journalism—will move in the direction that I have indicated.

COCKTAILS SERVED, BUT ONLY PINK ONES

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Long Island has gone terribly wet again in a piece called "No Trespassing." I never have seen so many pink cocktails served in three acts before. One story, two story, three story shakers are dragged in on every conceivable occasion to make a Southampton week-end possible. I have a feeling that if they had served cocktails in the audience in place of in the play "No Trespassing" would have been more popular.

As it stands it has a good idea to bless itself with, but little more. Nothing more, in fact, except a collection of flashy new sport gowns, morning gowns, and bedroom novelties for the island rich to wear while they are talking in bubbly epigrams about life as it isn't.

The idea, however, is rather promising. The host of a house party, meeting an old Harvard chum in the city, brings him home as a week-end guest despite the fact that he is an earnest missionary intent upon saving savages in the South Seas.

Immediately the most vampish of the unattached ladies in the group wagers that she will bring about the handsome dominie's fall by Monday morning. She will, in effect, strip him of his cloth and prove him human. He has dared trespass upon the Babylonians at play, so let him be watchful.

The complications following are fairly familiar. Her summer house technic failing, the vamping lady invades the parson's sleeping quarters attired in ravishing negligee. Still he spurns her, and glows like a martyr and a gentleman when she denounces him as a cheat because she has found, back of the portieres, another tipsy lady he has befriended.

In the end the would-be wicked one begs pardon of the parson and prays the privilege of reforming that she may go to the South Seas—yes, even to the ends of the earth—as his wife. And he, being a little dumb and in love, takes her at her cost price. Which is no bargain.

Kay Johnson, so satisfying a heroine in "Beggar on Horseback," finds the vamping rôle none too easy. Juliette Day, who learned all about these goshawful Long Islanders in the Hattons' "Upstairs and Down" years back, plays a comedy part opposite the again bibulous Edwin Nicander, and Russell Hicks, from the sticks and the pictures, a stock trained and competent factor, is the minister. The scarcity of personable leading men being what it is, I expect to see Mr. Hicks playing around here for some time to come.

From One Comedy to Another.

Little Nydia Westman, whom you may have seen some time during the last two years, playing the heroine in the artificial but amusing comedy called "Pigs," has taken over another sunshine rôle—a John Golden sunshine rôle—in another artificial but amusing comedy called "Two Girls Wanted."

Nydia is the wide eyed youngster who, three or four years ago, marched into Mr. Golden's offices with the other three members of her family, Pa, Ma, and brother Theodore, and proposed that they play a piece for him then and there that he might judge of the talent they had for sale. Golden, being keen for novelties, bade them go ahead. They did. And as a result Nydia was placed under contract and jobs found, I believe, for the others.

Her success in "Pigs" followed, and if "Two Girls Wanted" does as well as expected that can also be credited to her. Herein she plays Marianna Miller down from an upstate town and trying to be successful without being ruined in New York. You know from the drama how difficult that is for stenographers, especially pert little stenographers with big eyes, snub noses, and the haunted look of an appealing orphan in their starry eyes.

Marianna, however, is chaperoned by her older sister, Sarah. And when Sarah learns that Marianna's broker friend really is an engaged man she packs up and they go into Westchester county and hire out as cook and second maid at the home of the Delafields.

Of course it just happens to be the home of the fiancée of Marianna's broker and Marianna is terribly flustered when her broker calls. But you may be sure that by the end of the evening the fiancée has been put to rout and the broker is headed for a fortune with Marianna tucked under his arm. He never had loved the other girl and she was a title hunting snip, anyway.

A naïve little play, written by Gladys Unger for those simple humans who are still content with the theater of fairy stories and deliberately drawn types. The wise crackers of Longacre square are holding thumbs down on it, but I am not so sure it will not fool them, just as "Pigs" did.

In addition to Miss Westman, who has more poise and a few more artfully developed ingenue tricks than she had a year ago, William Hanley plays the broker, Frank Monroe a grouchy Wall streeter, and Mary Phillips a devoted spinster who has given him eleven years of her life and become so necessary to him that he has to marry her to keep her in the office.

After Forty-two Weeks in Chicago.

Broadway will have to revise its conviction that a play is never really produced in America until it reaches New York. "Castles in the Air" came in from Chicago last week proudly boasting the company that has been playing it for forty-two weeks in the west and took the palm away from practically all the locally staged operettas of the last several seasons.

Here is a better line of principals than most New York singing plays can boast and livelier, handsomer, and better drilled chorus. Here, too, is the common stuff of the theater, staged with sufficient art to give it a touch of inspiration; a combination Zenda romance, and modern musical comedy that achieves definite dramatic value. Here, too, is clean entertainment and handsomely clothed ladies. It was quite a surprise to the curbstone gossips. I will be surprised if it does not run all season.

Another musical comedy, called "Queen High," came over from Philadelphia, after having cooed harmoniously to the sesquicentennial visitors for a matter of four months. I found this one more routine and less satisfying for that reason. It still carries all the familiar touches of the Broadway production. But the fact that it could run four months in Philadelphia without a boosted Broadway indorsement is significant. Following the "No! No, Nanette" experience of two years ago, it leads to the suggestion that the hinterland is stepping out.

"Queen High" is the old farce, "A Pair of Sixes," fixed up with tunes, Frank McIntyre, a youthful, smiling, and graceful young woman named Mary Lawlor, Luella Gear, and Charles Ruggles.

Stage Struck Financier.

Not the least interesting feature of the "Castles in the Air" success is suggested by the program information that its staging was supervised by a gentleman named James W. Elliott. James W., unless I am greatly mistaken, has all of two years' experience in the theater, and that mostly from a promoter's seat in the wings.

He used to be an adventuring financier who makes a million or two this way or that. He went in strong for applied psychology in business and built up colleges devoted to man building and business building. The subject appealed so strongly to him that he wrote a play about it called "The Man in the Making," which nearly finished him. A little while after it failed he was, as I recall it, broke again.

Then back into the arena he bounds a few months later with more money and an interest in "The Gorilla." This gay burlesque made him the money he has spent so lavishly in staging "Castles in the Air." A courageous person, this Elliott lad. And apparently gifted with at least a bit of the uncanny sense that helps a few managers repeatedly to

This Thing and That Thing of the Theater

By Frederick Donaghey.

WHAT has for many years been the nuttiest of the businesses (if it be one) is not, seemingly, turning to sanity in the new season. Here is Mr. Gilbert Miller, who uses brains and some taste in producing the plays he imports, asking five dollars a seat for a "straight" play with a small cast, "The Captive," and the same sum for another piece of like definition and a smaller cast, "A Play in the Palace." The plan is not five dollars for the New-York premiere only, but for all performances. Mr. Miller some time ago stated his argument in the matter—that the public will pay five dollars as readily as it will pay two-fifty for a success, and that, in the case of failure, the financial loss is the same regardless of the price of a seat.

FREDERIC BURT He growls and he scowls as the "heavy" in the play of "Kongo."

Of course, the thing to do with a success today is to turn it into money as quickly as possible. Outside New-York and Chicago, there is small territory left that is worth visiting save in the case of a success that is extraordinary. The "road" is no more. Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Detroit, Cleveland, and Cincinnati are the cardinal stops between New-York and this city for plays moving hither; and the populace in most of them is dubious when the plays move thither; that is, from Chicago to New-York after success here. Of the six cities listed, Detroit alone has a recent record for buying tickets for plays unknown in either Chicago or New-York.

A seasoned box-office man, telling me of popular indifference regarding the play current in his theater, said this the other night:

"Even were it a good play instead of a bad one, the public would not come to it. The 'small play' today must have a burning special appeal to draw in Chicago. That special appeal may be dirt, sappy sentiment, a theme and treatment which you fellows call bunk, or the presence of a popular player in a showy part. When a producer hits it, it is an accident, like 'Abie' or 'Lightnin'' or 'The Bat.' . . . Men and women who could with financial ease buy theaters as most persons buy peanuts tell me, when I ask why I no longer see them at the ticket-window, that theater-going is become such a nuisance that they indulge it now only when something is marked 'must.' They have too much trouble in buying tickets. The tickets cost too much when bought. The traffic in the Loop is too much to tackle at 8:30 in the evening after having fought it to reach home at 5:30 for dinner. The chauffeur, if one be used, either must drive home and back by 11:00 or keep moving aimlessly down-town until the show is over. If a man drive his own car to the theater, he must find a parking-place that is often half-a-mile distant, and then hurry to it at 11:00 in the reasonable expectation that the car has been stolen."

What the box-office man said to me makes good reading, at least.

Miscellany.

Travellers returning from Paris assure me that the reigning divinity of theater-goers there is Miss Josephine Baker, of this country; and I doubt that many, if any, who read this will identify Miss Baker as one who has entertained them. When I inquired as to who she might be, I was reminded that she was a slim young Negress who stepped from the chorus-girls' line-up in "Shuffle Along" and stirred the spectators to a furore by some eccentric steps suggesting an epileptic attack, the while she urged her eyes into the appearance of strabismus. In a later show by Negro performers, she made her cock-eyed mugs and her ugly dance without eliciting a smile or a "hand." . . . And, being told about her in Paris, I'm less than ever likely to be persuaded that we ought to do something to help France.

Ed Wynn, an amusing chap whose antics evoke self-respecting laughter, states that he is going into retirement for a year, at least, that he may be with his wife and his mother through illness. . . . The former is one of the two daughters of Frank Keenan.

Miss Peggy Wood hopes and expects to perform in "A Milk-White Steed," a comedy by her husband, John V. A. Weaver, basic author of "Love 'Em and Leave 'Em!" the thin and inexpert piece carried away last night from the La Salle.

"The Great God Brown" was taken off last night in New-York after a run of all but eight months—a run not quite as long as that, in 1925, of "Desire Under the Elms." However, the run of neither piece there is so much a tribute to popular hunger for Eugene O'Neill's plays as an indication that actors for his stuff don't cost much, and that there is an advantage in having one's plays backed by the owner of a cut-rate ticket-shop. . . . Whether "The Great God Brown" will be brought to Chicago is not stated.

This matter of cut-rate tickets in New-York is so thriving as an industry that formal opposition has been set up to Mr. Joe Leblang, who is said to be a plural millionaire as a result of his gambling in seats not in demand at face-value.

Will Rogers, who seems to have been successful in London as an entertainer in revue and in the night-clubs, is coming back for another tour as a "single." His venture last season as a one-man show is said to have been immensely profitable.

&c., &c., &c.:

Miss Charlotte Greenwood, the soubrette with the legs and arms, is announced for Miss Rose Stahl's old rôle in a song-and-dance version of "The Chorus Lady." . . . That's going back for 'em: Miss Stahl gave her last performances in the piece in 1910.

A piece named "I. O. U. One Woman," which had Miss Gertrude Vanderbilt as its principal player, has been thrown away after a try-out in Philadelphia, where the city's play-censor took a hand in rewriting it. . . . Another failure is "The Push-Over," dealing in a comic manner about pugilists.

"The Constant Nymph" has at length been prepared for the stage: the dramatization is by Miss Margaret Kennedy, the author, and Basil Dean. Noël Coward has the rôle of Lewis, the composer, in London, where Tessa is acted by Miss Edna Best. Expectation is that she will have the rôle in this country, too. Most of the younger actresses of prominence on the American stage were tentatively named for the rôle when the project of dramatization was first undertaken.

Richard Bennett is going to act in something named "The Creole." . . . "Service for Two," by the ex-Chicagoan who wrote "Children of the Moon," is among the unqualified failures of the season in New-York.

The Ziegfeld Revue, still current in New-York, is to be known as the Ziegfeld Follies when it is sent on tour. . . . That valuable label was dropped when the show was staged because of legal complications that have now been cleared away.

An English cast is being brought to this country to act "Wet Paint," whose author, Lord Lathom, prefers to be known as Edward Wilbraham when he writes for the theater.

Odds-and-Ends of Stage-News

MR. MINTURN inaugurated his tenancy of the Central Theater last night with the first showing in Chicago of Edward E. Rose's play named "The Mender." . . . The impresario of Le Maire's Affaires—an emprise still high in the affections of Chicago's ticket-buyers—says he would like to obtain a theater wherein to stage here a piece named "The Fatal Blonde." . . . "Song of the Flame" is to be held, according to present plans, until October 23, when it will make way in the Apollo for the Greenwich Village Follies.

That the Guitrys are coming to the United States to act "Mozart" in French seems reasonably certain: their first appearance in New-York is scheduled for December 25. . . . Also, it appears that Miss Irene Bordoni is going through with her plan to act the play in an English version.

As the American public has long felt the need of something in drama from the Serbian, John Van Druten, the English author of "Young Woodley," has undertaken to help us out. He has made an adaptation of a Serbian piece called "God Incarnate"; but it will be known here as "The Third Day." . . . Mr. Van Druten is now in this country. He had no opportunity to see "Young Woodley" at home, for the reason that the British play-censor refused to license it.

Harry Lauder is coming back this season. . . . "Stylish Stouts" looks so good in experimental performances that it is soon to be submitted in New-York.

When the Song-and-dance version of "Nothing But the Truth" is staged, the rôle first acted here by Grant Mitchell will have Lynne Overman in it. Others will be Herbert Corthell and Robinson Newbold. . . . Mr. Mitchell was succeeded in the rôle in Chicago by Will Deming, who died last week in London; and he in turn made way for William Collier. . . . James Montgomery based the farce on a novel by Frederick Isham; and few at the time of the Chicago production, ten years ago, appeared to know that W. S. Gilbert had written a comedy named "The Palace of Truth."

An English piece called "This Woman-Business" is to be shown in this country. . . . The Misses Mary and Florence Nash are still doing their stuff in "A Lady's Virtue."

Miss Zoë Akins, although heretofore credited with the authorship of "First Love," has merely adapted it from a French work by Louis Verneuil, who appears to be the most fecund of contemporary French playwrights,—although the samples of his work so far shown in the United States have been wash-outs at the ticket-window. . . . The play is the one wherein Miss Fay Bainter is experimenting again.

Miss Wynn Richmond, in Chicago recently in "The City Chap," took Miss Marilyn Miller's place in "Sunny" for some performances while the latter was laid up. . . . And Miss Mary Hay, inexplicably regarded as one of the assets of "Sunny," is out of it, and is replaced by Miss Peggy Hope. whoever Miss Peggy Hope may be.

Mrs. Fiske, as has been stated here, is to act in "Ghosts," with a route that will take her into most of the towns where she may bid for the patronage of students in the universities and colleges.

Miss Audrey Dixon, identified by the management as "of café fame," tonight replaces Miss Nellie Breen as the soubrette of "Castles in the Air." . . . Miss Breen recently replaced Miss Martha Lorber, who a brief fortnight earlier had replaced Miss Joyce White, who was all right in the rôle.

Recent deaths include those of Edouard Durand, Harry Harwood, Lillian Lawrence, David Christy, and Ada Dow Currier, each a somebody of the stage. Mr. Durand was here last in "Louie the Fourteenth." Mr. Harwood, a good and a popular actor, was with John Drew through many seasons, and was in the long run of "The Man of the Hour" in the Illinois. Miss Lawrence made a graceful transition from "leads" to grande-dames, and was active until the end. Mrs. Currier trained Miss Julia Marlowe for the stage, and was given credit for the technical skill of that actress. Others who have died this Summer are Gerald Beaumont, whose tale of "The Blue Ribbon" was the basis of "The Dove"; Alice Bradley, whose play named "The Governor's Lady" was staged by Mr. Belasco, who tried therein to make a star of Miss Emma Dunn; and the dancer known to theater-goers as Roshanara.

Mr. Gest hints that Max Reinhardt wishes to come here and put on Gozzi's "Turandot" in his own vast and spacious style; and the especial "group" in New-York that serves the drama in the made-over stable called the Provincetown Playhouse thinks it is great fun to do the famous work on the stage-scale of a blotting-pad.

The song-and-dance version of George Barr McCutcheon's "Brewster's Millions" is said to be a success,—although in Philadelphia. . . . Miss Martha Hedman, having found out that she erred in giving up acting for playwriting, is resuming acting out in California, where she is to have Miss Alice Brady's rôle in "Bride of the Lamb."

Movie Colony Applauds for "Three Bad Men."

Hollywood, Cal.

HEARTY applause greeted the three bad men, J. Farrel MacDonald, Tom Santschi, and Frank Campeau, as they were presented in person at the western première of John Ford's "Three Bad Men," at the Figueroa. The other principal of the cast, Olive Borden, was announced as unable to attend the opening, as she is in San Francisco recovering from the effects of an operation for appendicitis. Earle Foxe, master of ceremonies, introduced after the cast; Mrs. Alice Whittaker, widow of the author of the book; "Three Bad Men," as "the original heroine of the story you have seen on the screen." In answer to the applause she received, she spoke of the writing of the story which took place when her husband was in the heart of Central America with the temperature at 114.

"Chicago Lends Us Something Good"

[From The New Yorker.]

IF there is one thing that makes a bum of music reviewers (there have been several complaints that music critics, as a tribe, are too pedagogic in their diction), it is a guest conductor. The transient leader gets about three strokes a hole from the ladies and gentlemen who cover his performances, and while he is a guest he generally turns in a good card. As soon as his guest privileges are over and he becomes a regular member of the baton club he gets penalized for even the most accidental misplays. And if this curious code is rough on the conductor, it also, as noted, surrounds his critics with a quaint aroma.

However, we have entertained recently one guest conductor who, so far as this subdivision is concerned, can park his bag in our clubhouse at any time. The visitor was Frederick A. Stock, who has been leading the Chicago Symphony orchestra for a little more than two decades. He had the misfortune to start his Stadium week in the Great Hall, an auditorium which can do eccentric things to brasses and tympani, but he wasn't half through the first movement of the Franck symphony before he had made it plain that he was no flash to be panned later.

Dr. Stock brings to the podium something that few conductors have to offer, and that is repose. There is no agitated leaping from fortissimo to double fortissimo, no violent walloping of tempi, no sudden steaming up of "hot" effects. He can make Strauss' "Don Juan" a sizzling adventure in tone, but he also preserves breadth of phrase. An alumnus from Theodore Thomas' string section, Dr. Stock knows how to "let the orchestra play," as the members of the union have it. He is no virtuoso, no "interpreter," no "personality." He is, we suspect, a great conductor. R. A. S.

Beethoven Festival.

The Gordon string quartet, under the auspices of the Chamber Music society, will present a Beethoven festival of six concerts in the Simpson theater of the Field museum beginning Oct. 17.

Plays Listed For Chicago

Tomorrow Night:

"Sweetheart-Time" in the Garrick.—A song-and-dance make-over of the farce named "Never Again!" wherein William Collier acted here in 1913. Stanley Ridges and Harry Kelly will be in the cast.

Next Sunday:

"My Country" in the La Salle.—A piece about the United States in its aspect as a melting-pot by William J. Perlman. It has been shown in New-York.

Monday, October 4:

George Jessel in "The Jazz-Singer" in the Harris.—A new star in a piece that went through a long run last season in New-York. The play is by Samson Raphaelson, and is a dramatization of his story named "The Day of Atonement."

"Alias the Deacon" in the Studebaker.—A play about a likable card-sharp by John B. Hymer and LeRoy Clemens with Berton Churchill. The piece was taken through a run of months in New-York.

Miss Fay Bainter in "First Love" in the Selwyn.—The actress as popular in "East Is West" in something new and, it is said, comical. Her associates have not been announced to THE TRIBUNE.

Sunday, October 10:

"Tip-Toes," with Miss Queenie Smith, in the Illinois.—A song-and-dance play with music by George Gershwin that was among the New-York clicks of last season. Miss Smith is remembered here for her participation in 1925 in a piece named "Be Yourself!"

Sunday, October 17:

Earl Carroll's Vanities in the Olympic.—Last Winter's issue, the fourth, of the show bearing this title. Frank Tinney and Joe Cook are to be in it.

Sunday, October 24:

The Greenwich Village Follies in the Apollo.—Last season's New-York issue of this annual for an engagement into holiday-time, it is planned.

* *

New in Manhattan.

These are the new things of the week in the New-York theaters:

"Yellow," by Miss Maraget Vernon, with Hale Hamilton in the principal rôle. . . . The author, like her pronouns, seems to be new. Her play is the first by a writer other than himself to be staged by George M. Cohen since he went into retirement, in 1924, on the second strike of the unionized actors. Mr. Hamilton was the original actor of the title-rôle in Mr. Cohen's play about Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford.

"Scotch Mist," by Sir Patrick Hastings, with Philip Merivale, Miss Rosalinde Fuller, and Fred Tilden. . . . This piece was described as bold and dirty when acted in London. The author has fame as a court-room lawyer in criminal cases. Miss Fuller was one of the three Fuller girls who used to give delightful recitals of old English songs; the e in her given name has been picked up, seemingly, since she acted as Ophelia to John Barrymore's Hamlet.

"Sandalwood," a dramatization by Owen Davis of Fulton Oursler's like named novel, with Miss Pauline Lord, William Harrigan, and Miss Marion Ballou. . . . Everybody save Mr. Davis has lost count of the number of plays he has written.

"Fanny," by Mr. Belasco and Willard Mack, with Miss Fannie Brice. . . . This is a piece prepared with Miss Brice in mind, and is said by persons who saw it in its crude try-out down in Jersey to have a rôle so "fat" for her that she cannot fail, whatever may be the verdict on the play, itself.

"The Ramblers," by Guy Bolton and others, with Clark and McCullough, Miss Marie Saxon, and Miss Georgia O'Ramey. . . . Clark and McCullough, not long out of the burlesque-shows, have been made into pro-forma stars on the strength of their clowning in two issues of the Music-Box Revue. Reports from places where they have recently performed say they have a good show.

"Honeymoon Lane," by Eddie Dowling and James Hanley, with Mr. Dowling, Gordon Dooley, and Miss Florence O'Denishawn. . . . Mr. Dowling wrote "Sally, Irene, and Mary," and performed in it with much success in New-York, Philadelphia, and Boston, and with none at all in Chicago.

STRANGERS IN THE FRIVOL-SHOWS

STANLEY RIDGES MISS GRACE HAYES

MISS HAYES may have a part in Chicago running back farther than last Sunday, but she seemed then to be a new-comer as she did the things to which she had been assigned in the Passing Show. She is something like Miss Edna Leedom and something like Miss Winnie Lightner, without being as cold as the former or as coarse as the latter. . . . Mr. Ridges' name leads all the other names in the roster of "Sweetheart-Time," new this week; but he, too, doesn't appear to be a person whose past comes readily to the mind of those who go much to the theater.

The Voice of the Movie Fan

If you want to see your letters in print, please write on one side of the paper only. If you desire personal answer, inclose stamped and self-addressed envelope.

Placing Them Too High.

Dear Miss Tinée: Here come I with my tale of woe. I was just introduced to "Stella Dallas." [I firmly believe Freeport foots all the booking lists of moving picture companies. We read about the big pictures in your paper, then console ourselves that we may see them in a year or two.] Flashing bits of it disturbed my sleep, and hours later I am wracked by such various emotions till I must actively comment on the spectacle to ease my fevered brain.

Stella herself was unassailable; she was distractingly familiar; her prototypes I see on every hand—not under the same circumstances, perhaps, but the same Stella. Yes, she was certainly fine!

Laurel? Unimpeachable. A daughter after my own quiet wishes. And Stephen Dallas, the admirable, the forebearing; how I wish you existed in my ignoble self. And young Richard, and the three sons, and the background characters—let us waste no futile words in seeking to idealize that which is already ideal. But Mrs. Morrison—such a calm, lovely, sympathetic lady, dignified of mein, and of stately carriage. Flawless creature, may I sometime meet and possess your real-life double! Nothing else coud be so truly heavenly. Those slender, beautiful hands, that unblemished, statuesque complexion, combined with an expression of deep understanding, would prove incentive enough to keep any man in the seventh heaven of bliss.

Which leads me to my plaint. How am I to continue believing that such faultless paragons actually exist, in the face of the following facts? We—the populace—are drawn to the movies by persuasive press pratings and pretty posters, are there enthralled, and led through the whole course of human emotions. We laugh, we cry, we choke back sobs, and we wax wroth; and we place our heroines and our heroes far aloft, as above human foibles. And we endow the material impersonators with like reverence, as being inseparable from their assumed personalities.

Then we read of the revels and the regalings of these our idols, and are disillusioned. Then we mope, and wonder if good people exist; and our fair ladies and our gallant gentlemen, and the youths and maidens dear to us become less real, less important, and we swear off on movies—at least, till our wounds have grown less raw.

AJAX.

Editor's note: Your trouble lies in placing your heroes and heroines so "far aloft * * * above human foibles * * *." Love them for the pleasure they bring you. Forgive them even as you yourself need to be forgiven.

At the Flood Tide.

My Dear Miss Tinée: I am sending you a copy of my lines of free verse written as a tribute to Valentino, for your use in THE TRIBUNE:

VALENTINO.

Our hearts are sad and tears bedim our eyes,
For thou hast left us for that great unknown,
And in the hush that comes with death
We pause and wonder why it came to thee,
With youth and strength at fullest tide,
Who gave to many, through thy talent
On the screen, much joy and pleasure.
Why did the grim, remorseless reaper take thee
When all around were weary, weak, and worn,
Who pray their God each night to take them from
A life of sorrow and utter uselessness?
We find no answer in the silence, but think, perhaps,
If thou hadst had a loved one watching o'er thee
Whilst thou slept, with prayers ascending high to God,
That might have hid thee from the reaper's sight,
Then thou might'st still be here to live
And give to countless thousands joy,
And fill a life of usefulness for many years.

EDITH C. WALL.

Editor's note: A beautiful thought, Mrs. Wall. And here is another. It is Stevenson's ". . . and does not life go down with a better grace, foaming in full body over a precipice, than miserably straggling to an end in sandy deltas? When the Greeks made their fine saying that those whom the Gods love die young, I cannot help believing they had this sort of death also in their eye."

IN A DRAMMER

MISS BETTY WESTON

She's in the principal woman's part in "The Mender," which was made known last night in the Central.

Cocktails Served, but Only Pink Ones

By Burns Mantle.

sense a popular success.

The music play that has been buffeted more or less the last season under the title of "Naughty Riquette," which Mitzi Hajos has recently undertaken to save for the Messrs. Shubert, arrived in town this week and is quartered at the wide open Cosmopolitan in Columbus circle.

The size of the theater, which is the old Park Avenue that Ziegfeld took over from Mr. Hearst's movie crowd last season, rather dwarfs the diminutive comedienne. She really demands intimate spaces and rather carefully considered romances to be seen at her best. But she has the help of Stanley Lupino, one of the bouncingest of the English family of acrobatic comedians, and between them they save the show. Or appear to be saving it at this writing. In the cast with them are Alexander Gray, Edward Basse, Audrey Maple, and George Schiller.

Another Squeal Exciter.

We have a new mystery play that is full of tricks and squeal exciters. "Number 7" is the Broadway title, though it is known in London, I believe, as "In the Fog." A rather obvious frameup, this story, with a corpse here and there and mysterious and scrawny hands reaching out of unexpected holes in the scenery at unexpected times.

The story is of a mystery house called "Number 7" where crooks assemble to make their getaways. The investigator from Scotland Yard invades the place, pushing a comedy sailor he has found loitering in the street ahead of him. Thereafter the sailor provides the laughs and the detective's effort to unravel the murder of a dead man found in the second floor provides the story interest.

Early Carroll is the producer. Earl, incidentally, was 34 last Thursday and a party was given for him at his brother's apartment in the Hotel Des Artistes. But there wasn't a thing in the bathtub.

CHICAGO'S SMARTEST NEW APARTMENT HOTEL

The SENECA

Catering to woman's love of beauty
... to man's desire for comfort

IF, as some are kind enough to say, the Seneca has succeeded in avoiding the commonplace, it is because its designers planned this newest of Chicago residence hotels as a town residence for uncommon people. Apartments at the Seneca are furnished. So are those of other residence hotels. Yet an artist's hand is in evidence in this cheerful dining-room with its quaint chairs and table of Early American design. Such attention to the artistic may be unimportant. But if it adds zest to delightful home-cooked meals prepared in the cozy, white-enameled kitchen with its modern Frigidaire ice-unit, full-size electric range, and other equipment, who will say that the uncommon is not worth striving for? In the living-room, too, the decorator has not been unmindful of what makes home for a man. So this comfortable sofa by a shaded lamp, this butterfly table as a repository for tobacco and books, have been given more thought than might seem necessary. Similarly, in the bedroom of a Seneca apartment, made attractive with twin beds of walnut in Queen Anne design, attention has been paid to every detail. In a word, the whole plan of the Seneca is to offer a home of more than ordinary attractiveness to those who would be in the center of things. Here within ten minutes' walk of the Loop, near the Drake Hotel, the lake and other attractions, you may live as comfortably as in a home of your own making. Whether one keeps house is for the individual to decide. There is grill and restaurant in the building (no extra charge for room service). A commissary on the premises is a unique feature. Maid service if desired. Public garages within a block. Everything one needs for luxurious living is offered you here. And while economy may not matter to you, the Seneca offers all this at surprisingly low rates.

Rentals of from two to eight rooms ... with or without kitchen ... range from $140 to $800. The Seneca will be ready for occupancy October 1st.

Symphony Honors Memory of Beethoven

By Ruth Russell

To commemorate the one hundredth anniversary of the death of Beethoven, the Chicago Symphony orchestra, which inaugurates its thirty-sixth season Friday afternoon, Oct. 15, has listed on its programs all nine of the great composer's symphonies and his principal concertos and overtures.

Second of the immortals to pass from the "sparsely settled land of music," Beethoven is to be universally honored this year, musical organizations and artists all over the world having announced the Gargantuan task of presenting Beethoven programs.

Under the baton of Frederick Stock, who resumes directorship for the twenty-second consecutive year, the symphony orchestra will offer, in addition to the Friday afternoon and Saturday evening concerts, the second year of the Tuesday afternoon symphony concerts, the eighth year of the children's concerts, the fourteenth year of the "pop" programs and usual series at the University of Chicago and at Milwaukee.

Not only Beethoven but also Carl von Weber will be widely heard, for this winter brings also the one hundredth anniversary of his death. Weber's overture "Euryanthe" tops the interesting first program of the symphony orchestra.

Friday afternoon, Oct. 15, and Saturday evening, Oct. 16:

Overture, "Euryanthe" ..... Weber
Symphony, D minor ..... Franck
Lento-allegro.
Allegretto.
Allegro non troppo.
Suite from "L'Oiseau de Feu" ..... Stravinsky
Introduction—The Firebird and her dance.
Dance of the Princesses.
Infernal Dance of the Kastchei.
Berceuse.
Finale.
Nocturne and Scherzo from Music to "A Midsummer Night's Dream" .....
..... Mendelssohn
Dances from "Prince Igor" ..... Borodin

For the second week's concerts, Oct. 22 and 23, Mr. Stock has arranged this program:

Tableau Musical—"Baba Yaga," Opus 56 ..... Liadow
Symphony No. 2, B minor, Opus 27 ..... Rachmaninoff
Largo—Allegro moderato.
Allegro molto
Adagio.
Allegro vivace.
Rhapsodie Espagnole ..... Ravel
Tone Poem—"Finlandia," Opus 26, No. 7 ..... Sibelius

Because of their popularity, the number of Tuesday afternoon symphony concerts has been increased from six to twelve. They will occur on the second and fourth Tuesday afternoons of each month beginning Oct. 26 and ending April 12. Weber again heads the first program of this series:

Overture to "Oberon" ..... Weber
Symphony No. 5, E minor, opus 64 ..... Tschaikowsky
Andante—allegro con anima.
Andante cantabile con alcuna licenza.
Vals: allegro moderato.
Finale: Andante maestoso—allegro—allegro vivace.
Invitation to the Dance ..... Weber-Weingartner
Two Nocturnes ..... Debussy
Tone Poem: "The Moldau" ..... Smetana

Mr. Stock will continue to be good to children during their series of concerts, interpolating remarks and explanations valuable to all the little ones in their study of the art. The children's concerts consist of two identical series of six concerts each, series A to be given on the first Thursday afternoon of each month; series B on the third Thursday afternoon. Only when they are the escorts of children will adults be admitted to these sessions.

Sixteen "pop" concerts will be open to the public at from 15 to 50 cents a seat. Popular programs will be played on the second and fourth Thursday evenings of each month.

Programs for the Mandel hall concerts and all the soloists will be announced after the return of Mr. Stock early in October, from his summer home near Ephraim, Wis.

News Notes of the Musicians.

Adolph Bolm and Eric DeLamarter will present for the third time a season of "modern ballets and music for small orchestra" at the Eighth street theater under the auspices of the Chicago Allied Arts, Inc. New ballets to be staged by Mr. Bolm include those by Ralph Vaughan Williams, the English composer; Respighi, John Alden Carpenter, Henry Eichheim, and Mousorgsky. Mr. DeLamater will conduct among others, two modern symphonies by Darius Milhaud and David Stanley Smith.

The announcement comes that Bertha Ott will open her season Sunday afternoon, Oct. 10, with a piano recital by Leo Podolsky, Russian pianist, at the Studebaker theater and another by A. Leon Bloom, Chicago pianist, at the Playhouse. Other artists to appear under Miss Ott's management include Gabrilowitsch, Bauer, Friedman, Kreisler, Levitzki, Rachmaninoff, Chamlee, Maier, and Pattison, the Flonzaley quartet, and the Elman string quartet.

The Princess Pat band, late of Ypres, Cambrai, and Vimy Ridge, will play a mixed program of Canadian war songs and classical numbers at the Studebaker theater Sunday afternoon, Sept. 26, under the direction of Capt. T. W. James by arrangement with the Ottawa government.

PRIMA-DONNA

MISS FLORENCE SCHUBERT

She's replacing Miss Ann Greenway as the girl who "leads the numbers," which is the general chore of the principal soprano in more than nine "revues" in every ten. . . . Miss Schubert learned her singing in Chicago, where her debut was made in war-time not as a singer, however, but as a pianist. She has taken part in a number of song-and-dance shows.

the beneficiary of the sums of money that had been budgeted for purposes of cover charges and synthetic liquor.

There is this much to be said for Mr. Kahn's contention. The trouble with American music has always been overseriousness in all its participants, in the composers who write after learned and intricate European models; in the interpreters who get the idea that dullness is somehow synonymous with dignity. And nothing is more ponderous than musical dignity.

Anything tending to put the subject on a lighter, more understandable, more enjoyable basis will be that much gained to the public. There is no secret to understanding music. It consists chiefly in hearing music. There is an unfortunate theory that music is esoteric, to be grasped only by the chosen few. It is unfortunate, because so many of its adherents do their best to carry on the illusion. That is the reason that the Civic Opera company announces sadly that it serves some 2 per cent of the population and that so many concert audiences are down to the irreducible minimum.

THE BEST JOKE I EVER HEARD

What is the best joke you ever heard? If you'll write it out and it is published, $1 will be paid. No manuscripts returned. Address Best Joke Editor, The Tribune, Chicago.

Just Spoofing.

A mule and a tin Lizzie are said to have met on a highway.

"And what might you be?" asked the mule.

"An automobile," answered the Lizzie. "And you?"

"I'm a horse," replied the mule.

Then they both laughed. A. T.

They Quarreled.

"Why did you leave your last place?" asked the housekeeper of the new cook.

"Oh, I just couldn't stand the way the master and missus used to quarrel."

"Dear me! Did they actually quarrel?"

"Yes mum, all the time. When it wasn't me and him, then it was me and her." M. V.

His Error.

Two old friends who had not seen each other for a long time met in a restaurant one day.

"And by the way, old chap," said one, "how are you getting on with Ethel? Did you ask her to marry you?"

"I sure did," was the reply, "but I didn't have any luck. She told me if I had any prospects—"

"Well, that is easy; why don't you tell her about your new job?" asked his friend.

"Hang it all, I did," answered the other sadly, "and now she's my aunt."

So Why Bother!

Tourist—Why don't you mend that big hole in the roof?

Pat—Wud your honor have me go out an' mend it in all this rain?

Tourist—No, but you could do it when it is fine.

Tit for Tat.

The lady was rather reserved. "My husband is very fond of me," remarked to her partner on the floor, "so I only dance with my most plain people."

"It's a good system," said he, "I follow it myself."

Always.

When does your daughter think of getting married?

"Always!"

Pat—Shure, your honor, she's in need of it then.

Lilacs.

Rich Boy: "Over in our yard we have a lilac bush fifty feet high."

Poor Boy: "Gee, I wish I had a lilac that."

"SON OF THE SHEIK"

A Sailor's Life Is the Life for Barrymore

By Rosalind Shaffer

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special Correspondence.]—John Barrymore seems to be fitting his pictures in between fishing and yachting trips, if one may judge from the last few months. It all seemed to start with John's getting a taste of the briny deep while making "The Sea Beast" last year, when he spent days on board ships in the waters near here running up the rigging to the crow's nest, jumping for yardarms and dashing about decks. He got so enthusiastic that he wouldn't allow a double to do his climbing for him and got the skin pulled off his legs and arms in large patches before he became an expert rope climber.

Then he bought his yacht, Mariner, and it is not long ago that he returned from his cruise to Honolulu in it, whither he went in the recent trans-Pacific yacht race. Now while hard at work on his new picture, "The Vagabond Lover," John is refreshing himself with dreams of his next expedition, which he plans will be to New Zealand to fish for some famous deep sea fish that live in the beautiful southern waters.

A Case of "Jack Be Nimble."

The navigator and captain of the Mariner, who will conduct this long voyage to New Zealand, were present on the set the other day and seemed to be getting at least as much of John's attention as the cameraman and his director.

Barrymore, clad in a Peter Pan-like outfit with a hat with a long feather, was playing the ragged poet, Francois Villon, going through some scene in an old French inn. Marceline Day, as the slim heroine, waited on a balcony for him while he made a mad dash for freedom via an upper story window with the king's guards in close pursuit up the narrow staircase.

This sort of gay Lothario thing is quite to Barrymore's taste, and he was going at it with a zip and dash that quite knocked the breath out of Marceline, as he grabbed her and dragged her with him on his one minute getaway.

An aggregation of other actors is always to be found on a Barrymore set; conversation about Barrymore is always spritely, and his acting provides a never-ending school in which others learn. Young Douglas Fairbanks, in sports sweater and flannels, sat and watched the progress of the scene from a ringside seat. Estelle Taylor was deep in conversation with Alan Crosland, the director, who worked on "Don Juan" with both Estelle and Barrymore.

Henry Victor, the young English actor, who is playing the rôle of the villain, Thibaut d'Aussigny, in the picture, was a stately picture in his six foot three of furs, jewels, and velvets of the time of Louis XI.

The company is waiting with interest the arrival of Conrad Veidt, the German actor, who played in "The Cabinet of Dr. Caligari" several years ago and whom Barrymore has engaged to play the crafty Louis.

As for Barrymore, his conversation off set was about his navigation plans. He will include Australia in his trip, as he traveled there years ago in a company with William Collier, the elder, and remembers the Australians as the most sporting people in the world. "They would bet on anything," said John, "from a horse race to the number of raindrops in a given space."

Old Fashioned Wedding.

The wedding of King Vidor and Eleanor Boardman proved a unique Hollywood event in that it was a real old fashioned affair with a wedding dress, bowers of flowers, shower bouquet, rice, and old shoes.

The ordinary run of weddings in the picture colony produce the bride in a going away dress, up at Riverside Inn chapel, with only two or three friends for witnesses. The usual reason given is that the formal veil and white satin and orange blossoms are done so much in the every day course of work at the studio for make-believe weddings that the brides from Hollywood want to get away from that artificial feeling.

When Eleanor Boardman and King Vidor gave their friends twenty-four hour notice that they were to be married, Marion Davies came forward and insisted on furnishing all the incidentals at her own home.

Eleanor Boardman, the bride, appeared in a white ruffled organdie dress with old fashioned floor length skirt and snugly fitted bodice, carrying a shower bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley. A striking point in the bride's costume was a large black and gold enameled cross which was suspended from a pearl necklace that was a family heirloom. The couple were married under a bower of fern and white flowers decorated with white satin ribbon streamers and white wedding bells. The bride wore the style of coiffure she affects, smooth uncurled blonde hair parted in the middle, and drawn back slick to a knot on the nape of the neck.

When the wedding invitations were sent out hurriedly a party of twelve had been figured on and provided for, but by the time the ceremony drew near the number was nearer thirty and there was much scurrying about, orders to the cook, and resetting of tables.

Among those present at the wedding at Miss Davies' home at 1700 Lexington drive, Beverly Hills, were Peppi Lederer, Lita Grey Chaplin, Eleanor Glyn, Ethel Douras, Mrs. George Van Cleve, Mrs. Louis B. Mayer, Sylvia Thalberg, William Haines, John Gilbert, Rupert Hughes, Samuel Goldwyn, John Wynn, and Marcel Desano. John Gilbert came direct from his studio work in his costume of shiny black boots, gold braided blue military coat with gold epaulets and smartly cut trousers, but a tweed suit was gotten from somewhere for him and he dashed upstairs and changed.

Marion Davies acted as bride's maid and wore a lavender taffeta dress with large floppy lavender hat. Irving Thalberg was best man. George Van Cleve gave the bride away.

Lita Grey appeared in a black satin coat trimmed in monkey fur and white silk dress with a small black feather trimmed hat. Charley Chaplin did not come, though he was expected. The funeral of Valentino had made him nervous and sick and he had decided to retire early.

After the Ceremony.

Samuel Goldwyn, on the contrary, was in most jovial mood and insisted on shaking hands with every one who came up to congratulate the bride and groom and wish them well. Sammy had become the father of a boy the morning of the preceding day and informed the wedding guests that Frances Howard Goldwyn, his wife of a year, and the baby both were doing splendidly.

An orchestra concealed behind palms in the ballroom played the wedding march from Lohengrin and "O, Promise Me." Following the ceremony the musicians broke into the strains of "You're in the Army Now," the song that was used all through King Vidor's greatest directorial success, "The Big Parade." Then followed the popular "Prisoner's Song," and the wise crackers began their fun.

Three persons who paid only brief respects to the jolly wedding party within were Mrs. C. S. Vidor, mother of the groom, his sister-in-law, Mrs. Will Vidor of Houston, Tex., and his sister, Miss Catherine Vidor. These relatives watched the progress of the wedding from the lawn outside an arched window of the living room which had been left ajar with the draperies drawn back so that the view into the fern lined and blossom hung bridal bower at the other end of the room was direct.

The elder Mrs. Vidor recently worked as an extra woman in Eric Von Stroheim's picture, "The Wedding March," now being made here.

Movie Notes.

When screen fans glimpse Harrison Ford in the title rôle of "The Nervous Wreck" they'll see him doing the first driving of his career. He says he learned to drive during the picture and that his nervousness in some of the scenes where he drives along the edge of a canyon is not entirely acting.

Rin-Tin-Tin, who has returned from a four months' personal appearance tour through the east, celebrated his birthday with his wife and pups this week with a large birthday cake with candles. On arriving at the studio to begin work in "While London Sleeps" at Warner Brothers he was greeted by many friends, who brought choice raw steaks, pork chops, and assorted ham knuckles, all calculated to please a doggish heart and make him wag a waggish tail. Helene Costello and Walter Merrill will play the human leads in Rinty's new picture.

You Can Tune Blindfolded
Quite as Quickly and as Accurately as an Expert

LOOK at this simple Pfanstiehl radio panel. There is nothing on it but a single tuning knob, a combined switch and volume control and an illuminated wave length window. You do not have to grope around adjusting dials. You simply turn one tuning knob until the wave length you want registers in the illuminated window. You can tune by ear, blindfolded. As you sweep through the scale you hear everything on the air in quick succession.

The Real Secret of Tone Beauty

Clear tone is not enough. You want beautiful tone. And that depends upon a true reproduction of the overtones. As every musician knows, overtones are the life and soul of beautiful sound. They make what is called tone color in voice or music. They are the medium through which a Paderewski expresses his temperament and genius. To lose or distort them in radio reception mars any real enjoyment of the fine radio programs being broadcast by the best stations.

It is All in the "Overtones"

In the Pfanstiehl there is nothing to obstruct or distort the overtones. The delicate stream of radio energy while being immensely amplified flows unhampered through the set. This is due to an extreme simplicity of design. No complicating devices are required to correct the errors so commonly caused by radio amplification. These interfere with the smooth flow of vibrations which carry the overtones and make all the difference between music and near music. There are no such errors.

Something Really NEW in Cabinet Design

There is so little machinery in a Pfanstiehl, inside and out, that an extremely compact console cabinet is possible—only eighteen inches wide and forty-one inches high. And still it has room for every accessory needed to operate a radio, with or without built-in speaker—A and B batteries and charger, or socket-power equipment. It is a space saver; fits anywhere.

If You Want to Enjoy The Fine Programs

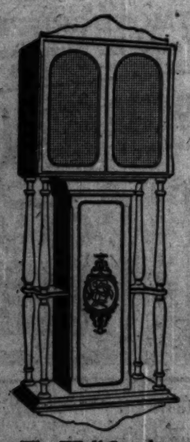
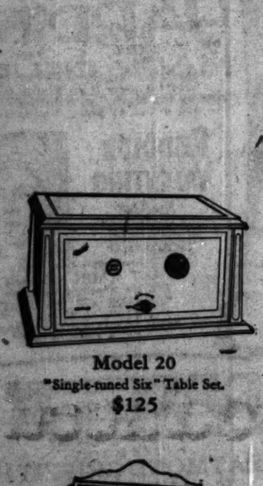
of great singers and musicians on the air, you should have a Pfanstiehl overtone receiver. Any Pfanstiehl dealer will demonstrate it to you. You will be surprised and delighted.

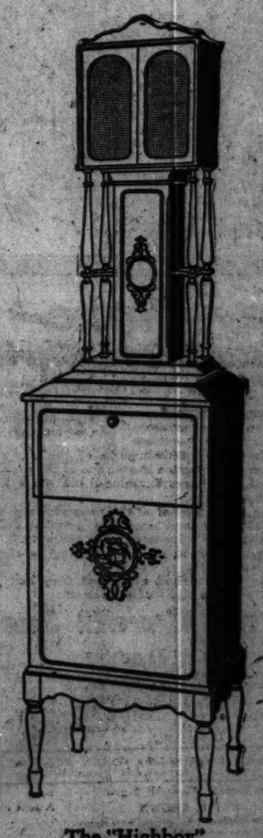
Model 20
"Single-tuned Six" Table Set.
$125



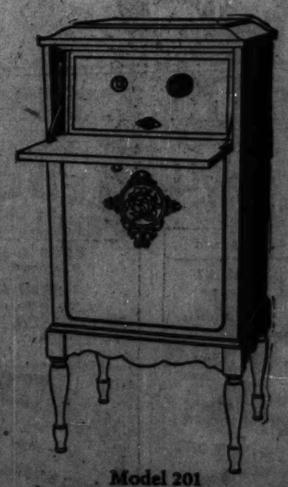
The Wall Speaker
Designed for use on top of the console or to be hung on the wall. Looks like an old fashioned wall clock, flanked by four graceful spindles and supported by a narrow shelf at the bottom. From the standpoint of acoustics there is a certain advantage in having the mouth of the speaker six or more feet from the floor. The tone vibrations are better distributed.
$65



Model 202
Console "Single-tuned Six" with in-built speaker. Space for A and B batteries and charger or socket-power equipment.
$210



The "Highboy"
A more elaborate console model, eighteen inches wide and seventy-four inches high. Speaker is contained in a tall, graceful superstructure extending six feet from the floor. There is nothing like it in radio design. It is like a grandfather's clock or perhaps more nearly like a tall, slender cupboard of Old English design.
$235



Model 201
"Single-tuned Six" Console without speaker, but space for A and B batteries and charger or socket-power equipment. Six tubes.

ART AND ARTISTS

Institute Starts Its Fall Program

By Eleanor Jewett.

THIS month serves as a general clearing house for announcements of the fall lectures to be given by various departments of the Art Institute. It also is full of rumors and suggestions and prophetic descriptions of the exhibitions the early autumn weeks may bring. It also is running over with new beginnings, beginnings which, before we realize it, will have swung into their stride and carried us to the holiday periods of Thanksgiving and Christmas.

The autumn term of the school of the Art Institute will open on Sept. 27, with advance registrations for the upper and middle schools on Sept. 22, 23, and 24, and for the lower school on Sept. 25. The evening school students may register any afternoon beginning Sept. 20.

A special announcement from the Art Institute mentions a series of lectures to be given by Miss Helen F. Mackenzie, in the Children's room, a series which started last Wednesday and will continue every Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock and every Saturday morning at 9:15 o'clock, throughout September and October. The Wednesday lecture of each week will be repeated on the Saturday morning. The lectures deal with the older civilizations. The subject for Sept. 22 and 25 is "King Minos and the Minotaur; the Most Ancient Civilization of Europe; and the Palaces of Crete." Children and their friends are particularly invited to be present at these talks.

Lectures Begin Oct. 5.

The Tuesday lectures and concerts, which are given every winter in Fullerton hall at 2:30 o'clock, have found announcement in the recently issued bulletin of the Art institute for September. The first lecture will be given on Oct. 5. Arthur Upham Pope, advisory curator of Muhammedan art, will speak on "The Influence of Near Eastern Art on the Art of Europe."

The second lecture, to be given on Oct. 12, will be delivered by Dr. Charles Upson Clark, F. R. H. S., formerly of Yale university and the American academy in Rome, and has for its title: "The Charm of Spain."

The succeeding Tuesday afternoon will be devoted to a concert by the Little Symphony ensemble with George Dasch conducting, and the final Tuesday afternoon of the month a lecture on "The Relations Between Architecture and the Decorative Styles," Meyric R. Rogers of the Fogg Art Museum of Harvard university, will be heard.

This is probably as appropriate a place as any to mention a few recent acquisitions to the permanent collections of the Art institute. "The Deposition," a fifteenth century painting of the school of Avignon, has been acquired for the museum through the McKay fund. A small bronze figure of Penthesilia, queen of the Amazons, by Alessandro Vittoria, has been purchased from the Stickney fund, bringing to the museum a charming example of high Renaissance sculpture.

The Ryerson and Burnham libraries have been enriched by a gift of 250 books presented by Mrs. Emily Crane Chadbourne. The books cover all phases of art. Among the oriental books included are two sets which are extremely difficult to get, Tajima—"Selected Relics of Japanese Art," and the first thirty volumes of "Kokka."

A Valuable Gift.

"Interior with Nudes," a painting by Zorn, has been received as a gift from Woodruff J. Parker. The canvas is dated 1905 and is a characteristic work of the great Swedish artist's maturity, a period when he had given up his extensive travels and settled down in his native country, there to paint a long series of peasant types and nudes, chiefly robust females of cow-like propensities.

To return for a moment to the subject of the forthcoming lectures. Dudley Crafts Watson resumed his six series of talks and demonstrations on Sept. 13. Mr. Watson's lectures, covering many and various subjects, are each year warmly received and his program this fall is essentially a continuation of the series given last spring. Mondays (at 2:30 o'clock) will again be devoted to the series of talks on "Simple Rules for Home Decoration in Theory and Practice"; these talks discuss various styles and manners and their applicability to the American home.

An All-Illinois Exhibit.

By the courtesy of Carson Pirie Scott & Co., the first All-Illinois exhibition will be shown in their galleries from Sept. 27 to Oct. 16, inclusive. The exhibition will be supported by representatives of the various civic organizations of Chicago and Illinois. Among the members of the advisory board and exhibition committee are Mrs. Archibald Freer, founder of the American Opera society, of Chicago; O. E. Klein, president of the Palette and Chisel club; Rudolph Weissenborn, president of the Chicago No-Jury Society of Artists; Mrs. Bertha Jaques, secretary of the Chicago Society of Etchers, and Col. William Nelson Pelouze, art and industries, Chicago.

From Chicago the exhibition will be taken to Springfield and shown there during November. Later it will go to Peoria, Bloomington, Decatur and Jacksonville. In order that no group, school or movement shall dominate the exhibition and as a step toward a fair hearing by all, two juries of selection are to be used. Each artist submitting work may chose which jury shall pass upon it, than which could anything be fairer or, in a way, more absurd?

The, one might call it, conservative jury is composed of Lynn Coy, Bertha E. Jaques, Frank V. Dudley, Leonard Crunelle, J. Cady Ewell, Otto C. Hake and Nellie Walker.

The, possibly, radical jury, has for its membership V. M. S. Hannell, Gustaf Dalstrom, Tennessee Anderson, Louis A. Neebe and Charles Biessi.

Notes of Art and Artists.

A young Russian artist, Sergey Aristarkhovich, has been spending a month painting our countryside. Last year saw him finish a commission of twelve church panels for a church in Alaska. At present he is engaged on a work to be hung in the Russian Byzantian church of Chicago. He is a student of the art school of the Chicago Art institute.

Howard K. Morse, of the faculty of the art institute art school, will spend this year in foreign study under the terms of the Carnegie Corporation Scholarship awarded him last spring.

Kimon Nicolaides and Thomas Furlong announce classes in life drawing, decoration and fashion illustration, themselves as instructors, at 7 Washington Square, New York, beginning Oct. 4.

Mr. and Mrs. Adam Emery Albright have recently returned from a painting trip, which began last May, in Brown county, Indiana, and along the Illinois and Mississippi rivers. Mr. Albright's charming landscapes with children are too well known to us all to need more than a mention. He will paint this winter in California. A trial of Florida last year left much to be desired from his point of view, as a painter. The fall months will be spent in Warrenville, Ill., where Mr. Albright will be busy in the old church studio.

The Chicago Galleries association is opening its new season with an exhibit of painting by Tom Barnett of St. Louis and Charles Bein of New Orleans. On second consideration of the folder it would seem that this exhibit did open their season and has now just closed, running well into the middle of the month. Starting today and remaining on view until Oct. 2, there will be in those galleries a combined exhibit of canvases from the brushes of three artists: John Spelman with a group of paintings of the north woods, Glen Shaffer with paintings from Capri, and Alexis J. Fournier with monotypes.

More Notes.

Opening Oct. 4 and running to Oct. 16, the Chicago galleries announce an exhibition of work by Claude Buck, Frank Peyraud and Charles Wilimovsky. It is obvious the association has planned an interesting and varied season of exhibits and each in turn will be awaited with eagerness.

The twenty-fourth annual Philadelphia Water Color exhibition is scheduled to open Nov. 7, closing Dec. 12.

In the Birch-Bartlett collection of modern painting at the Art institute there is the famous "La Berceuse" [the nurse] by Van Gogh. From her complexion it may have been thought the poor creature was suffering from jaundice. An explanation of this painting says that yellow was Van Gogh's symbol for affection, hence the decided yellow of that face. It would be well if most modern works were foot-noted, so the intentions of their creators might be clear to the uninitiated, who otherwise walk lost in inaccurate conjecture.

"HOUSES AND WATER," by Karl Nordstrom, from the exhibition of Swedish paintings that was arranged in gallery 48 of the Art institute in honor of the visit of the crown prince of Sweden. The gallery has continued to be one of the interesting rooms not to be missed by the summer visitors to the museum.

Arnold's Oath of Loyalty to U. S. Unearthed

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A search among long forgotten records in the adjutant general's office at Washington pertaining to the revolutionary war recently has revealed a series of unusually interesting documents which up to the present time have remained hidden away.

They are the oaths administered to officers of the revolution. All were executed at Valley Forge in 1778 and were sworn to before "G. Washington." The form is simple. It reads:

"I [then a space for the name of the affiant], do acknowledge the United States of America to be Free, Independent and Sovereign States, and declare that the people thereof owe no allegiance or obedience to George the Third, King of Great Britain; and I renounce, refuse and abjure my allegiance or obedience to him; and I do [here the word 'swear' is written by all except one who wrote 'affirm'] that I will, to the utmost of my power, support, maintain and defend the said United States against the said King George the Third, his heirs and successors, and his or their abettors, assistants and adherents, and will serve the said United States in the office of [here is written in the office] which I now hold, with fidelity according to the best of my skill and understanding."

Names Constitute History.

For the most part the oaths are formalities such as are observed today in granting a commission to any official of the government. But the names affixed to them are history. Nearly all men whose hands wrote a few lines affirming their love of freedom also helped to bring that freedom about.

Number one is that of "George Washington, Commander-in-Chief of the Armies of the United States of America," and is sworn to before "Stirling, Major General," at Valley Forge, on May 12, 1778.

The next one is that of Charles Lee. The third is Nathaniel Greene, quartermaster general.

Nathaniel Greene also swore to another as "major general." This oath is numbered 4.

Tragedy and pathos attend No. 5. It begins, "I, Benedict Arnold, Major General," and proceeds with the form. It reads that he swears to carry out the oath. It was sworn to before H. Knox, at Valley Forge, May 30, 1778. His inglorious end seems pitiful when one sees his bold handwriting attached to the bottom of his solemn word to "support, maintain and defend the said United States against King George the Third."

Oath by Lord Stirling.

Strangely enough, the very next one, "No. 6," is signed with a lone word—"Stirling." It reads:

"I, William Alexander, Earl of Stirling, Major General in the Armies of the United States of America," and proceeds with the form. This is sworn to on May 13 and attested to by George Washington.

Numbers 7 and 8 are the oaths of Arthur St. Clair, major general, and Benjamin Lincoln, major general.

Number 9 is rich in tradition, adventure and romance. It reads:

"I, the Marquis de la Fayette, Major General in the Continental Army," and the remainder of the oath. It is interesting to note that the marquis spelled his name without a single capital letter. In writing his signature he simply wrote "delafayette," all in small letters.

Another signature is "The Baron deKalb," and assigns him as a major general. His oath was executed May 12, 1778. Still another is "deSteuben," also executed May 12.

Monroe Stirling's Aid.

James Monroe, destined to be President of the country for whose liberty he fought, was an aid-de-camp to Maj. Gen. Lord Stirling. His oath was taken May 16, 1778, and is attested by Stirling.

"Mad Anthony" Wayne, as a brigadier general, took his oath on May 12, 1778, at Valley Forge before George Washington.

Others whose signatures appear on these historical documents are: Lachlan McIntosh, brigadier general; William Maxwell, brigadier; William Smallwood, brigadier; Enoch Poor, brigadier; John Patterson, brigadier; Alexander Hamilton, aide-de-camp; Richard Henry, secretary; William Barber, aide-de-camp, and Isaac Budd Dunn, aide-de-camp.

Vote Lady Mountbatten Deauville's Best Dressed

DEAUVILLE.—[U. P.]—Lady Louis Mountbatten has been voted the best dressed woman at Deauville, which means the best dressed woman of the world. The competition in dressing up or dressing down is keener at Deauville in August than anywhere else. This seaside resort, with its beautiful harbor and famous Casino, is the fashion center of the world when the season is on.

Lady Louis Mountbatten, whose husband, Lord Mountbatten, is the "best pal" of the prince of Wales and who accompanied the prince to the United States, has achieved her eminence in style at Deauville by dressing simply. Her gowns are magnificently fitted without being ornate and she decorates herself only with a string of simple pearls and a ring or two on her fingers. Her restraint in the use of jewels is noticeable because other women at Deauville this season seem bent upon hanging on every gem and jewel they possess, all at the same time.

GREAT artists of the New Hall of Fame—those whom the present-day public selects as supreme—find in Brunswick's "Light-Ray" electrical records (music by photography) reproduced on the Brunswick Panatrope the perfect medium for their art.

MARIO CHAMLEE
Tenor, Metropolitan Opera Company, says:

"I marvel at the precision and delicacy with which every tone is preserved by your new method of recording and translated into sound again on the Panatrope."

Latest Brunswick Records by the "Light-Ray" electrical method (music by photography) are now on sale every Thursday.

Brunswick Panatrope Model 10
Finished in highly figured walnut. This instrument may also be used as the loud-speaker unit for your present radio.

Music Electrically Reproduced is True to Life!

The BRUNSWICK PANATROPE

utilizes newly discovered electrical processes to bring you music and radio of a beauty hitherto unknown.

THE PANATROPE is the joint achievement of four of the most widely-known institutions in the fields of electricity and acoustics: Radio Corporation of America, General Electric Company, Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, and The Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company.

Although perfected less than a year ago, this new reproducing musical instrument has been heard by more than four million persons. When first demonstrated, it was given front-page space by the great metropolitan newspapers as the most important musical development of the age. Critics were no less enthusiastic. Nothing in the whole world of music ever created such profound interest and attention.

By means of new electrical principles, the Brunswick Panatrope reproduces the complete range of musical sound naturally. Color and shading, every sustained vibration, the technique of the artist, all are brought to you now as true as in life itself.

Radio reception, likewise, by the electrical magic of the Panatrope, is made more beautiful than any you have known. The Panatrope model shown above may also be used as the loud speaker for your present set. The model shown at the right is two instruments in one: the Panatrope combined with the Radiola Super-heterodyne. Thus the Panatrope puts at your finger-tips all recorded music and the programs of radio as well.

Before you buy any music-reproducing instrument of any kind, or radio, hear the Brunswick Panatrope. Otherwise what you buy today, no matter how wonderful it may seem, may fall obsolete tomorrow before this amazing instrument.

The Brunswick Panatrope may be obtained in any one of a number of extraordinarily beautiful cabinets. Any Brunswick dealer will gladly demonstrate this instrument. Hear it today.

RADIO SEEN AS NEW CURE FOR EUROPE'S WOES

Rapidly Becoming Factor Across Atlantic.

"Broadcasting," as distinguished from wireless telegraphy and telephony, is only six years old, but it already has become a factor in international affairs, according to an article in the new 13th edition of the Encyclopedia Britannica by Ralph Bown of the department of development and research, American Telephone and Telegraph company, and vice president of the Institute of Radio Engineers.

Analyzing the growth of broadcasting in the United States, Mr. Bown calls attention to the fact that while 1,105 stations had been licensed up to August, 1924, only 533 of them were surviving this year.

"It is certainly arguable," he writes, "that the movement began by overshooting the mark. The present tendency to which the indications point is toward consolidation for better service, in point both of utility and of entertainment and toward an economically sounder radio industry."

Spread of Industry in Europe.

The spread of the radio industry to Europe is exhaustively considered by Mr. Bown. He connotes the developments in Great Britain, Germany, France, Italy, Belgium, Holland, Austria, Switzerland, Denmark, Norway, the Baltic states, Canada, Russia, Hungary, Czecho-Slovakia, the Balkan nations, South Africa, Australia, New Zealand, India, and Burma.

"The broadcasting movement, when it crossed the Atlantic," he says, "found Europe impoverished and war weary. Yet so prompt and general was its popularity that we must conclude that other forces besides those which had stimulated broadcasting in America were at work. After nearly five years, in which strain and the sense of insecurity had found occasional relief in somewhat hectic pleasure seeking, it was an opportune moment for the appearance of a form of pleasure which could be enjoyed at home naturally and without effort as well as cheaply.

Its International Aspect.

"We may now glance at broadcasting in its international aspect, and more especially European broadcasting, as a possible cementing influence between nations now becoming dimly conscious of a unity that the forecasts of their history seems to deny. In 1925, when all countries of western, northern, and central Europe had to a great extent absorbed broadcasting as a normal element in their national life, it became manifest that apart from incidental divergences all broadcasting concerns, acting quite independently of one another, were putting much the same classes of fare before their respective publics, and thereby disclosing a cultural unity in Europe hitherto scarcely suspected. The barriers of political and racial geography were overleaped. Strange place names and even distant personal voices became familiar. The movement in favor of an international language acquired new life and importance. In fact, a whole new world of possibilities of European intercourse is being opened up."

RADIO PROGRAMS FOR TODAY

(Sunday, September 19.) (Chicago Daylight Saving Time.)

TWO noted artists, Allen McQuhae, tenor, and John Corigliano, violinist, will be featured at 8:15 o'clock on W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel. Mr. McQuhae will sing several old favorite songs, including "Come Into the Garden," by Balfe; "My Gift for You," by Cadman; and "Now the Day Is Over," by Barnby. Two well known selections will have a place on Mr. Corigliano's program: "Symphonie Espagnole—Andante," and "La Gitana," by Kreisler. This young artist will use a Tononi violin more than two hundred years old. The instrument, which bears the date of 1723, has a tone particularly warm and rich. The orchestral music for tonight's performance will be provided by Nicolai Berezowsky's orchestra.

The Lyon & Healy program to be given at 2 o'clock this afternoon will be presented by Edith Trewartha Pierson, soprano; Paul Stoes, violinist; and Erma Rounds, accompanist. Their numbers follow:

Ave Maria—"Cross of Fire" ..... Bruch
Mrs. Pierson.

Prelude from "The Deluge" ..... Saint-Saëns
Romance Andaluzia ..... Sarasate
From the Cane Brake ..... Gardner
Mr. Stoes.

La Procession ..... Franck
Apres Une Reve ..... Faure
Nell ..... Faure
Mrs. Pierson.

Romance ..... Wieniawski
Pourquoi ..... Cserwonky
Liebestraum ..... Cserwonky
Hungarian Dance ..... Brahms
Mr. Stoes.

Tranquillity ..... Foote
A Caravan from China Comes ..... Barnett
Memory ..... Densmore
Christ Went Up Into the Hills ..... Hageman
Mrs. Pierson.

Two organ recitals will be given on W-G-N this afternoon. At 1 o'clock Ambrose Larsen will present an hour's performance at the Wurlitzer organ. This artist is known to listeners for his daily recitals on W-G-N. At 4:30 o'clock Ruth Farley will give a half hour recital, also at the Wurlitzer organ. Miss Farley will offer several popular classics aq part of her program.

English composers will furnish the music for tonight's program in "Our Music Room" at 9 o'clock. Such representative selections as the following will be presented: "Sylvan Scenes," by Fletcher; "Minuet," by Elgar; "Romance," by Fletcher; "A Warrior Bold," by Adams; "Mary of Allendale," by Hook; and "Passing Bye," by Purcell. The vocal artists to be heard tonight are Gilbert Ford, tenor, and Mark Love, basso.

The W-G-N mixed quartet will present a special program this afternoon from 3 to 4 o'clock. This will consist of many of the best known quartets and solos from various oratories. The quartet is made up of Flora Waalkes, soprano; Kathleen Ryan, contralto; Gilbert Ford, tenor, and Mark Love, basso. Their program will be followed this afternoon by a concert to be given by the W-G-N studio ensemble.

Devotees of old time favorites will find several songs of this type in "The Million Sing" at 7 o'clock this evening. The program will include: "Swanee River," "My Old Kentucky Home," "When You and I Were Young, Maggie," "The Star Spangled Banner," and "America."

DETAILS OF TODAY'S W-G-N PROGRAM.
(Wave length 303 meters.)

WJAZ TO HAVE NEW STUDIOS IN THE SHORELAND

Announcement has been made by Harry J. Fawcett, president of the Shoreland Hotel company, that arrangements have just been completed whereby they will house WJAZ, the former Zenith station, now operated by the American Radio Broadcasting company.

Work has already started on the studio, which will be one of the finest in America. It will be completed in about two weeks.

This tieup assures the radio listeners, according to the station officials, of programs of the highest quality throughout the coming winter. The Imperial Salon players, conducted by Eugene Plotnikoff, will be broadcast from 6:30 to 8 p. m., and dance music by Walter Ford's orchestra will be on the air nightly upon the beginning of the dinner dance season, Oct. 1.

RUNS SET ON DEAD BATTERIES.

A janitor in a large New York apartment house has had a receiving set for more than three years, and in all that time he has never bought a "B" battery. He gets his power supply from the dumb waiter—batteries thrown away as "dead" by the tenants upstairs. They are throwing their "B" batteries away too soon, which is fine for the janitor but hard on their pocketbooks.

ENGLISH THEATER AUDIENCE TO SEE U. S. RADIO STARS

New York, Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Wilfred Glenn, one of the two hundred artists heard at the Radio Industries banquet on Wednesday at the Astor hotel, sails for England next week. Mr. Glenn will be one of the first radio artists to appear before a European audience, when with Franklin Bauer, Lewis James, Elliott Shaw, and Eddie Smalley, he appears at the Princess theater, London, for a six weeks' engagement.

Newspaper Man to Talk from 103 Radio Stations

William H. Crawford, an eastern orator and newspaper man, is planning a six months' trip which will take him to many points in Canada and to every state of the union. He is listed to speak from 103 stations on close-ups of great men interviewed during the last thirty years.

PREFER LOCAL STATIONS.

The German radio fan does not find distance reception as interesting as it is in the United States. Practically all German listeners prefer to receive their foreign programs by the rebroadcast system and DX tuning is the exception in that country.

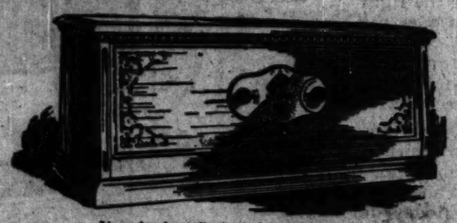
Why Risk Having an Orphan on Your Hands?

AN "orphan" radio, like an "orphan" automobile, is one whose maker has gone out of business—leaving no one to guarantee the set's performance—or the owner's satisfaction. When considering a radio, give as much thought to the maker and his stability as you do to the set. Will that company still be in business to guarantee your radio enjoyment in 1928—and the years to follow?

Kellogg Switchboard & Supply Company has been a master builder of superior telephone equipment for 29 years—it is now a six million dollar institution manufacturing both telephones and radio receivers—its past history and present stability are ample assurance that it will still be in business, and back of the Kellogg set you buy, whenever it may be necessary.



Licensed under applications for letters patent of Radio Frequency Laboratories, Inc. (R. F. L.)

One of the outstanding features of Model 507 receiver is that has equal sensitivity on all wave lengths. For simplicity, the four tuning circuits are controlled by one knob. It may be operated close to broadcasting stations as heavy shielding prevents interference from powerful locals. This receiver is available, as Model 508, in a handsome console four and one half feet high which includes an advance in loud speakers far ahead of anything heretofore known in the realism of its reproduction.

NIGHTHAWKS OF KANSAS CITY ON AIR FROM W-G-N

Famous Orchestra Signs Up with Trib Station.

The Coon Sanders orchestra, the original Nighthawks of Station WDAF, Kansas City, known throughout the country as one of radio's most entertaining jazz bands, starts broadcasting over W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel, and WLIB, the Liberty Weekly station, next Saturday.

These ten syncopators, headed by the humorous Carleton Coon, and his piano-pounding partner, Joe Sanders, enjoy one of the most unusual reputations known to radio, and have entertained countless listeners. Their acquisition gives W-G-N and WLIB ar orchestra that has loomed large in radio circles in the last four years.

Heard Here Last Fall.

Programs which the Nighthawks are to offer through the two stations will be broadcast direct from the Blackhawk restaurant here. They are settling down for a winter's run after a successful series of appearances in the east. Their opening radio performance next Saturday will find the irrepressible Sanders and the "wise-cracking" Carleton Coon at the microphone to entertain listeners between selections.

Last winter the Nighthawks made the acquaintance of listeners in the Chicago territory and entertained old DX friends with their broadcasting from KYW.

Slightly different, both musically and as entertainers, has been the making of the Coon Sanders orchestra as a radio attraction of national reputation. Radio fans who built or purchased sets back in 1922 and 1923, and struggled through the then uncrowded ether for distance will doubtless recall the Nighthawks club of WDAF, Kansas City, when it was in its heyday. Leo Fitzpatrick was at the "mike," and the bulk of the entertainment was provided by the orchestra, whose members were dubbed the "Nighthawks." In its palmiest days the club boasted a membership of nearly 50,000 listeners, drawn from coast to coast.

Proclaimed Radio's Greatest.

It soon became a national institution. The ever increasing army of radio fans turned to the Kansas City station as the evening wore on for the excellent music of the band and the comical chatter interspersed between numbers. When Coon and Sanders and their Nighthawks decided to test their wings, they found that the reputation they had won on the ether had preceded them. City after city where the band played acclaimed them as one of radio's finest contributions to the amusement world.

Followed their successful appearance over KYW, and their tour of the east, and now they have returned to Chicago to entertain listeners over W-G-N and WLIB. The entire 12 to 1 o'clock hour each night will be devoted to them, and they will also be heard in special feature groups earlier in the evening. On Sunday nights their music and banter will feature the last half hour of the W-G-N program from 10:30 to 11 o'clock.

HOT STUFF TO HEAT UP W-G-N'S PEPPER PARTIES

Two new features will be added to the Pepper Party of W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake Hotel, next Wednesday evening at 10:30. They are the Pepper Party Minstrels and the W-G-N Grab Bag!

The Grab Bag was started last Wednesday evening as a radio "column," designed to parallel the humorous columns of the daily newspapers. Listeners everywhere are invited to submit quips, jests and original bits of verse. The most acceptable of these will be read over the air, and the names of their authors announced.

Music for the Pepper Party will be supplied by Ralph Foote and his seven little footers, Bobby Meeker's Drake Hotel dance orchestra, and Billy Bellman's Purple Grackle orchestra.

U. S. GOVERNORS TO TALK FROM STATION WMAQ

Governors of various states are to be given an opportunity "to tell the world," over the radio, all about their own commonwealth, their history and their points of interest from WMAQ on Saturdays between October and June. Gov. Al Smith of New York will begin the series on Oct. 2. He will be followed by Gov. Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania. Governors of Maryland, South Dakota, Wisconsin, North Dakota, Massachusetts, Maine, New Jersey, Washington, Iowa, Florida, Arkansas and Minnesota have already accepted later dates.

INSIDE THE LOUD SPEAKER

By Quin A. Ryan, W-G-N Announcer

CHRONIC radio listeners evince a curiosity about the nature of the "microphone," the magic thing-em-bob that snares all the sounds of the radio performance for transmission into the ether.

The radio microphone is, after all, only a more highly sensitized model of the ordinary telephone, operating on the very same principles. The "mike" is a larger and probably more uncouth looking instrument than the familiar black cup of the telephone. The disc, punctured with large holes around its rim and the larger opening in its center, which we usually see in pictures of the microphone, is only the wire screen case enclosing the "mike" proper.

The telephone microphone is expected to handle only a limited range of notes that are used in everyday speech, but the radio microphone must catch the whole field of audible sounds, from the low boom of a kettle drum to the high pitched overtones of a violin.

A "desk" microphone, to be placed flat on the table, was the early kind generally in use by the broadcasters. Nowdays they are hung on all manner of swimming and revolving pedestals and can be moved easily away from or toward the musician or speaker. It is essential that the microphone lie or hang perfectly still" and on a horizontal plane while in use.

The distances that singers, speakers or various instruments should be from the microphone vary. A speaker may properly face the mike at a distance of a foot and a half, and singers about four or five feet. For picking up the music of an orchestra, the mike is suspended in most cases above the heads of the players in a location most advantageous for absorbing the notes of the varying instruments in a proper balance.

For piano playing, microphones are set in different positions in different studios, to catch adequately all the notes. We have seen it placed at one time on the floor under the piano, toward the back.

A microphone is not two faced; it can be addressed properly only from one side, even though the back looks to be as open as the front.

STATION KGO, out in California, has been experimenting with the extinguishing of a flame by a shrill note of a high pitched voice broadcast from twelve miles away.

There was the face that launched a thousand ships, and the face that stopped a thousand clocks, and now here is the voice that can put out a fire. We think we've heard that voice before.

THE "ASK ME a Hard One Man" is at your service. He will answer any and all questions regarding radio and radio personalities, if so. Just address him in care of the Federal League:

JAVA.—Al Carney, the organist at WHT, was never in the confederate army, as far as I know. He used to play at McVicker's theater, and is the author of the famous poem, "Christmas comes but once a year, and when it comes it brings good cheer."

L. McL.—Charlie King is the only man I know who might settle your tube and B battery problem. He is the big tube man from the subway, and acquired much fame in his youth as the author of the poem which begins, "Tube-B or Not Tube-B."

Anxious.—Lee Sims is the lightning piano pelter of WBBM. I think he is a nephew of Addison Sims, the Seattle admiral. He wrote the lyric poem which opens with the stanza, "Roses are red, violets are blue; sugar is sweet and so are you."

N. O. F.—Yes, the Langdon brothers are about the best known Hawaiian guitar players on the radio. They have never lived in Hawaii, but they have traveled extensively on Kenmore avenue. Kenneth uses a catcher's glove in stroking the strings of the guitar, and Byron has the mumps. Byron used to be a motorman and Kenneth used to be a conductor. Together they wrote a poem you probably know, "Peter, Peter, pumpkin eater, had a wife and couldn't keep her; put her in a pumpkin shell, and there he kept her very well."

Bunny—You win. It is alleged that the composer of "The Prisoner's Song" was put there because he wrote it.

J. B. T.—Your little difficulty will be solved this fall, when one of the manufacturers puts out non-skid headphones for bald headed men.

WE GATHER that Vice President Dawes was the whole show at the big radio banquet in New York. The Detroit News said a week ago, "Vice President Dawes will be the principal and only speaker at the banquet of the radio industries next Wednesday."

IN THREE YEARS of radio announcing we have met in the radio studios probably one-half of the stage and screen stars who swim in the heavens, and never before last week have we encountered one who might be as excellent a radio performer as he is a footlight and movie artist.

To be adept on the stage and adept on the screen, and then again adept on the air, were a rare handful of talents indeed.

Last Monday we introduced George Beban, the impersonator of Italian characters, who is appearing on the stage and in the films at the Chicago theater. In his preliminary remarks he impressed us not at all as a radio speaker, but then he launched into his Italian skit known as "The Sign of the Rose" and took us by storm.

Beban, in this monologue, acting three roles, is the closest we have heard to the ideal radio actor. We were a mile away from him during his time on the air, so we could not see his method of treating the microphone, but we could feel his every facial twist by his use of emotional breathing into the sensitive mike. At one time pleading, at another time sobbing, and at another moment gulping with joyous gratitude—and all the time "pulling his punches," not overdoing it—he was powerfully effective on the air.

CHICAGO FANS CAN SEE NEW MODELS SEPT. 27

Radio fans of the midwest will have their first opportunity to view the latest models and radio parts the latter part of this month with the opening of the National Radio exposition, Sept. 27, at the exposition hall, Hotel Sherman. The show will be held from that date to Oct. 2, and will be the official radio dealers' show of the year.

More than two hundred of the latest models of the leading radio manufacturers will be on exhibition at the show.

"Better service for the radio fans, both from the manufacturers and dealers and from the broadcasting stations, will be the keynote of this year's show," Milo E. Westbrooke, general manager of the exposition, announced today. "The fans are responsible for the $5,000,000,000 industry that radio has become, and discussions held during the show will be along the lines of better service and reception."

One feature of this year's show will be an open forum to be conducted by the Broadcast Listeners' association of America, of which Frank H. McDonald is president, which will take up such serious problems confronting radio listeners as the overcrowding of air lanes, the "blooper" nuisance, and pirating stations. At the present time there seems to be no definite move going forward to check the threatened chaotic condition of the air, and the broadcast listeners hope that some beneficial results may come from the forum.

As usual, the latest developments in amateur set building are expected to materialize in the national set building contest for boys. Each year since 1921 has seen definite and unusual results turned out by the boys, so that some new departures may be expected in this year's show.

Still another feature of the show will be the popularity contest to determine which radio entertainer or announcer is the most popular with the fans.

Will Price or Performance Decide Which Set You'll Buy?

You get exactly what you pay for. Performance, which gives true radio satisfaction, is not on the bargain counter. If performance guide you, you will have no regrets.

COMPARE Grebe reception with that of other sets; and don't buy until you do! Note the tone quality, the range, the selectivity, the ease with which low-wave stations are separated and tuned, the volume of distant as well as local stations.

There are very definite reasons why the Synchrophase excels in all these respects — exclusive Grebe developments, four of which are illustrated below.

In addition, with the Grebe Flexible Unit Control you have a one, two, or three-dial controlled set at will; the Dial Light makes the tuning dial visible in dark corners; the Protective Fuse protects B batteries against defective tubes.

And back of it all is the Grebe name, standard of quality for over seventeen years.

Ask a Grebe dealer to demonstrate the Synchrophase and explain the reasons for the unusual reception it gives.

MANY STARS OF OPERA ON NEW KENT PROGRAMS

1926-'27 Series Starts on Oct. 3.

Announcement was made today by A. Atwater Kent, of Philadelphia, that he will begin the broadcasting of a new series of weekly programs by nationally famous grand opera and concert artists on Sunday evening, Oct. 3. The lineup of stars revealed by the announcement and the arrangements that have been made to make available for these concerts artists of the highest rank indicate that the series for the coming winter may eclipse even the high standard set by the Atwater Kent programs of last winter.

This series of programs will be made available to local fans by W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel. Last year's broadcast was so well received on the part of the listeners that arrangements have been completed to handle the programs again this season.

Many Stars on Air.

Among those already scheduled for early appearance in the new series are such stars as Frances Alda, Lucrezia Bori, Mme. Schumann-Heink, Frieda Hempel, Josef Hofmann, Edward Johnson, Albert Spalding, Maria Kurenko, Louise Homer, Reinald Werrenrath, Margaret Matzenauer, Mary Lewis, Rosa Ponselle, and Charles Hackett.

Through an arrangement with the Metropolitan Grand Opera company of a sort never before effected by any outside agency, Mr. Kent has secured the call on the services of the artists of that great organization for radio appearances. This connection will enable him to put on the air, in the course of this new series, a number of artists not heretofore available for broadcasting, because of their engagements with the Metropolitan.

W-G-N to Broadcast.

The new series of Atwater Kent programs will be on the air each Sunday evening from 9:15 to 10:15 eastern standard time, 8:15 to 9:15 Chicago time. They will be broadcast through a hookup of fifteen stations which, in addition to W-G-N, includes WEAF, New York; WJAR, Providence; WEEI, Boston; WSAI, Cincinnati; WRC, Washington; WCCO, Minneapolis-St. Paul; WEAR, Cleveland; WFI and WOO, alternating, at Philadelphia; WCAE, Pittsburgh; WGR, Buffalo; WOC, Davenport; WTAG, Worcester; KSD, St. Louis, and WWJ, Detroit.

—WLS WILL GIVE SERIES OF RADIO TALKS ON MUSIC

Don Malin, musical director and chief announcer at WLS, is presenting a series of brief music talks Thursday evenings at 8:30. His remarks on musical subjects are illustrated by examples on the piano. Mr. Malin selects phases of music appreciation which are unique in radio programs, but which are of interest to those who like music, classical or jazz, no matter whether they have studied music or not.

Next Thursday Mr. Malin's presentation will be "Musical Portraits," in which he will show how celebrated composers have painted little sketches in music. He will show how characters in operas can be identified by melodies which are descriptive of their personalities.

HELPFUL HINTS

One of the most satisfactory methods of reducing interference is by the use of a small aerial with very sensitive radio frequency amplifiers ahead of the detector tube and also by the use of very loosely coupled circuits.

It is much easier to get radio telephony "through" this kind of interference than to receive radio telegraph, because voice messages may often be understood from the context even though some parts of it are "smothered" by the static.

Aerial wires placed parallel to electric light or power lines in some cases produce a continuous hum. This can usually be reduced or entirely eliminated by running the aerial at right angles to the power line.

Interfering noises heard in the receiver at irregular intervals are often caused by atmospheric electricity. These disturbances are variously called "static," "atmospherics," "straps"—and many other names. There are undoubtedly many causes for these interfering sounds, but their sources have never been completely explained. The atmospheric disturbances are more troublesome in the summer months than in the winter and also more serious in the tropics than in northern latitudes.

Some sources of interference that produce sounds very similar to atmospherics are leaky transformers or defective insulators of power lines; faulty arc lights, operation of x-ray machines or vibrating chargers, sparking of trolley wheels at the contact with the trolley wires, sparking at commutators of electric motors, rundown or discharged "A" or "B" batteries, etc.

COAST FANS THINK TIDES AFFECT SETS

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—In advancing an interesting theory to account for a strange, rushing noise in their receiving sets, the residents of Imperial Beach, Cal., believe they have discovered a radio phenomenon that will bear fruitful results on investigation.

According to a letter received at KFI, the sound had troubled receiving set operators considerably because they could not ascribe it to any known cause. It has none of the sharp crackling of regular static, nor the unpleasant harshness of a power leak, but on the contrary, sounds like a moderate wind blowing steadily through trees.

Finally the inhabitants discovered that only when the tide set north along Imperial Beach, which lies between San Diego and the Mexican border, or when a rip tide was in progress, the sound was audible. According to the fans they believe the action of northerly tides on the sand, and of the upper and lower strata of the rip tides against one another, creates a weak electro-static field which influences all tubes within a short distance of the beach. If the theory is found to be tenable it is thought that it will open up a wide field for investigation.

WTAM, CLEVELAND STATION, PLAN A SPECIAL PROGRAM

Cleveland, O., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Some weeks ago Station WTAM announced the completion of its powerful new transmitter, and now the program department has issued its announcement of activities for the fall and winter radio season.

The station will formally open the radio season on the occasion of its third anniversary, Sept. 26. A special birthday program has been worked out for this occasion.

U. S. STILL LEADS IN RADIO; WORLD NOT FAR BEHIND

Stations Now Operating Everywhere.

The steadily increasing popularity of radio throughout the world is strikingly revealed in a trade bulletin made public today by the U. S. department of commerce. While the United States is still supreme in the radio field—having three-fifths of the world's broadcasting stations and five times more receiving sets in use than any other country—foreign nations are awakening to the immense possibilities of radio as a medium of education and entertainment. Last year radio equipment exported from the United States was valued at $10,000,000, which was 50 per cent more than the value of shipments in 1924 and ten times the figure for 1921.

Broadcasting stations, according to the report, are now operating in every corner of Europe; there are stations in the larger cities of South America, Australia, and South Africa. Japan and India in Asia also have broadcasting stations, although radio development naturally has not been so great in these countries as in other parts of the world. These broadcasting stations range in power from 15,000 watts at Daventry, England, a super-station built for foreign broadcasting, to numerous smaller stations of 1,000 watts and less scattered throughout the world.

U. S. Gets Programs Free.

The United States, the report points out, is the only important country where the radio fan can listen in free of charge. License fees exist in almost every country, ranging from the nominal 1 franc per year in France to $12 in Salvador and $12 in Lithuania. In the British Isles the fee is 10 shillings; in Sweden about $2.70; Japan's fee is 50 cents, and the Union of South Africa $1.25.

Along with license fees in many countries there exist rules and regulations of various kinds in connection with radio broadcasting and reception. In Greece, for example, only a Greek can own a radio set, and even he is subject to government restrictions. Germany does not allow persons of Slav origin to own radio sets, while the Latin American countries have also numerous regulations which must be observed by radio operators.

Next to the United States, the report shows, the United Kingdom has gone the furthest in radio development with 35.6 sets per thousand population, followed by the Union of South Africa, Denmark, Australia, Germany, and France. The development of radio in Sweden has been outstanding, the report reveals. Up to about the beginning of 1924 there was practically no market at all for radio equipment, largely because of the total lack of broadcasting and government restrictions. On March 31 last not far from 200,000 sets were licensed throughout the country.

Distant Reception Easy.

The type of matter broadcast from the various foreign stations varies widely. Much attention is given to music and there is a general absence of "jazz." The programs differ from those of this country in that much more attention is given to current news and there is a tendency in some sections to use the radio for advertising. In Brazil a radio society is preparing to broadcast daily for the benefit of the wealthy planters in the state of Sao Paulo all the latest coffee news together with quotations.

In northern and central Europe the climate is ideal for continuous radio reception. The German in Berlin can tune in without trouble and listen to a musical program broadcasted from Rome; getting Paris is no feat at all and the stations of northern Europe may be easily heard. The Frenchman and the Englishman likewise find the whole of Europe at their beck and call. The rapid development of radio indicates that it is following the course of the automobile, the phonograph and other modern inventions which have added to the pleasure and comfort of mankind.

MIDDLE WEST FANS BEARING BRUNT OF WAVE LENGTH PIRACY

Broadcasting stations using very low and very high wave lengths are quite happy under the present anarchy in the air, but those shooting in the congested middle of the broadcasting band are hampered by interference from wave jumpers, according to reports received by the National Better Business bureau of New York, which last week started an investigation of broadcasting conditions in the United States.

Letters from listeners indicate that interference is worse in the middle west than in any other part of the country. B. L. Shinn of the local office of the bureau said that the bureau had not formulated a plan for improving the situation and would not do so until and unless the survey justified it. Mr. Shinn would not say what form the campaign for betterment might take, whether pressure would be applied directly to offending broadcasters or in Washington when congress convenes.

GREAT CHAIN OF STATIONS, PLAN OF RADIO CORP.

Pays $1,000,000 for WEAF of New York.

New York Sept. 18.—[Special.]—The formation of the National Broadcasting company, Inc., as a solution of the problem of establishing national and permanent radio broadcasting, was announced by Owen D. Young and Gen. James G. Harbord, chairman of the board and president, respectively, of the Radio Corporation of America, in a formal statement today.

M. H. Aylesworth, formerly chairman of the Colorado Public Utilities commission, and more recently managing director of the National Electric Light association, has been named at the president of the new company which will make station WEAF, formerly owned by the American Telephone and Telegraph company, as the nucleus of a national broadcasting service.

Active Control, Nov 15.

While all the plans of the new company have not been formulated, it was stated last evening that the National Broadcasting company, Inc., would take control of WEAF on Nov. 15 and might lease time from other stations. The policies of the new company were outlined fully in a statement signed jointly by Mr. Young and Gen. Harbord, and it was pointed out that any group of stations, willing to finance a cross-country chain, would be welcomed in the field, either competitively or cooperatively. According to the statement the R. C. A. paid $1,000,000 for station WEAF.

"There have been more than enough broadcasting stations to serve the public," Mr. Aylesworth said, "and the essence of the formation of the National Broadcasting company, Inc., is to conserve and make permanent existing facilities, rather than to add anything to the growing contention for wave lengths.

Best Programs Available.

"The purpose of the National Broadcasting company will be to provide the best program available for broadcasting in the United States. The new company will not only broadcast these programs through station WEAF, but it will make them available to other broadcasting stations throughout the country so far as it may be practicable to do so, and they may desire to take them.

"It is hoped that arrangements may be made so that every event of national importance may be broadcast widely throughout the United States.

"The National Broadcasting company, Inc., will flourish in proportion to the manner in which its programs please the public, and it will be the policy of the company to arrange its programs constantly with this thought in mind."

CHORAL MUSIC IS NEW FEATURE OF W-G-N PROGRAMS

Choral music, always a popular feature with radio fans, is to play a large part in the fall and winter programs of W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel. One or more of the city's best known choral organizations are to be presented monthly by the station.

The choral season for W-G-N starts next Sunday when the Irving Park Lutheran church choir of fifty voices makes its appearance. The choir is directed by Harry T. Carlson, who has wielded the baton over many of the splendid vocal organizations heard from the station in the past. Their program is replete with many popular choral selections.

Hamm and His Orchestra Now on Air from WSWS

Fred Hamm and his orchestra who are now playing over station WSWS, through Terrace Garden, are again on a 375.8 meter wave length, over which their first popularity was gained, when Charlie Erbstein owned WCEE.

Announcing the New Balkite

Light Socket Radio Power Units

The new Balkite Radio Power Units supply power for every radio need from the light socket. They are the last word in convenient radio power. The new Balkite Charger gives you in one unit the convenience of a trickle charger and the large capacity of a high rate charger. It combines in one charger the advantages of both trickle and intermittent charging.

The three Balkite "B"s furnish "B" power from the light socket for every type of radio set—from the average set of five tubes that is served by the popular priced Balkite "B"-W to the unusual set that requires Balkite "B"-Y with a capacity of 150 volts.

With Balkite Units you can operate any radio set from the light socket.

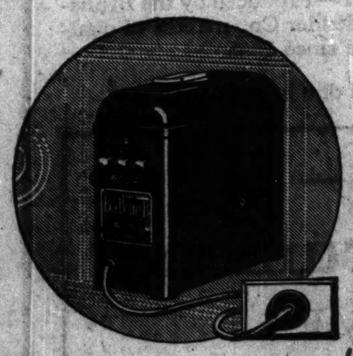
Balkite Light Socket Power is noiseless power. There is no hum. It is peak power always. It is never low and never runs down, but is always exactly what is required by the set. It is permanent power; Balkite Radio Power Units are permanent pieces of equipment. They employ no bulbs, and have nothing to replace or renew. They require no other attention than the infrequent addition of water. They cannot deteriorate from either use or disuse. Other than a negligible amount of household current their first cost is the last. With sets of high current requirements their use is highly desirable for the saving alone. They are simple to install and require no changes in your set.

Over 650,000 radio receivers—one of every ten—are already Balkite equipped. Equip yours with Balkite Radio Power Units and convert it into a light socket receiver. Know the convenience of Balkite light socket operation and the pleasure of owning a set always ready to operate at full power. Fansteel Products Company, Inc., North Chicago, Illinois.

The New Balkite Charger

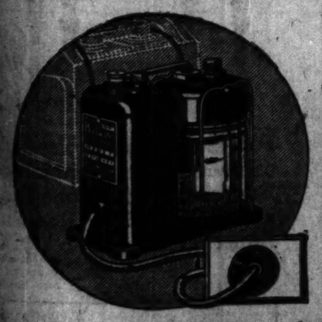
MODEL J. The new Balkite Charger for "A" batteries has two charging rates: A low rate which when used on continuous or trickle charge will usually be enough to keep your storage battery fully charged. A high rate for rapid charging. This charger can thus be used either for trickle or intermittent charging. It combines in one unit the advantages of both methods.

The Balkite Charger is noiseless in operation. In most cases it can be used during operation of the set. Large water capacity. Visible electrolyte level. Rates: with 6-volt battery, 2.5 and .5 amperes; with 4-volt battery, .8 and .2 amperes. Special model for 25-40 cycles. Price $19.50.



A New Balkite "B" at $27.50

Balkite "B" is one of the outstanding successes in radio. Eliminates "B" batteries and supplies "B" current from the light socket. Entirely different from any other "B" device. Entirely noiseless, permanent, has no bulbs and nothing to wear out or replace. Over 75,000 in use. Three new models. The new popular-priced Balkite "B"-W at $27.50 for sets of 5 tubes or less requiring 67 to 90 volts. Balkite "B"-X, for sets of 8 tubes or less; capacity 30 milliamperes at 135 volts—$42. Balkite "B"-Y, for any standard radio set; capacity 40 milliamperes at 150 volts—$69.



Balkite Trickle Charger

MODEL K. With 6-volt "A" batteries can be left on continuous or trickle charge automatically keeping the battery at full power. Converts your "A" battery into a light socket "A" power supply. With 4-volt batteries can be used as an intermittent charger. Or as a trickle charger if a resistance is added. Rate about .5 ampere. 200,000 in use. Price $10.

Balkite Combination — furnishes automatic radio power

The new Balkite Combination Radio Power Unit, which will be in the hands of your dealer shortly, when connected to your "A" battery and the light socket supplies automatic power to both "A" and "B" circuits. Controlled by the filament switch already on your set, it is entirely automatic in operation. Serves any set now using either 4 or 6-volt "A" batteries and requiring not more than 30 milliamperes at 135 volts of "B" current—practically all sets of up to 8 tubes. Price $59.50.

All Balkite Radio Power Units operate from 110-120 volt AC current with models for both 60 and 50 cycles

Listen to the Balkite Radio Symphony Concerts with WALTER DAMROSCH and the New York Symphony

Shortly you can have a symphony season at home. On Saturday evening, October 23rd, begin the Balkite Series of Radio Symphony Concerts with Walter Damrosch, dean of American Conductors, and his New York Symphony Orchestra.

The first concert will be a full symphony program. During the following weeks there will be a symphony concert every other Saturday. On alternate Saturdays Mr. Damrosch will give a piano lecture recital alone.

These concerts will be broadcast regularly on Saturday nights, at 9 P. M. Eastern Standard Time, over Stations WEAF—New York, WEEI—Boston, WGR—Buffalo, WFI—Philadelphia, WCAE—Pittsburgh, WSAI—Cincinnati, WTAM—Cleveland, WWJ—Detroit, WGN—Chicago, WCCO—Minneapolis-St. Paul, KSD—St. Louis, WDAF—Kansas City. Watch the newspapers for detailed announcements later.

Music electrically reproduced is true to life!

YOU will experience the musical thrill of a lifetime when first you hear the Panatrope! Nothing in the world of music has ever created such profound interest and enthusiasm. It is a new and finer kind of musical instrument which reproduces the complete range of musical sound—every color and shading, every sustained vibration, every nuance of tone—all brought to you as true as life itself. You really owe it to yourself to hear the Brunswick Panatrope before you decide on any musical instrument or radio!

The name P-A-N-A-T-R-O-P-E means "entire musical scale"

Electrical recording coupled with electrical reproducing

Brunswick was the first to synchronize electrical recording with electrical reproduction — and the marvelous results you find only in the Panatrope. Under the old method it was possible to record but a small fraction of the vibrations of musical sound—but with "light-ray" recording it is possible to record anything within the range of audibility—and the full musical scale.

Brunswick Panatrope P-10. Finished in highly figured walnut. Width 33½ inches, height 44½ inches, depth 22 inches. Operates on alternating current 110 volts, 50 to 60 cycles.

The ultimate in musical reproduction —the Panatrope

It is only through the combined efforts of Brunswick and the country's leading electrical laboratories that this marvelous musical instrument has been developed. In addition, the Panatrope may be chosen in beautiful cabinet models to suit your home or preference. We cannot adequately describe this wonderful new instrument, so we invite you to hear it. Call upon us for a demonstration, gladly furnished without obligation.

Note these superior features of the Brunswick Panatrope

RADIO USE—The Panatrope, due to its electrical features, may be used as the loud speaker unit for your radio. Operating as it does from the light socket, it eliminates the need for "B" batteries for your radio set. The Panatrope-Radiola, the combination of Brunswick Panatrope and Radiola Superheterodyne, encased in beautiful cabinets, operates directly from your light socket and eliminates all batteries.

Brunswick Panatropes
$400 to $650
Panatrope with Radiola
$775 to $1,000
Convenient terms of payment if desired.

TONE—The Panatrope brings musical results that are simply amazing.

OPERATION—No delicate adjustment to worry you. Operates directly from your light socket. A child can operate it.

RELIABILITY—Produced by the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., makers of quality merchandise since 1845.

Brunswick Panatrope operates from house current. No tiresome winding. Everything in one beautiful cabinet.

Hunt Clubs Answer the Call of Autumn

By Mme. X.

VIEW hallo! Tira lira! The 'orn of the 'unter is 'eard on the 'ill. These are the days when that almost pre-historic animal, the horse, comes into his own for a couple of months among some of the folk who compose that tiny segment of the social order dubbed by a clever Frenchman "the world that amuses itself." In the outlying suburbs of Chicago riding boots have been taken out of their moth balls and polished up; breeches, both male and female, are shaken out and brushed; saddles are in order and horses are carefully groomed.

Out Lake Forest way the forty or more members of the Onwentsia Hunt club start their tri-weekly runs today. Austin Niblack is M. F. H., as he has been for the last two or three years. He and his handsome wife are enthusiastic devotees of this lively and decidedly perilous sport, and are always in the lead in the strenuous cross country runs. Other dashing riders who breathe the wild anise seed brg over hill and fens, over fences and ditches, are the Donald Ryersons, the "Andy" Clarks, the "Joe" Bowens, the McCormick Blairs, the "Billy" Blairs, the Charles Mrs. "Billy" Swift, her sister, Miss Jane Morton, the two inseparable sisters, the Misses "Libby" and Janet Chase, Miss Alicia Patterson, Mr. Noble B. Judah, Edward Hines Jr., Francis T. Johnson, Joseph T. Ryerson, and John Borden.

Distinctly Social.

A meet is distinctly a social function, as the cross country runs are followed by a numerous cortège of motorists, it being "the thing," especially on Sunday afternoons, to follow the hunt by highways and byways, from one important point to another, the route being always carefully laid out. At the allotted cross road jumps the crowds gather and, abandoning their cars, crowd near the double fence jumps and pass the time o' day until the cry rises, "There they come," and the yelp of the hounds and the far cry of the huntsman's horn confirm the assertion.

The first appearance of the riders is generally heralded by the fluttering of the tails of the pack hounds as they emerge from the under brush, then the cry of hunters can be descried, dodging trees or galloping across rough or plowed fields. The first to reach the cross road are usually the most successful jumpers of the double set of fences, as their skill makes them lead the hunt. Then come the less experienced riders and the risky nature of the sport makes itself felt by the spectators. A stumble here and a tumble there adds that element of excitement which links cross country riding, as a spectacle, with the sports in the Roman Forum centuries ago. The Onwentsia team hunts Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Sundays.

Onwentsia's Annual Show.

The annual show set by the Onwentsia Hunt club is its Race Hunt meet, dated this season for Oct. 2. There are already many entries for this event, which always draws a large crowd of onlookers. The meet takes place on the Onwentsia's spacious meadows. It is always a lovely scene, as the field set aside for the various runs and races is entirely surrounded by the golf course, and the onlooker can watch the absorbed golfers and speculate on the quality of their intentness, as the latter go on their way, oblivious of the dangerous feats and occasional disasters that are going on nearby.

This year this race meet, which is open to all contestants, will be followed on the next day by a "point to point run," as the Britishers call their cross country races. It used to be known as a steeplechase, as the usage for generations was to set the race between two visible, but widely separated, steeples in a varied countryside. This run will be open only to members of the Onwentsia Hunt club. It is an innovation and promises much fun for the participants.

They are divided up into teams of two, composed of a man and a woman. Those taking part are led by the M. F. H. to a distant spot. There he leaps into a motor car and leaves them to find their way back to a designated goal. As most of the folk who follow the hounds pay little attention to the configuration of the countryside and are not at all familiar with that lying about Chicago, it is expected that many of them will go astray and wander far afield in their endeavors to be the first to reach the rallying place. A prize is offered for the first couple to make it.

A Sport Makes Its Debut Here.

Capt. Ivanenko suggested a point to point race last year and Mrs. Niblack proposed the mixed team form of the race. She brought back the idea from Aiken, S. C., where last winter th's sport was first tried out. Mrs. Thomas Hitchcock is M. F. H. there, and the run was in the Whitney Woods. Some of the contestants were hours in finding their way to the rendezvous, a remote and wooded hilltop. One pair was seen headed for Georgia as the first stage of their run, so little idea did most of the riders have as to the lay of the land. This Aiken adventure was voted a great success. It will be interesting to see how it turns out in the northeast stretches of Illinois.

Three regular members of the Lake Forest hunts, Mrs. Howard Linn and Mr. and Mrs. David Adler, will be much missed this season. They are MISS MARIAN HUBBARD HOLT, daughter of Mrs. Charles S. Holt of 38 Bellevue place and Lake Forest, was married on Sept. 11 to Evans Spalding, son of Mrs. Andrew G. C. Breese of Boston and Manchester, Mass. Mr. and Mrs. Spalding are to reside in Boston.

Miss Glee Louise Viles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence M. Viles of 1433 State parkway, was presented to society on Sept. 11 at the residence of her paternal grandmother, Mrs. James Viles of Willow Bend, Lake Forest. Miss Viles returned this summer from Europe, where she completed her education.

Miss Jean Milsted, daughter of Mrs. Thomas G. Milsted of 2256 Lincoln Park west, is to be among the season's debutantes, her mother having announced Oct. 22 as the date of a reception at which her daughter will be presented to her friends. Miss Milsted is the sister of Mrs. Dwight Smith and John C. Milsted.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Webber McNear of the Lake Shore Drive hotel will give a ball on Dec. 28 at the Blackstone, to introduce their daughter, Janice. The McNears have spent the summer at their attractive cottage bordering the Exmoor Country club in Highland Park.

junketing about Europe at the present moment. As the hunts go on through November, weather permitting, it is probable that they will be able to join them at the close of the season, as all three are expecting to return some time in October.

Winnetka, which has a lively riding club of thirty or forty members; the Indian Hill Hunt, and a pack of hounds, started its hunting season earlier than Lake Forest this year as its first meet was a week ago yesterday, that is, Sept. 11. The Indian Hillites meet Tuesday and Thursday mornings and the matutinal hour of half past six o'clock, and Saturday afternoons at half past three. C. Colton Daughaday is M. F. H. Among the other enthusiastic Winnetka riders to hounds are Mr. and Mrs. Donald McPherson, Mrs. Arthur Cable, Mrs. Arthur Cox, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Butler, and Mr. and Mrs. Martin Lindsay.

Exploring Some Byways.

Few people who have not explored the byroads of that part of the state that lies north and west of Chicago have any idea of its many charming and diverse features. The writer was taken by one of the best known authorities on our native landscape recently to see what was being done out beyond Mundelein in the way of making scenery. There, under the direction of a company in which Samuel Insull is interested, a lovely lake is in process of creation, a body of water which, when finished, will be a mile long and from a half to a quarter of a mile wide. It has a lovely little wooded island in it, which will be conserved as a shelter for wild duck as they make their semi-annual pilgrimages.

On the west shore of the lake a golf club is being laid out. An old farm house has been transformed into a clubhouse, with an orchard and a simple garden nearby.

The rolling, prolific prairies, with their alternating fields, their thickly wooded groves, and their distant views of more woods and meadows, recall English landscapes, especially this year, when the moist season has made everything verdant and luscious, and when the earth mists give the same effect that make the British isle one of nature's loveliest spots. Motorists generally confine their peregrinations to hard roads, fearing the soft and yielding surfaces of the average country lanes. This predilection makes it all the pleasanter for the explorer of these byways, for one of the great charms of such excursions is the unlikelihood of meeting any other car.

To travel in a comfortable roadster along a soft and remote road between lush fields, or through one of the genial little groves that dot the landscape, with an occasional farmhouse apparently plunged in bucolic stupor to remind one that the land is inhabited, to meet an occasional herd of cattle or pigs ambling along, and have to wait their pleasure, to sniff the sweet clover on the wayside or stop a moment to listen to the song of a meadow lark—well, there is nothing in swifter riding that can compare with the exquisite delight of such a leisurely drive through the serene, rural land.

Chicago's Literary Notables.

Chicago's literary achievements have been many and various since its earliest days. One of its first contributions to our native writings was Mrs. Whistler's "Waubun," a somewhat fanciful description of the Chicago massacre. Since then many local writers have achieved wide renown, fame that has spread far beyond the bounds of Cook county. Here are just a few names that come to the writer's feeble brain: Eugene Field, Henry B. Fuller, Hobart C. Chatfield-Taylor, Joseph Kirkland, Slason Thompson, Anna De Koven, Louise De Koven Bowen, Mary Borden Spears, Edward Blair, Harriet Monroe, Marion Stroble, Janet A. Fairbank, Joseph Medill Patterson. Well does she know that she has forgotten some of the most important, and for such omission she begs forgiveness.

Among the latest to join this honorable list is young Justin Sturm, who made his debut in fiction this summer when Harper's published his first novel, "The Bad Samaritan." The title is a clever one, though the reader does not discover its aptness until the eleventh hour. The book itself is, to your scribe, extremely interesting. It is the very voice of youth today, in youth's modern language. By this I mean that its manner is cubistic. The short, vivid phrases are like strong, well shaped blocks or bricks laid one on top of the other. At first, to one for many decades accustomed to the sonorous phrases inherited from Scott, Thackeray, Meredith, and Hardy, it is not easy reading. You have to supply so much atmosphere and color to the text. But gradually out of the somewhat hard outlines emerges as sweet and tender a love story as one could ask. Dick, Bill, Barbara, and Bob become flesh and blood. Those verbal bricks merely build the shrine that holds them.

Many a neat little phrase can be picked out of Mr. Sturm's cubistic sentences.

"Although Dick never expected to find such high prices in Paradise, he was certain that he had arrived at that spot as he sat very near Barbara that night at the dining room of the Blackstone hotel."

"Men who work with their hands use their brains for recreation. Men who work with their brains use their hands for recreation."

There is a strain of youthful gayety through the narrative that engages the sympathies of the reader.

Once more this chronicler has to hand it to the youth of today for cleverness, originality, strength, and a sturdy foundation. The young men and women of the present time may do many things and say more that shock their elders, some of the accusations made against their morals and manners may be justified, but they have outdistanced their forbears in energy, ability, and courage.

Placing the Responsibility.

I am departing from the discussion of Mr. Sturm's maiden effort, and want to join for a moment in a widespread debate on what is to be the outcome of the apparently loose ideas and practices of a certain portion of the young people of this post-war period. In the first place the ultimate responsibility should be placed, not on the war or the eighteenth amendment or any other outside agency, but primarily on their parents. The latter for the last twenty-five years or more have not been on their job. They have not made their homes the chief source of joy and delight to their children. The parents were the first to stray from the hearth.

The men have given to golf the time their fathers gave to them. The women have devoted that leisure to bridge which their mothers devoted to them. How many mothers do you know who make it a practice to read aloud good literature to their children? How many fathers in your acquaintance try to shape their sons' minds and superintend their sports?

Where Hope Lies.

I think that the great hope or cure for much of the present condition lies in the hands of the youth of today. To them will come the vivid realization of the poor heritage they will leave their children if the latter are not guarded as they themselves never were. The pendulum will swing the other way; the reaction will come through their own knowledge of the disastrous spiritual and physical results of their license.

Their cynically acquired wisdom will seem to them the last thing they will want their tender, sweet, innocent little boys and girls to have, and they will know what steps to take to protect their offspring. At least, I believe and hope this will be the case. Already there is perceptible among many young men a waxing sense of decency which is shown in their admiring way of speaking of the carefully brought up and better sheltered girls, for there are many of the latter and they are increasing in number, too.

Well, that's off my chest, and by it I mean to imply that there is lots to admire and cherish in the coming generation, and it's a safe bet that the future is safe in its hands in spite of the gloomy predictions of many.

Passing Through Town.

Two well known Chicagoites passed almost unnoticed through town within the last ten days. Mrs. Arthur Ryerson was here overnight on her way to see her niece, Miss Sophie Norris at Colorado Springs, Colo., and Charles Dewey cooked in on one or two Chicago friends last week-end en route to Minneapolis. He and Garrard Winston are making extremely good in the Treasury department at Washington. The latter is first assistant secretary under Andrew D. Mellon, and "Charlie" Dewey is, I believe, next under him.

The Deweys are bringing out their young daughter, Miss Suzette, this winter in Washington. She is of somewhat the same charming, petite type as Miss Glee Louise Viles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Viles, who also makes her bow to Chicago society this coming season. Both of these young women are as different as possible from the so-called modern young woman, the amazing Amazon who has shot up so tall, vigorous and competent, who swings a golf club as well as a man, who can swim the Hellespont or British channel, who can play better and later bridge than the men, who can "carry her liquor" as well as the best of them. She's a grand creature, this A. A., but her dainty and exquisite little sister outpaces her at times.

This Year's Debutantes.

This year's bouquet of debutantes is of especially high quality. Besides Miss Viles there are Miss Grace McGann, tall, slender, and lovely, and Miss Ellen Borden, smaller but vivacious and attractive. She is devoted to music and plays the piano delightfully. Miss Katherine Thorne is still another debutante of the coming winter. A fifth is Miss Jane Logan, granddaughter of the famous civil war warrior, Gen. John A. Logan.

That shrine of an important section of Chicago's "pretty people," the Casino, opened its doors for the coming season last Wednesday. It is all dressed up in its new clothes. The charming little salon, which has been for lo, these many years a symphony of gray, marble-ish walls, a ceiling of radiant white, also marble-ish, and which its crimson curtains render especially rich and warm. ing on the imminence of the chill days of autumn, are further accentuated by the dense battalions of flies that at the moment cling to the K. family's front screen door and creep in under its loose sill. Never before did a summer fly by so fast, nor an autumn approach at so swift a pace. Winter, with its grand opera and balls, looms ahead in no uncertain fashion.

But gardens are still bearing flowers and fruits, and the committee in charge of the Chicago Plant, Flower and Fruit Guild is still on duty at Gate No. 16 at the Northwestern station awaiting offerings for the flowerless and others who are by fate denied these luxuries. It is almost your last chance to contribute to this excellent enterprise, as soon the first frost is likely to nip the adjacent gardens and their products, and you'd hate to see your treasures shriveled and brown on their stems when they might have brought joy to some less fortunate mortal.

WEDDINGS

No wedding or engagement announcement will be published in The Tribune unless it bears the signature, address, and telephone number of a parent of either the bride or the bridegroom. NEWS OF NEW YORK SOCIETY

Gotham Shows It's Still a Bit Insular

By Dolly Madison.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—With Viscountess Astor but just departed for the quiet of Virginia, society in New York is breathing a little easier. More, perhaps, than any one else, the one-time Nancy Langhorne of three-sister fame manages to put a flea in the ear of smart New York.

It may be pure jealousy, but there is no doubt at all that the breezy, husky-voiced pleasantries that make Lady Astor's British constituents fairly writhe with laughter fail to produce even the semblance of a cheer on this side of the water.

New York society is quite as insular as London society was once supposed to have been. Englishmen and women are accepted as such, but woe betide the American who carries the English stamp, and this in the case of Lady Astor is what metropolitan society cannot forgive. An English woman born, who had attained the distinction of being the first woman member of parliament, would be feted and quite likely fawned upon in many cases, but an American born member of parliament is another entity. There is ground for believing that Lady Astor is indeed a prophet without honor in her native society.

Few Appearances.

Beyond a luncheon or two, at one of which she was hostess, Lady Astor made few appearances in what social events were on the week's calendar. Together with her niece, Mrs. Ronald Tree, formerly Mrs. Henry Field, she was guest of honor at a gathering at the Plaza. This, together with her public appearance, when she spoke over the radio, constituted Nancy's activities; and while the city most certainly is dull at present, one might reasonably expect that the lady from overseas would have been more widely feted.

In connection with the Astors, a tale is being told that reflects social New York's viewpoint. They say that following Viscount Astor's entrance into the house of lords, and Lady Astor's subsequent taking of his seat in the house of commons, a typical navvy at a prelection meeting observed Lady Astor holding forth from the stand and a quiet gentleman seated near her. When, naturally, he demanded of a friend who the lady was, his friend turned upon him in disgust, "O, O, O," he repeated, "why, that's Lady Astor, an' yer see the bloke next to 'er? Yus? Well, that's Mr. Lady Astor!"

However, with Viscount Astor returned to London with the Astor children, and Lady Astor ensconced in Virginia, New York is forgetting its irritation at the irrepressible Nancy.

Dazzling Deauville.

For several winters past, New York has been dazzled by Ralph Beaver Strassburger's parties at the Ritz, one of which was reputed to have set the Philadelphia millionaire back at least $50,000, which, despite the fact that there are more millionaires than ever in New York, is an unusual amount of money to be lavished on one entertainment.

At the last of the Strassburger fêtes, in which the Crystal room of the Ritz was changed beyond all description and veritably hidden beneath masses of flowers that cost a king's ransom, every one of note, not only in New York but in Philadelphia, was present in the gathering of over a thousand, and the consensus of opinion was that the Strassburger affair was easily the most resplendent of the winter's functions.

This summer, however, the Philadelphia millionaire has shifted his hospitality to Europe, and at his villa, La Ferme du Coteau at Deauville, gave a great entertainment for all the celebrities of New York, London and Paris society before the homeward migration began. The apparent guests of honor were Lord Louis Mountbatten and Lady Mountbatten, who were so generously received by New York society some seasons ago.

Among native social light at the fête were Miss Marjorie Bourne, the Kenneth O'Briens, Mrs. O'Brien being Katherine Mackay, a daughter of Clarence H. Mackay, and elder sister of the storm ridden Mrs. Irving Berlin. Naturally that hardy perennial, Barry Wall, was present, and I hope that he enjoyed himself more than he did on his last visit to New York, when the former glass of fashion went about in a daze, as if openly wondering what had become of society as he had known it. Francis Burke Roche, almost twin brother of Baron Fermoy, and a Newport favorite, was also present.

Among the English and French notables were Sir John Lavery, the noted artist, and Lady Lavery, Lord and Lady Stanley, the Marquis De St. Sauveur, Marquis De Carrizosa, Countess Karolyi and Count Sampieri.

Watching the Ponies.

The polo at the Meadowbrook club at Westbury is always considered as something more than merely a gathering to watch men and ponies in an ancient game. Despite distractions in the form of racing at Belmont, a few local dog shows, and such, the turnout for the initial affair was far from disappointing, and those promised for the open championships, which take place early in October are expected to surpass in brilliance all other gatherings in former years.

While many prefer to sit in the members' box, which is uniquely perched on top of the club stand, there were many jolly parties who remained in their motors throughout the match which was played at the end of the week. The reason for this is that New York is still greatly addicted to "something warm" at all outdoors affairs, not waiting in the least for the football season to start. The sound of clinking ice of shuddering cocktail shakers, mingled in the air with the pound of hoofs, and the smack of club on willow ball.

Among the smart folk seen at the initial gathering were Mr. and Mrs. T. Markee Robertson, Mrs. Robertson being the former Cordelia Biddle who was divorced from the late Angier Duke just prior to his sudden demise. Also Mr. and Mrs. S. Bryce Wing, Mr. and Mrs. John Phipps Jr., Mrs. Devereux Milburn, Mrs. J. Watson Webb, Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, Mr. and Mrs. W. Goadby Loew, Mr. Marshall Field, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hitchcock, Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Stevenson, and Mr. and Mrs. Grayson M. P. Murphy.

Newport Is Almost Deserted.

While Newport will continue to be far from deserted during the remainder of the month, the many departures of prominent people are making themselves felt. Among the notables making ready to leave are Mrs. Hamilton McKown Twombly and her daughter, Miss Ruth Vanderbilt Twombly. Mrs. Twombly, the former Florence Vanderbilt, is one of the old guard in New York society, and the continued state of spinsterhood of her daughter, Ruth, while far from pleasing, is beginning to be generally accepted as unalterable.

Others who are leaving include the Forsyth Wickes, who are returning to this city, as are Mr. and Mrs. E. H. P. Ripley. Count and Countess Alfonso Villa are to remain for the fall season, but Mr. and Mrs. George Widener and Mrs. Widener's daughter, Miss Diana Dodge, who have been visiting the Alexander Hamilton Rices, are leaving this week-end. Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Mills have already gone and soon to go are Mrs. J. Theus Munds and Mr. and Mrs. T. Suffern Taller.

No Waving of Banners.

Nothing at all seems to be in preparation for the coming of Queen Marie of Roumania, whose departure is now set for the twentieth of October. By that time, of course, society will be fully returned and all the autumn sports in full fling. This, according to the far from charitable ones, will give Queen Marie a great chance to display herself, but what society's attitude or rôle will be is not being imparted at present.

Country houses are the exception rather than the rule, these days. Indeed, other than a few rose embowered ceremonies in the nuptial month of June, society seldom leaves the purlieus of Manhattan to attend the rites connecting notable families.

This October, however, will see the haut monde journeying into lovely Westchester when Dorothy Iselin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Iselin of Bedford House, Katonah, becomes the bride of Guy S. Paschal of New York and Washington, D. C.

A House with a History.

In so far as antiquity is concerned, there is no older ancestral mansion in use today than Bedford House, which was built and occupied by Miss Iselin's forbear of six generations ago, the famous John Jay, first justice of the Supreme Court of the United States and also governor of the state of New York. The estate, in possession of Mrs. Iselin, was inherited by her from her father, the late William Jay.

Related on the paternal side to several of New York's noted families Miss Iselin is also a great niece on the maternal side of Charles May Oelrichs and the late Hermann Oelrichs of Newport, one of the most striking figures in society several decades ago.

With all these social ramifications it is not necessary to say that the list of guests who will attend the wedding at Katonah next month will resemble a roster of all the names distinguishing New York society since the beginning of the age of innocence.

One Month After Graduating from Coyne

Clyde E Hart EARNS $100 a Week

Why should you pike along on $25, $30, $35 a week when you can easily be earning $50 a week upwards in fascinating electrical work?

Mr. Hart finished his 12 weeks' course at COYNE July 31st, 1926. Eleven days later he secured a position with the Great Western Railroad paying him $100 a week. His story is but one of many of COYNE graduates who stepped into big-pay electrical positions after a few weeks at COYNE. If you want to learn to earn more—

Learn Electricity at

in 12 Weeks of Practical Shop Training

Previous experience or advanced education not needed at COYNE, where you learn by actually doing all kinds of electrical work on over $100,000 of equipment. That's the best and quickest way to learn. No books; no lessons; no time wasted on useless theory. Ours is the most practical and complete electrical training you can get.

Earn $50—$100 a Week

Don't be satisfied with less! We can absolutely prove it is not unusual for our graduates to earn from $50 to $200 a week after they leave us at COYNE. Hundreds of jobs awaiting our graduates.

Investigate! Learn what Electricity and COYNE can do for you. Learn how we teach. Go through our school. Shops open for inspection any day and Monday, Wednesday, Friday evenings until 9:15, other days every evening until 9:15, Sunday from 9 to 4. Enroll now. Day and evening classes.

NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS WORLD

Disciples of Christ Meet at Mattoon

BY THE REV. W. B. NORTON.

BEGINNING tomorrow evening the seventy-sixth annual Illinois convention of the Disciples of Christ will be held in the Christian church, Mattoon. The convention will adjourn at the close of the Thursday evening service. The Disciples do not use "the Rev." in their programs and it is not always easy to determine whether a minister or a layman is intended. We will follow their custom. Following the devotional service tomorrow evening, in which W. E. M. Hackleman, Indianapolis, and C. M. Wright, Allendale, will take part, Samuel E. Fisher of Normal, president of the convention, will give his presidential address.

On Wednesday at 1 o'clock there will be a complimentary dinner at Barney's Prairie church. Joseph L. Fisher of Logansport, Ind., will speak on the subject, "How the Disciples Grew and Prevailed."

Wednesday evening a banquet will be served at which the principal address will be by Robert M. Hopkins of St. Louis on "The Expanding Program of Religious Education." On Thursday Perry J. Rice will speak on "The Opportunity of the Disciples in Greater Chicago."

Thursday noon two luncheons, one for ministers' wives and one for laymen, will be given. The affiliating organizations uniting in the convention are the Christian Missionary and Christian Woman's Missionary societies, Crusade for Christian Education, Disciples' Foundation, and Centennial Campaign for Eureka College, all titles to be preceded by the word Illinois.

On Tuesday morning at 10:30, his eminence, Cardinal Mundelein, will observe the 17th anniversary of his consecration to the episcopacy with a religious ceremony at the Cathedral of the Holy Name at Superior and North State streets. Solemn hight mass will be celebrated by the Rev. William R. Griffin, pastor of Mary Queen of Heaven church, Cicero, assisted by the Rev. S. Lucey and the Rev. D. Cunningham of the cathedral. The Rev. J. Morrison of the cathedral will be master of ceremonies. Deacons of honor to the cardinal will be the Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. J. FitzSimons, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. T. P. Bons, and the Rt. Rev. Msgr. P. L. Biermann. Many of the clergy and laity of the diocese will attend. Cardinal Mundelein was consecrated titular bishop of Loryma and auxiliary bishop of Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 21, 1909. He was made Archbishop of Chicago Dec. 9, 1915, and cardinal, March 24, 1924.

Yesterday morning Cardinal Mundelein ordained a class of eleven young men in the priesthood at St. Mary of the Lake seminary, Mundelein, Ill. The event was notable as marking the first class ordained at the seminary. The newly ordained priests will say their first masses today in various churches.

St. Keith's Catholic church at 105th street and Torrence avenue will be dedicated today at 10:30 by his eminence, Cardinal Mundelein. Following the dedicatory solemn high mass will be celebrated by the Rev. Michael F. O'Brien, C. M., of De Paul university, and the sermon will be preached by the Rev. Msgr. John F. Ryan, pastor of St. Barnard's church. The Rev. F. L. Byrnes is pastor of St. Kevin's. The auditorium will seat 600. The church is of brick and Bedford stone.

Dr. A. J. Loeppert is the new district superintendent of the Chicago district of the Chicago Northwest German conference of the Methodist Episcopal church.

Dr. E. S. Gilmore, superintendent of the Wesley Memorial hospital, and a trustee of the American Hospital association, will leave Friday to attend the association meeting at Atlantic City, N. J.

The women's auxiliary of Des Plaines camp ground will meet Wednesday for 12:30 luncheon at the Swift plant at the Union Stockyards.

The carnival conducted at St. Canisius Catholic church at North and Leclair avenues for the benefit of the new church will continue until tomorrow night. The Rev. James Cunningham is pastor.

The Luthern Young People's Officers' institute, under the auspices of the Walther league educational department, will be held today from 3 to 9 p. m. at the Hotel Sherman.

The Rev. E. Ashley Gerhard, rector of Christ Episcopal church, Winnetka, has been appointed associate secretary of the national field department of the Episcopal church.

THE REV. DAVID E. GIBSON.
[Keehne Photo.]

The Rev. David E. Gibson combines the duties of pastor, priest in charge, and superintendent of the Cathedral Shelter of the Episcopal church, Washington boulevard and North Peoria street. Father Gibson has a staff of several helpers, but he gives devoted and continuous personal attention to the physical, vocational, and spiritual needs of the community in which the shelter is located and to the thousands of transients who seek food, clothing, healing, employment, spiritual instruction and comfort, reconciliation of marital troubles, matrimony, visitation in jail, trouble in the court, burial of friends and even of the friendless.

At the present time a well directed effort is being made to raise funds for more adequate buildings and a more substantial foundation for current expenses. A woman's Cathedral Shelter guild has already gained more than 600 members and is seeking, under the presidency of Mrs. C. J. Schofield, ten thousand who will contribute $1 annually and help in other ways.

Father Gibson serves all who need without respect to race, creed, or color, and his supporters include representatives of all churches and those of no church who have humanitarian sympathies. A beautiful church service in which the clergy appear in vestments is an essential part of the daily ministration.

A few items in last year's record will give a hint of the vast total: Communions at the shelter, 2,535; burials, 57; hospital calls, 1,394; lodgings, 34,000; meals, 59,453; office interviews, 13,130; letters written, 8,175; interviews at jail, 4,513; money collected for prisoners, $8,159; discharged prisoners aided, 1,001.

The new Chatham Fields Community church at 81st street and Maryland avenue will open for service the first unit of its building at 2 o'clock today. Dr. R. A. White of the People's Liberal church will be the principle speaker. Others on the program are Alderman Guy Guernsey, Mrs. Nettie Kenner, grand secretary of the Order of the Eastern Star; the Rev. F. J. Bayles and the pastor, Dr. C. O. Harvey. The Englewood Commandery band will play and other special music will be given. Capt. Monville is chairman of the program committee.

The Rev. Martin Anderson, D. D., will be installed pastor of the United Evangelical Lutheran congregation at 3:30 today in the former St. Paul's church at Hirsch street and Washtenaw avenue. The congregation has been formed by the merger of three churches, Our Saviour's, Bethlehem and St. Paul's. The St. Paul's building was recently sold to a Roman Catholic Polish congregation. A new church will soon be built for the united congregation but its exact location is not yet decided on. Dr. J. A. Aasgaard, president of the Norwegian Lutheran church of America, will conduct the installation service. The Rev. H. P. Ausan, former pastor of Our Saviour's, will be associate pastor. Dr. Anderson has previously conducted two church building campaigns.

Ministers and congregations will save confusion if they will remember that daylight saving time ends in Chicago Sept. 27.

Don't Squeeze Blackheads—Dissolve Them

Removing out blackheads makes large, ugly pores. The safe and sane way to get rid of these blemishes is to dissolve them. Get two ounces of Calmitz powder from your drug store, sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth, rub over the blackheads, and every one, big or little, will disappear at once.

A sports fabric of distinction. Durable, superior grade, with rich velvety texture and lovely bloom rarely obtainable in so moderately priced a fabric. In all the fashionable colors, and black.

36-inch printed charmensette, 75c yard

A soft satin-like material, highly mercerised. In a variety of small conventional and floral designs which make piquantly colorful little tub frocks.

A special week of fall dress fabrics and daily lectures on the use of Ladies Home Journal Patterns

Subjects cover what every woman wants to know about Personality in Clothes and the Possibilities of Fall Styles and Fabrics—Silks, Velvets, Woolens, Cottons. Consultation all this week is gratis.

Black satin souple

40-inch, all-silk Fine quality 2.95 Firmly woven Brilliant finish

Smart black attains new smartness in this beautiful supple fabric of rich raven hue. More lustrous than flat crepe, more durable than satin crepe, it combines the best qualities of both.

36-in. silk-faced duvetyne, 1.75

60 beautiful fall shades, and black

Fashionable, practical duvetyne of soft, velvety texture adaptable to the graceful fall modes in frocks, wraps, millinery, lounging robes, smoking jackets, and sportswear. Unequaled for serviceability at this low price. 36 inches wide.

40-inch black chiffon velvet 4.95 and 7.50

Paramount in autumn fashions for all occasions are luxurious and universally becoming black velvets. The 7.50 grade is all-silk and exquisitely soft. The 4.95 grade is an imported silk-faced velvet of excellent quality.

Silks, second floor, State.

Daily lectures—second floor
10:45 A. M.—2:30 P. M.

Mrs. Willa Wilcox Krum

Authority on fashions and fabrics, and widely-known expert in the practical use of patterns, will give two lectures each day.

Throughout the entire week mannequins will display from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. new fall garments made from Ladies Home Journal patterns. You are invited to inspect them minutely.

Free advisory service all week

—on all your personal dress-making problems. Mrs. Krum will tell you how to cut your fabrics most advantageously, how to give smartness and distinction to your new clothes, and will gladly answer your questions.

36-inch imported metal laces, flouncings and allovers, 3.95

Exotic color harmonies, rich contrasts, prismatic hues, and varied patterns are offered in these beautiful metal laces.

39-inch all-silk georgette crepe, French crepe chiffon, 1.95

Subtly flattering are the fluttering frocks fashioned from these fairy-like fabrics which come in flower hues of every tint and shade.

First floor, State.

New fall foundation garments

—insure the slim smartness of your frocks

$12—Corselettes—18.75

The smartness of one's gown depends largely upon the smoothness that lies beneath it, and owes much of its success to the contour of the figure itself. The two corselettes sketched are gently restraining one-piece garments which give the slim even lines which Paris couturiers decree.

Worthy a place in the autumn bride's trousseau is this exquisite white silk brocade garment, with hand-loomed elastic gores.

Combination brassiere and girdle, designed with elastic diaphragm control, and boned in front and back sections

Fifth floor.

54-inch mirroleen

Medium weight 7.50 Lustrous finish

An exquisitely fine wool fabric of unusual beauty and luster, in correct weight for the chic tailored frocks of fall. Comes in the season's most flattering and fashionable colors.

54-inch imported novelty coating, 7.50 yard

Plaid, plain, and tweed effects

A marvel of lightness, suppleness, and warmth is this soft clinging fabric which comes in all the clever weaves and fashionable colors and combinations for smart autumn and winter coats.

Second floor, State.

31-inch charming new chintzes, 58c

Dainty and gay as an old-fashioned nosegay are these quaint and colorful chintzes. They offer fascinating possibilities for crisp school dresses for early autumn wear, and home frocks and aprons.

200 crystal plaque Venetian mirrors

At about one-third less than customary prices.

These might well have graced the palaces fronting the Grand Canal. They add an air of spaciousness and dignity to any room. The shapes are newly conceived.

Sixth floor, State.

Heavy weight silk cords in colors of gold and sand add an extra richness. 75c to 1.25.

Rugs of impelling beauty have just arrived from Persia

All the gorgeous colors which weave wondrous patterns of shadowed sunlight in the winding streets of the exotic East are caught and held in these rich, hand-loomed rugs. To match any decorative scheme there are hundreds of patterns and sizes in this display. We list but a few representative examples:

Heavy silky gorovans

Average size 9x12 feet

$175

In bold bright medallions or smaller more discreet designs. These rugs add a note of luxurious beauty to any home.

Rich mahals

9x12-foot size

197.50

These much sought rugs combine luxury with a remarkably low price.

Rich kermanshas

9x12-foot size

$675

Superb in handicraft and colors. Smaller flowing patterns in rose and blue.

Mosoul rugs of deep pile, vivid as flame. Average size 3x6 feet, at, each, 29.75.

To lend luxury and color to the hallway, choose antique pattern, rose, mulberry, blue and tan.

Eighth floor, Wabash.

Mellow saruks

9x12-foot size

$650

Only five of these, each of which will delight the eye of the connoisseur.

Mats from Anatolia will interest you. All are hand-woven, at, each, 3.75.

Chinese hand-made mats. Heavy quality, each, 2.75.

Persian runners, in modern and semi-antique; average size 3x9 feet, each, 39.75.

An organization wants two men with specialty selling experience, who will replace two others recently promoted to executive positions. Central West territories.

This is not a $15,000 per year job. These men were not promoted in five months; what's more, these men were made no promises as to their future moves in this organization.

For the right type of man, who is prepared for immediate action, to step into the "Sales Shoes" of these two men, we have an opening which stands alone when compared with other permanent and legitimate selling opportunities. The average salesman with us earns around $7,500 per year.

If you are the man who can read between the lines, then a personal interview will be granted you by phoning Mr. M. Rosenfeld, Superior 0855, or write care of C N 539, Tribune.

A1 MEN.

This ad will interest you if you are looking for big money.

How much money could you make if you had 2 qualified prospects on the property guaranteed?

Could you sell 50% of them?

You could on this property. It is miles inside the city limits, transportation here now, activity of the highest degree all around; walking distance of schools, church, business, theaters, and parks. You will be sold when you see it.

In addition to big commissions we will pay a substantial salary and will keep you busy calling on live prospects. This position will appeal to the highest type salesmen in the real estate field, and that is the type we want. Call and I will explain in detail. Lawrence P. Romano, 10 S. La Salle-st., Rm. 1506.

A SALARY OF $50 A WEEK.

In addition to our usual high rate of commission earned, salaries will be placed on a salary basis, ranging upward to $50 a week. This plan is possible because of the high and consistent production of our men. Experienced salesmen in our organization averaged $500 per month for the last four months.

A few two fisted, experienced men will be added to our present staff on a salary and commission basis. Live leads furnished.

INEXPERIENCED MEN MAKE GOOD HERE.

The average earnings of inexperienced men for the past four months have been $452 per month.

We are about to open our new $2,000,000.00 FOURTH ADDITION to GRENNAN HEIGHTS.

Underground improvements are going in. Our big building and advertising program will start soon. The biggest deal we've had. It will pay you to investigate.

A. A. LEWIS REALTY ASSOCIATION WANTS MEN WITHOUT EXPERIENCE.

You have often been tempted to answer a real estate ad because you've heard that there is a lot of money to be made in that business. But you've hesitated because you lack experience. Now, don't let that stand in your way. A large percentage of our men came to us without experience, and they are making good—you can do as well. I do not promise that you can make a fortune at once, but I do say that if you follow my instructions you will work yourself into the best position you ever held in your life.

All I am attempting to do in this ad is to interest you sufficiently to cause you to investigate. I, personally, am going to talk to you and show you what other men like yourself, who came to us without experience, are doing.

See Me Personally.

A NATIONALLY KNOWN

wishes to add 7 men to its present sales force. Two in Chicago, one Illinois outside Chicago, others midwestern states surrounding. The men who will be interested in this opportunity are not fainters. They are now employed but feel the limitation of present work and would only consider a change if it offered greater immediate income with assurance of permanency and future. This is not a typewriter, adding machine, cash register, bond, insurance or real estate proposition, but experience in the selling of any of the above lines to the right salesman will be an asset. Satisfactory remuneration will be arranged, with a definite understanding for increases within two months, and twelve months, providing certain reasonable quotas are reached. To receive consideration you must be willing to show a clean record and an earning capacity of not less than three thousand dollars previous work. We will place considerable time with only previous selling experience who believe that with proper training and help they could develop sales ability and make themselves worth five thousand per year within the next twelve months. Applicants should be between the ages of 28 and 40, of good appearance and with a background of education and business experience which will enable them to intelligently interview busy executives. If you feel you can qualify call D. B. McDonald at the Jackson Park Hotel, 6400 Stony Island, Sunday, 19 and 20, between 9 a. m. and 6 p. m. Appointments by telephone only. Applications by mail out of town men should be addressed to G S 306, Tribune. Your application will be treated in confidence, and if it indicates you have the requisites for this position a personal interview will be arranged at our expense. Our own men know of this advertisement.

8 EVENING CLASSES
In Practical Salesmanship.
Are You Climbing the Ladder of Success?

Practical selling instruction showing how to fit into the high places in the best paid profession on earth; mechanics, clerks, bookkeepers, bank employes, and every one on a salary can benefit. Salesmanship will help you to succeed in your own business, no matter what your occupation.

A large Chicago corporation will conduct special evening classes in practical salesmanship. Instruction will be given by an experienced, capable member of our own staff. To those who graduate from our 8 weeks' classes we will offer good paying positions on our sales force with a splendid future. Spare time positions will be offered to those not able to make a change of employment; attendance at classes places no obligation upon you to accept employment. It's free.

The course is open to men of character and ambition who want to enjoy the better things of life and will work for them. If you will make you have confidence in yourself and in your ability to determine your course in life and carve out your success.

Classes in our Tuesday and Thursday night classes this week, beginning 8 p. m. Room 909, 134 N. La Salle-st.

HAVE YOU A CAR?

To men or women living in Chicago at least two years I offer a chance to make as much money Saturday afternoon and Sunday as you probably make all the other days combined.

Call Monday or Friday evening at 7:30 P. M., Room 604, 111 West Monroe-st.

ALL PAY, NO WORK!
MALE OR FEMALE.

Give me 1 hour of your time each day and I'll show you how to make more extra money a week than your salary now pays you. No canvassing. No selling.

NORTH.

Live in Streeterville

Elliot Stuart Lived the Hurried Life of a Financier.

Elliot Stuart, in the speculative nineties, lived north of the river, just out of the tiresome clamor of commerce. He lingered over a tasty breakfast, then drove or, if he chose, walked leisurely to his office for a strenuous day of finance—and as leisurely returned.

Streeterville today is the home of those whose minutes mean dollars; its easily accessible location makes it most desirable.

180 East Delaware
Adds convenience of living to this convenience of location.

BUILDING COMPLETED. READY FOR OCCUPANCY.

LOCATION—
In the heart of a most elite residential section, only one-half block east of Chicago's principal thoroughfare, 10 blks. from the Loop; within walking distance of the great metropolitan shopping, business, and theatre centers, select private schools, and renowned churches. In its immediate neighborhood are the Drake and Lake Shore Drive hotels, as well as the homes of Chicago's social leaders. The Casino Club is directly across the street.

BUILDING—
Its exclusive character, intrinsic beauty of design and execution, and convenience are the outstanding attributes of this new group of luxuriously conceived apartments. The building incorporates the ultimate in tested and approved appointments of unostentatious, good taste. On the ground floor is an exquisite furnished lounge, an old English tearoom with excellent cuisine, and a commissary.

APARTMENTS—
They are unfurnished—three, four and five rooms, convertible, if desired, into six and eight. The apartments are arranged to give infinite comfort and efficiency. The walls are canvassed and paneled. Marble mantels and period design lighting fixtures grace the living rooms. Crystal lighting fixtures, maids' call in the dining rooms. Chambers have full length mirrors and large closets. In the bathrooms—colored tile wainscoting, showers and shampoo sprays. Venetian mirrored medicine cabinet, linen closets. The kitchens are equipped with mechanical refrigeration, all white cooking ranges, and enameled steel cabinets.

SERVICE—
Maid service is optional. High speed elevators of micro precision, operated by efficient attendants, whisk you in a few seconds to your home. A vacuum heating system regulates precisely the temperature and humidity throughout your apartment. Rental includes mechanical refrigeration, electric light, gas, laundries and driers.

Prospective tenants, of course, are being chosen with discrimination.

180 East Delaware
offers the essentials of hotel service at a cost far lower than is possible in hotels. 3, 4, and 5 room apartments, convertible, if desired, into 6 or 8 rooms; $150 a month upwards.

Personal representatives of the management are on the premises from 9 a. m. to 7 p. m. to show you the features and a model apartment decorated and furnished by the French Shops, Incorporated, Chicago, under the personal supervision of Mr. Pierre J. Morel.

Lake Shore Drive
CORNER OF ELM-ST.
The apartments in this building are spacious, exceptionally well lighted and ventilated, and have every modern convenience for enjoyable living.
The total monthly operating cost of a five room apartment under our 100% co-operative plan is as low as $117.84, and the six seven room apartment as low as $169.40.
There is only one Lake Shore Drive, and it is unquestionably the finest location for residential purposes in Chicago. Its convenience and beauty have made it Chicago's fashion center and one of Chicago's most attractive real estate investments.
THINK THIS OVER.
1—THE BUILDING IS ON A CORNER.
There is no other lot on Lake Shore dr. available unless one wrecks an expensive mansion.
2—THE LAND VALUE of the lot at 1120
Lake Shore dr. HAS INCREASED 30% since we first offered these apartments to the public, but we are still offering them at the original price.
3—OVER 80% OF THE APARTMENTS
ARE SOLD. The building is a thoroughly successful 100% co-operative project right now.
4—ASK THE MAN WHO OWNS ONE. The names of the group of owners who will be your neighbors are available to you.
5—THE BUILDING IS CONSERVATIVELY
FINANCED: It has only one loan, owned by the New York Life Insurance Company.
6—A FEW APARTMENTS ARE STILL AVAILABLE.
The equities range from $12,800 up. You may purchase an apartment in this building with as little as $4,500, paying the remainder out of income rather than capital. This is the time to take advantage of this exceptional opportunity.
PLANS, SPECIFICATIONS AND SCHED-ULED PRICES WILL BE SUPPLIED UPON REQUEST.
Why not come with your family to the building and see these delightful apartments?
There is no urge to buy—just courteous attention when you require it.

WHY PAY RENT?
FARGO HOMES APTS.
1522-28 Farge-av.
We have one 5 room apartment left in our most successful 100% co-operative apartment building. 225 satisfied and happy owners.
We have sold only to a select clientele and if you desire luxurious yet spacious living in the Fargo Homes, we would advise your immediate investigation.
The apartments are very conservatively financed on long time first mortgage only.
Six per cent interest. No second mortgage!
Prices designed to secure intelligent home-seekers. Terms the lowest, to right parties.
Investigation solicited.
Discriminating apartment seekers wishing to Live on Chicago's Gold Coast

Goethe Shore

Kitchenette Apartments

$85 to $145 Monthly

The Goethe Shore is set in the heart of Chicago's Gold Coast, in that narrow strip bordering Lake Shore Dr. between Lincoln Park and the Michigan-av bridge.

World Famous Location

Diagonally across a vacant lot or two lies the world famous Potter Palmer mansion—within a stone's throw a little to the south is the Edith Rockefeller McCormick residence—catercorner across the street is the well renowned Drake Hotel.

Lake Michigan lies at the foot of Goethe-st., almost at the feet of the guests of the Goethe Shore.

Just far enough away to isolate our guests from its traffic noises is Chicago's most pretentious boulevard—Lake Shore-dr. The Wrigley building and The Tribune Tower are within easy walking distance.

No other residential district in the world, not even the magnificent Park av. section of New York City, can compare with the wonderful possibilities of 61 E. Goethe-st.

Prices Extraordinarily Low

Now, for probably the first time in Chicago's history, it will be possible for the citizens of moderate means to live on the Gold Coast, within walking distance of his desk in Chicago's Loop.

Until the Goethe Shore opened its doors, the family not prepared to pay a monthly rental of from $400 to $1,000, could not live in this marvelous location.

Goethe Shore Apartments are offered at a monthly rental ranging from $85 to $145 per month—surprisingly low for furnished apartments of the better class—when one thinks of his neighbors as the business and social leaders of America—all within the sacred confines of this Gold Coast neighborhood.

Ten Minutes' Walk to Business

There is a growing demand for residence close to our business center. The business man of today desires to return as nearly as possible to the conditions of his boyhood, when he walked to work.

Chicago's streets are probably more crowded with automobile traffic than those of any other city in the world. This congestion on our boulevards with its consequent delay to the business man's trip from his home to his office has made it necessary for him to move in closer to business.

No Apartments Furnished Like These

Smartly furnished in the newest mode, complete in every detail, including linen, silver, glassware, china, electrical appliances, bric-a-brac, and all that goes to make up the comfortable, fashionable, and homelike abode.

Waiting List Occupancy Soon

The Goethe Shore offers for popular demand Gold Coast Apartments almost within a stone's throw of Chicago's most pretentious hostelry—The Drake—at prices you would expect to pay in outlying neighborhoods.

It is a foregone conclusion that we will have a waiting list—occupancy almost with the opening of our doors.

Comparison of models, mechanical condition and prices will convince you that we are offering values absolutely without equal. The proof is here if you will take the time to look. Every car guaranteed as represented. Liberal terms extended responsible persons.

1926 JEWETT SEDAN DEMONSTRATORS. We have just removed four of these wonderful cars from demonstrating service. They are all practically new, have 2-tone Duco finish, balloon tires, hydraulic 4-wheel brakes, all extras, spare tires, etc., and the first four buyers will each save upwards of $300

PAIGE CUSTOM-STYLE 7 PASS. SEDAN. Lowest price we have ever placed on this class Paige car. The body is a brand new one. The motor and chassis carefully rebuilt to our rigid standard and guaranteed. This is truly a sedan de luxe and should satisfy the most fastidious purchaser. 6 excellent tires, motometer, lock, bumper, etc. included. $625.

PAIGE 6-75 DE LUXE SEDAN, 7 PASS. A rebuilt, new appearing full 7 passenger that would make seem family an excellent investment. Its long wheelbase, springs, and construction make for easy riding, handling and power for any emergency. Refinished in new Duco, with disc wheels, balloon tires, heater, trunk carrier, etc. Be sure to investigate. $1,350.

1924 JEWETT BROUGHAM. In the original baked enamel finish which any one would judge as brand new. Perfect throughout. Has 5 excellent tires, stoplight, spotlight, bumpers, disc wheels, trunk, etc. Rebuilt and guaranteed. $775

PAIGE 1924 7 PASS. TOURING. Ideal for any season or weather condition. Has patented full vision steel and glass enclosures, easily removable for summer use if desired. Looks like a new car every way. Has trunk carrier, 5 excellent tires, 2 bumpers, mubbers, etc. Rebuilt by us and guaranteed. $775.

PEERLESS 66 1923 TOURING. Compared to prices usually asked for cars of this type in this condition, you should find this a real buy at the price. New Duco finish, good tires, all equipment. Coach work perfect. Mechanically 100% condition. $595.

1926 JEWETT 6-55 ROADSTER. Snappiest type wheel roadster you have ever seen. Virtually new, having been driven by one of our officials only 4,923 miles. Not a scratch or blemish anywhere and the tires have that new look. Rumble seat rear decking, disc wheels, 4 wheel brakes, new style Hartford shock absorbers: much other equipment. Mechanically guaranteed. A $1,000 car at as this is rarely offered. $1,250

Because FOOD and FASHION interest WOMEN

two delightful new features have been added to The Tribune's unique Rotogravure Magazine Section

What to Eat! . . . . .

DINNER! and healthy, hungry youngsters around the table eager for food! The ever present problem of mother, the menu planner, to provide for them a variety of simple, nourishing meals. The constant effort to find new and easily prepared dishes to tempt the palate of friend husband.

The Tribune's rotogravure magazine section simplifies all this! A half page each Sunday is now devoted to recipes, menus, and food talks by our culinary expert, Jane Eddington.

This new feature will be called "Tempting Menus for the Week." It provides just what its name suggests: delightful, practical menus, three a day, for seven days. And the recipes will have been tested in The Tribune's model experimental kitchen before appearing in print.

Jane Eddington's column, "The Tribune Cookbook" (which will continue in the regular women's section), has its multitude of devotees as much because of the excellence and proven success of its recipes as for her charming literary style.

Jane Eddington

Miss Eddington (Caroline S. Maddocks) has received degrees from both Wellesley and the University of Chicago. Shortly after coming to The Tribune she was sent to Europe, where she attended cooking schools in Paris, Berlin, Edinburgh, and studied folk cooking in Italy, Switzerland, and other countries. Her collection of rare and famous cookbooks is one of the best in the world. For sixteen years she has conducted her interesting column on cookery and dietetics in The Tribune.

The great popularity of Miss Eddington's opinions on the science of cooking was proven when, a few months ago, the booklet, "The Tribune Cookbook," was published containing a selection of her recipes. Fifteen thousand were sold in two months.

What to Wear! . . . . .

WITNESS Jean (so poised in public) having a private spasm. But who wouldn't—what with a bridge luncheon, a musicale and a house party about to engulf her and not a respectable dud to wear? Feverishly she refigures her clothes allowance. The result is still the same—she can afford but two dresses. Who—oh, who can describe to her two dresses suitable for five occasions? The Tribune Rotogravure Magazine Section to the rescue . . .

Corinne Lowe

Every Sunday an authority of long standing on American and French fashions will write a half page on correct styles of dress for every occasion. In addition to detailed description of each costume in the entertaining manner of Corinne Lowe there will be illustrations for which May Manton has made exact and excellent patterns, purchasable through The Tribune at 25c the pattern.

Look for Corinne Lowe's delightful fashion article in the rotogravure magazine section if you would achieve constant smartness of attire.

Corinne Lowe has been fashion editor of The Tribune for the last ten years. Miss Lowe was born in Chicago, raised in Pennsylvania, attended Swarthmore college, and began newspaper work in Philadelphia, where, after two years, she became editor of a woman's page. She has written numerous articles and stories for prominent periodicals.

Culture and chic are evident in all her articles for The Tribune. She has visited all the noted shrines of fashion and has taken a course in literature at the Paris Sorbonne. Her keen understanding of the styles American women want and her reliable forecasts of the application of foreign modes to American design have given her Tribune articles great and deserved popularity.

Watch for these two new features in The Tribune's Rotogravure Magazine Section!

Colorful Views from Denmark

GARDNER-FARMER OF AMAGER, an island near the capital, which was cultivated by Hollanders imported by a Danish king in the sixteenth century. The workers of this section still furnish Copenhagen with vegetables.

KRONBORG, HAMLET'S CASTLE, is the first object that greets the visitor sailing into Danish waters. It was here Shakespeare's character uttered his much quoted soliloquy. There has been a castle on this spot ever since Denmark has existed, historically. The present structure, built in the latter half of the sixteenth century, is now used as a museum for commerce and navigation.

A WOMAN OF SEALAND, wearing a dress embroidered with gold, silver and laces, one of the most beautiful of the old Danish fashions.

FARMER'S WIFE OF WEST JUTLAND.

DENMARK'S LIBERTY MONUMENT—This memorial was built in Copenhagen in 1797 to commemorate the liberation of the peasants in 1788. Frederik the Sixth, due to the sickness of his father, was reigning at the time the farming class was given the greater freedom that inspired this remembrance in stone.

FARMER'S WIFE OF SOUTH JUTLAND.

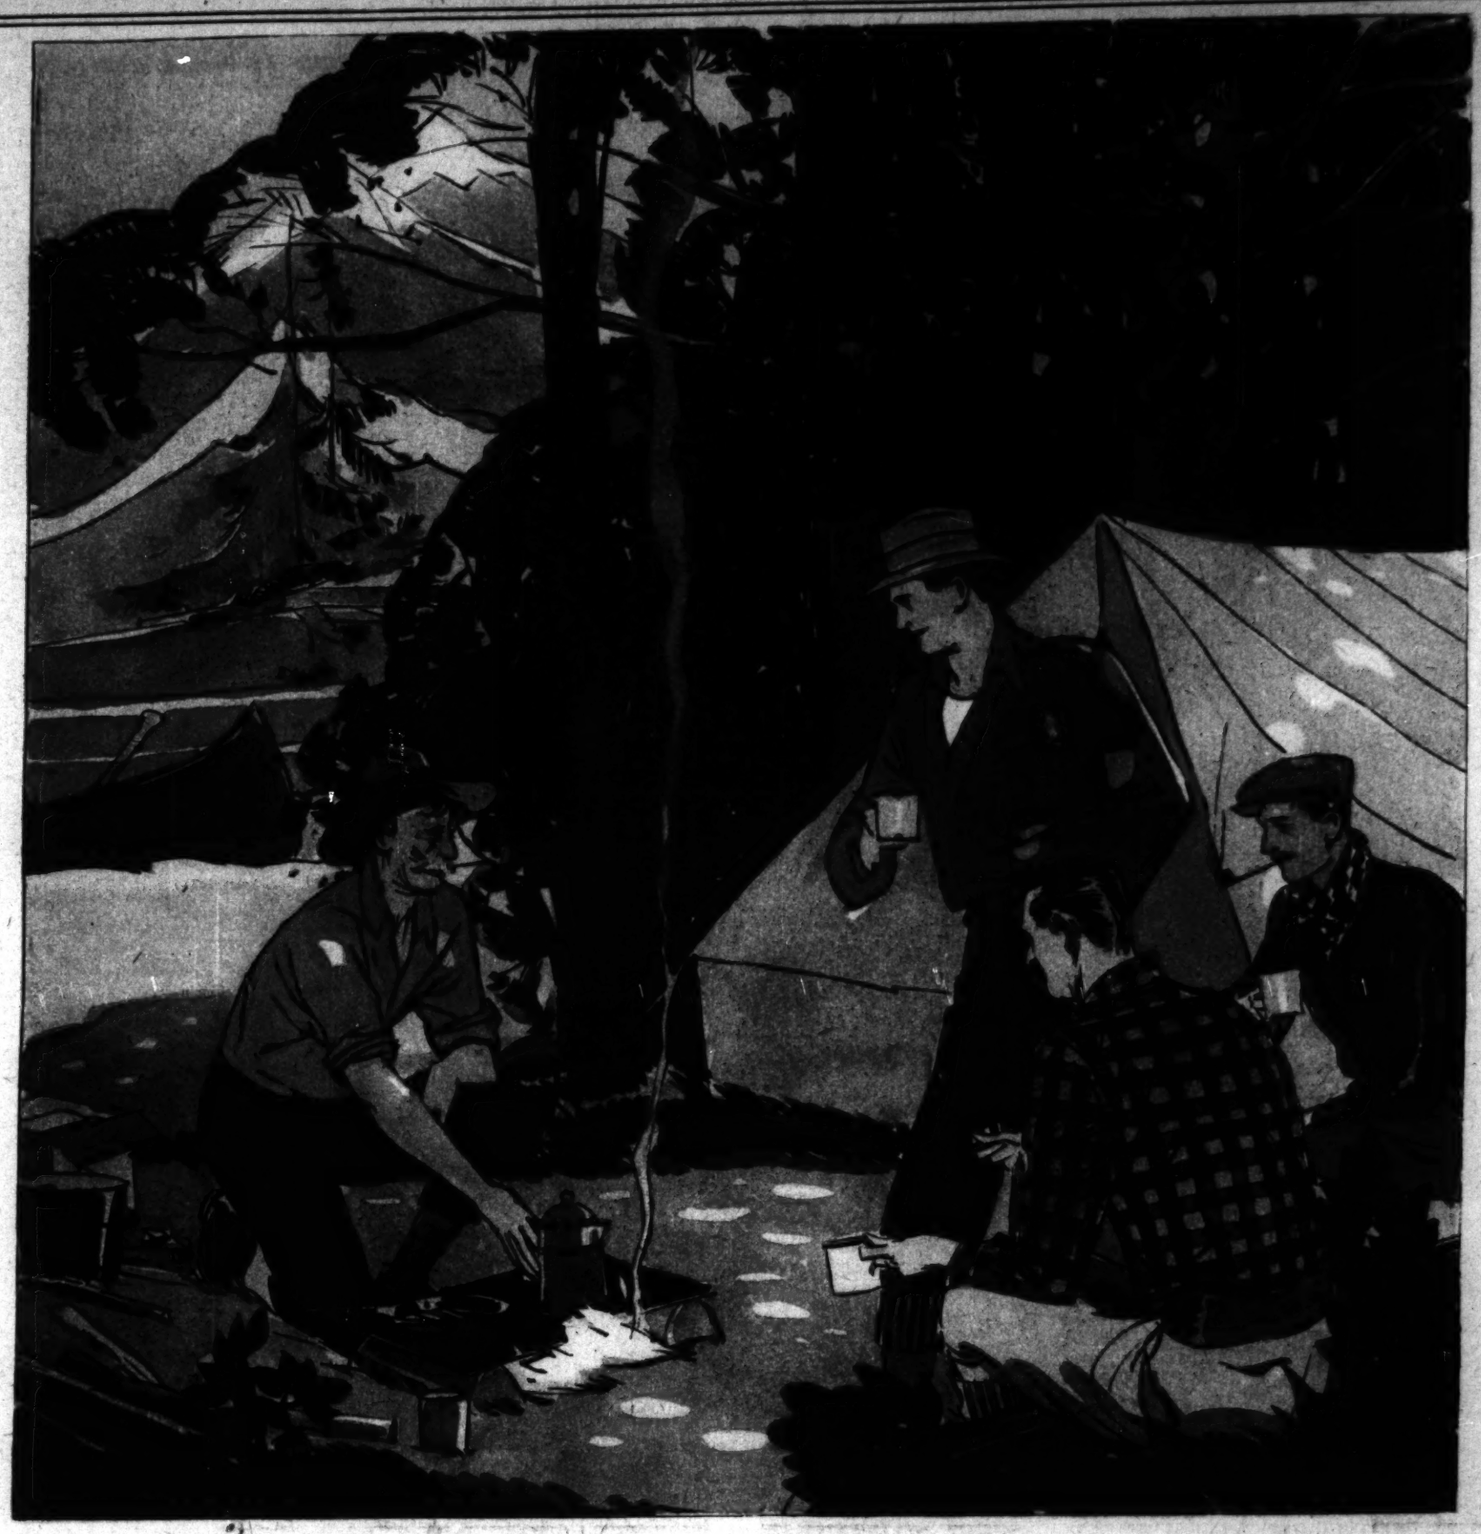
AMAGER FARM WIFE of Holland descent.

AMALIENBORG CASTLE is the residence in Copenhagen of the Danish kings. The equestrian statue in the foreground is of Frederik the Fifth. The castle was built in the middle of the eighteenth century.

FARMER-FISHERMAN of the Faroe islands, in the Atlantic.

THE ROYAL THEATER IN COPENHAGEN—Here stage, opera and ballet are assembled under one roof. The royal theater is conducted under the minister of instruction, who at present is a woman—Mrs. Nina Bang.

THE PHOTOGRAPHS SHOWING THE NATIONAL COSTUMES of olden days in Denmark are from small statues which have a large sale among the Danish people. This picturesque page was provided by The Tribune's Foreign News Service.



Are you a king, or just like the rest of us? Do you own an estate or live on a side street? Life for you holds one good thing wherever you may be—good coffee!

DO YOU go camping up in the Eagle River country? Is your specialty preparing a meal in a three-by-two galley on a forty-foot sloop? Maybe you live in a smart apartment, high above the boulevard. You may own a box at the opera and all that its possession implies.

Even so, it makes but little difference. For whatever good things of life are yours, one more you need to add—good coffee. And that means Chase & Sanborn's Seal Brand Coffee. Always!

Of course, you will want to make it your own way. Start it with cold water. Or start it with boiling water. Add the white of an egg to clear it. Or put in a pinch of salt and a tablespoonful of cold water. You probably have a favorite coffee pot, aluminum, enamel ware or what not. There are as many ways to make coffee as there are people to make it. But to get results—use Seal Brand!

Buy a pound from your grocer today!

Note the tempting fragrance of Seal Brand Coffee, the flavor of it. And there are fifty delicious cups to every pound. Economical, isn't it? You'll find the last cup as satisfying as the first. From one coast to the other its unvarying quality has made Seal Brand Coffee a household word throughout the country. Seal Brand is always packed in sealed tins, 1, 2, 3 and 5 pound sizes.

"SCATTER MY ASHES FROM THE MOUNTAIN TOP," is an injunction in the will of Baron Kihachiro Okura, the Rockefeller of Japan, who will be 90 next month. The aged merchant prince has just completed a journey to the summit of Mt. Akashi, in the "Japanese Alps," the peak he designated. Part of the time he was carried by servants, as in this palanquin across a swinging bridge, but he covered a large part of the trails on foot.

ACROSS A LOWLAND VALLEY IN A "KAGO"—Such portions of the aged capitalist's journey were filled with luxurious ease. He does not shrink from hardship, however; a year ago he braved bandit-ridden districts of Inner Mongolia to inspect his plantations there.

A LA PAPOOSE, Baron Okura goes up a snowy slope upon a porter's back. Imagine straw hats at a temperature like this!

A REST ALONG THE TRAIL, Baron Okura holding a map of the region being traversed. The perils of Japan's peaks are so great that tourists are warned not to attempt climbing in winter, and the labor is in proportion.

CHEERS OF VICTORY AT THE GOAL when the multimillionaire's party had reached the summit of Mt. Akashi, more than 10,000 feet high. The tablet behind him records his exploit.

THE WORLD'S FASTEST CABLE will soon be in operation between the United States and England. The American end was being laid at Hammels, near Rockaway Beach, N. Y., when the camera registered this scene. Workmen are getting ready to cut the cable loose from barrels. The new cable is expected to have a word speed eight times faster than that of cables now in use.

RESTORING THE ANCIENT PARTHENON—This famous example of Greek architecture on the Acropolis at Athens, long in ruins, is being resurrected by modern builders, stone after stone being set in its original place. The Parthenon was dedicated in 430 B. C. During the siege of Athens by the Venetians in 1687 it suffered great damage from bombs.

IN HIS FATHER'S FOOTSTEPS—Charles P. Taft, son of Chief Justice Taft, has been nominated for prosecuting attorney on the Republican ticket in Hamilton county, Ohio, where the former President was assistant public prosecutor in the eighties. Advance congratulations are fairly safe, for the G. O. P. nomination usually means election in the county, which includes Cincinnati.

GOSSARD
CHARMOSETTE
Reg. U. S. Pat. Off. Pat. Dec. 21, 1915
—the wonderful new elastic that WASHES

1—Gossards in Charmosette may be laundered daily in hot or cold water without injury to the fabric.
2—Charmosette three times outwears any other elastic.
3—Charmosette holds its shape—will not overstretch.
4—Charmosette may be cut at any angle and altered to please—will not run, pull, tear or break.
5—Gossards in Charmosette fit perfectly—never "ride."
6—Gossards in Charmosette mould and support the figure as is impossible with ordinary elastic fabrics.
7—Charmosette is free from breaks, needle cuttings and ravelings.
8—Charmosette, combined with the new Royal Batiste, enables the entire garment to three times outwear any other foundation garment.
9—Charmosette has none of the faults of ordinary elastic fabrics—it is entirely new and vastly superior.
10—Charmosette is the greatest development in the art of fine corset making. It may be had only in The Gossard Line of Beauty, and is obtainable only in stores which regularly carry Gossards.

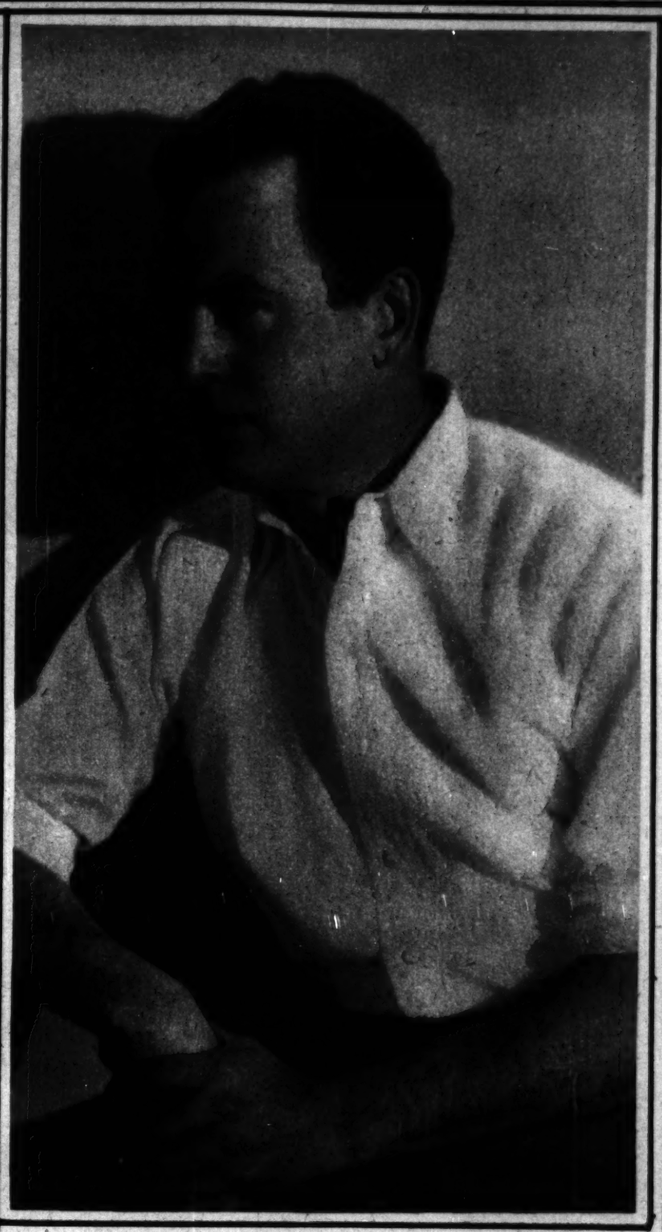
MADGE BELLAMY seems to be a blonde in this picture. Sometimes she prefers brunettes—and then's when she is one. Adaptable lady, this delightful Fox star!

PAULINE STARKE AND CONRAD NAGEL are seen here about to "throw" "Paris" and "White Prince," said to be two of the fleetest dogs on the coast. Whippet race, this is—the sport that has replaced crossword puzzles in sunny California.



THOMAS MEIGHAN, to whom most of you are devoted, is seen here as he will appear in "Tin Gods," his next starring vehicle for Paramount. (Which doesn't mean he goes coatless through the entire production.) The film is an adaptation of the stage play by William Anthony McGuire.

Unfortunate but true—

UNFORTUNATE as it may be, it is nevertheless true that as a people we are not as careful about attending to many of the simple daily duties of life as we might be.

Call it pardonable carelessness—or call it outright laziness, if you like—but either way the fact remains, most of us have that failing.

Particularly about many of the seemingly unimportant things of life—little things that after all may often have a considerable bearing on our well-being.

Take brushing the teeth, for example: even in this simple little job many of us are careless.

At night we're tired; in the morning we're in a hurry.

Realizing the truth of this, we set out deliberately to formulate a dentifrice that would furnish the easiest, quickest way to clean teeth. In fact, a tooth paste efficient even in the hands of lazy people—for in tooth brushing, at least, the word lazy applies to so many of us.

Listerine Tooth Paste is really very easy to use. It works fast. Just a minimum of brushing and your teeth feel clean — and actually are clean.

You have the job done almost before you know it.

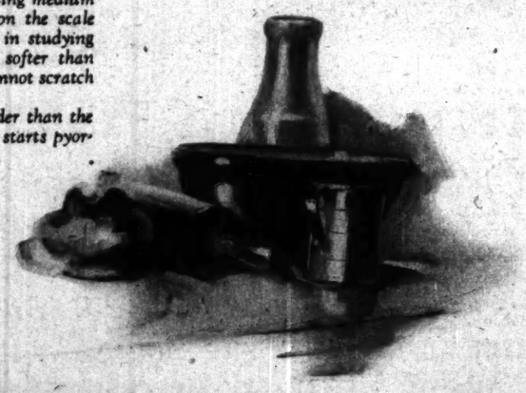
This is on account of the way Listerine Tooth Paste is made! It contains a specially prepared cleansing ingredient—entirely harmless to enamel*—plus the antiseptic essential oils that have made Listerine famous.

How fine your mouth feels after this kind of a brushing! And then besides you know your teeth are really clean—and therefore safe from decay. Lambert Pharmacal Co., Saint Louis, U. S. A.

P. S.—By the way, Listerine Tooth Paste is only 25 cents for the large tube.

*This specially prepared cleansing medium (according to tests based upon the scale of hardness scientists employ in studying mineral substances) is much softer than tooth enamel. Therefore, it cannot scratch or injure the enamel.

At the same time it is harder than the tartar which accumulates and starts pyorrhea and tooth decay.



"—even for lazy people"

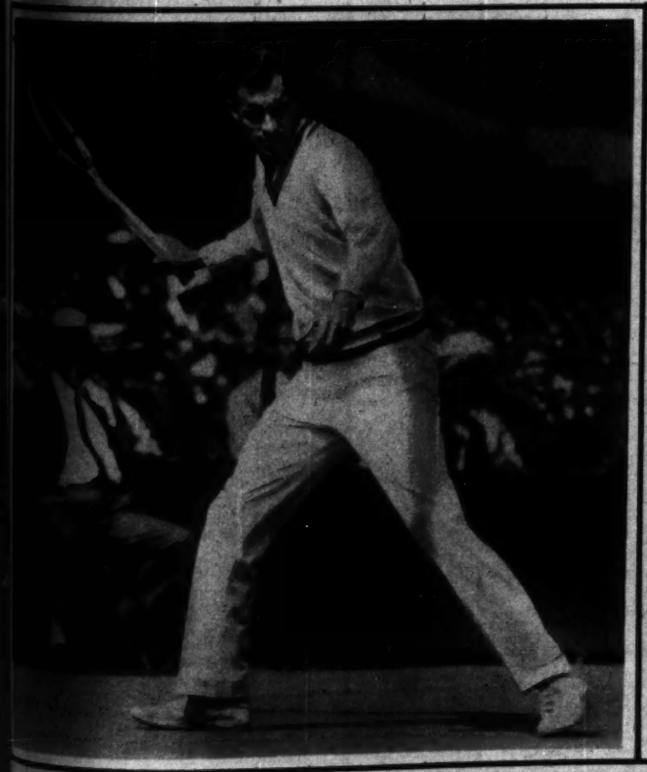
MISS AMERICA, 1926, is blue-eyed, brown-haired Miss Norma Smallwood of Tulsa, Okla. In the annual national contest of bathing beauties at Atlantic City she was crowned queen over all the seventy-two entrants from all parts of the United States. Miss Smallwood is 18 years old, 5 feet 4 inches in height and weighs 118 pounds. (Photograph from Underwood & Underwood.)

ONE VOTE BEAT HER in the quest for the title "Miss America" in the Atlantic City pageant. Miss Marjorie Joesting of Washington, she is, blonde and blue-eyed. Seven of fifteen judges voted for her in the final balloting, but to eight she was an unpreferred blonde. Miss Joesting is 22 years old, 5 feet ½ inch tall, and weighs 120 pounds. (Photograph from Pacific & Atlantic.)

AMERICA CHEERS MRS. CORSON, first mother and second woman to swim the channel. First to greet her as she reached New York and its tumultuous welcome were her children, Marjorie and Clemington Jr., sharing her chair here. Her husband, who accompanied her, is at the rear. (Photograph from Pacific & Atlantic.)

ABD-EL KRIM STARTS FOR EXILE—The conquered Riffian chieftain, at the right, at Marseilles, France, aboard the vessel that carried him on the first leg of his voyage to Reunion island, off Madagascar. The boys in the group are his children. His brother, his chief aid in the rebellion against France and Spain, is at the center. (Photograph from International.)

FRENCH BAKER BREAKS CHANNEL RECORD—Georges Michel, who established a time of 11 hours 5 minutes, being rubbed down by Jabez Wolfe prior to a previous unsuccessful attempt. Gertrude Ederle, first woman to swim the channel, is at the right. (Photograph from Pacific & Atlantic.)



AMERICANS SMASH FRENCH INVASION AND HOLD DAVIS CUP FOR SEVENTH TIME—Yankee supremacy in tennis was established when these four kings of the court crushed the Gallic challengers in the annual competition for this historic trophy at Philadelphia. In the singles, "Big Bill" Tilden, at the left, overwhelmed Jean Borotra, the "Bounding Basque," in straight sets, but lost to Rene Lacoste. "Little Bill" Johnston, second from the left, contributed two wins to America's triumph by defeating both French contenders in singles. And in the doubles, Vincent Richards and R. Norris Williams, at the right, made the challengers' defeat certain by a three set victory over Jacques Brugnon and Henri Cochet. (Tribune photographs.)

The Second Most Beautiful Car in America

Come see - and admire and drive the Beautiful New

Jewett

YOU will scarcely believe your eyes when you first step inside this beautiful new Jewett and see the luxury that surrounds you. Certainly no earlier car, at so moderate a price, has ever approached the atmosphere of style that envelops this car.

Every line, every fitting, every appointment is in perfect taste. The instruments are clustered in a beautiful, indirectly-lighted panel. The deep cushions, over nested springs, have cleverly placed arm rests, and silken toggle-straps are in easy reach to assist entrance and exit. Skillfully inlaid walnut-finish panels, twin smoking sets and corner lights complete the custom-built air.

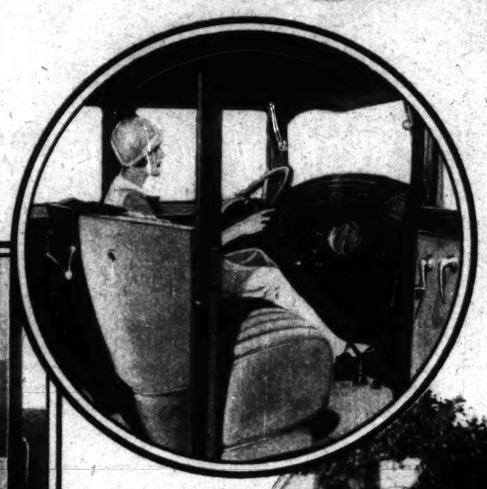
Mechanically this Jewett is dependableness itself. A larger motor than former Jewetts possessed gives even quicker acceleration, smoother performance, longer service. Paige Hydraulic 4-wheel brakes insure maximum safety. Every proved mechanical superiority of the day is here; an air cleaner, balanced crankshaft, thermostat, high-pressure lubrication, bronze-backed bearings.

Come see this car soon. Drive it—enjoy its luxurious charm. Come any time, there's no obligation.

Graceful hood lines conceal the cooling Paige-built, six-cylinder motor. The windshield arrangement insure perfect ventilation in all weathers.

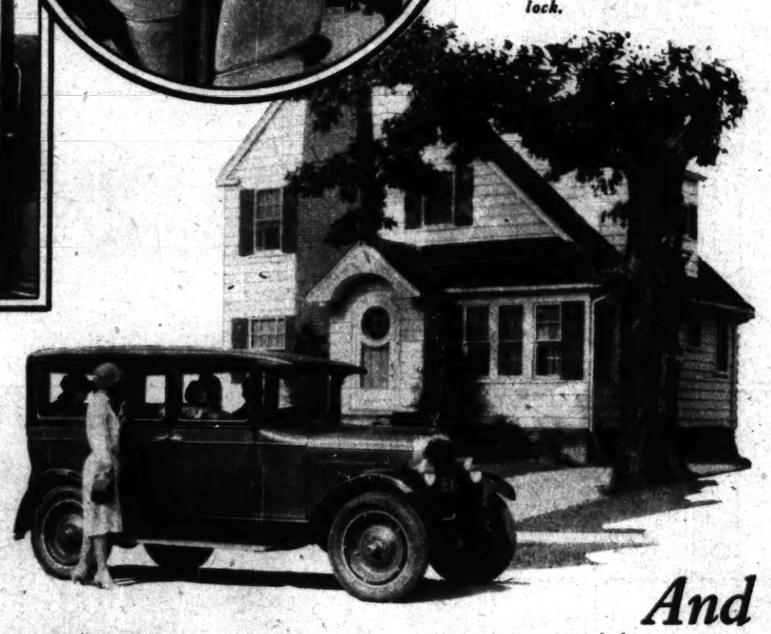
Women, particularly, instantly sense and appreciate the new smartness—the matchless vogue of this latest Jewett.

Note the admiring glances from passers-by as you drive this wonderful car through the park or along the boulevards.



Indirectly lighted, grouped panel with gasoline gauge, speedometer, ammeter, oil-pressure gauge. Lights controlled from walnut steering wheel. All controls in easy reach. Coincidental lock.

Wide doors open upon spacious rear compartment. Beautifully finished and fitted doors. Walnut-finished panels artistically inlaid. Quarter lights in the rear panels. Convenient foot rest.



And Here, Too, Is The Smart New Jewett Brougham

SMART, beautiful, comfortable and capable—as all of the beautiful new Jewetts are—this Brougham brings an even greater measure of economy to Jewett ownership. Never has a motor car so sturdily and so conscientiously built been equipped with such exquisite appointments and sold at so moderate a price.

The list of its equipment reads like a catalog of the costliest cars: Clustered, indirectly-lighted instruments, inlaid walnut-finish panels, luxurious cushions over nested springs with comfortable arm rests, silk sun shades, beautiful and enduring corduroy upholstery.

The front seats are adjustable to suit the driver's size—the motor is larger and equipped with the latest mechanical superiorities—the finish is a beautiful new two-tone tan, with beige trimmings—and of course, Paige-Hydraulic 4-Wheel brakes are standard.

Wide doors—and an unusually wide passageway permits exit from the rear seat without disturbing front-seat passengers.

The roominess of the front compartment—the easy reach of all controls—appeal compellingly to the woman of good taste.

This 2-door companion car to the beautiful new Jewett is certainly the smartest motor car ever built at so moderate a price.

There is ample room in the 2-door sedan to carry home the conquests of a shopper's busiest day—or for loads of luggage when on tour.

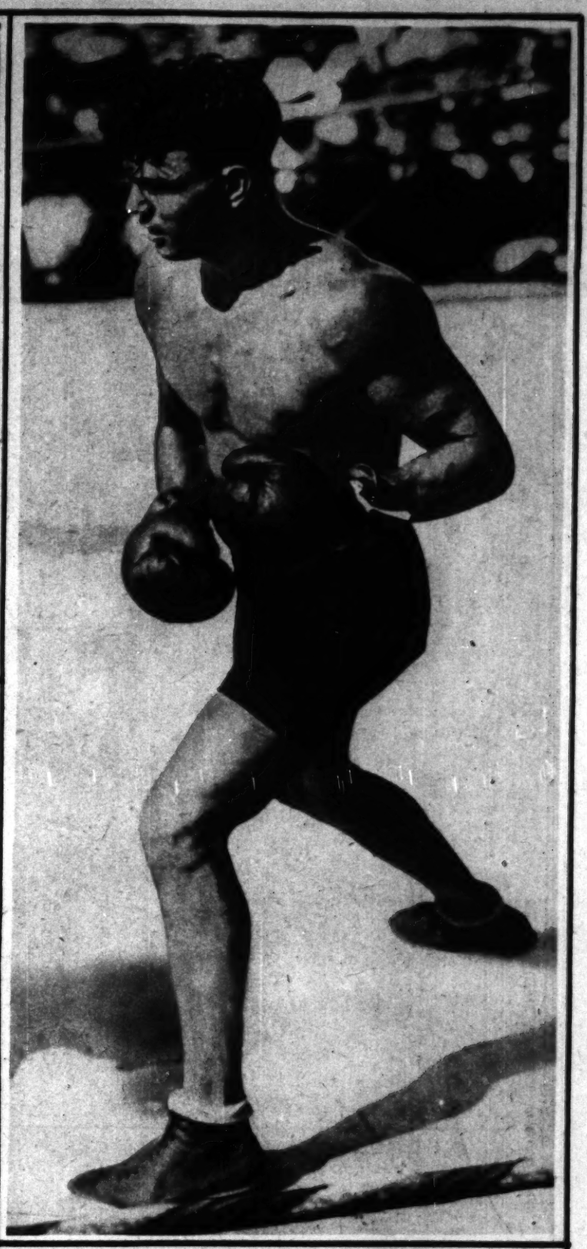
THE CHALLENGER, THE CHAMPION, AND THE BATTLEFIELD in the great fistic drama billed for staid old Philadelphia next Thursday. Gene Tunney, at the left, fought with the marines during the world war. Ever since he has been doing his fighting in the ring, and his skill with the big gloves has won him this chance at Jack Dempsey and the heavyweight crown. The champion is the dangerous-looking party pictured at the right. Their battlefield, pictured above, is the sesquicentennial stadium, which is supposed to provide seats for 140,000 spectators. In case of rain or other unforeseen obstacle, the fight will be put over from Thursday night to Friday night, or perhaps even to a later date.



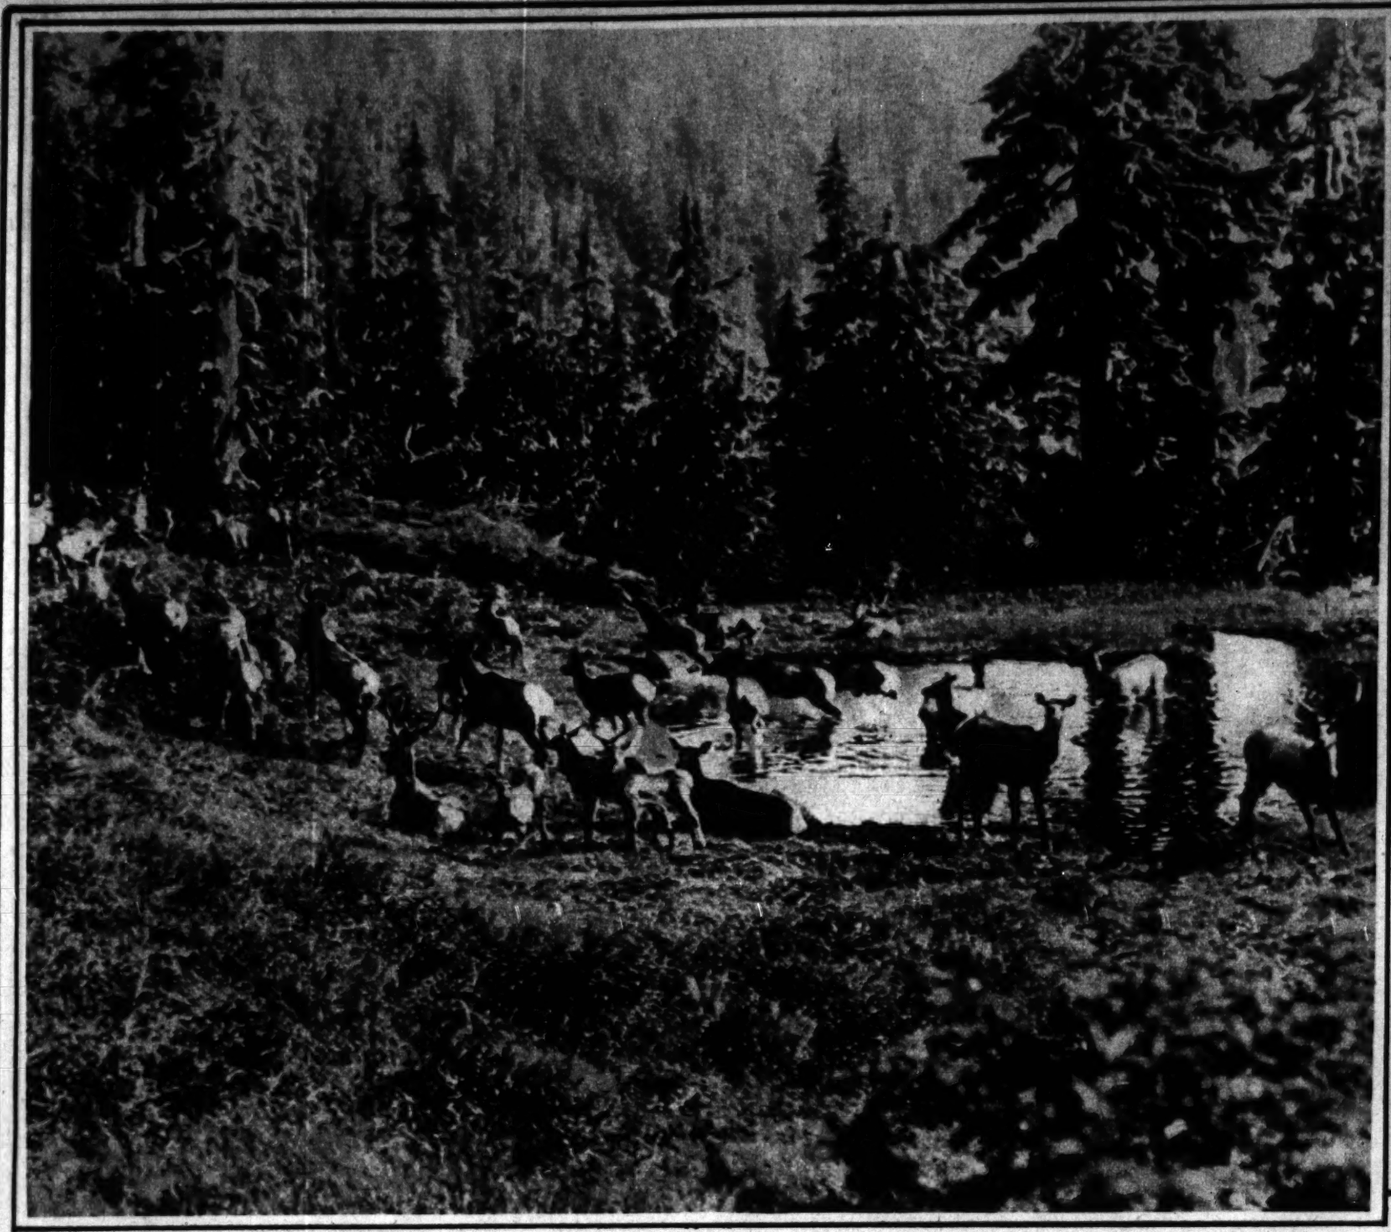
STARTING AT THE BOTTOM—Louis W. Hill Jr., 24 year old grandson of James J. Hill, the empire-building founder of the Great Northern railway, has begun his career with the road as a section hand at Fayston, Wis., for a consideration of $2.35 a day. He is the son of the chairman of the board of directors and is a graduate of Yale. (Photograph from Wide World.)

UPSETS GREEK DICTATOR—Gen. Condylis, at the center, put Athens back on the front page with the coup d'etat that forced out Gen. Pangalos. Condylis has assumed the premiership in the new regime. (Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic.)

WARSHIPS GET A NEW CHIEF—Admiral Charles F. Hughes, at the right, has assumed his duties as commander-in-chief of the entire United States fleet, succeeding Admiral S. S. Robison, at the left. The latter goes to the Puget Sound Navy yard as commandant of the thirteenth naval district. (Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic.)

VALENTINO GOES TO HIS LAST REST—Pola Negri, in deep mourning, leaving the Church of the Good Shepherd at Beverly Hills, Cal., upon the arm of Alberto Guglielmi, brother of the late idol of the screen. Thousands gathered in the vicinity of the church during the services, and were restrained with difficulty by the police. (Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic.)

JEWISH NEW YEAR SERVICES GO ON THE AIR—The scene behind the microphone as W-G-N, the Chicago Tribune station on the Drake hotel, broadcast the ceremonials of the Temple Sholom congregation direct from Medinah temple. At the "mike" is Announcer Bill Hay; upon the rostrum is Dr. Abraham Hirschberg, rabbi of the temple, and in the background are other dignitaries of the congregation and the choir. (Photograph from Kaufmann & Fabry.)



SOMETHING TO MAKE YOUR TRIGGER FINGER ITCH is this herd of elk and antelope, which gets its drinking water daily at this water hole in Olympia National forest, Washington. A year ago federal officials estimated that there were 48,000 elk and 3,000 antelope in Uncle Sam's preserves. (Photograph copyright by Asahel Curtis, from Underwood & Underwood)

Mrs. FELIX DOUBLEDAY makes a discovery

THE smart international set has recently been graced by a new and lovely member—MRS. FELIX D. DOUBLEDAY.

A blonde figure of lilting grace, she was born in Vienna where beauty has always gone hand-in-hand with good breeding. In spite of her youth—she is not yet twenty-five—her presence instantly tells you here is a woman de race, with that indefinable distinction of the true cosmopolite.

Her natural interest in the best way to care for her complexion—like the delicate pink and white petals of some fragile flower—led her to make the discovery made by so many of the women of the social world.

"ALTHOUGH I was accustomed in Vienna from the time I was a young girl," she says, "to seeing beautiful women, I was amazed, when I came to America, at the fine complexions so many women have here. I made inquiries and found that your Two Creams are used by the women whose skin I found so beautiful.

"I immediately bought a jar of each for myself at a nearby shop and I am now using them daily. I like them so very much that I thought you would like to know what a Viennese woman thinks about them."

For cleansing and keeping the skin supple, fine of texture and firm of contour, use Pond's Cold Cream, patting it generously over face, throat, hands. Leave it long enough for its fine oils to purge the pores of dust and powder. Wipe off. Repeat. Finish with a dash of cold water. After the bedtime cleansing—if your skin is dry—add more Pond's Cold Cream and leave until morning.

After every cleansing with Pond's Cold Cream except the bed-time one, finish with Pond's Vanishing Cream. This gives your skin a velvety smoothness, a delicate glow. Now when you powder you only flatter your own natural loveliness. And Pond's Vanishing Cream is a perfect protection from wind, sun, dust. The Pond's Extract Company, 131 Hudson Street, New York City.

These Two Creams are chosen by the loveliest women in society

MRS. FELIX D. DOUBLEDAY is one of the most beautiful of the younger women prominent in international society.

She was Miss Elizabeth Heymann of Vienna, before her marriage to the son of the president of the well-known publishing house, Doubleday Page and Company.

Mrs. Doubleday's exquisite taste is reflected in the decor of her house at Palm Beach where she is one of the winter colony's favorite hostesses; in her New York apartment where she perches between flights to Paris, or to Newport at the height of the summer season; and in her clothes.

Here she is wearing an exquisitely simple Chanel costume of dark blue crepe with flattering capeline in the same shade.

FOOTBALL AT 104! Mercer university of Macon, Georgia, started practice for the gridiron season when the thermometer said it was too hot for anything but drinking lemonade under an electric fan. The workout was in bathing suits on the beach at St. Simone island, 125 miles from the campus, and you can see for yourself the boys had some ginger despite the heat.

CHANNEL SPEEDER, Hans Vierkoetter, German baker and swimmer, writes autographs for two admiring girls after his crossing of the strait. Vierkoetter's time was 12 hours 42 minutes. That was a record briefly, until Georges Michel, a Frenchman, came along and swam the channel in 11 hours and 6 minutes.

Pleasant, Clean Odor

"DANDRUFF? ME? No sir—Not any more!"

"No sir, there's no reason now for not having a clean scalp and a clean coat collar.

"Just try Van Ess. It means no dandruff in 10 days. Use it occasionally afterwards; and dandruff can never stage a come-back."

You don't have to take this man's word. There's a written guarantee in every package. In 10 days it's good-by dandruff. If not, write to us and get your money back promptly—without question.

That's fair, isn't it?

Rather an unusual offer, you may say. But we know we're playing safe. We've already tested this product for 4 years—on several thousand people. We know it eliminates dandruff and itching scalp.

We make several products. So be sure to ask for the Van Ess Special Dandruff Massage. It comes in a bottle with our patented rubber massaging cap. Your druggist gives you the money-back warrant.

You need never lose the MOUTH of YOUTH

Everyone loves the bright smile of Youth, gloriously happy

ON SIX tiny mouth glands depend the whole health and sweetness of your mouth! They supply the fluids that prevent decay and stimulate the gums.

Because these mouth glands slow up, the formula for Pebeco Tooth Paste was worked out to do more than clean. Pebeco wakens the mouth glands and restores their youthful vigor.

At its very taste, pungent, slightly salty, the mouth glands pour into your mouth the invigorating fluids that cleanse in between the teeth and clear back to the throat.

Use Pebeco daily to keep your mouth fresh and sweet.

Made only by Pebeco, Inc., a division of Lehn & Fink Products Company. Sole distributors Lehn & Fink, Inc., Bloomfield, N. J. In the blue tube, at all druggists.

Where the important mouth glands are

The numbers show where the mouth glands are located, three on each side. They should be working day and night to keep the teeth and gums safe. But our soft foods slow them up! The important salt in Pebeco keeps them active.

PEBECO keeps the Mouth Glands young

A New Way to Banish Old Ills

A surprisingly simple method that conquers constipation, corrects skin and stomach disorders and brings new energy to thousands

NOT a "cure-all," not a medicine—Fleischmann's Yeast is simply a remarkable fresh food.

The millions of tiny active yeast plants in every cake invigorate the whole system. They aid digestion—clear the skin—banish the poisons of constipation. Where cathartics give only temporary relief, yeast strengthens the intestinal muscles and makes them healthy and active, daily releasing new stores of energy.

Eat two or three cakes regularly every day, one before each meal: on crackers, in fruit juices, water or milk—or just plain, in small pieces. For constipation dissolve one cake in hot water (not scalding) before meals and at bedtime. Dangerous habit-forming cathartics will gradually become unnecessary. All grocers have Fleischmann's Yeast. Buy several cakes at a time—they will keep fresh in a cool dry place for two or three days.

And let us send you a free copy of our latest booklet on Yeast for Health. Health Research Dept. N-768, The Fleischmann Company, 701 Washington Street, New York.

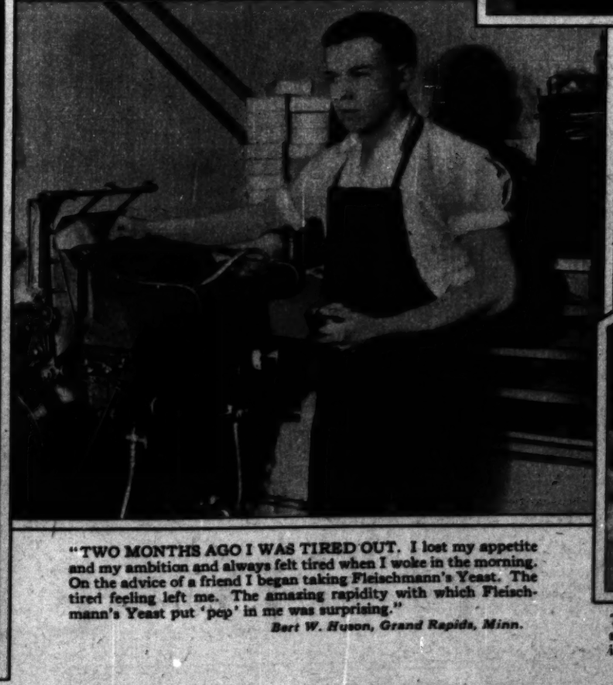
"I'VE HAD STOMACH TROUBLE since I was eight years old. Nothing seemed to do me any good until I tried Fleischmann's Yeast. For twelve years now I've been taking the Yeast and so long as I take it regularly my whole system seems to work right. Before I took Fleischmann's I was quite an invalid. Now, for the last twelve years—since I have been eating the Yeast—I have felt perfectly well and younger than ever before, do my own housework, and walk up and down stairs as I never could even when I was young."

Mrs. Minnie Needham, San Francisco, Cal.

RIGHT

"AFTER SERVING THROUGH THE WORLD WAR I was taken dangerously ill with the flu. After recovery I continued to be troubled with constipation, headaches and dizziness. About six months ago I learned of the wonderful benefits to be derived from your Yeast when taken regularly. I formed the habit of taking your Yeast regularly in water. Now my constipation and dizziness have entirely disappeared and my digestion is perfect."

Arthur E. Pray, New York City

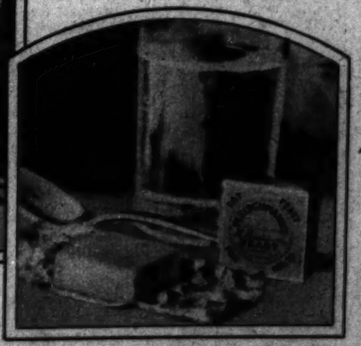


"TWO MONTHS AGO I WAS TIRED OUT. I lost my appetite and my ambition and always felt tired when I woke in the morning. On the advice of a friend I began taking Fleischmann's Yeast. The tired feeling left me. The amazing rapidity with which Fleischmann's Yeast put 'pep' in me was surprising."

Bert W. Huson, Grand Rapids, Minn.

"I HAD A SERIES OF BOILS and infections on my face. Blood tests, tonics and serum treatment were given but with no permanent relief or effective result. Finally my doctor said, 'Try Fleischmann's Yeast.' I did. For one month I took two cakes a day and at the end of that time I could note wonderful results. I had had my last infection and soon regained my strength and vitality. It is a privilege to be given the opportunity to express my appreciation for the results obtained."

Mrs. L. M. Sherlock, Denver, Colo.



THIS FAMOUS FOOD tones up the entire system—aids digestion, clears the skin, banishes constipation. Start eating it today.

BLACK BUTTERFLIES

BY ELIZABETH JORDAN

Already she had got out of hand.

When years of repression ended and the barriers to freedom fell, Dorinda Maxwell danced down the path of pleasure with reckless feet. Thus is sounded the motif of this new daily serial, a vibrant story of youth and the audacious age

INSTALLMENT I.

A Passionate Defense.

ORSON HATCH, senior member of the law firm of Hatch, Fuller and Kimball, relaxed in his swivel chair, rubbed his pink chin with the forefinger of a puffy hand, and turned a kindly eye on his client. He was grateful to her, for he was digesting an excellent luncheon, and as yet the demands of her business affairs had not been exacting enough to interfere with the process. Mr. Hatch had reached a stage in his development where meals held an importance in the scheme of things that lessened his zest for other matters. This noon he had eaten a wild duck with fried hominy and plum jelly, and he had resented the necessity of immediately thereafter discussing stocks, bonds, percentages, and the highway of life with a young person whose conduct he strongly disapproved. He was admitted, however, that Miss Dorinda Maxwell, despite her temperament and her reputation, was making his task as simple as she could.

Her attitude was one befitting the feminine mind in the presence of its masculine superior. She listened to his exposition with a patience heretofore lacking during their interview. She made it clear that her faith in him as her business adviser was absolute.

Being human, Mr. Hatch responded to the flattery of this position. He was even tempted to omit the delivery of an edifying address he had prepared, and which was designed to show his caller the error of her ways. To start in on that now would certainly interrupt the placid tenor of the present interview. It would disturb Miss Maxwell, it would disturb him, and it might even disturb the duck. Better, much better, end the audience on its present harmonious note.

Then, most annoyingly, the alarm clock of his conscience went off, and Hatch, who was an honorable man, as well as an indolent one, recognized the call for what it was. He remembered a promise he had made to this girl's father. The job he had undertaken must be properly put through. He sighed, rubbed the bald pate on his head with the pink finger, smoothed the white fringe that guarded the spot, and wearily squared himself to the necessary effort. The client facing him was a mere infant of twenty-two, and she was alone in the world. Her father and mother had been dead less than six months, yet already she had got out of hand. The town was humming with gossip about her. Members of its various circles were rolling scandalized eyes. Yes, he must talk to the girl—but how should he begin? He smiled at her quizzically, and though she had not intended to do so, Miss Maxwell returned the smile. She understood what his hesitation had meant. She knew and dreaded what was coming. But when he smiled like that, she reflected, her lawyer looked like an embarrassed baby.

"Don't go yet, Dorinda," he said kindly, observing her restless movement. "The business talk is almost over, but there are several personal matters we have not touched on. For instance—am I right in believing that you are still living alone?"

"Yes, if you don't count two or three old retainers," his visitor lightly admitted.

"Old retainers?" The round, pink, smooth face of Hatch took on a soft radiance. This was a relief!

"You mean old servants—your father's housekeeper, for one?"

"Mercy, no!" The girl looked at him with the expression of one who has said farewell to patience. Clearly she saw she was in for a sermon and a cross-examination as to her way of living—a subject of interest these days to every one who knew her.

"The old lot went several months ago," she hastily admitted, anxious now to make the inevitable explanation and be through with it. "You know father left Jane and John Kelly, our cook and butler, three thousand dollars each—they had been with us twenty years—so they started a roadhouse and cabaret near Hastings. They have made it very attractive," she earnestly added. "You ought to go there for dinner some time. The cooking is wonderful, and they have a splendid floor, and the best music within twenty miles. A lot of us—the Black Butterflies, you know—went out there the other night and danced till breakfast time. The Kellys would be glad of your patronage. Of course, I'm helping them all I can," she virtuously ended, and settled back in her chair with a contented smile.

After that, of course, the deluge. She had cleared the way for the lawyer by admitting all the charges that were in his mind, and she flattered herself she had done it thoroughly. Now, let him rave!

"That brings me to something I must say to you," he began seriously, while his listener inwardly grimaced. "Of course you realize that to go to a roadhouse at any time and dance all night with such a group as the one that calls itself the Black Butterflies"—he mentioned the name with distaste—"is a questionable performance. To do it within six months of your parents' death is really a shocking instance of bad taste. You won't mind my mentioning it——"

"O, but I do mind!"

HIS client, who had been lounging back in her chair with her knees crossed, revealing a surprising length of flesh colored silk stockings, now sat up straight and looked at him with hard, bright, gray-green eyes. "I mind it very much indeed. And—I'm going to be frank, too—you're simply wasting your breath."

Hatch flushed a deeper pink and rubbed a white eyebrow.

"I must remind you——" he began.

"You needn't remind me of anything. I know my father left instructions for you to keep me in leading strings. It's just the sort of thing he would do. He had kept me in leading strings all my life, and he would jerk me about from his grave if he could. As he can't, he left the strings to you. But I don't intend to be pulled by them any longer."

At the look on the lawyer's face she stopped and leaned forward, speaking with a change of manner that included a certain dignity.

"Let's have this out for once and for all, Mr. Hatch," she suggested. "You know the kind of a man my father was, don't you?"

"Why, I——"

"You know perfectly well that he was the hardest, most contemptible, most hypocritical, most sanctimonious old fraud in the whole region—and that he hadn't a friend in the world. Don't you?"

"My dear Dorinda!"

"He broke my mother's heart. Years ago he made her an invalid. Six months ago he killed her as surely as if he had done it with an ax. He had a frightful temper under that pious look of his, and when he got angry he acted like a maniac. He raced into her room that night and bellowed at her for letting me go to Norma Davis' birthday party. It was the only party I had ever been asked to. Norma is one of the nicest girls in town, and she was the only girl friend I had—the only girl who dared to come near me. But father hated her because he hated her father. You know Judge Davis had shown him up several times," she interrupted. "My heart was set on that party," she resumed, as Hatch did not reply, "so mother took the risk of letting me go, though she knew it would mean a terrible scene. I suppose it was the one brave act of her married life. She hadn't much spirit, poor darling. He had taken all that out of her."

She stopped, but Hatch was too wise to speak. The girl's defense was what he wanted, and at last it was pouring out with a passion that amazed him.

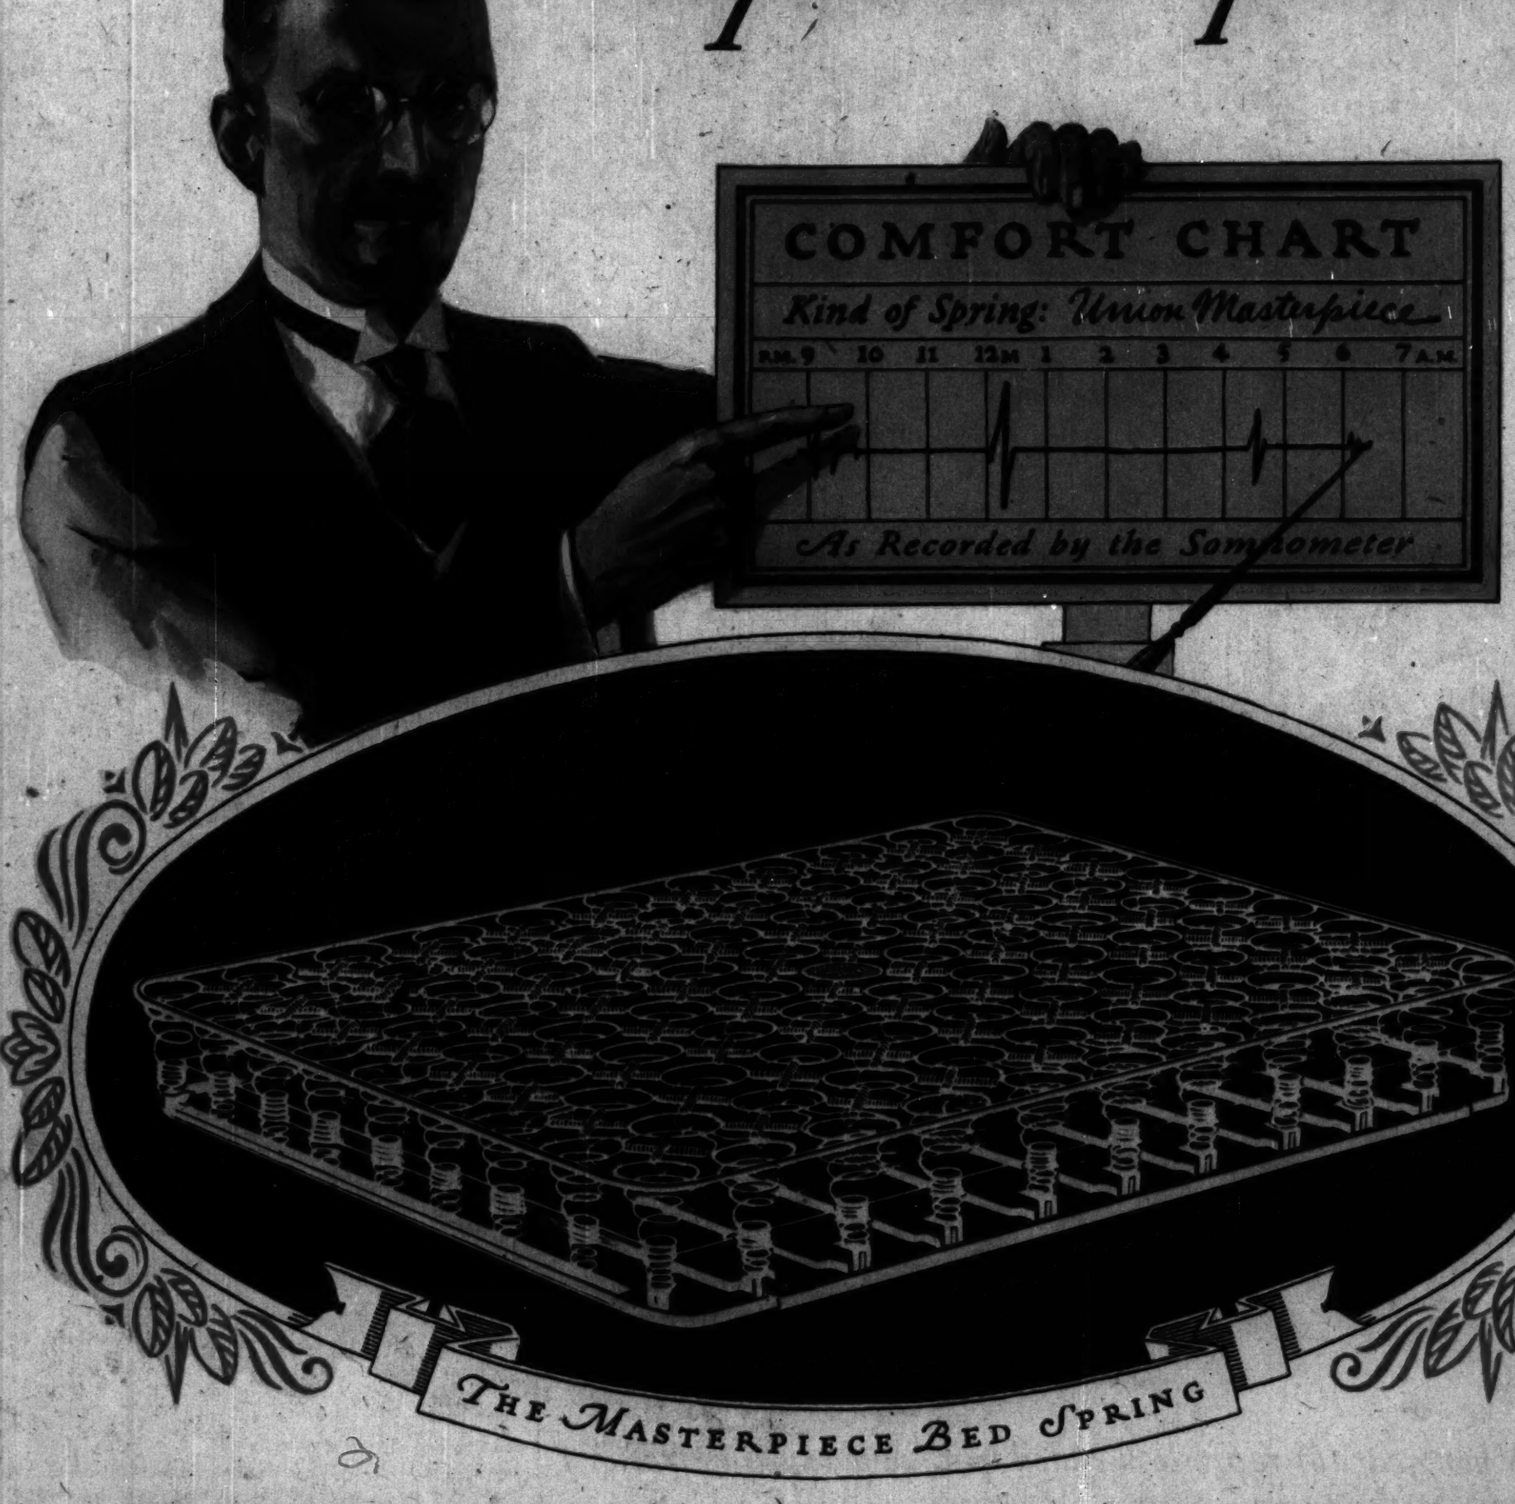
Into Dorinda's life comes a youth destined to play a strange role in her defiant adventures. His entrance, and Hatch's ultimatum to this wilful heiress, are colorful episodes in the next installment of this absorbing story. Read it and subsequent chapters in the feature pages of THE TRIBUNE daily except Sunday. The second chapter tomorrow!

What is Comfort?

... a new instrument now answers this important question



OF ALL the things you buy, nothing is used so exclusively for your personal comfort as your bed spring. Style or appearance can hardly temper your selection. Economy or convenience have little or nothing to do with it. When you go to select a bed spring you are seeking but one thing—COMFORT.

Yet every manufacturer—every salesman—sincerely believes the bed spring he offers you is comfortable. But how comfortable is the thing you want to know. Is there any way to judge them—any way to know how much comfort you are buying? For, specifically, what is comfort?

Scientists tell us that comfort is a state of being at ease, at rest. Comfort is a state of satisfaction for the body. As discomfort sets in dissatisfaction appears—bodily movements occur. Therefore, a record of your stirs and tosses during the night is an accurate measure of the comfort you enjoyed.

A new scientific instrument called the Somnometer can now make a graphic chart of your comfort every hour of the night. We have employed the Somnometer to prove that our Masterpiece Bed Spring furnishes a greater degree of bodily satisfaction—a greater degree of comfort. We have made scores of comfort charts to demonstrate that most people sleep more restfully on the Masterpiece. We have had comparative tests made by disinterested parties. The records of all these comfort tests and experiments are now in our vaults.

They enable us to make this unusual offer to the public: Buy a Masterpiece Bed Spring from any Union Sleep Unit Dealer. Use it for two weeks. If it fails to let you sleep as you've never slept before—if it fails to give you complete comfort—return it and get your money back without question. You are to be the sole judge.

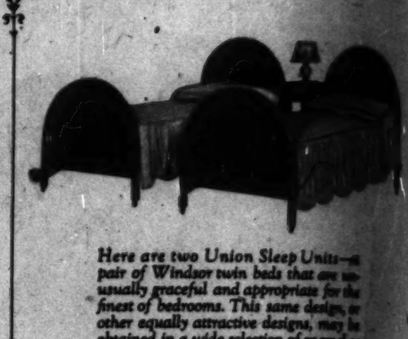
Kostner and Fifth Avenue • Chicago, Illinois



Here are two Union Sleep Units—a pair of Windsor twin beds that are unusually graceful and appropriate for the finest of bedrooms. This same design, or other equally attractive designs, may be obtained in a wide selection of enamel or wood finishes, plain or hand-decorated.

Above is a Union Sleep Unit that has won much favor among those who appreciate artistry in their home furnishings. This number is supplied in all the popular wood and enamel finishes, with or without hand-painted decoration.

Another set of twin beds taken from the extensive range of patterns found in the line of Union Sleep Units is shown here. Superiority of design, finish and workmanship distinguish these beds as well as all of the other Union Sleep Units.

The same painstaking thought is given to the design and finish of Union Day Beds as to all other Union Sleep Units. In fact, we believe that good taste in a day bed is oft-times doubly essential because of the surroundings with which day beds may be expected to harmonize.

The Husband Hunter By Leigh Hutty

In Keeping an Eye Out for Money, Nancy Trainor Almost Lost Sight of Love

On the street, at the opera, in the lobbies of the hotels, what interested whispers would follow them!

ONE hot afternoon in late August Miss Nancy Trainor came down the steps of the grand stand at the Polo Grounds—quite alone!

She knew nothing of baseball. She loathed the noise, the crowds, the hard, uncomfortable seats, the peanut shells, the ice cream cones, the empty ginger ale bottles rolling under foot—all that goes to make up the paraphernalia of the Great American Game.

Men. So many men! Vested, straw-hatted, perspiring, and happy! There were all classes to pick from here—huddled together in a holiday humor and a glorious democracy of spirit.

As she daintily picked her way down to a seat at the left of the home plate there was that gleam of exhilaration in her eye that springs into a hunter's when he first discovers a deer's track in a forest!

Nancy Trainor had been left an orphan in New York, with a face that made women look a little sad and envious when they passed her in the street; and the kind of poverty that wears crêpe de chine lingerie and cleanses it in the wash basin.

She was too moral and too fastidious to take the road that leads to a corpulent provider and an apartment on Riverside drive—unblessed by matrimony; and without friends, fortune, or social position it was not easy to select the right man in the right way. It is always easy for a young and beautiful girl to meet the right man in the wrong way!

Nancy was not built to cope with poverty. Her mother had been unable to cope with it before her. In fact, finding that the modern workaday world had no place for her unhurried gentility and social graces, Mrs. Trainor had quietly given up and died of a disease not listed by the medical profession—a deep disgust of life!

"I've been a sentimental fool!" she said faintly, her disillusioned eyes staring up into Nancy's young and beautiful face. "Thank God, you belong to a richer generation. Perhaps you can win where I have failed. It killed me—poverty! If you're ever tempted to think you can endure it, remember that! You don't know how to work! You weren't born for it! It would kill you, too! A rich man! There isn't any other way! Never . . . anything . . . but a rich man. . . ."

Whispering these sad things, she turned her face to the wall and slipped away; and Nancy became an unwilling member of a profession that requires little capital, has a very large secret membership, and yields most satisfactory emoluments.

Nancy became a husband hunter!

Her first fond delusion was to think that she would meet the much pursued "man with a million" in Wall street; and she promptly attached herself to the law firm of Congor & Sullib, only to discover that those illusive beings who clip coupons prefer brains rather than beauty in secretaries, and that a man at work is not in the most receptive mood to be either flattered or charmed. She must seek him when he was at play! But where, O where, did he play?

In spite of her feminine charm and softness Nancy had a distinctly modern mind, and she discovered on looking about her that the methods used by the members of her profession were old fashioned and slipshod in the extreme! It was all hit or miss. A combination of mushy sentiment and chance, with a lot of cheap moonlight and jazz thrown in. There was no system to be seen anywhere!

The flappers of her day and generation were busily using the antediluvian methods of their grandmothers, with a modern camouflage of red lipstick, bobbed hair, and short skirts.

Nancy decided that system and modern efficiency would produce as mathematically certain results in husband hunting as in business—if properly applied. But how and where to apply them?

She tried the resorts next—made supreme sacrifices in the winter to secure the meager wherewithal to be lost in a summer hotel in June. She met a host of many opulent matrons there who toyed with cards in the evening and talked about "reducing" in the afternoon, but of generic men she found only a few specimens which will inevitably be preserved under glass for future generations to gaze upon as the last dancing instructors of an insane epoch.

Undaunted, she tried the movies, thinking to secure a little publicity for her beauty, but one of the largest firms took a test of her, only to discover that her face "didn't film." Nancy was like an electric bloom, not to be found save by those few who look for fragrant and perfect things in out of the way places.

Almost ready to admit at last "that only the rich would succeed in meeting the rich," she consented one day to go to the Polo Grounds with Charlie Mercer, who was doing a sporting page for the Morning Rapid.

To Charlie's great and intense surprise she took a sudden and unbounded interest in the Great American Game and insisted on collecting all the miscellaneous information he was capable of imparting relative to the making of a successful baseball fan. Thereafter she accompanied him every Saturday to the baseball grounds and even succeeded under his tutelage in learning to keep score.

He was even more surprised and not a little chagrined when one day she calmly but firmly stated that she preferred to go to the Polo Grounds unescorted!

"I'm awfully sorry, Charlie, old boy," she said gently, "but you see I can't allow sentiment to interfere in my profession any more than a man can allow it to interfere in his business. I've got a big project on hand and it will take all my time and energy to bring it to a successful conclusion."

CHARLIE MERCER had trained himself never to be surprised at the younger generation, but as he looked at the lovely little feminine face his jaw dropped. "And what is your profession, may I ask?" he inquired, a bit acidly.

Nancy lifted her head and stared straight in his eyes. "Husband hunting," she said calmly. "I am a husband hunter by profession."

"A husband hunter!" Charlie laughed—and then got red in the face. "Good heavens," he gasped, "you're not ill, are you?"

Nancy maintained her poise. "Not ill at all," she said quietly. "Just—truthful! I'm doing what most other women are doing secretly. Only I'm being frank about it, at least to you."

Charlie laughed again and then grew pale with anger. "You—you ought to be ashamed of yourself!" he stammered. "You're going to come an awful cropper. It's this rotten age we live in that makes you dare to say such things. . . . If you think you can play this hard boiled stuff you're mistaken. You're the cleanest, decentest girl I know, and you ought to be sent home, put to bed, and fed on bread and water until you come to your senses. You would be, too, if you had any people to tell you what a silly little idiot you are."

And Charlie turned indignantly on his heel and left her.

But Nancy was not thinking of Charlie Mercer today as she came down the steps of the grandstand, stepping daintily after an usher who led her to a choice seat in the reserved section.

She was quite alone and she had dressed herself with great care in a midnight blue gown and a little green hat that hugged her small head very closely as if in adoration.

Her pallid cheeks were kissed on either side by two half moons of jet black hair, and her eyes made one think of Italian skies—or if every one can't visualize Italian skies—of deep purple violets in shady places of the woods. If Nancy had been made on a larger scale she would have set the world afire. But she was like a miniature on ivory—best seen at close range.

Taking careful but outwardly careless stock of her neighbors, she saw that the man on her left was baldheaded and dropsical, but she determined not to allow that to discourage her. She had long ago discovered that wealth and obesity frequently go hand in hand, and besides—the young man on her right in the gray suit was distinctly promising!

Wealth from a man's attire is as difficult to deduce as chastity from a woman's looks; but she noted that he wore a very fine striped shirt, a suit that might or might not have been custom made, and that clean, scrubbed look that for some reason she always associated with colleges and athletics.

He was watching the practice on the field with a quiet obliviousness of her presence that secretly irritated her, so she turned her shoulder toward him, and when the game started began to keep score with the careless proficiency of a veteran. Her applause came at just the right moments and was enthusiastic and charming, so charming that several masculine heads turned instinctively in her direction.

The dropsical gentleman tried at once to strike up an acquaintance, but Nancy discouraged him with a quiet aloofness that at once proclaimed her good breeding. The last thing that she wished to suggest was that she was "that sort of a girl," and when the young man on her right at last became conscious of her existence she was equally cool to him. Once he picked up her score card, and she thanked him quietly but distantly, refusing even to turn her eyes in his direction.

When at last the intermission was called and the audience sat idly waiting for the second game to be called, Nancy felt that the psychological moment had arrived to put her system into practice . . . Leaning forward, she quietly but deliberately broke the string of beads.

She had at first considered dropping a bangle, but on second thought had realized that the disturbance created by such an incident would be far too ephemeral for her purpose, so she had eventually decided on the beads. And if any one is in doubt as to the wisdom of her choice just let them break a string themselves in a crowded theater or even at a cross-section of a busy street at the rush hour—and notice the number of sympathetically inclined gentlemen who come to the rescue.

The deed once done, Nancy gave a little frightened cry and sat clutching what remained of her necklace—a picture of beauty in distress!

The men around her began to look down at the floor. Some few, farther away, glanced back over their shoulders and frowned, muttering something through which one caught the words "stay at home" and "baseball." But others with indolent good humor helped in the work of rescue. A woman leaned over to ask if the necklace were "real coral," and on Nancy's answering in the affirmative exclaimed sympathetically.

THE beads had rolled far and wide on the smooth concrete floor, and it seemed next to impossible to recover them all, but Nancy was grateful—but not too grateful—to the tall young man on her right who had collected the major portion of the necklace and was now helping her stuff them into the little black satin bag that hung on her arm.

As he helped her close the clasp she noted that his hands were slim, white, and swiftly authoritative—the hands of a gentleman!

She was about to assure herself that she had been unexpectedly fortunate in her first capture, when he suddenly turned squarely toward her, and she caught her breath! Across the man's cheek, searing it in a jagged line from eye to mouth, was a long, ugly scar that caused the flesh to lap together uneasily and lifted the corner of the mouth a little so that the owner must perforce smile a very crooked smile.

He was doing it now, and coloring, too, and she realized that, with a quick impulse of compassion, he must of necessity always meet people with that look of wistful deprecation.

She was utterly silent. An encounter that had begun auspiciously had taken a most inglorious twist! For an instant the lethargy of failure swept over her, and then quite suddenly, with the ability of youth to meet reaction with hope, she saw the scar on his face no longer as a hindrance, but as a foil for her own beauty!

On the street, at the opera, in the lobbies of the hotels, what interested whispers would follow them! With the semblance of actuality she could see her own figure reflected in long mirrors, hear the strains of rhythmic music, feel costly draperies ruffling up the floor at her feet.

Three hours later, when she found herself seated opposite her new acquaintance at a restaurant where red geraniums made a complimentary background for black hair, she realised that notwithstanding the fact that they had established in the short time that had elapsed since their meeting a rather intimate conversational comradeship, her every inquisitive question had been deftly put aside.

When at length the waiter had obediently turned away with the order for the dessert, she leaned her elbows on the table and, making a little cup for her chin with her palms, said pointedly: "Do you realise that we have been over three hours together and I don't even know your name?"

Her companion started, and the faint, dull flush that had touched his face when they first met swept over it again. He regarded her with a peculiar irresolution that had in it something of entreaty. Pushing the little candle with its golden shade further away, so that his view of her face was unobstructed, he leaned toward her, interrogating her with his eyes.

"Have you a sense of humor?" he asked, and his tone was touched with rather forced raillery.

"A sense of humor!" Nancy drew her brows together in surprise.

"Women are sometimes quite s-serious a-b-o-u-t — humorous things," he said wistfully.

Nancy smiled. To see her smile was something of an experience. It was then that her lovely violet eyes with their fringe of black lashes looked most Madonna-like and beguiling. You would have sworn that the little mouth so tenderly parted was designed solely to sing lullabies and whisper soft nothings in a lover's ears.

THE man opposite was not unconscious of these allurements. In fact, he was acutely conscious of them, but he was secretly afraid of extraordinarily beautiful women. Somehow he had the uncomfortable idea that if nature had been so lavish in one direction she must have been correspondingly niggardly in another.

"I wonder if you'll forgive me for saying something—well, rather personal, before I e-expose my n-name?" he asked, leaning toward her and watching her face with an anxiety that seemed out of proportion to the favor he was asking. When he was excited he had a peculiar hesitancy in his speech that amounted almost to a stammer. He smiled at her. "I don't want to e-embarrass you," he said in his musical, hesitating voice, "and p-personalities nearly always are embarrassing . . . but I—well, you won't mind before I tell you my name if I speak of t-this, will you?" He touched the scar on his cheek lightly with his hand.

Then as she made an instinctive movement toward him with a compassionate, "O, you were in the war!" he gave a little bitter laugh. "No; it wasn't as d-dramatic as all that." He made a movement as if he wanted to thrust away her look of commiseration. "Please—not that!" he stammered. "I've been trying to get away from s-sympathy all my life. That's the trouble with me. I want to play the g-game with all the h-handicaps!"

Nancy's eyes grew watchful. "Handicaps," she repeated warily.

The man's gray eyes narrowed. He spoke slowly, as if he were choosing his words. "I went through the world war without a scratch," he said, a little bitterly. "I got this scar in a wholly inglorious way by falling out of a swing when I was a kid." He smiled in resentment at the recollection. "When I was at school I used to fight over it—when they tried to pity me, I mean, because of my—my—" he hesitated at the word—"disfigurement. You see, I've an idea that a man is a lot bigger than—well, how shall I say it?—exterior advantages or disadvantages." He paused and smiled into her eyes. "I get along all right with my own sex," he added whimsically. "But women are afraid of r-ridicule." He lifted his head and looked her squarely in the eyes. "My scar isn't my only handicap," he said resolutely. "My name is another. It makes me terribly r-r-ridiculous."

Nancy's voice caught nervously at a high note. "Ridiculous?"

He nodded. "I've been trying to p-prepare you, you see," he finished shyly. "Women forget all about what kind of a man I am—inside—when they hear it. It's Nutt, you see."

"NUTT!"

His eyes avoided hers. "They christened me Albert, too!" he went on, still avoiding her eyes. "A. Nutt, they call me, and everybody laughs. It's a pretty big handicap with women."

"Nutt! A—A—Nutt. Why——" There was an appalled silence and then her voice rose suddenly and stridently. 'Why, it doesn't sound—real! Your parents, they—O, why didn't they? They might have named you something else! It's awful. It's wicked." Her eyes and voice were tragic.

He smiled a little sadly. "I was afraid you wouldn't laugh," he said in a hurt voice. "Women hardly ever do?."

Nancy was indignant. "It's not a laughing matter," she said resentfully.

He smiled the shy, twisted smile that somehow gave his face a peculiarly lovable look. "O, well—men do," he answered, his hurt eyes on the defensive. "And it—it makes a great hit with c-customers—puts over a lot of sales, you know. 'A. Nutt to see you, sir!' Ha! Ha! Ha!"

Laughs! Sales! Customers!

Nancy grew suddenly rigid. For a moment she was absolutely, terribly silent. Then an ugly spot of red flamed, like the aftermath of a blow, across either cheek. "Customers?" she cried, scarcely able to articulate the word.

He pushed some of the olives across to her. "You're not eating anything at all," he said. "Have some of these. Yes; you see, when you are trying to make a sale, if you can just start people off in a good humor it's all plain sailing. . . . Nothing like a laugh to change the atmosphere of business, you know!"

Nancy's eyes dilated as she leaned toward him. Her beauty was so astonishing that the man caught his breath. "Business?" she repeated in a queer, strained voice. "What is your business, if I may ask?"

There was an indefinite little pause, and then, while the man regarded her in a strange, intent way, "My business," he hesitated. Then he added easily, "O, I travel—for Merchant & Merchant. Wholesale neckties—a traveling salesman, you see."

Nancy sat perfectly awfully still—staring at him. Her lower lip dropped. A traveling salesman! And she had been treating him like a millionaire! She didn't know whether to laugh or cry—to be more angry at him or at herself.

When at length she spoke her voice was accusative, bitter. "I should have thought," she remarked, with a little acid glance at his face, "that you would have hesitated to take up salesmanship. Weren't you afraid," cruelly, "that you couldn't make a success of it?"

The man smiled. His eyes wandered to the window, where far below the city lay a thousand jeweled lights gleaming on her bosom. "If you c-count success by the number of s-sales you make I guess I'm not such a very successful salesman," he said. "But"—he threw back his shoulders with a gesture of emancipation—"money hasn't anything to do with success," he affirmed happily.

"Hasn't it?" she asked with bitterness. "What has, then?"

HIS eyes rested on her face with that strange, penetrating, truth seeking look she had noted when she first met him. He leaned toward her. "Do you know, I've always thought some day some woman like you would tell me—that," he hasarded, with a shy glance at her face.

"Some—woman!" Nancy was wondering how to terminate the interview.

He nodded. "Some woman who wouldn't measure a man by the number of objects he'd accumulated. Houses and furniture—and—and whatnots—the cheap little material things that d-don't count."

Nancy had hard work to keep the disdain she felt from showing in her face. "And if what you call 'the foolish little material things' don't count," she asked superciliously, "would you mind telling me just what things do count?"

He smiled. "It's rather embarrassing to talk about them . . . nowadays," he said whimsically. "They've gone out of f-fashion, but they used to be lying about everywhere. . . . "

Nancy lifted her head. "Well—why do you stop?" she asked.

He gave a little shamefaced laugh. "Jove! When I look at a woman like you," he said, and there was a strange thrill in his voice, "I know the old world hasn't changed after all. We've got the same old sun, and moon, and stars to do business with—the same good old air to breathe with, and—and—the same old"—his voice dropped—"love to love with."

There was a little pause. He slipped his hand across the tablecloth and touched her fingers. . . . And to her intense astonishment she felt herself suddenly flushing from her chin to the roots of her beautiful hair. Her eyes even grew hot.

Drawn without her will, resistlessly, she lifted her eyes and looked at him. There was something strange in the glance that passed from her eyes to his. It might have belonged to the present, but it seemed to have been detached from some long gone intimate past. She was powerless to withhold it—or stop blushing.

That night when she reached her room she put out the lights quickly, and stretching herself on the bed lay there for long moments, her hands clinched at her sides. She remembered the things that he had enumerated to her as making a man a success, and gave a little bitter laugh. She repeated the word "ridiculous" several times.

"What's ridiculous?" asked a voice from the doorway.

Nancy lifted her head. The girl in the next room who worked in a jewelry establishment groped her way toward the bed and sat down. "What is ridiculous?" she repeated.

"Life!" stated Nancy platitudinously. Then she added: "O, Essie, why are the poor ones always so nice?"

"Poor what?" asked the girl in the next room practically.

The husband hunter did not answer. She pressed her face into the pillow. "With his scar—and his stammer and his awful name," she whispered indignantly. "It's absolutely ridiculous!"

But Mr. Albert Nutt refused to admit his suit ridiculous. She found him rather a hard man to drop!

She explained to herself, when she allowed him to spend the greater part of his meager salary taking her around to the theaters and moving pictures, that she had accepted his escort the first time out of compassion, and the second time because he insisted in evincing such an ingenious belief in her goodness that it was embarrassing to disillusionize him. And the third time—well, she had no satisfactory explanation for the third time.

Mr. Nutt had a boundless enthusiasm for the simple things that filled her with amazed contempt. Sometimes he would shyly bring her a single rose, explaining that the pleasure in giving it could be no greater if he could lay a dozen American beauties at her feet. He never tired of pointing out tiny homes in the country, expatiating tirelessly on the simple joys that filled Nancy with secret horror.

She constantly wondered what kept her from dismissing him—especially as it took so much effort to prevent her association with him from interfering with her chosen profession; but she found no plausible answer for the question.

She had managed to hit, however, on a rather clever little ruse to keep him away from the ball grounds. Nearly every week-end she made an engagement to go to the matinée with him and Saturday morning at ten she called him up from the office to say that she had been detained by some work, but that if he could wait around she might possibly join him later.

At three she called him from the Polo Grounds to say that she had found it impossible to finish, but that he might call for her at her boarding house at eight o'clock and take her out somewhere for the evening.

Frequently she was touched by real regret when she thought of the wasted theater tickets, but she consoled herself with the assurance that if it had been possible she would have acted differently! She always preferred to be honest when it was possible, as she especially detested the unpleasant contingencies that were apt to occur when one was compelled to resort to deception. It was not until the very last week in September that one of these unpleasant contingencies occurred!

MR. ALBERT NUTT had been called out of town for the week-end; and, finishing his business sooner than he had anticipated, returned to town at half past one Saturday afternoon and hastened to the telephone to call Nancy up at the office. . . . only to discover that she had already left for the afternoon. The communicative girl at the other end of the wire informed him that "Miss Trainor was never at the office Saturdays—she always made a practice of going out to the ball grounds. If you don't find her there—I don't know where on earth you will find her," she informed him, hanging up the receiver.

Mr. Albert Nutt stood very still—a strange light sprang in his gray eyes. "Never was at the office Saturday afternoons." As he emerged from the booth, the bulldog jaw that an indulgent Creator had bestowed upon him as an after thought seemed suddenly the most salient feature in his face. . . .

It was quite late when he reached the Polo Grounds and the only seat he could secure was in the reserved section . . . It was in the reserved section, he remembered, that he had first met her. She had worn a thin dark blue dress then, covered with little printed scrolls or cowslips or something—he didn't know which. He remembered only that her white arms and neck had shone through the thin material like marble through a fog. How gentle and refined, unworldly she had looked. The least that he could do was to suspend judgment. . . . refrain from judging too harshly. There were so many explanations she could make—so many she had a right to make. . . .

A girl three seats below him had broken a string of beads! A familiarity in the little tinkling sound startled him. . . .

There was a great craning forward of necks—bending of backs—exclamations of sympathy. He arose mechanically to his feet and moved forward—as if drawn by a magnet. . . .

A prosperous, blowsy looking young man was handing the major part of a broken necklace to a small slim girl in a dark dress, who was holding a little silk bag open to receive it. . . .

Mr. Albert Nutt, chief salesman for Merchant & Merchant, gentlemen's neckties, suddenly turned pale. His heart gave a great leap—stood still, and then began to pound again like an abruptly cranked machine. . . .

"Do you drop them every Saturday?" he asked bitterly that night, when, unable to keep away, he called for her and they turned from the facetious crowd on the boarding house steps toward the avenue. "Do you drop them the same way—every Saturday?"

He almost wished when he had asked the question that she would refuse to answer, that she would leave him yet a little longer in miserable ignorance. Spare herself and him—the ugly revelations that the innate honesty in him made him demand. . . .

A spot of shamed red burned on her cheeks at the insinuation in his voice, but it was not until they had crossed Madison avenue that she spoke at last. Then she lifted her face to his and said a great many things—ugly things, bald and revealing!

His first consciousness was of intense embarrassment—shame for her! "I see," said Mr. Albert Nutt, dawning comprehension in his eyes. "It is only the—the r-rich ones you're after!"

She met his abashed glance. "Yes," she said defiantly. "It's only the rich ones I'm after!"

He was silent, utterly, terribly silent.

Suddenly she threw back her head and cast all reserve away with a sort of passionate rudeness. "I guess I landed one, all right, this afternoon!" she asserted bitterly.

"Landed—o-one?"

Unconsciously she accelerated her step. "I guess there's no mistake. He's not a salesman this time!"

"Good God!"

The man put his hand to his forehead—and took it down. It was covered with little drops of sweat. He turned—the light from a store window fell across his face.

She put out a contrite hand. "Don't look that way," she faltered, a little catch in her voice. "I'm telling you the truth because—because I—want to—to play square! You're so good—I've got to play square! It—it isn't any use . . . as far as I'm concerned! You'll never make any money—you don't want to! And—I—well, if things had been different, you know, if life hadn't been so unjust—you're the kind of a man that I—that I——" The music went out of her voice. It broke.

He caught hold of her arm. "Let's go to the park," he said thickly. "For God's sake—don't tell me here!"

So they went to the park and found a sheltered place out of sight of loiterers, and the man flung himself down beside her on the grass and caught her hands, pressing them until she winced. The scar on his face looked suddenly red and unhealed, like a cauterized wound.

"If you meant . . . this . . . all along," he said, his voice shaking, "why didn't you s-stop me in time? You knew how it was with me. You knew what I was looking for—a woman that would put the man in me above e-everything else! You can't make me believe even yet you'll sell yourself just for—for t-trinkets! Do you think in chiffons and laces you won't be h-hungry for the touch of love? See, you're afraid even now—afraid of what you're doing! You can't make me think there's enough of a thief in you to want to steal your . . . keep . . . from some s-stranger! For that's what you're doing! You haven't anything to give!—for you're m-mine and you know it! You've got the chance to decide between the big and the little things—this minute you've got it. No—don't t-turn away! Don't be afraid. What does it matter what I can dress you in when I can m-make that l-look come into your eyes?"

He caught her, dragged her to him with the roughness of passion and laid his hot face against her throat. "Don't go back on me," he stammered. "I'll believe in you until the very last minute. Don't speak too quickly, dear—my dear! Wait—wait just a minute! I've staked everything on this m-moment. I've always believed it was bigger than anything in the world—l-l-love! That nothing exterior would matter! It doesn't—does it?—to you, down in your heart of hearts. Tell me it doesn't! O, my dear, tell me it doesn't!"

"I—I can't!" The girl tore herself away from him, panting and disheveled. Her hat had fallen from her head and her white flesh was rouged where he had pressed his face. With that pressure of love yet on her she turned and faced him—white as at the last day of her life.

The husband hunter did not answer. She pressed her face into the pillow.

Leaning over, she put her hands on his shoulders. "I'm—I'm not—not big enough," she wailed. "I'm just—not! That's all! Perhaps if you'd lived the life I have you wouldn't be either!" She began to sob and covered her face with her hands to hide it from the shame in his eyes. Her own widened with fear. "I couldn't . . . bear . . . it," she gasped. "All my life! The grubbing middle class poverty! A little room somewhere in Harlem, with—with you coming home tired at night . . . and, yes—yes, irritable perhaps—and the scrimping and scratching to make both ends meet! . . . The dirty, stupid ugliness of it all—I couldn't bear it—I tell you I couldn't! I haven't the strength. I'm not made that way! There isn't that much love in me!"

Suddenly she caught his temples in her hands and pressed her lips to the scar on his cheek. "It isn't because of this," she whispered. "I—I like you better than any one I've ever known—I swear I do! If things had been different—but there never will be any hope of money—with you. Life's such a tyrant," she added bitterly. "It never gives us half—a chance!"

THE man didn't answer. Neither did he move when he saw her pick up her hat from the grass and slowly turn away.

Mutely he watched the slender young figure as it glimmered in and out among the trees. . . . Once she turned, and he lifted his white face hungrily, but she only faltered for a moment, and the next turned resolutely away!

The man who had called himself Mr. Albert Nutt of Merchant & Merchant sat where she had left him for a long time—sat very still, looking through the trees at the place where the flutter of her dress had vanished. Then he arose to his feet and left the park.

Mechanically he moved down Fifth avenue, crossed to Madison, walking almost without his own volition. Habit led him to a large bachelors' apartment house. He stopped and entered the elevator, which lifted him to a certain floor. He got out and let himself into a door with a latchkey. He turned on the electric lights, still moving mechanically, and walked over to the window. He stared out listlessly at the light flecked gloom for a few moments and then sank heavily into an arm chair.

In the adjoining room he could hear the stealthy opening and shutting of drawers, the careful laying out of clothing, all the efficient, almost soundless movements that betokened long service. How well he knew them! They suggested countless days that were behind and countless days that were to come in which he would listen to them with the same terrible indifference.

The door between the two rooms opened and a servant stood on the threshold. He started and looked distressed as he saw his master's face. "I didn't know you were in, sir," he said. "I did not hear you——"

"I just came." The man at the window spoke in a strange, detached voice. "Is any one waiting?"

"A messenger from the jewelers' came at three, sir." The servant advanced and laid some letters on the table by the chair. "He waited for several hours, but as you didn't return he went away—and is here again." He stood aside for some one in the adjoining room to enter.

The man at the window started. A strange expression swept across his face. There was something sardonic, as of a scene in a play, in the man who came forward obsequiously to display his wares. . . . It was as if Fate had made a fantastic gesture!

"The very finest color, Mr. Grayson," suggested the jeweler, as his capable hands removed some white paper from a velvet box. He advanced to the window and laid a necklace on the table by the armchair. "It took a long time to assemble these, sir," he added, a caressing note in his voice. "You can see they're perfectly matched pearls—the very finest color. Mr. Coleman said you wanted them especially by this evening."

The man at the window smiled. He took up the gleaming string and weighed it in his hand. Again that strange expression crossed his face. "I am sorry I troubled Mr. Coleman," he said, abruptly, "but I—I haven't any use for the s-string now. When I telephoned this morning I—I thought—I was—intending——"

He interrupted himself, staring at the necklace in his hand as if suddenly fascinated by an idea.

"On reconsideration," he said, with a peculiar hard abruptness, "you can tell Mr. Coleman that I will . . . keep . . . the string. I'll see him about it Monday morning. Thank him for his trouble—that is all."

He stood, watching impatiently, while the man bowed himself out of the room. Then he went over to his desk and, sitting down, took out a sheet of note paper. With desk shears, he carefully cut off the letterhead, hesitated a moment, and then grimly wrote some lines on a blank sheet, folded it, and slipped it in an addressed envelope. The envelope he started to place in the lid of the velvet box with the necklace—then suddenly the bitterness passed from his face. He tore the letter he had written into shreds; closed the jewel case over the necklace—wrapped and addressed it, and then called his servant.

"I want you to deliver this, yourself, tomorrow," he said. If the lady asks you any questions, under no circumstances do I wish my address or real name disclosed. . . . You understand—just say Mr. Albert Nutt sent the package."

The servant bowed. His face was expressionless. "Yes, sir. Perfectly, sir——" He started to turn away.

"Just a moment—I want you to go at once to that rooming house where I have been staying, and take away those clothes and things you brought for me. Pay them, but don't leave any forwarding address. You understand?"

"Yes, sir. Perfectly, sir."

The servant bowed and withdrew.

Sunday morning found Nancy still awake. All night she had lain—staring at the ceiling.

When the day broke she arose and dressed herself, and went out. At five o'clock the girl next door, who worked in a jewelry store, put her head in to ask a question. Nancy was standing in the center of the room. Her hat was on. Her eyes were red and swollen—her face white as paper.

"What is the matter?" stammered the girl next door, catching her breath.

"O, Essie!" Nancy caught her friend's hands. Her voice was frightened. "I can't . . . find . . . him!" she stammered. "I've been to the boarding house where he roomed——. He went away last night—leaving no address!" She broke down. Her body was convulsed. "You don't know what it's . . . like . . . she sobbed. "His voice—his hands—I can't think of anything else! Don't you understand? I sent him away because he wasn't—wasn't . . . rich . . . And now I know it doesn't . . . matter. . . . O, Essie! Please—please help me. He's gone——"

THERE was a knock at the door.

"Hush!"

The girl next door went forward and opened it. A man stood there, with a package in his hand.

"Miss Nancy Trainor," he said, looking from one face to the other. Esther pointed.

The man crossed the room and held the jewel case out to Nancy. "From Mr. Nutt," he said. "Mr. A. Nutt."

Nancy tore off the paper, opened the lid of the case, and then let it fall from her hands to the floor. . . .

Her face flamed. "He needn't insult me by sending me . . . beads . . ." she stammered. "He thinks that's all I . . . want. . . . Where is he? Tell me where he is?"

The servant looked away. "I was instructed by Mr. Nutt not to give his address," he said.

Nancy started. "But you—must!" She caught his hands, interrogating his face. "You're a friend of his—aren't you?"

"I was instructed not to give Mr. Nutt's address," repeated the man in an emotionless voice.

The girl next door, who worked in a jewelry shop, turned savagely. "What kind of a guy are you, anyway?" she demanded. "Do you want her to throw herself into the river?"

The man was silent. Nancy rose suddenly to her feet. She went toward him. There was a strange, bleak dignity on her face. Her beauty was no longer the most salient thing about her.

"Will you tell him something for me?" she said in a little shamed whisper. "Will you tell him just this—that I . . . love. . . . him!—I guess you're embarrassed at my saying it—but I can't help that! . . . I can't find him to tell him myself. I can't find him! Please tell him that I know now; it doesn't . . . matter . . . about money! It's hard to be poor, but I—can! Tell him that, please. I can! I thought I couldn't. . . . I didn't want to! But I . . . love . . . him! 'Simply' I've found out what that means! . . . It will hurt a lot to be poor—but not so much as to live without him! I used to hear people say that—and I didn't believe it! But it's true! I can't live without him! Will you tell him?"

The man put up his hand and brushed something from his cheek. "You wait here, Miss," he said, abruptly.

The door closed.

The girl next door, who worked in a jewelry shop, lifted the plush case from the floor and started to throw it on the bed. . . .

As she did so, the string of beads became detached and dropped out on the counterpane. She looked at it indifferently for a moment—then her eyes narrowed. She started!

With almost fierce avarice she caught up the necklace and began to examine the pearls one by one—holding them close to her ferret like eyes.

There was a long, almost stupid silence.

Then—very slowly she lifted her eyes, and stared into Nancy's unconscious face. A look of awe had whitened her own.

"Ain't . . . luck . . . wonderful!" she said bitterly.

Give Yourself That Irresistible Charm Which Once Swayed Empires and Conquered Kings

Such intriguing beauty, so History tells us, came from the use of a rare white mineral earth found only on the Island of Lemnos, off the coast of ancient Greece.

It Worked Like Magic!

Just a few applications brought such exquisite loveliness to complexion that it was pronounced Sacred by the Priests of Diana who gave it the name of Diana's Earth. Later, by Royal Decree it was reserved exclusively for women of noble birth.

PEACH BLOOM

Since that day Diana's Earth was thought lost forever. But just recently the miraculous happened! An American Mineralogist, while surveying near Hot Springs, Ark., was astounded to find another small deposit of this precious beautifier.

Now, at last, your complexion can have that alluring charm and loveliness of early ages, for Genuine Diana's Earth, now called PEACH BLOOM, has been re-discovered.

Beauty Guaranteed!

Regardless of the present condition of your skin, PEACH BLOOM will restore quickly the beauty Nature intended you should have. And the magic improvement will be so apparent once you have used PEACH BLOOM that you will never again be without it.

The coupon below carries our Positive Beauty Guarantee, which likewise applies to your purchase of PEACH BLOOM from any Drug or Department Store, Beauty or Barber Shop in the United States.

STUART'S CALCIUM WAFERS

KING'S MATE

By Rosita Forbes

IN PRECEDING CHAPTERS:

Rosemary Crofton, a lovely English girl, is visiting the governor's palace at Fez with her aunt, Lady Tregarthen. Every one is talking of a mysterious kaid who is said to be the real brains of Abd-el Krim's forces. There is also talk of a secret pass through the mountains, known only to the Riffs. A Frenchman, Capt. de Vries, tries to make love to Rosemary and is repulsed. Next morning she rides out early and her horse throws her, rendering her unconscious. Riff tribesmen take her to their stronghold through the very pass the French are so eager to find. There the Kaid himself, an Englishman named Westwyn, arrives. He refuses to allow Rosemary to return to Fez, fearing that the French would learn his nationality and ferret out the pass. He sends her to the village of Telehdi, where she has Zarifa, a Riffian girl, for a servant. Martengo, a Spanish soldier of fortune, promises to help her escape. When Rosemary visits his cabin he attempts to overpower her. She is rescued by the Kaid, who wounds Martengo in a subsequent duel. Urged by the village headman, Menebbhe, to marry Rosemary for her protection, Westwyn convinces the girl that it is necessary and the wedding takes place with the understanding that later it will be annulled. Abd-el Krim, arriving, approves the Kaid's plan to divide the Spanish forces by blowing up a dam and then to attempt a crushing blow. Rosemary and her maid go to live at Westwyn's house.

INSTALLMENT V.

Rosemary Meets Her Master.

ROSEMARY stayed in the yard, though the stones of the seat were sharp. She must forget what she designated as the "ridiculousness" of the last week. If she treated the situation as perfectly normal it would become so, of course. She resolved to interest herself in the Riffian war, to study the customs and abilities of the people. In time she might get as excited about them as the Kaid. For an instant she saw herself an African Joan of Arc. Then her bare legs attracted her attention. "Economical," she thought. "Healthy, but not at all engaging!"

Her thoughts flew on. "Zarifa!" she called, "isn't there a mirror in the whole village?"

"Yes, yes!" shrilled the handmaiden. "I will get one." And when the light was almost gone she bustled into the room with a hand-blown glass, ornately framed in gilt. "It belongs to Sidi Mohamed's wife and she was proud and grateful to lend it to the bride."

Rosemary's mood was proof against her captor. She studied her face with considerable attention. "It's like meeting an old acquaintance," she reflected, and smiled with firm lips, so thin drained that the blood underneath was like red, smooth petals.

Zarifa watched her draw a damp finger across her eyebrows, which were long and slim, and comb her hair, pushing it into waves with impatient purpose.

"Wallahi, Allah has given you beauty. The Kaid may well be pleased." The words rolled off Rosemary's mute security. She was glad she was beautiful, for it made things more exciting. Some day, perhaps, Westwyn would realize it. Her cheeks began to burn. She must not look back. There were things she couldn't bear to remember, worst of all the moment when the Kaid had picked her bodily off the couch and told her to play the game.

"Damn him," she thought, and then pushed away her resentment, packing it down amid layers of common sense. It was of no use regretting anything. She must begin all over again.

So when Ahmed, bursting with importance and anxiety, brought in a huge brass tray covered with loaves of bread, Rosemary was seated calmly in a folding chair, trying, as she explained to Westwyn, to look hungry enough to justify so much food.

"It's by way of being a ceremonial feast," returned the man. "I wish I could have spared you all this rubbish, but custom up here is more unchangeable than the mountains."

"I don't want to be spared. I'm longing to try all these dishes, but I think forks and spoons are out of place. We ought to eat with our fingers."

"You'd get very sticky!" retorted Westwyn, and, falling in with her mood, he told her of Riffian traditions. "When you've quite finished you ought to get up and loosen your belt with gurgles of intense appreciation."

"I haven't got a belt," said Rosemary. "In fact, I have nothing at all. Zarifa offered to lend me the family toothbrush. She said it hadn't been much used this year!"

"Good Lord, what a fool I am!" exclaimed Westwyn. "Why didn't you tell me?"

"O, Pete provided a cross between a hedgehog and a nail brush, so it's all right. You needn't scowl."

THEY sat on the couch, talking long after Ahmed had cleared away the dishes, delighted at the destruction which proved his skill. Westwyn was preoccupied, though he took in every detail of the girl's grace as she twisted into the most comfortable position against the brilliant bolsters. "He can't get away from his soldiery," thought Rosemary.

But the man's mind was fixed on pajamas! "What in heaven did she sleep in," he wondered. Why on earth hadn't he thought of it before? His teeth bit into the pipe stem.

Planning a southern offensive, decided his companion, half amused, half annoyed. She moved restlessly against the cushions, pushing them into a better angle.

"Do they always stuff their pillows with young camels?"

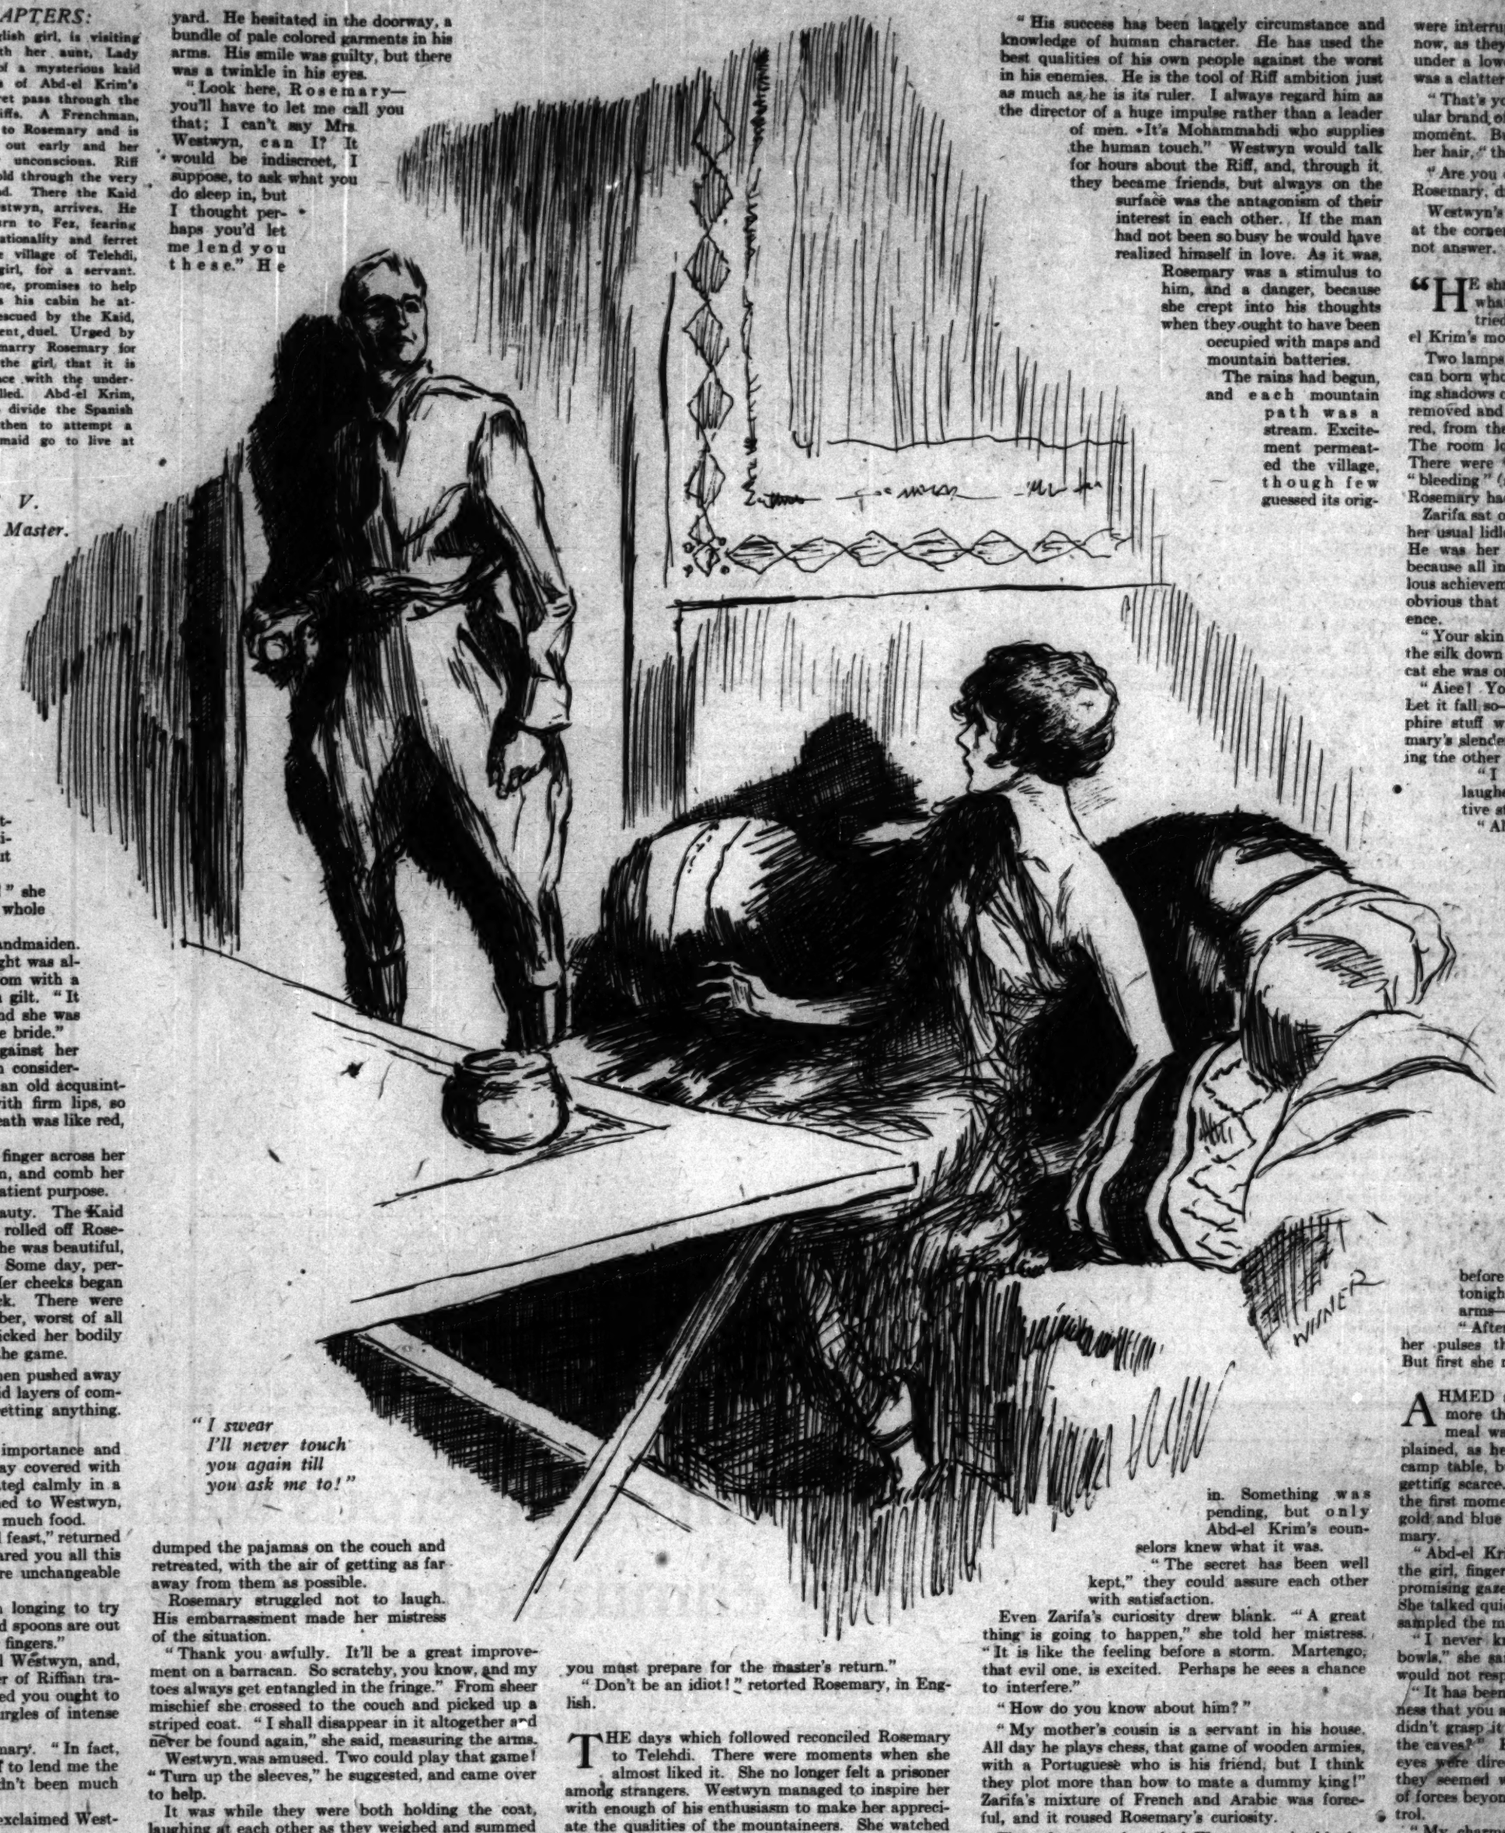
"Yes, I think so. Pretty neck racking, isn't it?" mused Westwyn, regarding her as if she were a Chinese puzzle and wondering whether he could offer her some pajamas! Oppressed by the problem, his lovetaking was somewhat disconnected.

"I suppose Zarifa can make this into a decent bed," he remarked, prodding the hard, hempen mass. His gaze wandered round the room, with its bare mud walls decorated with texts from the Koran and islands of camp furniture upon a sea of matting.

"I'm afraid it's awfully uncomfortable," he said. "I do hope you'll be all right. If you'll wait a minute I'll get you——" And he disappeared through the door into the yard.

Rosemary sat on the window ledge contemplating a corner of starlit sky—it looked as if it were a flower bed. She felt she could pick out the largest stars and set them like candles on the ledge. Westwyn's footsteps came slowly across the yard. He hesitated in the doorway, a bundle of pale colored garments in his arms. His smile was guilty, but there was a twinkle in his eyes.

"Look here, Rosemary—you'll have to let me call you that; I can't say Mrs. Westwyn, can I? It would be indiscreet, I suppose, to ask what you do sleep in, but I thought perhaps you'd let me lend you these." He dumped the pajamas on the couch and retreated, with the air of getting as far away from them as possible.



"I swear I'll never touch you again till you ask me to!"

Rosemary struggled not to laugh. His embarrassment made her mistress of the situation.

"Thank you awfully. It'll be a great improvement on a barracan. So scratchy, you know, and my toes always get entangled in the fringe." From sheer mischief she crossed to the couch and picked up a striped coat. "I shall disappear in it altogether and never be found again," she said, measuring the arms.

Westwyn was amused. Two could play that game! "Turn up the sleeves," he suggested, and came over to help.

It was while they were both holding the coat, laughing at each other as they weighed and summed up the new feeling between them, that a burst of music came from outside. Wild and stormy, it was sound woven into the passion of a marriage night, the song of women drifting like leaves on a tide. It caught at Rosemary's heart, and her face reflected something of its tumult.

"What is it?" she asked, and noticed the man's hands clenched on the stuff they held.

"It's the village women. They have come here to celebrate the wedding. Listen, now." For the life of him he couldn't help touching her arm.

Through the music came a ringing ululation, the primitive rejoicing of woman in her mate, her glad promise of fertility. The mask of civilization was torn from Rosemary as the music wrenched her nerves. For a minute she was as much potential wife as any of the shrouded figures who rejoiced in her fulfillment. Wide-eyed and fearless, the tide of life full in her veins, she looked at Westwyn and saw his face sterner than she had ever known it.

"You must go out to them. Give them money," he said, and pushed silver into her hand.

"Come, too," she pleaded, puzzled and a little hurt, but still hypnotized by the tremendous forces echoed from audh and drum.

Westwyn shook his head. "I can't. They are not all peasants. Some of them may be veiled." He urged her gently toward the door. She turned to him, moved beyond speech, but he was unresponsive.

The night air struck cold in her face, and the women surrounded her with their song. It was harsh now, and insistent. Frightened, she offered them money, muttered thanks in her few words of Arabic, and retreated toward the protection waiting indoors. But her room was empty.

For a long time the girl sat on the couch, staring at the door through which Westwyn had left. Zarifa, tearing herself reluctantly from the excitement in the court, smiled when she saw her mistress so absorbed.

"Allah give you happiness," she whispered, "but you must prepare for the master's return."

"Don't be an idiot!" retorted Rosemary, in English.

THE days which followed reconciled Rosemary to Telehdi. There were moments when she almost liked it. She no longer felt a prisoner among strangers. Westwyn managed to inspire her with enough of his enthusiasm to make her appreciate the qualities of the mountaineers. She watched the brown robed riflemen, laughing in anticipation of the morrow's raid, and watched those same men drag themselves home, wounded, with a smile for their pain. Sometimes a Spanish airplane drifted over the village, but very high up, showing a healthy respect for Riffi marksmanship. On such occasions the whole population would turn out to see where the "great bird" was going to lay its eggs. Never, by any chance, did the bomb fall in a sensible spot, and there would be a shout of amusement as, somewhere up on the hillside, rocks spurted in a harmless shower. They took war lightly, these mountain people. It was part of the natural hardship of their lives. "Man was born to fight; woman to work!"

Sometimes Rosemary rode up under the brow of the pass with Westwyn, and, from one of the twin peaks, they could see the head waters of the river, whose dam was going to burst, but more than that he would not tell her.

"It is better that you should know nothing. Zarifa is an awful chatterer, and she has some sort of relation in Martengo's house. By the way, the Spaniard is on his feet again. I wonder what revenge he is plotting! I shouldn't be surprised if he tried to sell us to Spain."

"You seem very calm about it."

"Well, he'd never get paid—that's certain! Our gallant enemies are more free with promises than with money."

In spite of such lightness, there was a Riffi guard now around Westwyn's house, and Rosemary never rode alone. She had been introduced to Sidi Mohammahdi, who stared at her ingenuously, as if she were a sweet that might melt in the sun, and to his brother, Abd-el Krim, who was a disappointment to her.

"What did you expect?" asked Westwyn, as they walked up from the house now referred to in the village as "the palace."

"I don't know. Somebody much more impressive. Why, his career is epic, and he looks like—well, like anybody else!"

"His success has been largely circumstance and knowledge of human character. He has used the best qualities of his own people against the worst in his enemies. He is the tool of Riff ambition just as much as he is its ruler. I always regard him as the director of a huge impulse rather than a leader of men. It's Mohammahdi who supplies the human touch." Westwyn would talk for hours about the Riff, and, through it, they became friends, but always on the surface was the antagonism of their interest in each other. If the man had not been so busy he would have realized himself in love. As it was, Rosemary was a stimulus to him, and a danger, because she crept into his thoughts when they ought to have been occupied with maps and mountain batteries.

The rains had begun, and each mountain path was a stream. Excitement permeated the village, though few guessed its origin. Something was pending, but only Abd-el Krim's counselors knew what it was.

"The secret has been well kept," they could assure each other with satisfaction.

Even Zarifa's curiosity drew blank. "A great thing is going to happen," she told her mistress. "It is like the feeling before a storm. Martengo, that evil one, is excited. Perhaps he sees a chance to interfere."

"How do you know about him?"

"My mother's cousin is a servant in his house. All day he plays chess, that game of wooden armies, with a Portuguese who is his friend, but I think they plot more than how to mate a dummy king!" Zarifa's mixture of French and Arabic was forceful, and it roused Rosemary's curiosity.

That afternoon she asked Westwyn, point-blank: "What is being planned? The whole village is on edge. It's rather like sitting on the rim of a volcano and waiting for it to explode. The ministers are like children with a secret. Mystery is written all over their faces. It's as irritating as it's silly."

Westwyn laughed, but he would not explain. "It's a great feat for a Riff to keep a secret at all. No wonder they have indigestion."

"You are quite convinced, aren't you, that a woman is not to be trusted with one? You thought I should tell the French about the pass."

"Secrets are not healthy in Telehdi. Martengo is the uncertain quality, and I don't like that Portuguese pal of his." Westwyn evaded the question with a tact which was so obvious that Rosemary felt it lay about in chunks for her to fall over!

"He shall tell me," she thought. "I'll make him," and her chin set in the firm sweep that had antagonized De Vries.

"You look like Lucretia Borgia plotting the death of her latest husband."

"No, only the downfall of my first," retorted the girl, a gleam under her shrouding lashes. They looked like smudges of smoke on her cheek, thought the man, and told her, when she banished the expression, regarding him out of cats' eyes, still and deep:

"Nobody could be as good as you look in this moment. I suspect you of the worst."

"I also have a secret!" mocked the girl.

"You shall know mine in a week," offered Westwyn.

"I'll know it before then," vowed Rosemary to herself, and aloud, "You shall know mine—never!"

Her hair was like misty spirals in the damp, her mouth curled at the corners. She was young, radiant, and excited.

Westwyn's blood responded. He wanted to make love to her, but he hadn't time! Their moments together were growing fewer. The meals which Ahmed, from the first, had decided they must share were interrupted by the sultan's messengers. Even now, as they stood by the well in the harem court, under a lowering sky, mist hiding the peaks, there was a clatter of mule hoofs beyond their wall.

"That's young Menebbhe. I recognize his particular brand of oaths. I never get you to myself for a moment. But," he bent till his lips almost touched her hair, "the war is going to end, and then——"

"Are you content to wait as long as that?" asked Rosemary, drawing back.

Westwyn's eyes accepted her challenge; the twist at the corner of his lips was expressive, but he did not answer.

"HE shall tell me! It's absurd. I must know what's going on," thought Rosemary, as she tried the effect of a gauze scarf which Abd-el Krim's mother had sent her.

Two lamps, both smoking, for never was a Moroccan born who could cut a wick straight, threw shifting shadows over the mud walls. The texts had been removed and coarse striped rugs, orange, black, and red, from the Rabat looms, had taken their place. The room looked warmer and more comfortable. There were wild flowers in clay pitchers, and by "bleeding" (as she called it) the overstuffed bolsters Rosemary had forced them to approximate softness.

Zarifa sat on the floor, regarding her mistress with her usual lidless stare, while she talked of the Kaid. He was her main subject of conversation, first because all interest in the Riff centered in his fabulous achievements and secondly because it was quite obvious that the theme was popular with her audience.

"Your skin is like milk," she interpolated. "Pull the silk down under your arm." With the grace of a cat she was on her feet.

"Aiee! You do not know how to twist that thing. Let it fall so——" She wound the shimmering sapphire stuff with a cunning which sheathed Rosemary's slenderness and left bare one shoulder, veiling the other in a cascade of silver bordered folds.

"I shall never be able to walk in it," laughed her mistress, and took a few tentative steps, watching the effect in the mirror.

"Allah! You are beautiful!" muttered Zarifa, awed by the contrast of pale hair and skin against the blue. "You must have scent and then you will be irresistible," she added, and drew a flask from her belt to smear a precious, pungent drop of attar on Rosemary's breast.

"You are like Leila, of whom the madman sung," she continued, and burst into the old, wailing chant wherein a medieval Arab tells of the love his humility could not win.

Rosemary did not listen to the words, but the refrain quickened her excitement. She meant to break down Westwyn's reserve, to force his secret from him, but she would not face the reason why she wanted to know. What did the plans of Telehdi matter, but she must win her point! Always, when the two were at issue, Westwyn had prevailed. Her will had been broken before his. It had been humiliating, but—tonight. She stretched out young, smooth arms—surely tonight he would give way.

"Afterward?" Her mouth was very red, her pulses throbbed. "Afterward, who knew?" But first she must win her point.

AHMED apologized for his failure to produce more than a dozen different dishes. Such a meal was beneath the Kaid's dignity, he explained, as he fussed with the arrangement of the camp table, but, as the noble lady knew, food was getting scarce. Then Westwyn came in and, from the first moment, he could not take his eyes off the gold and blue and white that was a changed Rosemary.

"Abd-el Krim's mother sent me this," explained the girl, fingering the scarf. Beneath that uncompromising gaze she was not quite so sure of victory. She talked quickly, sometimes brilliantly, while they sampled the mystery of Ahmed's cooking.

"I never know what's at the bottom of these bowls," she said, fishing with a fork, but Westwyn would not respond.

"It has been growing on me in spite of my denseness that you are very lovely. Odd, wasn't it, that I didn't grasp it when I first saw you down there by the caves?" His voice was gently mocking, but his eyes were direct. A flame burnt in them, so that they seemed white hot. The girl had a suspicion of forces beyond her or any one else's power of control.

"My charms were well overlaid with dirt," she remarked, without looking up.

"No wonder you were so surprised that I would not let you go back to Fez."

The war was being pushed into her own country and Rosemary rallied her forces. "You'll probably be thankful to get rid of me in the end." Her head went back, showing the long line of her throat.

Westwyn knew the game. Many women in many lands had flung him that gesture of invitation. He had only to put out a hand to touch that smooth, sun kissed throat, but he did not move.

Ahmed came in and took away the tray, brought them coffee in handleless cups, and departed, shutting the door with an air of finality.

"Do you want to go now?" asked Westwyn at last.

Rosemary countered. "I thought you said the war was going to end very soon?" She must know, first, the thing he hid from her.

"Tell me what you meant?"

Her eyes were shining, clear jewels with life mirrored in them. There was a flush on her cheeks! She was at her loveliest, triumphant because of what she saw in Westwyn's face, a little afraid because she was up against the man inevitable to her womanhood. Disregarding the coffee, she leaned on the table, cupping her chin in her hands.

"Do you want to go?" repeated Westwyn, leaning back, his hands hidden in his pockets.

"No," said Rosemary, and the word was hoarse, as if it were dragged up from the depths.

There was a jar as the man's chair grated back. It seemed to rip the silence of the room. Then he was beside her on the couch.

"Rosemary—darling," but the girl made a gesture to ward him off.

"No, no! I want to know what is happening. I must know. Tell me!"

Westwyn laughed, bending over her, as she retreated against the wall.

"What'll you give me for my secret?" His voice

Give Yourself That Irresistible Charm Which Once Swayed Empires and Conquered Kings

Such intriguing beauty, so History tells us, came from the use of a rare, white mineral earth found only on the Island of Lemnos, off the coast of ancient Greece.

It Worked Like Magic!

Just a few applications brought such exquisite loveliness to complexions that it was pronounced Sacred by the Priests of Diana who gave it the name of Diana's Earth. Later, by Royal Decree it was reserved exclusively for women of noble birth.

PEACH BLOOM

Since that day Diana's Earth was thought lost forever. But just recently the miraculous happened! An American Mineralogist, while surveying near Hot Springs, Ark., was astounded to find another small deposit of this precious beautifier.

Now, at last, your complexion can have that alluring charm and loveliness of early ages, for Genuine Diana's Earth, now called PEACH BLOOM, has been re-discovered.

Beauty Guaranteed!

Regardless of the present condition of your skin, PEACH BLOOM will restore quickly the beauty Nature intended you should have. And the magic improvement will be so apparent once you have used PEACH BLOOM that you will never again be without it.

The coupon below carries our Positive Beauty Guarantee, which likewise applies to your purchase of PEACH BLOOM from any Drug or Department Store, Beauty or Barber Shop in the United States.

Peach Bloom can be obtained at Walgreen's, Buck & Rayner's, The Home-Economical Drug Co., MacLean's or from your Neighborhood Drug Store.

TEMPTING MENUS FOR THE WEEK

By JANE EDDINGTON

Opening of the Pie Season

FROM now on to Thanksgiving we are in the imperial pie belt of the year. Our orchards and markets furnish us now with a great variety of apples, which variety dwindles greatly as we near winter. Now we can get the spiciest cookers of all the year, and the kingliness of the apple will be celebrated by an "Apple day."

Peaches, with love and skill and baking knowledge, make delectable pies, and peach cobblers are pies of a sort. Pumpkins come as peaches go, while with fine squashes there may be devised the most velvety filling that ever went into a pie crust. Mince pie ingredients await our attention now or soon, while some good housewives right now are filling jars with green tomato mincemeat for winter use.

But we do not need to seek a variety of ingredients in order to have a considerable variety of pies. Besides the standard and well known and often far from perfect apple pie, there is the old-fashioned and adored pandowdy, or it was adored once. It is a deep one-crust pie, cooked for hours until the sugared apples are a deep red. With good milk or cream, it is delicious.

The pudding dish is used for making other types of apple pie besides the pandowdy, but none of them, supposedly, is cooked until the apple you look upon is red. One-crust pie is the common name for these, but when they are turned out of the pudding dish for serving they are called bird's nest pie. This old-timer got wide or national attention a year or two ago because one of the wealthiest men in the nation "loves it so."

There are apple pies somewhat on the custard order and called custard-apple pies. One of these has the high sounding name of Marlborough pie. It is made with sieved apple and eggs, put into a baked crust, and topped with a méringue. It is a rival of a superior lemon pie. While the apples are spiciest it is a rather good plan to cook, sieve, and can some for winter Marlboroughs. That same unsweetened apple "mus" is also ready as a sauce for roast goose and pork, the season of which is at hand.

FIGHT STARCH . . . then teeth magically brighten . . . GUARANTEED!

This dangerous stain now eliminated in 15 seconds

FEW men and women know these facts. All dentists do. The startling statements which follow are based on discoveries by one of the greatest of all dental-research authorities.

They show you the way to have teeth beautifully bright—immediately. And offer two ways to make a test. Something well worth a few minutes' time reading.

* * * * * * *

It is impossible for teeth to be bright—or even reasonably safe from decay—until you realize what starch in foods does to them—and how to combat it. There is today a simple, natural way.

A dangerous stain

Modern foods have too much starch. Not even normal, healthy saliva can change it [by digestion] into harmless form. Because there is too much. You get it in breads, pastries, potatoes, desserts, sugar, cereals—many other foods.

It is but partly digested [changed] by the saliva. In this state it is a glue and a stain [of dirty, brownish hue] combined. Chemically like gum arabic! Nothing can remove it from your teeth while in that form—not brushing, scrubbing, rinsing.

In crevices it lodges, sticks like any other glue. In the tiny grooves [500 to an inch!] of all tooth-surfaces it clings. First it makes teeth grimy, unpleasant. Then—quickly—it produces the acids that eat through sturdiest tooth-enamel!

Naturally, then, teeth remain unpleasantly stained, dingy. Naturally they decay far too soon. Despite all your care.

Here you learn why well-brushed teeth still remain disappointingly dingy; why they usually decay too soon. And of a sensible way—guaranteed to make your teeth brighter than ever before!

There is today a remarkable, natural toothpaste. The name is Senreco.

Ended in 15 seconds!

Used on your teeth it transforms all starch [by aiding saliva to digest it, right there and then]. This is accomplished in 15 short seconds—actually while your toothbrush is still in your mouth. Nature's own ingredients do this.

Then—away goes the staining, glue-like starch; instantly brushed away or rinsed away! Safety from decay is increased amazingly, as you can see.

* * * * * * *

Other delightful results follow. In a natural way gums are made firmer, healthier. Dentists recommend Senreco, often for this one benefit. It is neutral—neither acid or alkaline; contains no sharp, harsh abrasives; is highly beneficial—and only beneficial!

Use it and your mouth feels as cool, clean and sweet as it is.

AUTUMN SPORTS WEAR MAKES SPORT OF SOME OLD THEORIES by Corinne Lowe

NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)—In looking over the new sports clothes we are reminded of some big manly fellow who has suddenly taken to a vanity case. Yes, there is no doubt about it! Our severe tailored clothes of yesteryear are become absolutely effeminate.

For one thing, there are those mannish mixtures. Tweeds, homespuns, all that sort of thing, don't you know! Well, these are still featured, but the mannish mixture has experienced a great deal of feminine admixture. Whereas many garments designed for autumn sports wear are carried out in these robust materials, there is a greater emphasis on velvet, velveteen, and what are known roughly as "novelty woolens."

Now these novelty woolens include variations of duvetyn and numerous flannel-finished fabrics. The reason that the French have emphasized these is, perhaps, due to economic conditions. Remember that the mannish mixtures are chiefly recruited from England and that their importation into France means an outlay of capital averted when the Gallic creators use weaves that come with such commingle perfection from their own looms.

Here is one reason for the shifted emphasis. Another is purely psychologic. The mood of elaboration has crept into our sports wear and we cannot honor that mood nearly so well in the mannish mixtures as we can in these rival materials.

We show the use of novelty woolens first in the ensemble at the left. Before proceeding with the details of this costume let me say that there are more sports ensembles than there have ever been before. In fact, if things keep on at this pace I'm afraid that we who don't wear one of these combinations will feel as conspicuous as a person who sits through opera in Germany without a sausage in her head.

The ensemble this year means both the long coat and the jacket. Jackets are enjoying a tremendous vogue, and numerous French designers are at their best when developing this theme. Molyneux seems especially gifted at the jacket technique, and exceedingly smart are his new offerings in this field.

Some of these jacket sports ensembles are developed in soft tweeds, but here again we find an invasion of the novelty woolen. Even more eloquent of our new spirit of elaboration are the velvet creations in which skirt and wrap—either jacket or coat—are allied with a knitted jumper. In the same breath, too, in which one mentions this fabric one must allude to both velveteen and corduroy.

In connection with corduroy the ideas of O'Rossen are exceedingly interesting, for in a sort of sports sullenness of his he presents the novel combination of a tweed skirt and a sweater trimmed with broadcloth topped by jacket of corduroy. Hardly less arresting is the alliance which Martial et Armand present between gray suede and brown corduroy, for in one of their outstanding sports models they provide a brown corduroy jacket trimmed with gray fur for a gray suede waistcoat jumper, a matching skirt and suede knickers.

But to go back to the model under consideration. This is composed of a variety of duvetyn in a beige and brown check. The jumper is of plain beige

One of the season's fashionable ensemble ideas is presented in a sports costume combining a skirt of checked woolen with a jumper of plain woolen and a coat of the skirt material trimmed in harmonizing fur, sketched at the extreme left.

Next, the cardigan jacket is exemplified in knitted silk-and-wool banded in the beige of the kasha skirt.

In the center, clou d'or kasha achieves a jumper allied with plain kusha skirt.

Fourth, a garnet velvet jacket tops a skirt of matching broadcloth.

Last, a one-piece frock of novelty woolen in grege is trimmed with red suede.

duvetyn, and so also is the lining of the coat. Thoroughly at home in this color symphony is the beige fur trimming the coat.

Before turning from this model, don't overlook the collar of the jumper, with its masculine insinuation of a four-in-hand composed of the skirt material. Here is a new touch in autumn sports wear—this mannish turndown collar with its equally virile cravat—and one which is introduced in both one-piece and two-piece creations.

Now as to the jumper! Shall we, or shan't we? Let us first give the reverse side of the picture. M. Lelong says we shouldn't. All is over between Lelong and the jumper, and in his autumn sports compositions he devotes all of his energy to smart one-piece frocks of lightweight woolens or flat crêpes indorsing the raised waist-line, plaited skirt, belt, and a general air of smart simplicity.

But everybody in Paris does not get a divorce—from the jumper. The fact of it is that it is retained—with numerous variations and additions—by most of the leading houses. Nevertheless, there can be no gainsaying the fact that there is decidedly more interest in the one-piece sports frock than was permitted in our old fanatical days. Chanel and Vionnet have contributed some perfectly charming ideas in this domain, and Doucet keeps step with some stunning models of striped kasha worn with velveteen jackets.

Many of such frocks are made of the novelty woolens or of kasha, but they have equally effective interpretations in crepella and jersey—also in the knitted weaves, such as bouclette and tricot. When we come to both crepella and jersey we come to a long chapter in the book of autumn sports wear, for you can no more avoid either one of them than you can avoid mention of your husband's former sweethearts. It's crepella or jersey on every side.

Often, indeed, these two favorite materials are combined in two-piece creations that link a skirt of crepella with crepella-trimmed jumper of jersey. This, of course, is no phenomenon in a season when the essential spirit of elaboration relies so much upon collaboration of two or three fabrics.

We illustrate one of the new sports frocks in our sketch at the right. This is an exceedingly smart model which may be achieved in one of the new woolens, in kasha, or in crepella. Whatever its medium, the tint chosen is grege, that lightest of all beiges. Incidentally, let me remark that this tenth-carbon-copy of beige is one which is stressed constantly in all the most exclusive collections.

The center of interest in this model lies chiefly in the pointed seaming of the corsage and in touches of brilliant red suede. Following the lead of the belt, these touches are incorporated on sleeves and on the new high collar.

'Way back in the summer I wrote an impassioned plea for the cardigan or golf jacket type of sports attire. Consequently, I shall not use up any more adjectives on the detail. I shall merely remark that if you don't like this sort of thing you're going to have a hard winter. For decidedly—O decidedly—here is a trump cardigan. And nobody thinks so more than M. Patou, who has turned out hosts of these golf jacket models—notably those worn over sweaters or jumpers.

Now you can have your cardigan in any color and in any material. Here, however, we show it second from the left in a knitted silk-and-wool weave in the fashionable tint of Chanel blue. This is finished with bands of grege wool to link up the garment with a skirt of grege kasha. You are permitted to wear this either with the mannish blouse and four-in-hand illustrated, or you can have a substratum of sweater underneath. By the way, too, don't forget that the turtle-neck variety, though it may carry its date with it (just like its namesake) is still appearing among the fashionable public.

Are we healed of our stripes? Decidedly we are not. In those horizontal bands, either interwoven or applied, we find the same childish delight we did early last spring. Nevertheless, we note some refreshing novelties even in this hackneyed theme. Witness our central sketch.

If conviction lags behind information on this subject of more elaboration in sports clothes, all you have to do is to examine the material of which is made the jumper of this model. For here we have the clou d'or kasha that is one of the novelties of the season. Having already hammered quite a bit upon the "gold nail" kasha, I shall merely remark now that the jumper is composed of the novelty material, while the skirt is of plain kasha in harmonizing color. This color may be one of the wine tones, dark green, blue or beige, all of which hues find an eager welcome in every house of sports wear.

The checks which we show in our first sketch are no mere haphazard choice, for checks are one of the leading notes in this domain. Checked skirts with plain-color jumpers are only less frequent than the reverse treatment, and some of the smartest of the jacket ensembles are carried out in this design.

For the jacket composition sketched here, however, we show a jacket of garnet velvet allied with a plaited skirt of matching broadcloth.

KING'S MATE — By Rosita Forbes

was tense. For a moment he looked a boy and the tension between them eased.

"Anything!" promised Rosemary, delighted.

"But supposing I take what I want? After all, you are my wife."

The girl's breath was uneven. The instinct to know and the instinct of evasion were at war. She shook her head, fear and something greater than fear struggling in those depths she had all her life denied.

Very gently Westwyn took her in his arms, but his deliberation made the action more irresistible. He turned her face up, and kissed her lips.

"I love you," he said. "I believe I've loved you all the time."

For a moment Rosemary yielded, and her mouth was warm under his. Then she realized he had won. Revolt flashed into her brain, but it was far deeper than she knew. In a last, obscure struggle to keep untouched that bit of her which had been cool, assured, inviolate, she dragged herself away. Westwyn relaxed his hold, but his hands were still on her arms.

"It is too late," he said. "You asked for it; you wanted it." His certainty and the mastery of his touch exasperated her. All her modernity was stripped from her. She was at bay.

To gain time, to postpone the inevitable, she threw at him the first words that came into her head. It is doubtful if she even realized what they were, and they were directed as much against herself as him.

"You are like every other man!"

Westwyn's face hardened, and his grip hurt her. "What do you mean?" There could be no half measures now. She had to choose between complete surrender and an irrevocable blunder, and she did not wait to think.

"Martengo——" she began, and stopped, really frightened at last.

Westwyn was pale under his bronze. His face looked oddly mottled.

"Do you mean that?" he asked, letting her go. "I don't care what you say."

Rosemary hesitated. She longed to contradict herself, to explain an impulse which was inexplicable, to give in, but she was confused by the indignation blazing at her. She tried to string words together sense, but found them brittle and meaningless. Westwyn waited a moment, and then, with an air of immense deliberation, he got up.

"There's no need to look like that. You're not going to get hurt!" The irony rasped in his voice. He strode to the door and dragged it open, and the wind swirled in from the yard.

"By God! I swear I'll never touch you again unless you ask me to!"

Life has an exasperating habit of dropping into the commonplace. It is a pendulum swing between extremes. For hours after Westwyn left her, Rosemary, with a physical ache at her heart, planned revolution. Walking about the room, or prone on the couch, breathing deeply to crush the wild thing that raged in her, she told herself that next time it would be different. But there was no next time.

Before she woke from the sleep of exhaustion into which she had fallen, fully dressed, at dawn, Westwyn had gone into the hills. He did not return for three days, and then Rosemary was confronted with a stranger.

While he talked to her cheerfully and a little formally about the trend of French politics—"The socialists in Paris are pulling every string they know to end this war"—she twisted his signet ring under the edge of the table to be sure she had not dreamed their marriage. He spoke as if her freedom were assured.

"You'll be out of this in a month," he told her, "and when you're back in Fez you'll think it all a dream."

He was kind and very thoughtful for her comfort, but he was busy and he let her see his preoccupation. She used to watch him desperately, while he ate, smoked, or glanced at dispatches brought by runners, but there was no chink in his armor.

WESTWYN had been hurt once, and he had none of that weakness which luxuriates in probing its wounds. He had made love to lots of women and asked none to marry him. Generally he had tired before they did, and now he couldn't even remember their names.

Rosemary had been different. When he thought of her at all it was to remember the joy of his leap at Martengo and the feel of the man's throat under his fingers!

Rosemary didn't want him, and he'd give her no chance to tell him so a second time. He didn't consider what he had done for her or to her, though he sometimes speculated on the best and most private manner of dissolving their marriage. He didn't think of her much at all. Life was pretty grim at the moment, and there was a fool ache in it. Well, he supposed it would pass.

Daily he visited the palace, impressing on Mohammahdi the necessity for concentrated action. It was his will which kept the sultan "up to scratch."

"It's the biggest thing we've tried," he said one morning, "and we've got to pull it off. There's no margin for delay. When the dam goes, it'll be a matter of minutes. The Spanish reserve camp will go with it, for the volume of water will be terrific. We shall have a disorganised army to contend with, but if they get their guns into action we're done! It doesn't matter about the men on our side of the river. They can be finished off any time. We've got to attack the main body, while they're still rattled. With luck the flood may spread, but we've got to mop them up ourselves."

"It's the only time we've ever attacked," protested Abd-el-Krim. He was nervous and fidgeted with the edge of his djellaba.

"It'll be the last time," returned Westwyn.

As he went out he met Martengo. The men barely acknowledged each other's presence, but the Spaniard turned to stare after his late antagonist, and there was a very evil look in his eyes.

That evening Martengo, occupied with one of his eternal games of chess, paused, with his hand on a pawn.

"Your king's in danger. In three moves I'll get you." He addressed the Portuguese, who sat opposite.

The wiry, pock marked half caste smiled. "King's mate?" he said. "In how many days, Juan? Do you know when the thing's to be brought off?"

"I can guess, thanks to Farraj," returned the other, referring to Menebbhe's slave, who, since the miscarriage of his plans for the duel, had been at the mercy of the Spaniard's threats and his own greed.

"I can't see why you don't warn our complacent enemies," remarked the Portuguese.

"Too dangerous. I doubt if I could get word through, and the vengeance of Abd-el Krim is a bit too certain."

Martengo's voice was regretful as he moved his bishop. The half caste played carelessly.

"That Australian will be in charge of operations at the dam," he suggested.

"Yes, and Westwyn will go down, alone, at the last minute. I have friends along that road. I propose to visit them tomorrow."

The Spaniard's hand hovered over a piece.

"There's only one path down, west of the river, and I'll watch it night and day. This time the Kaid won't escape. It'll be better sport than gazelle, and no man could miss at that short range."

He moved his knight with a leer. "Mate to your king," he said, and the eyes of the two men met.

PETE was not enthusiastic about the job assigned to him. "Poor fun," he grunted. "Don't I get any innings at all?"

"It's a matter of timing," reiterated Westwyn. "The men are all down in the lower hills. I hope to God they keep well hidden. The airplanes are pretty blind, but there's not too much cover near the plain. "We'll go up tomorrow morning and have a look at the dam. I calculate if I start from there about sunset I ought to be able to join the men shortly after midnight.

"The explosion must be an hour later, see? I want time to make any final adjustments and get in touch with the officers, but the flood should be working before dawn. The Spaniards don't like the dark; it muddles them, and I can tell you, man, the more muddled they are the better!"

Both men grinned.

"We've got to get 'em on the run by sunrise," finished Westwyn, and smote his henchman on the shoulder. "Lord, I'll be glad to get out of this place!" he ended, to Pete's intense surprise.

"I've kinder got used to it. What'll we do when this is finished?" It never occurred to him that they might separate.

"I don't know. Shoot something, I suppose, or grow something. How would farming suit you? I've got a place in England."

For the rest of the day the Australian was ruminative. "Sounded darn like settling down. Marriage always played the hell with a man's job," he reflected.

Next morning, while a fringe of mist swirled over the village, the two men started for the dam, accompanied by a score of Riffs.

Curtly, because he was afraid of letting himself go, Westwyn had told Rosemary: "I've got to be off for a few days. We're rather expecting a scrap. If anything should happen—not that it's at all likely—you can rely on old Menebbhe. He'll stick to you and see you safely out of this. Besides, you'll have Pete. He's got a job in the mountains, and then I'll send him back to you."

The girl's expression puzzled him. She seemed frozen. Only her eyes were alive, and as pitiful as a child's.

He knew she wanted to say more than the few words with which she wished him good luck, but she was startled and unprepared for this sudden departure.

"We'll have a talk when I get back," he promised, uncomfortable at the pain in her eyes.

Westwyn couldn't get the matter out of his mind. Women always wanted to drag things up and pull 'em to pieces, he reflected, as his horse sidled along the track. It was no use talking about things that were finished. Words never did any one any good, but Rosemary's face, shadowed beyond its youth, went with him up the ravine.

The old headman, who had insisted on accompanying the party for the first few miles, as he would have done a great man of his own faith, received short answers to his questions.

When they drew rein on the first flat ground and Menebbhe, dismounting, prepared to take formal leave, Westwyn did not release the hand the old man extended.

"Sidi," he said, using for the first time the title of honor, "I leave my house in your hands. If things go wrong, I count on you."

Menebbhe understood, but the Englishman was in no mood for the polite diplomacy of Islam.

"Treat my wife as one of your family," he insisted. "Her safety is on your head."

The old man replied, gravely:

"On my head and my eyes! I swear she shall be protected here and, when Allah wills, go in safety out of our country."

For hours Westwyn and Pete climbed steadily westward. Their riding boots were not as suited to the mountains as the soft Riffian sandals, but they made good progress, dragging their horses after them. By noon they were in sight of the dam.

All that day Rosemary, oppressed by a foreboding which she told herself was illogical, moved restlessly from one room to another. A dozen times she went onto the roof to look down at the village, deserted except for women and children. She made a poor pretense of eating the cous-cous, on which Ahmed had expended extra care, for he knew of but one cure for the ills of mind or body—food!

Menebbhe came to see her in the afternoon. He was taking his responsibilities heavily, and his mysterious reticences were as exasperating as the fervor of his assurances of protection.

"I have my husband," interpolated Rosemary, with some coldness.

"Yes, yes, may Allah keep him," said the old man, departing with less than his usual stateliness.

It was a fitting climax to such a day when, an hour later, Zarifa burst into the room, flung herself at her mistress' feet, and shrieked, "We are betrayed! Our house is lost! The Kaid will be dead before morning." She threw herself back and forth with the abandonment of the native mourner.

LORD OF THE LESS

By Guy H.B. Den

WAVE upon wave of tepid mist thickened the already impenetrable veil which lay upon the endless grassy flats.

From above, old Hekima, the mother of all the vultures, rocking one thousand feet up in the glare of the rising sun, saw an occasional, palm upthrusting starkly through the ever moving silver fog, or perceived, scattered at wide intervals throughout the square miles of featureless landscape, a kind of cactus looking extraordinarily like thirty foot high candelabra, which flung aloft its rigid arms from out the gray folds drifting about its trunk.

But down below, in that hot obscurity, the African dawn was a dreadful portent.

Through and through the obscuring moisture slid strange shapes, grotesquely distorted by the feeble rays. Devils, some might have thought them. And indeed Libah, the Royal, prospecting for a late meal, would have merited that name.

Ever and anon came horrid muffled scufflings and dulled sounds of panic-bewildered flight. Not infrequently shrill high screamings seemed to rip the clammy air literally asunder, and only Ataka, leading her troop of fiend-faced baboons through the streaming grass stems, could have explained them adequately.

Death rioted grim and swift beneath that semi-transparent pall.

Many were the strange encounters arising from that eye and nose deceiving condition of affairs.

Once, indeed, Sharbel, the leopard, hunting by half seen sight on the track of an exhausted Oribi, found himself close, far, far too close, to Libah's armed forepaw, and, withdrawing in haste—that is to say, like a snap of a lock—landed unannounced in the midst of Ataka's little party as they scoured the thicker grass patches for defenseless fawns.

That was a quick and unpleasant affair of fifteen packed seconds, at the end of which Sharbel was glad to get away with his bare life.

Ah, yes! Things were happening; action, ruthless, decisive, and full blooded, was in order just then, and many a one ended his or her existence almost before being aware that any menace was at hand.

Yet I would not have you think that this was in any way an unusual state of affairs. True, the morning mist prolonged matters for the better part of an hour; but to those myriads of the wild folk which live in constant awful fear of death there appeared nothing untoward about it all.

It was a typical African dawning.

Now, amongst a couple of thousand or so of others who were about their usual business on that morning, within one short square mile of country-wide plain, was Buni.

He was a great cock ostrich, and his was the overlordship of the lesser creatures of that district, not forgetting certain of the carnivora.

By virtue of his speed and armed feet he had attained long ago to this proud position and held it capably. He was compact of steel and courage.

Very beautiful he looked, even in that disfiguring mist, with his two hundred sixty-three pounds of lean muscle and plumage magnified to enormous proportions.

His magnificent white wing plumes were almost unworn, and against the jet remainder of his attire they showed up splendidly.

From time to time he raised his little pointed head from his occupation, swallowing a double handful of small white quartz pebbles and thorny seed pods in the action, and peered toward where Siri (The Mystery), his mate, scratched meditatively at the ground in the neighborhood of eleven huge eggs which lay openly on a bare spot surrounded by two foot high grass.

Buni was no fool. He knew that danger lurked on every side, though until those eggs should be hatched the danger was for the most part confined to himself and his spouse.

Therefore he kept a sharp watch for any possible murderer, fearing none; for he trusted to his marvelous agility to save him from Libah or Sharbel and their kind, and for others—well, for them he had divers tricks of offense and defense, as may be seen.

ABRUPTLY the sun put out its full power, and, like the drawing back of a sheet, the upper layer of fog was sucked up, and long lanes and rifts of visibility ripped through the thinning folds at ground level.

As luck would have, one such chasm exposed to any ill disposed persons overhead those eleven treasures which were all Buni's world; also, by chance, Siri chose that exact moment to take three great strides in the direction of a bright green shrub and commenced greedily to pluck the leaves and twigs, thinking, rashly, that for a few moments her guard might be relaxed.

But Hekimu had been waiting for just some such moment, and, though she was a quarter of a mile away at the time, she flung round on outstretched wings at that tempting sight, balanced a moment, watching with telescopic eyes, and came down like a girl's sigh.

She made no mistake. It is not wise to make mistakes in the wild; one does not have many opportunities of remedying them.

One dirty brown wing almost overshadowed the outermost egg as the great bird landed, and on the instant her shaven neck darted out and the cruel curved beak crashed against the tough shell.

At the impact Hekimu knew that the job was beyond her, so, with a swiftness surprising, she wheeled and grasped a heavy lump of quartz and turned again with distended jaws and brought the improvised hammer down—crash! and the rich contents bulged from the resultant fissure.

Two swift, tearing mouthfuls Hekimu took, and recovered herself. Not even did she linger to perform her famous trick of looking down her own back, a trick which is executed with the speed of light, and found very disconcerting by such as black backed jackals when they seek to filch carrion from behind her wings.

Hekimu knew what she knew, and hopped sideways twice in a hurry, and the last hop was a record; for Siri, arriving in haste, helped the matter with a pile-driving downward kick that left the vulture's left wing short of three or four feathers.

But the robber was on the wing and soughing upward in huge twenty foot spasms as Siri checked her momentum and tried for a more vital part, and as the bereaved mother contemplated the outraged nest something that was not rain splashed sullenly upon the hot sand at her feet.

Thus Buni found his wife standing as he also came up a fraction of a second later, and, as it was really his turn for duty, settled himself down carefully over the remaining gems, with long, pliant neck stretched out flat along the ground, fatalistically resigned to the happening.

It has been said that the grass round about was at the most twenty-four inches high, yet so absolute was Buni's stillness and so marvelous his powers of concealment that his huge bulk was invisible to the keenest eye, when once he was comfortably in position, at anything over sixty yards.

Hour after burning hour the cock ostrich kept his post, while the concealing mist dispersed, as did the greater number of the flesh eaters, and the land was left to lazy groups of zebra and wildebeest, kongoni and impala, together with a score of other species of grass eaters, who slowly wound their way to favored spots sheltered against the tropic rays, or switched piglike tails from side to side, as did Kiparu, the rhinoceros, who bulked black here and there upon the plains, disdaining both shade and safety, deep lost in prehistoric thought.

Hour by hour Buni stayed at his post, while the hen foraged for much needed food, and moment by moment the marvel of life repeated worked beneath him, till suddenly he stirred, raising his head and neck like the periscope of a submarine, and Siri, watching, knew that the great moment was at hand, though how Buni knew I cannot say.

Swift the mother flew, and fairly pushed her lord and master from his place to take her own, and so by the time the fantastic carved ridges of the Murosoka Hills danced purple upon the far horizon under the sun's drooping fingers the family was complete, and ten chocolate brown fussy ostrich chicks clamored instantly for food.

Then began a yet more anxious time for the devoted parents. Their enemies multiplied against them. Jackals and cheetahs, several cats, and even hyenas, found courage and opportunity to evade the guardians of youth. As the days passed the brood diminished until but six were left.

And one morning, while afar on private business, Buni heard the distant warning of his mate that told him of further trouble.

In an instant he was on the move. With curving neck stretched backward and little eyes like crimson dots, he scudded across the plain. His springy, rather mincing action was deceptive. He came to the scene of battle at a speed that none might rival. Twenty-one feet to the stride, and forty-five strides to the minute, the wind of his passage tossing his splendor of plumes about him.

From a long distance he noted the curious antics of his spouse and knew the affair to be no ordinary one.

For Siri was not fighting. On the contrary, she appeared to be in full flight. Hither and yon the hen bird trailed, apparently with no definite aim, yet ever she drew farther from the forlorn cluster of younglings toward that racing wrath, her master.

Buni could see naught as he came save a pile of oryx with tapering horns, tail switching their way to noonday resting place.

A little way overhead a ring of Kavirondo cranes, magnificent crested birds of immense bulk, swung in a slow circle, calling mournfully.

Far up in the blue, however, Hekimu and others of her kith sieved the landscape for battle and the wreck of battle; their food is carrion. Already they began to let themselves down their invisible threads.

Buni was not deceived. He was very well aware that, in spite of the apparent peacefulness of the scene, evil was toward. He was well versed in Siri's maneuvers and knew what they portended. So he increased his already incredible speed and roared—I say he roared—a great, sullen volume of sound which echoed across and across the flats; at which many a buck stirred uneasily, deeming Libah to be about his fell work.

With a wholly superb semi-circle sweep the cock ostrich flung a detour round his offspring and saw that Siri had done wisely—no immediate danger threatened there. In a dozen checked strides he was by his spouse, and his flaming eyes peeped eagerly for his enemy. Thus for a space the twain stood, and it seemed as if nothing which had life could approach them, so scanty the cover, so merciless the watchfulness.

BUT Sharbel did it. Ah! but he must have been an hungered to tackle a pair of full grown birds as these in full daytime.

On a moment you have them, two carvings in black and white ivory, with heads on tall, slim necks turned both in one direction. Then Sharbel ceased the movement in the last joint of his tail and launched himself in a majestic, power-crammed curve.

His armed forepaws reached and clung to Siri's neck where it swelled to join the body, his drooling lips were curled back from frightful fangs, a hot film obscured the flickering green fires of his eyes.

As he swung up to full leap, so Buni moved, so Siri, else had Sharbel been upon her back and in position for the fatal bite to the vital vertebrae.

Even while the leopard's hind legs scrambled in the grass, seeking fresh purchase that he might heave himself to where he would be, Buni came in.

Now, the power in an ostrich's kick is rather more than equal to that of a mature dray horse; in addition, Buni carried on his feet long, bitter sharp claws; and once he drove home his blow, and twice and thrice, and at each a ghastly rip.

The red blood spurted to the beat of the flashing claw with a noise like the rending of sackcloth.

Nothing under four hundred pounds' weight could withstand such a hammering, and Sharbel, for all his ferocity, was but a few pounds over ten stone.

The third tearing onslaught, delivered downward, as always, with the cock bird's whole weight behind it, fairly jerked the aggressor from his hold. He fell and rolled over, head screwed along one shoulder in a fiendish smile at his opponent, and Buni's final kick caught him full upon the face. Then did Sharbel bethink himself; no time he wasted in bitter regrets or self-pity; oblivion waited upon hesitation, and leopards are quick movers.

He seemed to melt into the adjacent grass, to be there one moment and never to have been the next. It was the blowing out of a candle, so swift he went.

Unwisely, Buni, flushed with victory, essayed to follow, and a tuft of stems which looked as if it could not hide a rabbit vomited a bloody, swearing something that flashed in and struck and left five red hot scars through all Buni's supple armor of plumes.

But Sharbel did not tarry; he was away with the mere impetus of his counter stroke and, though the cock bird did not know it, only a broken jaw prevented Sharbel reaping a rich reward for his last bout.

Nature, it seemed, had called a truce with the valiant birds after this latest affray. The chicks flourished unmolested, save one that swallowed a scorpion in mistake for some other indigestible dainty, and died uneasily.

Moons waxed and waned, and the heavy rains were over, and now the remaining five stood as high as a tall man, and carried ebon plumage. Buni and Siri strutted to and fro across the luxuriant feeding grounds, puffed up with undue pride. Never before, in their opinion, had there been such an egg-bursting. These ostrich younglings surely surpassed all others hatched since time began!

They redoubled their vigilance as the dry season recommenced, and the herds of buck came back to the drying lowlands, followed by the beasts of ravin, who take toll of their packed hundreds, and the sinister parasites, such as jackal and Mangy Ones, whose other name is hyena, which follow the Lords of Death subservient to the feast.

Yet the return of these plains dwellers was slow and uncertain, and Siri, looking day by day toward the horizon, saw ever a livid band of copper cloud which lay upon the peaks and, though by midday it was gone, yet at each return was denser and more menacing.

In vain she urged her lord to remove to other feeding grounds. Of no avail to point out the sear loneliness of the flats, usually at this season crowded from end to end. Buni would not listen; food was plentiful and the brood was doing well. He took no count of clouds. Were there not always these for a space after the rains?

And day by day the damp heat grew more intense and the earth seemed to pant in expectation of a mortal blow.

Parfum MIRACLE

As entrancing as the great play that inspired it. Haunting, lovely, fraught with romance, intriguingly individual. Preciously presented in a distinguished container of obsidian black, flecked with gold in a design individual with each boule.

As Lady Diana Manners says:

"A veritable masterpiece of the perfumer's art."

The Early Twenties

By W. E. Hill

[Copyright: 1926: by The Chicago Tribune]

Francie is 20, but you'd never know it. Like so many popular girls nowadays, Francie has a "line." Francie's line is being a cute little girl, and pommeling the men and leaping up on them, just for all the world like an adorable 6-year-old. Sometimes Francie talks baby talk. But this is only in Francie's play hours. She has a serious side, we'd have you know, and is specializing in bacteriology.

"My best girl friend is engaged to an old man of 37—and I think it's perfectly terrible! Why, I expect to be finished when I'm 37!" Flappers of sweet and 20 just can't understand that people over 30 have feelings!

Walter has just turned 21, and is trying awfully hard to get into Harvard. He's been trying now for three years, but they keep raising the entrance requirements, or something.

This lovely boy of 20 is, if he only knew it, causing a great deal of talk among the girls and boys of his own generation. For to be seen out walking nowadays with one's grandmother, mother, or even maiden aunt, is a sure sign of an Œdipus complex.

Jazz babies in the early twenties simply can't understand the old-fashioned girls. "Imagine," Dotsie is sotto-vocing to Lillian, "her father has forbidden her to use cigarets and she has to smoke out of her bathroom window with the door locked. Imagine letting your family dictate to you in this day and age!"

Twenty-five is a splendid age. That's why so many women of maturity, so to speak, come back and stay 25 indefinitely.

Girl Graduates

Miss Helen Hargrave

June's sweet girl graduates, now entering the social whirl, find Beauty the open sesame to success. Fascinating Miss Helen Hargrave, of 1438 E. 17th St., Brooklyn, New York, a popular graduate of Erasmus Hall High School, declares she's always going to keep her complexion as lovely as it is now, using the soft, melty Black and White Lemon Beautifying Cream. Dealers everywhere are recommending and selling the 25c jars of this newest of the famous Black and White Beauty Creations.

Miss Hargrave says, "I started using Black and White Lemon Beautifying Cream at high school because many of my friends praised it so enthusiastically. Now I wouldn't be without this lovely cream, which cleanses my skin immaculately, and softens, whitens and refines it marvelously."

BLACK and WHITE Beauty Creations

Twenty is the dangerous age for college students. About sophomore year they get "wise" and seriously think of giving up the engineering course in favor of an artistic career. They begin to draw flappers in pen and ink for the college funny papers and overcut all the science courses.

The early twenties are years of great unrest, as any truthful young girl will tell you. Her parents, and her aunts and uncles, to say nothing of the first, second, and third cousins, get on her nerves dreadfully. She often thinks of leaving home and becoming a trained nurse, a movie actress, or a great novelist.

Not all young girls are frivolous in this frivolous age. Meet sweet Enid, who would much prefer marriage and the home to joy rides and jazz. If a boy friend asks Enid to go have an ice cream soda or to the movies, Enid goes right home all fluttering, and she and her mamma start a hope chest.

"I'm reading the most romantic story from real life in the Daily Howl. It's the memoirs of a young girl of 15 who got adopted by an old millionaire of 80 and finally married him. Imagine! He gave her three limousines in one week! Isn't it romantic?" Modern girls in their early twenties, believe it or not, are just as romantic underneath as their mothers and grandmothers were in their day.

YES, SIR, THE OPERATOR REPORTS THE DIRIGIBLE BRINGING OUR SUPPLY OF GASOLINE AND WILL ARRIVE BEFORE SUN-DOWN—

DID YOU RECEIVE A RADIO MESSAGE ?

IS THERE ANY NEWS OF LITTLE CHESTER AND HIS COMPANIONS—

WE HAVE A REPORT FROM LIEUTENANT LINK OF THE AEROPLANE SQUADRON—HE IS BRINGING IN A NATIVE WHO SEEMS TO KNOW SOMETHING ABOUT THE BOY—

HAVE HIM BROUGHT TO ME THE INSTANT HE ARRIVES — I ONLY HOPE HE IS THE BEARER OF GOOD NEWS—

YES, SIR, I'LL HAVE HIM REPORT TO YOU THE INSTANT HE LANDS—

SAY, BOSS, YOU AIN'T EATEN NOTHING FOR TWENTY-FOUR HOURS—I DONE FRIED YOU A NICE CHICKEN AND MADE SOME HOT COFFEE AND—

NO, THANK YOU, COOK — I AM NOT HUNGRY — I AM EXPECTING A NATIVE WITH NEWS OF CHESTER — WHEN HE ARRIVES BRING ME SOME PRESENTS FOR HIM—

THE CAPTAIN ORDERED ME TO REPORT TO YOU, SIR—

YOU SAY THIS MAN ACTUALLY SAW THE BOY—

YES, SIR, THERE CAN BE NO MISTAKE — HE TOLD THE INTERPRETER, THAT HE WAS WITH A HUNTING PARTY WHEN THEY SAW A MIGHTY GOLDEN BIRD FLY DOWN FROM THE SKY AND ALIGHT ON THE DESERT—

THEN HE SAW THREE WHITE GODS WHO WERE RIDING ON THE BIRD'S BACK ALIGHT, MAKE A FIRE AND COOK A MEAL — THEN THEY MOUNTED THE GOLDEN BIRD AND FLEW AWAY, TOWARDS THE MOUNTAINS—

I ONLY WISH I COULD REWARD HIM PROPERLY BUT I SUPPOSE HE REGARDS THOSE CHEAP TOYS AND GLASS BEADS AS PRICELESS TREASURES—

NOW, COME ALONG WITH ME AND I'LL FEED YOU LIKE THE BOSS SAID — YOU SURE WAS LUCKY TO HAVE SANTA CLAUS BRING YOU ALL THAT NICE STUFF FROM THE FIVE AND TEN CENT STORE—

EXCUSE ME, SIR, BUT IT IS DANGEROUS TO GO OUTSIDE THE CAMP — THE NATIVES ARE VERY CUNNING AND TREACHEROUS—

THANK YOU FOR YOUR WARNING — I'LL BE ON MY GUARD—

I'D GLADLY GIVE UP EVERY DOLLAR I HAVE IN THE WORLD JUST TO KNOW LITTLE CHESTER WAS SAFE IN MY ARMS—

ALL UNCONSCIOUS OF THE CRUEL SAVAGES WHO WATCH HIM WITH BALEFUL EYES GENEROUS HEARTED UNCLE BIM, SITS AND TRIES TO PLAN SOME WAY OF FINDING HIS LOST NEPHEW WITH NEVER A THOUGHT OF THE DEADLY PERIL THAT THREATENS HIS OWN LIFE—

Moon Mullins

I'VE GOT JUST ONE THING TO BE THANKFUL FOR AND THAT IS THAT YOU AINT TWINS, KAYO-

WELL, IF I WAS, BELIEVE ME, I'D SEND THE OTHER HALF OF ME TO SCHOOL AND LET THIS HALF GO FISHIN'.

KAYO! WHAT TIME IS IT UP THERE?

EIGHT O'CLOCK. WHAT TIME IS IT DOWN THERE?

C'MON- SNAP OUT OF IT. YOU'RE GONNA BE LATE TO SCHOOL IF YOU DON'T SHAKE A LEG.

AW- LISSEN, MOON- I DON'T FEEL GOOD-

IS ZAT SO? WELL, I GUESS I'D BETTER PHONE FOR TH' DOCTOR AND HAVE HIM GIVE YOU A SCUTTLE OF CASTOR OIL- -WHERE DON'T YOU FEEL GOOD, ANYWAY?

IN SCHOOL YOU BIG BOOB. WHERE'D JA THINK?

SNIP!

ALL I'VE GOT TO SAY, MOON MULLINS, IS THAT YOU'RE STARK, STARING CRAZY IF YOU HAVE ANY IDEA THAT KAYO WILL EVER GET TO SCHOOL IF YOU SEND HIM BY HISSELF.

I'LL GO SEE THAT HE GETS THERE WHEN I FINISH MY EGGS, EMMY.

NOW DON'T COMMENCE HOLLERIN' AT ME, MOON- A LADY AST ME TO MIND THIS KID FOR HER WHILE SHE WENT IN TH' STORE AND DID SOME SHOPPIN'

WELL, I'LL HOLD THE KID FOR HER AND YOU RUN ON TO SCHOOL- THERE AINT ANY TELLIN' WHAT THEY'LL DO TO YOU FOR BEIN' SO LATE, KAYO.

FOR THE LOVE OF MIKE! NOW HE'S WENT OFF AND FORGOT HIS BOOKS.

OH!

HELP! POLICE!! KIDNAPPER! GRAB THAT MAN.

WOT IN TH'—?

DON'T SHOOT HIM YET, OFFICER- YOU'RE LIABLE TO HIT THE BABY.

HALT!

I'M SORRY, SONNIE- BUT ME AND YOU HAS GOT TO STICK TOGETHER— IF WE DON'T THAT COPS LIABLE TO MAKE ME LOOK LIKE A PIECE OF SWISS CHEESE.

I TELL YOU I WAS JEST HOLDIN' THE KID FOR MY LITTLE BROTHER AND I NOTICED HE'D FORGOT HIS SCHOOL BOOKS SO I WAS CHASIN' AFTER HIM TO GIVE THEM TO HIM.

APPLE-SAUCE!

WELL, LOCK HIM UP, OFFICER- AND IF THE LITTLE BOY VERIFIES HIS STORY YOU CAN LET HIM GO.

I HAVE JUST RECIEVED A TELEPHONE CALL FROM THE POLICE STATION, REQUESTING ME TO SEND LITTLE KAYO MULLINS THERE IMMEDIATELY.

HOLY H. SMOKE! WHERE'S MY HAT?

IF THEY THINK THEY'RE GONNA LOCK ME UP IN ANY POLICE STATION FOR BEIN' LATE, THEY'RE GOOFEY.

SO'S YER OLD MAN

opyright, 1926, ribune.

Little Orphan Annie

THERE I WAS ON TH' TRAPEZE WAY UP IN TH' TOP OF TH' TENT WHEN SOMETHIN' BUSTED AND THE NEXT I KNOW I'M HERE IN TH' HOSPITAL- AND I CAN'T MOVE A THING BUT MY HEAD AND I CAN'T FEEL ANY ARMS OR LEGS OR NOTHIN'- TH' DOC. SAID I WAS PAR-LIZED OR SOMETHIN', DIDN'T HE? LEAPIN' LIZARDS! WON'T I GET OVER IT PRETTY SOON? I GOTTA GET BACK ON TH' JOB-

HAROLD GRAY

LOTS OF VISITORS IN THE HOSPITAL TODAY- NEARLY EVERYONE HAS COMPANY-

WISH I COULD HAVE COMP-NY- BUT NOBODY'LL COME TO SEE ME- I'M AN ORPHAN, YOU KNOW-

HEY! HEY! HEAD HIM OFF!!! HEAD HIM YERSELF ARF!!! ARF!!! STOP HIM- LOOK OUT!!!

WHAT ON EARTH?

WHY--- IT'S-- IT'S-- IT'S---

ARF!

MERCIFUL SAINTS!

IT'S SANDY!

DON'T BITE 'EM TOO HARD, SANDY- GIVE 'EM TIME- THEY'LL RUN-

AR-R-R

MY, WHAT A BIG BRUTE- IT'S AGAINST THE RULES TO ALLOW DOGS IN THE HOSPITAL-

SANDY? WHY, HE'S MY BUDDY- WHO SAYS HE CAN'T COME SEE ME?

IT'S A RULE- NO ONE BUT DR. LOEWENTHAL, THE CHIEF SURGEON, COULD CHANGE IT-

WELL YOU GO TELL THE DOC. I WANT SANDY TO STAY HERE- SEE?

SANDY, YOU OLD RASCAL- I KNEW YOU'D FIND YOUR WAY HERE- GUESS I'M DONE FOR, SANDY- CAN'T WIGGLE A BLAMED THING BUT MY HEAD- THEY'RE GOIN' TO OP'RATE- MAYBE THEN I'LL BE ALL RIGHT- AND THEN AGAIN MAYBE I WON'T-

SH-H-H--- THERE COMES SOMEBODY NOW- I WON'T LET 'EM TAKE YOU AWAY FROM ME, SANDY. I WON'T!!!

EEK-

SANDY! IS THAT NICE? WAIT TILL YUH SEE WHAT TH' DOC SAID- SIT DOWN-

AR-R-R

DR. LOEWENTHAL SAYS, WHILE IT'S VERY IRREGULAR, STILL IN THIS CASE YOUR DOG MAY REMAIN IN THE ROOM-

WHEE! HEAR THAT, SANDY?

I HOPE WE'LL BE GOOD FRIENDS-

NOW SHOW TH' NURSE WHAT A GENTLEMAN YOU CAN BE- THAT'S RIGHT- AND WHAT DO YOU SAY?

ARF!

OH WELL- IT MIGHT BE A LOT WORSE- I CAN WIGGLE MY HEAD- EMILY MARIE THERE NEVER COULD MOVE AT ALL BUT SHE'S ALWAYS GRINNIN'- AND YOU'RE THE TWO BEST PALS IN THE WORLD- THERE'S ALWAYS LOTS TO BE HAPPY ABOUT NO MATTER WHAT HAPPENS-

Smitty

GRRRR! GRR GRRR
SAY! I'M THE FISH WARDEN= ER-IT'S A NICE DAY FOR FISHING, ISN'T IT?

I'M ALL SET TO GO FISHING WITH YOU BOSS
YES, BUT YOU CAN'T BRING YOUR DOG WITH YOU! LEAVE HIM HOME

AW-HE WOULDN'T DO NOTHIN, BOSS
YES, BUT HE'D HAVE US IN TROUBLE BEFORE YOU'D KNOW IT

THE END OF THIS ROAD IS WHERE WE GET OUT TO FISH
HURRY UP

UNPACK THE FISHING POLES AND WE'LL TRY OUR LUCK!

GEE, I'VE GOT A NIBBLE
YES, BUT I'VE GOT A FISH!!

NOT SO BAD! THIS IS THE FOURTH CATCH SO FAR

SIT DOWN!
WAIT! LOOK AT THE WHOPPER I'VE GOT!

NICE MESS OF FISH WE CAUGHT SMITTY-FEEL HOW HEAVY THE BASKET IS

I'M THE FISH WARDEN-THERE'S NO FISHING ALLOWED IN THAT LAKE

GOLLY!
I'D LIKE TO LOOK IN THAT BASKET

OPEN IT UP-IT'S GOING TO COST YOU FIVE DOLLARS FOR EVERY FISH YOU'VE CAUGHT!!

WOW THIS IS A SWELL PARTY!
HUH! I'LL SHOW WHAT A SWELL PARTY IT IS!! I'LL SEND MY PRESENT THROUGH TH' WINDOW!

S'TOO BAD YOU AN' CHINK HAD A FALLIN' OUT, PERRY! NOW HE DIDN'T INVITE YOU TO HIS PARTY!!
YEAH, WE'RE GOIN' TO CHINK'S PARTY AN' WE'RE BRINGIN' PRESENTS, TOO!!
I'M JES' AS GLAD 'CAUSE I WOULDN'T GO TO HIS OL' PARTY ANYWAY!!

I'LL GET EVEN WITH CHINK! EVEN IF HE DIDN'T INVITE ME TO HIS OL' PARTY, I'M GONNA SEND HIM SOME PRESENT! SO FAR I GOT A TORN STOCKIN' AN' RAGS AN' HERE'S A BUSTED BOTTLE, A TIN CAN AN' A OL' TORN HAT!!

HEY, MR. ZAMORE, CAN I GET A BOX AN' SOME PAPER AN' SOME CORD? I WANNA MAKE A SWELL LOOKIN' PACKAGE!!
SURE, PERRY! WHY NOT??
TOYS

I'VE BEEN LOOKING ALL OVER FOR YOU, PERRY! YOU KNOW WE'RE GOING TO LITTLE MILDRED RODEN'S PARTY! WHAT HAVE YOU GOT THERE?
—ER—UH— IT'S—UH—IT'S A P-PRESENT!

NO, I'LL CARRY IT, DEAR! I WAS GOING TO BUY MILDRED A PRESENT BUT I'M GLAD YOU PICKED ONE OUT YOURSELF LIKE A LITTLE MAN!
BUT LISSEN, WINNIE—ER—YOU BETTER LET ME—

WHAT DID YOU BUY FOR HER, PERRY??
OH, GEE, I—ER—I—UH—GOSH, I—I CAN'T TELL YA—!!

WHY, I NEVER SAW SUCH ACTIONS! YOU COME RIGHT IN HERE TO MILDRED'S PARTY AND BEHAVE YOURSELF!!
AW, WINNIE, LISSEN—ER—GEE WHIZ—I—DON'T WANNA GO IN THERE!!

NOW, PERRY, CONGRATULATE MILDRED AND GIVE HER THE PRESENT YOU GOT FOR HER!
ULP—UH—M—M—UH—G—G—
WELL, THANK YOU ANY-WAY, PERRY!
HE'S JUST BASHFUL!

PUT THAT WITH YOUR OTHER GIFTS AND YOU CAN OPEN THEM ALL UP IN FRONT OF ALL YOUR LITTLE GUESTS, DEAR!
AN I BETTER LOOK AROUND FOR A EXIT BEFORE SHE STARTS OPENIN' THAT PRESENT!

TEE-HEE
HEE-HEE-M'MP
HA-HA
TEE HEE
AND THIS IS WHAT PERRY WINKLE GAVE ME — A—UH—WHY, IT'S ONLY A TORN STOCKING—AND BROKEN BOTTLES, AND A LOT OF JUNK!!
FOR HEAVEN'S SAKE!!
WHY—UH—ER—WHERE'S PERRY?

JUST WAIT TILL I LAY MY HANDS ON PERRY!!!
SEE WHAT CHINK GOT ME IN TO? NOW I'M MADDER'N EVER AT HIM!!

TEXAS SLIM
DECIDES TO PARK HIMSELF FOR LIFE.

I WONDER WHAT'S HAPPENED TO TEXAS, UNCLE BEDFORD— HE SAID HE'D BE OVER HERE AT EIGHT O'CLOCK. SHARP.

OH, HE PROBABLY MADE ANOTHER ENGAGEMENT, JESSIE.

KEEP OUT

HAY FEVER

YELLOW JAUNDICE

SMALL POX

DANGER

BEWARE OF THE DOG

ULP!

HO HUM!

WELL! IT LOOKS LIKE WE'VE GOT COMPANY, JESSIE.

-WE WILL GO UP TO UNCLE BEDFORD'S HOUSE, TEXAS. HE SAID HE WAS GOING TO LODGE TO-NIGHT.

OH WIFEY! THERE'S NO SOAP IN THE BATH ROOM- WHERE CAN I FIND A BAR?

I'LL THROW IT DOWN TO YOU, BEDFORD- BE PATIENT

AW LETS SET OUT ON THE PORCH, JESSIE

OH NO- IT'S MORE COMFORTABLE IN THE HOUSE.

AFTER SEEIN' ALL THESE SLICK CITY FELLERS, JESSIE- MAYBE YOU WOULDN'T WANT TO MARRY A GUY LIKE ME NOW- WHY I CAN'T EVEN CHARLESTON.

OH THAT'S EASY, TEXAS. MOVE SOME OF THAT FURNITURE OUT OF THE WAY AND I'LL SHOW YOU HOW.

WELL I'LL BE A—

JUST KICK THAT RUG BACK OUT OF THE WAY AND MOVE THE SCREEN, DEARIE

I'LL PUT IT IN FRONT OF YOUR UNCLE BEDFORD'S PICTURE- IT MAKES ME NERVOUS.

- NO PUT IT BACK IN FRONT OF THAT WINDOW AGAIN - THOSE PEOPLE THERE SEEM TO THINK THIS IS A SIDE SHOW.

GOOD GRIEF!

ZUMP!

OH I SHALL NEVER FORGIVE UNCLE BEDFORD FOR THIS - HE WAS DELIBERATELY EAVES DROPPING

I THINK WE'D BETTER GO BACK IN THE PARK.

TEXAS— DID YOU FORGET YOUR HAT OR ARE YOU TRYING TO LOOK LIKE A COLLEGE BOY.

I'LL GO BACK AND GET IT.

QUICK, PANSY- BRING ME MY CLOTHES. I'VE CHANGED MY MIND ABOUT TAKING A BATH - I JUST OVER HEARD THOSE SILLY KIDS PLANNING TO ELOPE AND I'M GOING TO PUT A STOP TO IT.

HEY! WHAT'S THE IDEA?

STOP YELLING— THERE ARE YOUR CLOTHES, BEDFORD. I THREW THEM OVER THE BANISTER-

CRASH!

BUT, SWEETHEART- I DON'T THINK YOU SHOULD HAVE TAKEN UNCLE BEDFORD'S CLOTHES.

AW- DON'T LET THAT BOTHER YOU, JESSIE— I'LL RETURN THEM TO HIM TOMORROW- JUST AS SOON AS WE GET MARRIED.

DIS IS CERTAINLY A LUCKY DAY FOR US, OSWALD.

TOYS FOR TOTS SHOP

H, GEE, I ER-I-UH- OSH, I-I AN'T TELL YA —!!

AN I BETTER LOOK AROUND FOR A EXIT BEFORE SHE STARTS OPENIN' THAT PRESENT!

E WHAT CHINK OT ME IN TO? OW I'M ADDER'N VER AT HIM!!
